

Originally Processed With FOIA(s):
S

FOIA Number:
S

FOIA MARKER

This is not a textual record. This is used as an administrative marker by the George Bush Presidential Library Staff.

Record Group/Collection: George H.W. Bush Presidential Records Collection/Office of Origin: Speechwriting, White House Office of Series: Speech File Draft Files
Subseries: Chron File, 1989-1993

OA/ID Number: 13628
Folder ID Number: 13628-005

Folder Title:
Texas State Convention 6/20/92 [OA 5809] [1]

Stack:	Row:	Section:	Shelf:	Position:
G	26	18	3	1

should be President, foreign affairs don't really the only undisworld today, which we

I want to say a word ing that Boris Yeltsin n Washington, where greements for peace
inds of visitors joined e White House lawn
emocratically elected
d I just wish, really,
ould have been there
very special moment.
riotic people like you oment possible.

ple can worship free-n free markets. They government. And our kids and grandkids,
hat same shadow of nted us for 40 years.
at is important. And possible. And today, k God that ordinary ainst the Communist tened us and op-

vs is that if you have ice, there's always a ence. Howard Jarvis or tax limitation. He at last he won, when ment of this entire d for you important
e, with a new Con-
schools; put parents ucrats. Reform our verhaul the welfare
ple opportunity in-
Adopt a balanced nd hold the line
g, taxes, and regula-ess that shares our next 4 years to set t track for the next elp, I know we can.
ry much, and may States of America.

ke at 9:30 a.m. at

Remarks to the Texas State Republican Convention in Dallas, Texas

June 20, 1992

The President. Thank you so much for that warm welcome. Let me quickly say hello to a few of our dais guests: our elected officials Kay Bailey Hutchison and Rick Perry, doing a superb job for our State. May I salute the great mayor of Dallas, Steve Bartlett, who served so well in Washington and now serving this city with such distinction.

And now, on to the political types like you and me: Ernie Angelo and Penny Butler, the Texas GOP National Committee members; Fred Meyer, our great Chairman of this Texas State GOP. I want to thank Beverly Kaufman and all the women, all the members of the Texas Federation who came to meet me and who are doing a great job for us. Single out our Bush-Quayle team, Jim Oberwetter, Barbara Patton; and of course, Rob Mosbacher, the chairman of Texas Victory '92. We have a great Republican congressional delegation from Texas, and I'm pleased so many members of that Texas congressional delegation could attend. I wish we had more like them in Washington, DC.

And last but not least, I'd like to single out the master of ceremonies with whom I served so closely in Washington as we battled to get some things past the Congress, as we stood up against many things that the Congress were trying to ram down the throats of the people, and I'm talking about Fred McClure, the emcee, my great friend and yours. Thank you, Fred.

Now, let me just say at the beginning I have never felt as strongly as I do now: I am proud to be a Texan. Barbara and I raised our kids here. From 1948 on, we voted in every Presidential election here. I coached Little League here, built my business here, worked in the party here. My Presidential library will be here. My campaign started here. And when my work is over, I'll come back here. So it's great to be home. There is no place like Texas.

November 3d is but a few months away. And yes, the going's been rough for our country, but we're turning the corner. And I'll let the world in on a secret that you already know: I finish what I start. To finish the job the American people asked me to do, I need your help, Texas. Give me 4 more years as your leader, and let's get the job done.

Audience members. Four more years! Four more years! Four more years!

The President. A strange political year, yes. But snappy answers and glib talk will not get the job done. Let somebody else become the darling of the talking heads on television; I'm going to keep on fighting to get something done for this country. You wait until August, and we'll roll up our sleeves and get in that campaign mode. But there's too much at stake for America to forget about trust and judgment and values; too much at stake, as we say here, to buy a pig in a poke. And you can count on this: We will win in November. And I am convinced we are going to carry Texas, and we are going to win going away.

