MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: DAVID DEMAREST DA
FROM: CURT SMITH CS
SUBJECT: AMERIFLORA 1992

On Monday, April 20th, at 10:30 a.m., you will deliver remarks (6 minutes/on cards) at the AmeriFlora '92 international flower show. Bob Hope will introduce you; you in turn introduce the First Lady, AmeriFlora's Honorary Patron. 2,200 VIPs and 10,000 general public will attend.

Your remarks commemorate Christopher Columbus, and celebrate the spirit of discovery that brought him to these shores. You discuss the enormous changes the world has witnessed since Columbus' voyage 500 years ago, zeroing in on the new economic realities, and what America must do to guarantee her leadership in the years to come.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: AMERIFLORA CONFERENCE
COLUMBUS, OHIO
MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1992
10:30 A.M.

Bob Hope. Governor Voinovich and his wife, Janet. Mayor Lashutka [la SHUT ka] and his wife, Catherine Adams. Dorothy and Bob Teator. John F. Wolfe, and wife Ann. Thank you all for the privilege of attending AmeriFlora '92: America's Celebration of Discovery. / Let me add: It's great to be back in Columbus. /

((First, let me say that it's appropriate that Bob Hope introduced me in the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. When Columbus and his crew stepped ashore, Bob emceed a benefit for them to raise money for future voyages.)) //

((Bob was telling me one result of Columbus' voyage was trade that first introduced broccoli to the Europeans. They've been our friends all these years anyway.)) / They remain friends now -- for more than ever, we believe in the same ideals like liberty, free trade, and democracy. / We know ours is one world -- an interdependent world -- and that the American Spirit enriches the human spirit -- brave / unafraid / above all, free.

That spirit -- the spirit of discovery -- forged America -- for Christopher Columbus believed the mariner must, in his words, probe "the secrets of the world." // So the son of a Genovese weaver took the first step in a trek that ultimately produced the United States of America. / In saluting his quincentennial, we salute how freedom's ship has sailed to every corner of the earth. //

We Americans celebrate discovery because we are never satisfied -- because we are ever romancing the next horizon. / That is why the sculpture in front of me reminds us of the sails of the Nina, Pinta, and the Santa Maria -- why, too, a full-size replica of the Santa Maria graces the Scioto [sigh OH toh] River. / ((By the way, it's not true my ancestors aboard those ships were the ones fishing over the side without catching anything.)) //

Here, in the largest city in the world bearing the explorer's name, we honor Columbus for the same reason as people in Peoria and Prague. We believe that the individual can make a difference / and that human dignity can change the world. Most of all, we know that dignity stems from values like work, self-reliance, faith. / In 1492, those values sustained Columbus' voyage. In 1992, they must sustain our voyage to do right, and thus achieve good. //

Today, our world is smaller, faster, than in Columbus' time -- our fates at home linked to those abroad. Yet we need to keep these values in our hearts, and in our minds. / Columbus sought a New World. The values I refer to can help create a new world order. //

Already, we see the outlines of a new world economy. Over the next week I will speak about this economy -- and how it can grow in the decades ahead. // We need, as President Nixon once

said, an "open world, open cities, open hearts, open minds." /
 Only then can we not merely trade with other nations but profit from other nations -- profit economically, and intellectually /
 profit culturally, and spiritually. //

In Columbus' day, commerce meant gold and trinkets. In our day commerce means the exchange of goods and ideas that foster
 free markets, free governments, and ultimately, freedom itself.
 // That is why America must be ready to compete. By investing more in research and development. Investing more in new technology. Investing more in education. // We're Americans.
 Performance is our name. So as we concede what's changed in the world, let's prove what hasn't changed: America can still outwork / outcompete / and outproduce any Nation, anywhere. //

I thought of our country yesterday as Barbara and I attended Easter services at St. Anne's in Kennebunkport -- the very church where my folks were married. / As I looked around our church, I gave thanks for all that has truly blessed America. Now, it's my pleasure to introduce the woman who has truly blessed my life. /

For two years she's been the Honorary Patron of AmeriFlora.
 She's been around the world, continuing Columbus' grand tradition. / ((You remember how he arrived in America and his luggage wound up in China.)) /

For 47 years, this woman has been my wife, and best friend.
 Today, I am pleased to introduce a friend of all America. Ladies and gentleman, a great First Lady of the greatest Nation on earth. Barbara Bush.