Just the the last 4 years, the world that we have known for the last 40 years has changed. And by our willingness to stand up for freedom and stand against aggression and fight for what's right, we changed the world. And our mission for the next 4 years is to shape our new world, not just abroad but right here at home. It's a big job to set the course for the next 40 years, and it means solving big problems with a level head, with tolerance and good judgment. Being President is a demanding job, and a President must be temperamentally suited for the job. I have been tested by fire, and I am the right man for that job.

You and I understand America and her problems, and we understand where we must go. And we all want families strong and united, good schools, safe neighborhoods, job-creating economy, and a world at peace. Since becoming your President, I have been to all 50 States in the country. I have felt the heartbeat of America. I felt it up close—farmers and ranchers and cities and city kids and teachers and truck drivers. I know the American people, and they are with us, but they're angry. They're angry at big Government, small results, and big excuses. And they are right: Government is too big, and it spends too much. And we've got to change that.

This election must be a referendum on some big ideas. And one of them is that Government works right without raising taxes. Unlike one of my opponents, I do not believe that the only way to ever balance the budget is, quote, a massive tax increase, unquote. The American people know that I proposed an amendment to balance the budget. They know I fought for it, the only Presidential candidate to support it. That's why in the fall, they will be with us. You send us more Congressmen from Texas who will do what the people want. And the people want a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States. And by the way, while you're still standing, the American people know that the President should have what 43 Governors have to control spending. They know I fought for it, and they will be with us. America wants the line-item veto. [Applause] Thank you.

Now, the taxpayers know how the budget gets busted. It's an arrogant, permanent, liberal, Democratic-controlled Congress, unaccountable to the people. The American people are with us, and it is time to limit the term for Members of Congress.

You and I know each other. And throughout my life in Texas you've seen me close up. When I sent our sons and daughters into battle in Panama and in Desert Storm, Texans anguished with me and overwhelmingly supported me. And when I agreed to pay a painful price for a spending controls deal on the budget, Lord knows you argued with me. And when I said I will not eat broccoli, every kid in Texas said, "Yes!" But through it all, you knew I wouldn't break with those Texas values that we hold most dear: freedom and faith, honor and decency, and, most of all, family.

History will record this: American leadership changed the world. Panama is a democratic country. Its democratically elected leaders, once beaten by those dignity battalions, are now back in office, and its narco-trafficking dictator in jail where he belongs. And Eastern Europe is free. Germany is united. Imperial communism is dead and buried. And just this week, Boris Yeltsin and I stood in the Rose Garden to announce the most sweeping nuclear arms cuts in history, eliminating those enormous multiwarheaded ICBM's that have threatened the world. That is something big. That is something spectacular. Dreams come true for America. And these kids here will sleep at night without the same fear of nuclear war. I am proud of that record, and I will take that record to the American people.

But let me warn you, let me just put out this one word of warning. For all the great triumphs that freedom has made, the world still remains a dangerous place. That's why a big idea in this campaign is defending America's interests abroad. And the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong. The Soviet bear might now be a creature of the past, but there are still plenty of wolves out there, and you know who they are. But as our actions in the Gulf proved, we will defend our interests. We will keep the wolves at bay. And we will never let aggression stand.

Yes, our successes abroad have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on these domestic problems. And as I work to correct what's wrong, I will always remember: The people don't work for the Government; the Government works for the people. No, to set things on a track right here at home we must start with a moral, even a spiritual revival across this country, particularly when it comes to instilling values in our kids. So here's another big idea. Fads may come and go, but in the Bush administration the family will always be in fashion. And that's how we put first things first. Families united, fathers and mothers staying together in spite of tough times because they love their kids and want them to grow up whole and strong. It all begins with the family. And we must find ways to strengthen the American family. The Commission I appointed will do just that. And all of us should make suggestions that will help.

You know, some of the ideas that I've put forth for changing America unnerved those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Not everyone is ready for new ideas, so it's going to take some time. And 4 years just haven't been enough to finish our mission. Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? And the answer is: I

Despite the odds, we've had some successes on Capitol Hill. Legislation like the Child Care Act which said parents raise kids, not the Government; the Clean Air Act, linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act, guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream. Give these people a chance, and that's what that legislation did. And sometimes my job up there, given the control of the Congress, is to keep bad things from happening. And when it comes to stopping bad legislation with my veto pen, it's Bush 26, the Congress 0. And it's going to stay that way.

I'm proud of our record. We've had to make the tough calls every day and every week. We proposed a better way for America, a new track for America. And like Texas, it is a big idea. And when Congress blocks the way, stuck in the muck of old thinking, we'll keep that heat on, keep pushing for change. One specific on that; the Congress may have a vision problem on that. The Congress may have a vision problem, but don't for a minute think that we're going to give up on the superconducting supercollider. It is forward-looking, and the country needs it, and the world needs it. It's good for Texas, and it's good for the United States of America.

And when the American people send me a Congress with a commitment to change, we'll pass the laws and do the work that the American people deserve. But let me say this: With or without the Congress, we are going to give the American people what they want. And that's not excuses; that is action. This is an age of great change for America. And that's what makes November 3d so important. Change can seem to threaten the most valuable legacies that we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a Nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism, and I understand that. But, look, we are the United States of America, one Nation under God. And the genius of America is everywhere. It is in a society that places a premium on performance, not glitz; on service, not selfishness. A society that captures what Texas is all about. And let the skeptic say that it can't be done. The optimist will say, let's get to work. And I am ready.

And, yes, we're in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight. And we are in it to win.

And I appreciate this sensational war in Texas welcome. And may God bless you all. And may God bless the United States of America. Thank you very much. Thank you. Thank you all so much.

Note: The President spoke at 4:06 p.m. at the Dallas Convention Center. In his remarks, he referred to Kay Bailey Hutchison, Texas State treasurer; Rick Perry, Texas commissioner of agriculture; Beverly Kaufman, president, Texas Federation of Republican Women; Jim Oberwetter, Bush-Quayle '92 Texas chairman; Barbara Patton, Bush-Quayle '92 Texas cochairman; and Frederick D. McClure, managing director, First Southwest Co., and former Assistant to the President for Legislative Affairs. The President also referred to the Texas A&M University Aggies.

Remarks on Signing Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Legislation

June 22, 1992

Welcome to the Rose Garden. I'm very pleased to welcome all of you on this short notice to the White House. But may I salute our Secretary of Labor, who's been very instrumental in all of this; Senator Seymour; Senator Hatch; Senator Stevens; Congressman Joe McDade. Welcome, all. And all of them, along with some others that weren't able to be with us today, have been extraordinarily helpful in this legislation. May I salute Mayor Schmoke, Bob Neall.

It is a very special privilege to have some young Americans from right here in our Nation's Capital. They're the reason, kids like these are the reason why we produce this legislation. They're the reason we're fighting for far-reaching reforms to offer opportunity for a better future.

The supplemental appropriations bill that I am signing here today provides emergency funding for the nationwide disaster programs of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA, and for the Small Business

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

June 16, 1992

MEMORANDUM FOR DAN MCGROARTY

FROM: ROGER B. PORTER RBP

SUBJECT: Presidential Remarks: Texas State Convention

We have reviewed the attached presidential remarks and have noted several suggested changes on the draft.

If you have any questions or we can be of further assistance, please let us know.

cc: Phillip D. Brady

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOON

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

CC: ED MURPHY

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

22 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. ~~And come hell~~ ~~or high water,~~ I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

*INNECESSARILY
DEFENSIVE* |
That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and ~~fling~~ ^{BABBLE} sound-good sound-bites. ~~Let~~ ~~somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll~~ ~~keep fighting to get something done for this country.~~ e

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has ~~turned upside down~~ ^{CHANGED DRAMATICALLY.} The next four years will set a new ~~track~~ ^{COURSE} for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. ~~Just for starters,~~ I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They ~~just~~ don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

^{WE}
~~You~~'ve seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas ^{HAVE} upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. ^I So I understand the feeling that's out there, ^{because} I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still ^{can't give him assistance} ~~don't have an answer~~ when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on - right -- we've been pushing these ideas for a long time.