AMERIFLORA CONFERENCE \ COLUMBUS, OHIO
MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1992 \ 10:30 A.M.

BOB HOPE. GOVERNOR VOINOVICH AND HIS WIFE, JANET.
MAYOR LASHUTKA [LA-SHUT-KA] AND HIS WIFE, CATHERINE ADAMS. DOROTHY AND BOB TEATOR. JOHN F. WOLFE, AND WIFE ANN. THANK YOU ALL FOR THE PRIVILEGE OF ATTENDING AMERIFLORA '92: AMERICA'S CELEBRATION OF DISCOVERY. /
IT'S GREAT TO BE BACK IN COLUMBUS -- THIS WONDERFUL CITY WHERE MY DAD WAS FROM AND GREW UP. //

FIRST, LET ME SAY I APPRECIATE THAT INTRODUCTION BY BOB HOPE. // ((BOB AND I WERE TALKING ABOUT THE 500TH ANNIVERSARY OF COLUMBUS' DISCOVERY OF AMERICA. HE WAS SAYING ONE RESULT OF COLUMBUS' VOYAGE WAS TRADE THAT FIRST INTRODUCED BROCCOLI TO THE EUROPEANS. THEY'VE BEEN OUR FRIENDS ALL THESE YEARS ANYWAY.)) /

THEY REMAIN FRIENDS NOW -- FOR MORE THAN EVER, WE BELIEVE IN THE SAME IDEALS LIKE LIBERTY, FREE TRADE, AND DEMOCRACY. /

WE KNOW OURS IS ONE WORLD -- AN INTERDEPENDENT WORLD
-- AND THAT THE AMERICAN SPIRIT ENRICHES THE HUMAN SPIRIT -- BRAVE / UNAFRAID / ABOVE ALL, FREE. //

THAT SPIRIT -- THE SPIRIT OF DISCOVERY -- FORGED AMERICA -- FOR CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS BELIEVED THE MARINER MUST, IN HIS WORDS, PROBE "THE SECRETS OF THE WORLD." // SO THE SON OF A GENOVESE WEAVER TOOK THE FIRST STEP IN A TREK THAT ULTIMATELY PRODUCED THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. /

IN SALUTING HIS QUINCENTENNIAL, WE SALUTE HOW FREEDOM'S SHIP HAS SAILED TO EVERY CORNER OF THE EARTH. //

WE AMERICANS CELEBRATE DISCOVERY BECAUSE WE ARE NEVER SATISFIED -- BECAUSE WE ARE EVER ROMANCING THE NEXT HORIZON. / THAT IS WHY THE SCULPTURE IN FRONT OF ME REMINDS US OF THE SAILS OF THE NINA, PINTA, AND THE SANTA MARIA -- WHY, TOO, A FULL-SIZE REPLICA OF THE SANTA MARIA GRACES THE SCIOTO [SIGH-OH-TOH] RIVER. /

((BY THE WAY, IT'S NOT TRUE MY ANCESTORS ABOARD THOSE SHIPS WERE THE ONES FISHING OVER THE SIDE WITHOUT CATCHING ANYTHING.)) //

HERE, IN THE LARGEST CITY IN THE WORLD BEARING THE EXPLORER'S NAME, WE HONOR COLUMBUS FOR THE SAME REASON AS PEOPLE IN PEORIA AND PRAGUE. WE BELIEVE THAT THE INDIVIDUAL CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE / AND THAT HUMAN DIGNITY CAN CHANGE THE WORLD.