7

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this ~~old ideas~~ before." They're ~~wrong~~. But these ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

But change can also bring the innovation and opportunities that will ensure a better world for our children.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 PI2:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

3pm speech TODAY ~~Tonight~~ is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

What does this mean?

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

Administrative report of the government. How about Congress
 At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

How do we measure?
 The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

shouldn't we spell out that new course?

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOON

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

Comments p3

4
6

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

12 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am - - what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times,

Refer to historic meeting w/ Yeltsin

because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some ^{grand}~~big~~ ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

CIVIL RIGHTS BILL / AMERICAN DISABILITIES ACT

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

92 JUN 16 P1:22

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONPRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

Please see comments.

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am - - what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake ^{for Americans} to forget about trust and judgment and values ~~and values~~ -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I ~~know I'm~~ ^{am} the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes ~~the ability to solve big problems with~~ ^{the ability to solve big problems with} ~~forethought and~~ ^{and her} a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's ~~problems~~ ^{and her} problems and I understand where we ~~want to~~ ^{must} go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: ~~and the lives of everyone else's~~ ^{and the lives of everyone else's} strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change ^{a lot of} things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've ~~felt~~ ^{listened to} the heartbeat of this country ~~closeup~~ in every state in the Union. ~~Just for starters, I know the American~~ ~~people want~~ a Balanced Budget Amendment, ~~I know the American~~ ~~people want the President to have~~ the Line Item Veto, ~~And I know~~ ~~the American people want~~ term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because

That's why I know that one big idea that this campaign is about is government that works right without raising taxes. People are angry at government, appalled by public bureaucracy and don't believe we spend money ~~right~~ well. And America is right. That's why America for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear:

↓ decency, integrity, freedom ^{and} faith, and most of all family.
honor and decency

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times,

That is why another big idea in this campaign is ~~the~~ defending America's interests abroad with vigilance to terrorists and threats to military and economic stability. Americans depend on this protection.

~~Don't~~ give Quayle credit for this. This is GB's & B Bush's through and through and ^{more} ^{credible} than the VP on this who is President because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong. ~~So here is another big idea of this campaign:~~ ~~Raising all our children well.~~ ~~and it's right no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children.~~ ~~This~~ ^A This will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it. ^A a fundamental mission of the

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a

I am not sure how to bring my P-2 command together with this. They should be combined to be most powerful daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

Good

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. ~~The~~ ~~mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.~~

I know that the biggest idea of this campaign is accelerating economic growth to create hope and opportunity for everyone. And I pledge myself to this mission.

Good

We must not once again walk

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, ~~let's face it: we've walked~~ down ~~too many~~ old paths with ~~the~~ old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. ~~To listen to~~ the pundits, ~~or~~ ^{and} the special interest lobbies, ~~you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.~~

setting a new course despite what you hear from

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- ~~one that~~ ^{it is a movement of} builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities --

God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are ~~indispensable to~~ ^{solving serious problems in every community neighborhood,} creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, ~~we made this movement~~ ^{under my presidency, ~~light~~ (is) ~~movement~~} a national crusade.

ordinary people solving problems where they live - and it

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, ~~it's a big idea~~

*hunts
"big idea" with press corps*

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will ~~launch~~ lead this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

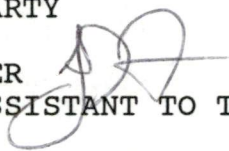

MEMORANDUM

COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS

June 16, 1992

MEMORANDUM FOR DAN MCGROARTY

FROM:

J.D. FOSTER
SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE CHAIRMAN

REGARDING:

Presidential Remarks: Texas State Convention

Comments:

1. Page three, line six: add the word "opportunity" to the list of values.
2. Page four, last sentence to end of paragraph: We must not say "We still don't have an answer...". We do have an answer, it is called the President's economic growth package. A more correct statement would be to say, "The Congress still has not passed my proposals which might have helped his company to stay in business. Or think about the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, who now cannot find a job because the Congress failed to act such common-sense ideas as reducing the capital gains tax."
3. Page 5, line 20: replace the word "Strong" with the word "Stronger".
4. Page 5, line 24: replace "strongest, toughest," with "largest".
5. Page 6, line 1: replace "or the decline" with "of the assault on".
6. Page 7, first full paragraph: Replace "They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way" with "They're about half right. Some of these ideas have been proposed before, but they have never been given a chance. Old thinkers stood in the way."

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOON

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: opportunity decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. [We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" ] Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. ^{Stronger} Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the ^{largest} ~~strongest~~, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or ^{of} ~~the decline in the~~ ^{affects assault on} American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

not clear
The Texas
convention would agree these are good.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." Some have been proposed before, but they have never been given a chance. ~~They're wrong.~~ ~~These ideas~~ have not been tried. Old thinkers ~~stand~~ have in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONPRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

See comments

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

make a reference
NAFTA

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOON

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

No comments. P. Brady may respond at a later time

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

4658

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOON

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

MEMORANDUM FOR DANIEL MCGROARTY

June 16, 1992

The NSC staff has no objection to the proposed presidential remarks, subject to the changes noted on the attached text.

cc: Phillip D. Brady

[Signature]
Brent Scowcroft

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

~~Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait because he came to the table and I provided him with a voice and leadership.~~

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running?

You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a

This question + answer do not work. To answer it accurately would require complexity that would undermine the thrust of the speech.

OK - if you use just and daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by ^{addition to over micromanagement} ~~by Congress~~ ~~gridlock~~ and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONPRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	X MOORE MEMO TO DP.	☒	☐
DARMAN N/C	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
X DEMAREST nm	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY N/C	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY N/C	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -
- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

Document No. 333362ss

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONSUBJECT: PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☒
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

CC: ED MURPHY

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

12 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

3pm speech
TODAY ~~Tonight~~ is not the time for long talk. You know who I am - what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

2

What does this mean?

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

3

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D - DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust - but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

4

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

5

*Administrative
Dept of the Government
Korabel
Congress*

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

How do we what measure?

The United States is still the strongest, toughest, and most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

6

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or the decline in the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

shouldn't we spell out that new course?

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

7

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried. Old thinkers stand in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

8

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONPRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SUBJECT: SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWCROFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMAREST	☒	☐	YEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSK	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

PHILLIP D. BRADY
Assistant to the President
and Staff Secretary
Ext. 2702

Nix/DD
June 15, 1992
Draft one
TEXAS

02 JUN 15 P12:15

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION

[ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS] [COLOR]

I don't think I've ever felt it as strongly -- there is no place like Texas. It is great to be back home.

Tonight is not the time for long talk. You know who I am -- what I believe. And I think Barbara and I know just about every one of you. Over the years, you've stood by us through the good times as well as the bumps along the way. The going is a little rough right now, but I'm going to let the world in on a secret you already know: I finish what I start. And come hell or high water, I am going to finish the job the American people asked me to do -- four more years as your leader.

That means keeping my eye on the ball. A lot of glib talk won't get the job done. Let somebody else make the rounds of the special interest crowd in Washington. Let somebody else pitch pie-in-the-sky promises, and fling sound-good sound-bites. Let somebody else become the darling of the talk show circuit, I'll keep fighting to get something done for this country.

I believe there's too much at stake to forget about trust and judgment and values -- too much at stake, as we say in Texas, to buy a pig in a poke.

And lest there's any doubt, I can tell you this: somebody else can spend the next five months being all things to all people -- nobody else is going to lead this country for the next four years. We will win in November, and we will win going away.

In just the last four years, the world we have known for the last forty years has turned upside down. The next four years will set a new track for the next forty years. That's why I want to be your President -- because I know I'm the right man for that job.