MOST OF ALL, WE KNOW THAT DIGNITY STEMS FROM VALUES LIKE WORK, SELF-RELIANCE, FAITH. / IN 1492, THOSE VALUES SUSTAINED COLUMBUS' VOYAGE. IN 1992, THEY MUST SUSTAIN OUR VOYAGE TO DO RIGHT, AND THUS ACHIEVE GOOD.

TODAY, OUR WORLD IS SMALLER, FASTER, THAN IN COLUMBUS' TIME -- OUR FATES AT HOME LINKED TO THOSE ABROAD. YET WE NEED TO KEEP THESE VALUES IN OUR HEARTS, AND IN OUR MINDS. /

COLUMBUS SOUGHT A NEW WORLD. THE VALUES I REFER TO CAN HELP CREATE A NEW WORLD ORDER. //

ALREADY, WE SEE THE OUTLINES OF A NEW WORLD ECONOMY. OVER THE NEXT WEEK I WILL SPEAK ABOUT THIS ECONOMY -- AND HOW IT CAN GROW IN THE DECADES AHEAD. //

WE NEED, AS PRESIDENT NIXON ONCE SAID, AN "OPEN WORLD, OPEN CITIES, OPEN HEARTS, OPEN MINDS." /

ONLY THEN CAN WE NOT MERELY TRADE WITH OTHER NATIONS BUT PROFIT FROM OTHER NATIONS -- PROFIT ECONOMICALLY, AND INTELLECTUALLY / PROFIT CULTURALLY, AND SPIRITUALLY. //

BY INVESTING MORE IN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.
INVESTING MORE IN NEW TECHNOLOGY. INVESTING MORE IN EDUCATION. // WE'RE AMERICANS. PERFORMANCE IS OUR NAME. SO AS WE CONCEDE WHAT'S CHANGED IN THE WORLD, LET'S PROVE WHAT HASN'T CHANGED: AMERICA CAN STILL OUTWORK / OUTCOMPETE / AND OUTPRODUCE ANY NATION, ANYWHERE. //

I THOUGHT OF OUR COUNTRY YESTERDAY AS BARBARA AND I ATTENDED EASTER SERVICES IN KENNEBUNKPORT. /

AS I LOOKED AROUND OUR CHURCH, WE GAVE THANKS FOR ALL THAT HAS TRULY BLESSED AMERICA. NOW, IT'S MY PLEASURE TO INTRODUCE SOMEONE WHO HAS TRULY BLESSED MY LIFE. /

FOR TWO YEARS SHE'S BEEN THE HONORARY PATRON OF AMERIFLORA. SHE'S SURE BEEN AROUND THE WORLD, CONTINUING COLUMBUS' GRAND TRADITION. / ((YOU REMEMBER HOW HE ARRIVED IN AMERICA AND HIS LUGGAGE WOUND UP IN CHINA.)) /

FOR 47 YEARS, SHE HAS BEEN MY WIFE. LADIES AND GENTLEMAN, OUR FIRST LADY. BARBARA BUSH.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: AMERIAFLORA CONFERENCE
COLUMBUS, OHIO
MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1992

Mayor Lashutka [la SHUT ka] and his lovely wife, Catherine Adams. Governor Voinovich and his wife, Janet. Dorothy and Bob Teator. / John F. Wolfe, and wife Ann. Thank you all for the privilege of attending AmeriFlora '92: America's Celebration of Discovery. //

((First, let me say that it's appropriate that Bob Hope introduced me in the 500th year of Columbus' discovery of America. When Columbus and his crew stepped ^{emceed} ashore, Bob ~~M.C.~~ ^d a benefit for them to raise money for future voyages.)) //

((Bob was telling me one result of Columbus' voyage was trade that first introduced broccoli to the Europeans. They've been our friends all these years anyway.)) / They remain friends now -- for more than ever, we believe in the same things like liberty, free trade, and democracy. / We know ours is one world -- an interdependent world -- and that the American Spirit enriches the human spirit -- brave / unafraid / above all, free.