Leading our country through big changes is not simple. It takes foresight and a level head, tolerance and good judgment. I understand America's problems and I understand where we want to go. It's the vision we share in our own lives: strong families, good schools, safe neighborhoods, a job-creating economy, a world at peace -- that's the future I want for my kids and my grandkids -- for all America's children.

Pretty straightforward. But we have to change things to make that vision a reality. Leading this nation through big changes also requires your trust. Since becoming your President, I've felt the heartbeat of this country -- closeup -- in every state in the Union. Just for starters, I know the American people want a Balanced Budget Amendment. I know the American people want the President to have the Line Item Veto. And I know the American people want term limits for Members of Congress.

Now, there are others out there who say they are the leaders of change. Maybe they can read polls -- but they haven't read the American people. They just don't know you like I do, because for the last twenty-five years of my life, you -- you in Texas have been my family.

You've seen me tested. You've ached with me, you've laughed with me, and Lord knows, you've argued with me. But you know I will never break with the values we both hold most dear: opportunity decency, integrity, freedom, faith, and most of all family.

You've seen these values change the world. The Cold War is over -- Eastern Europe is free. Democracy is blossoming all over the globe and imperial Communism is a four-letter word, D-E-A-D -- DEAD! We all grew up with the specter of a nuclear holocaust -- but our children, these kids right up here, now go to sleep at night with far less fear of nuclear war. These are dreams come true for America, and I'm proud of that record.

For all the great triumphs freedom has made, the world remains a dangerous place. The Soviet "bear" might now be a creature of the past, but there are plenty of wolves, plenty of predators that still threaten the peace. You can take this one to the bank: I will never shortchange our national security -- the best way to keep America safe is to keep America strong.

Yes, our successes internationally have laid the foundation for stepping up our attack on our domestic problems. Now, the time has come to set things on a new track right here at home -- and it starts with a moral, even a spiritual revival across our nation. That's how we put first things first -- families united, fathers and mothers staying together, in spite of tough times, because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnerve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more Phil Gramms -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I didn't have to get permission from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. [We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?"] Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a daughter with a college education, when they say, "Our daughter can't find a job, what about her?" Or for the kids on the streets, whose only friend is crack, whose only family is the gang, when they ask, "What about us?"

At this historic moment when political leadership is so necessary, we have to ask, "What about him, what about her, what about those kids?" If it seems to the American people that their government is impotent and out of touch, still shuffling these painful protests to the waiting room of some Congressional subcommittee, they are right. We must break this government by gridlock and recapture the trust of the American people.

We have much to do these next four years, but I know our strength is in our values, our determination, and our optimism about the future. There's a right way and a wrong way to set a new course. The wrong way is to give up -- and I will not give up on America -- not now, not ever. America will always be a rising nation -- but only if we continue to believe in ourselves.

After a tough recession, confidence is returning to our economy. Some good fundamentals are in place: low interest rates, and low inflation. Stronger Strong growth in the first quarter. Our exports are still climbing -- proof that Americans can compete with anyone, anytime, anywhere in the world.

The United States is still the ~~strongest, toughest, and~~ best most productive economy in the world. Don't ever forget that. The mission of the nineties is to make sure we keep it that way.

Now as we face the tough problems of education, of crime, or ^{of} ~~the decline in the~~ ^{the assault on} the American family, let's face it: we've walked down too many old paths with the old thinkers. That's why back in '89, we began to forge a new path for America. To listen to the pundits, or the special interest lobbies, you might not hear about it, but we are well on our way to setting a new course.

There is a revolution going on to bring back excellence to our educational system. To read the papers, you might not know it, but we were the ones to start it -- we are the ones that are leading it -- shaping it -- and we'll be the ones to complete it.

You wouldn't know it watching the evening news, but there is another dynamic movement transforming our country -- one that builds on the courage of the real heroes of our communities -- God bless the ones we call Points of Light. They are indispensable to creating whole and good communities. And lest anyone forget, we made this movement a national crusade.