That spirit -- the spirit of discovery -- forged America -- for Christopher Columbus believed the mariner must, in his words, probe "the secrets of the world." // So the son of a Genovese weaver took the first step in a trek that ultimately produced the United States of America. / In saluting his quincentennial, we

We Americans celebrate discovery because we are never satisfied -- and because we are ever romancing the next horizon.

/ That is why near here is a sculpture of sails of the Nina, ^{the Pinta} ~~Pina~~, and the Santa Maria -- why, too, a full-size replica of the Santa Maria graces the Sciota River. / ((Come to think of it, it's a good thing America was discovered by Columbus instead of some pirate. Otherwise, I might be speaking here in Blackbeard, Ohio.)) //

Here, in the largest city in the world bearing the explorer's name, we honor Columbus for the same reason as people in Peoria and Pretoria. We believe that the individual can make a difference / and that human dignity can change the world. Most of all, we know that dignity stems from values like work, self-reliance, faith. / In 1492, those values sustained Columbus' voyage. In 1992, they must sustain our voyage to do right, and thus achieve good. //

Could we pick a less controversial city?

Today, our world is smaller, faster, than in Columbus' time -- our fates at home linked to those abroad. Yet we need to keep these values in our hearts, and in our minds. / Columbus sought a New World. The values I refer to can help create a New World Order. //

Our New World Order mandates a New World Economy. Over the next week I will speak about this economy -- and how it demands trade that is both fair and free. / We need, as President Nixon

once said, an "open world, open sky, open hearts, open minds." /
 Only then can we not merely trade with other nations but profit
 from other nations -- profit economically, and intellectually /
 profit culturally, and spiritually. //

In Columbus' day, commerce meant gold and trinkets. In our day commerce means the exchange of goods and ideas that foster
 free markets, free governments, and ultimately, freedom itself.
 // We're Americans. Performance is our name. So as we concede what's changed in the world, let's remember what hasn't changed:
 Given a level playing field, ~~America~~ ^{Americans} can outwork / outcompete /
 and outproduce any Nation, anywhere. //

I thought of that yesterday. Easter morning. Barbara and I attended services at St. Anne's in Kennebunkport -- the very church ~~where~~ ^{where} my folks were married. / As I looked around our church, I gave thanks for all that has truly blessed America.
 And now, it's my pleasure to introduce the woman who has truly
 blessed my life. /

For two years she's been the grand patron of AmeriaFlora.
 She's been around the world, continuing Columbus' grand tradition. / ((You remember how he arrived in America and his luggage wound up in China.)) /

For 44 years, this woman has been my wife, and best friend.
 Today, I am pleased to introduce a friend of all America. Ladies and gentleman, a great First Lady of the greatest Nation on earth. Barbara Bush.

Most of all, we know that dignity stems from values like work, self-reliance, faith. / In 1492, those values sustained Columbus' voyage. In 1992, they must sustain our voyage to do right, and thus achieve good. //

Today, our world is smaller, faster, than in Columbus' time -- our fates at home linked to those abroad. Yet we need to keep these values in our hearts, and in our minds. / Columbus sought a New World. The values I refer to can help create a New World Order. //

Our New World Order mandates a New World Economy. Over the next week I will speak about this economy -- and how it demands trade that is both fair and free. / We need, as President Nixon

once said, an "open world, open sky, open hearts, open minds." /
 Only then can we not merely trade with other nations but profit
 from other nations -- profit economically, and intellectually /
 profit culturally, and spiritually. //

In Columbus' day, commerce meant gold and trinkets. In our day commerce means the exchange of goods and ideas that foster
 free markets, free governments, and ultimately, freedom itself.
 // We're Americans. Performance is our name. So as we concede
 what's changed in the world, let's remember what hasn't changed:
 Given a level playing field, America can outwork / outcompete /
 and outproduce any Nation, anywhere. //

I thought of that yesterday. Easter morning. Barbara and I attended services at St. Anne's in Kennebunkport -- the very church where my folks were married. / As I looked around our church, I gave thanks for all that has truly blessed America.
 And now, it's my pleasure to introduce the woman who has truly
 blessed my life. /

For two years she's been the grand patron of AmeriaFlora.
 She's been around the world, continuing Columbus' grand tradition. / ((You remember how he arrived in America and his luggage wound up in China.)) /

For 44 years, this woman has been my wife, and best friend.
 Today, I am pleased to introduce a friend of all America. Ladies and gentleman, a great First Lady of the greatest Nation on earth. Barbara Bush.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: AMERIFLORA CONFERENCE
COLUMBUS, OHIO
MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1992
10:30 A.M.

Bob Hope. Governor Voinovich and his wife, Janet. Mayor Lashutka [la SHUT ka] and his wife, Catherine Adams. Dorothy and Bob Teator. John F. Wolfe, and wife Ann. Thank you all for the privilege of attending AmeriFlora '92: America's Celebration of Discovery. / Let me add: It's great to be back in Columbus, /

((First, let me say that it's appropriate that Bob Hope introduced me in the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. When Columbus and his crew stepped ashore, Bob emceed a benefit for them to raise money for future voyages.)) //

((Bob was telling me one result of Columbus' voyage was trade that first introduced broccoli to the Europeans. They've been our friends all these years anyway.)) / They remain friends now -- for more than ever, we believe in the same ideals like liberty, free trade, and democracy. / We know ours is one world -- an interdependent world -- and that the American Spirit enriches the human spirit -- brave / unafraid / above all, free.

That spirit -- the spirit of discovery -- forged America -- for Christopher Columbus believed the mariner must, in his words, probe "the secrets of the world." // So the son of a Genovese weaver took the first step in a trek that ultimately produced the United States of America. / In saluting his quincentennial, we

We Americans celebrate discovery because we are never satisfied -- because we are ever romancing the next horizon. / That is why the sculpture in front of me reminds us of the sails of the Nina, Pinta, and the Santa Maria -- why, too, a full-size replica of the Santa Maria graces the Scioto [sigh OH toh] River. / ((By the way, it's not true my ancestors aboard those ships were the ones fishing over the side without catching anything.)) //

Here, in the largest city in the world bearing the explorer's name, we honor Columbus for the same reason as people in Peoria and Prague. We believe that the individual can make a difference / and that human dignity can change the world. Most of all, we know that dignity stems from values like work, self-reliance, faith. / In 1492, those values sustained Columbus' voyage. In 1992, they must sustain our voyage to do right, and thus achieve good. //

Today, our world is smaller, faster, than in Columbus' time -- our fates at home linked to those abroad. Yet we need to keep these values in our hearts, and in our minds. / Columbus sought a New World. The values I refer to can help create a new world order. //

Already, we see the outlines of a new world economy. Over the next week I will speak about this economy -- and how it can grow in the decades ahead. // We need, as President Nixon once

said, an "open world, open cities, open hearts, open minds." /
 Only then can we not merely trade with other nations but profit
 from other nations -- profit economically, and intellectually /
 profit culturally, and spiritually. //

In Columbus' day, commerce meant gold and trinkets. In our day commerce means the exchange of goods and ideas that foster
 free markets, free governments, and ultimately, freedom itself.
 // That is why America must be ready to compete. By investing more in research and development. Investing more in new technology. Investing more in education. // We're Americans.
 Performance is our name. So as we concede what's changed in the world, let's prove what hasn't changed: America can still outwork / outcompete / and outproduce any Nation, anywhere. //

Together we will bring to Cuba a new era of freedom and democracy.