We have even had some successes on Capitol Hill -- legislation like our Child Care Act -- which said parents raise kids not government. The Clean Air Act -- linking a strong economy with a clean environment; the Americans with Disabilities Act -- guaranteeing the disabled their rightful place in the mainstream.

I'm proud of that record. We've had to make the tough calls -- every day and every week -- we don't hide behind vague slogans or no-fault promises. When the special interests blocked the way -- stuck in the muck of the old thinking -- we kept the heat on -

not clear
The Texas conservation would agree these are good.

- kept pushing for change. And we're going to keep on pushing until we get the job done.

Has our agenda been enacted? Not by a long shot. The critics say: "Your ideas aren't new, you've proposed all this before." Some have been proposed before, but they have never been given a chance. ~~They're wrong. These ideas have not been tried.~~ Old thinkers ~~stand~~ have in the way. Now is the time to act, because these are ideas whose time has come.

Bigger government, higher taxes, moral relativism -- that's their way -- the old way -- and we've proposed a better way. A new track for America -- like Texas, it's a big idea.

This is an age of great change for America -- that's what makes November 3rd so important. The American people must decide who to trust. Change sometimes seems to threaten the most valuable legacies we hope to leave our children: good jobs, strong families, a nation at peace. Change breeds uncertainty and skepticism. I understand that. But I understand something else, too: We are the United States of America -- one nation under God. We are optimists -- because skeptics won't do the work that needs to be done. Yes, we are in the fight of our lives, but it's worth the fight and we're in it to win.

Texans already embrace these principles -- principles we know are right. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future.

With your support, with our principles, we will take these big ideas for a new America and we will launch this rising nation into a new American Century.

I appreciate this warm Texas welcome. God bless you all.

and ~~big~~ representative like there is Low Texas Republican delegation

because they love their children and want them to grow up whole and strong.

Dan Quayle had it right -- no matter what the old thinkers may say, bringing focus to how we, as a nation, raise our children will always be in fashion in the Bush Administration -- count on it.

Since becoming President, I've put forth some big ideas for changing America -- and those ideas upset a few apple carts. New ideas unnarve those who cling to the old thinking of the status quo. Part of the mission is a government that works. On that one, give me a few more ^{Smith like} (Phil Gramm) -- a few more new thinkers in the Congress -- give me a new Congress, and you just watch us get this country moving again.

Some people say, why can't you bring the same kind of purpose and success to the domestic scene as you did in Desert Shield and Desert Storm? Fair question. And the answer is I ^{that of} [didn't have to get permission] from the Congress to kick Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

Would I like to see our domestic agenda off and running? You bet. So I understand the feeling that's out there because I am frustrated with the same things you are: family values under siege, too many kids getting a second-rate education, too much despair, too much violence, on too many streets. Think about the fifty-year old man laid off after thirty years with the same company. We still don't have an answer when he asks, "What about me?" Or for the parents who took on second jobs to provide a

Document No. 333362aa

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: 6/15/92 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: TUES. 6/16 NOONSUBJECT: PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TEXAS STATE CONVENTION
SATURDAY, 6/20/92 - DALLAS, TEXAS

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	☐	☒	HORNER	☐	☐
SKINNER	☐	☒	MCBRIDE	☒	☐
SCOWORFT	☒	☐	MOORE	☒	☐
DARMAN	☒	☐	PETERSMEYER	☒	☐
BRADY	☐	☒	PORTER	☒	☐
BROMLEY	☐	☐	ROLLINS	☐	☐
CALIO	☒	☐	SMITH	☒	☐
DEMARREZ	☒	☐	VEUTTER	☐	☒
FITZWATER	☐	☒	FINDLAY	☐	☒
GRAY	☒	☐	KAUFMAN	☐	☒
HOLIDAY	☒	☐	MCGROARTY	☐	☒
BOSKIN	☒	☐

REMARKS:

Please forward your comments directly to Dan McGroarty, Rm. 122, x2930, no later than NOON, TUESDAY, JUNE 16, with a copy to this office. Thank you.

RESPONSE:

See comments attached page, which is page 4 in original text.