Remarks at the Opening Ceremony of the AmeriFlora '92 Exposition in Columbus, Ohio

April 20, 1992

Well, Bob, thank you very much. Barbara and I are just delighted to be here and, of course, delighted to be with our admired and respected friend, Bob Hope. May I salute our Governor George Voinovich; the Lieutenant Governor Mike Devine; Senator Glenn; Mayor Lashutka of Columbus; Dorothy and Bob Teater; Dick and Pam Frank; and of course, the one you heard from earlier, Mr. John Wolfe and his wife, Ann, John having done so much for this city.

And thank you all for the privilege of attending this marvelous AmeriFlora '92, America's celebration of discovery. It's great to be back in Columbus, this wonderful city, where my Dad was born and grew up.

First, I appreciate the brevity of the Bob Hope introduction. [Laughter] Bob was telling me about Columbus' discovery of America; we were talking a little history. He was saying that one result of Columbus' voyage was the trade that first introduced broccoli to the Europeans. They've been our friends ever since, anyway. [Laughter] They remain friends, for more than ever, we believe in the same ideals like liberty, free trade, and democracy. We know ours is one world, an interdependent world.

The American spirit enriches the human spirit, brave, unafraid, and above all, free. That spirit, the spirit of discovery, forged America, for Christopher Columbus believed the mariner must, in his words, "probe the secrets of the world." So, the son of a Genoese weaver took that first step in a trek that ultimately produced the United States of America.

In saluting his quincentennial, we salute how freedom's ship has sailed to every corner of the Earth. We Americans celebrate discovery because we're never satisfied, because we are ever romancing the next horizon. That is why this beautiful sculpture here in front of us reminds us of the sails of the Niña, Pinta, and the Santa Maria, and why, too, a full-size replica of the Santa Maria graces the Scioto River.

Here in the largest city in the world bearing the explorer's name, we honor Columbus for the same reason as people in Peoria or Prague. We believe that the individual can make a difference and that human dignity can, indeed, change the world. Most of all, we know that dignity stems from values like hard work and self-reliance and faith. In 1492, those values sustained Columbus' voyage. In 1992, they must sustain our voyage to do right and, thus, achieve good.

Today, our world is smaller, faster than in Columbus' time, our fates at home linked to those abroad. Yet we need to keep these values in our hearts and in our minds. Columbus sought a new world. The values I refer to can help create a new world order.

Already, we see the outlines of a new world economy. Over the next week I'm going to be talking about this economy and how it can grow in the decades ahead. We need, as President Nixon once said, "an open world, open cities, open hearts, open minds." Only then can we not merely trade with other nations but profit from other nations, profit economically, intellectually, culturally, and spiritually.

In Columbus' day, commerce meant gold and trinkets. In our day, commerce means the exchange of goods and ideas that foster free markets, free governments, and ultimately, freedom itself. And that is why America must always be ready to compete, by investing more in research and development, investing more in new technology, investing more in education. We're Americans. Performance is our name. So, as we concede what's changed in the world, let's prove what has not changed: America can still outwork and outproduce and outcompete any nation anywhere.

I thought of our country yesterday as Barbara and I attended our little church, little Easter service there in a little tiny church in Maine. As I looked around our church, we gave thanks for all that has truly blessed America. Now, it is my pleasure to introduce someone who has blessed my life, the life of the Bush family. For 2 years she has been your honorary patron of this marvelous fair, honorary patron of AmeriFlora. She's sure been around the world, continuing Columbus' grand tradition. You might remember how Columbus arrived in America and his luggage wound up in China. [Laughter] But anyway, for 47 years, she's been my wife. Ladies and gentlemen, your honorary chairman, my wife, our First Lady, Barbara Bush.

Note: The President spoke at 11:05 a.m. In his remarks, he referred to Dorothy Teater, Franklin County commissioner, and her husband Robert; Richard M. Franks, chairman of the AmeriFlora '92 management committee, and his wife Pamela; and John F. Wolfe, chairman of the board of trustees of AmeriFlora '92, and his wife Ann.
