THE PRESIDENT

SEPTEMBER 9, 1992

Yesterday, Bill Clinton was trying to show off his knowledge of our military hardware and got a little confused. Bill said the Patriot missile can go down chimneys. Someone pointed out to the governor that it's the Cruise missile that goes down chimneys. Bill said, "Oh yeah, then where does Santa Claus go?"

Christmas Eve, Bill puts out milk and cookies for that jolly old Patriot missile.

OR...

Bill Clinton was trying to show off his knowledge of our military hardware and got a little confused. Bill said the Patriot missile has the ability to go down chimneys. Do we really want a president who can't tell the difference between a Patriot missile and Santa Claus?

Somebody better straighten the Governor out. Or next Christmas he may call out the Arkansas National Guard to arrest eight reindeer and a fat guy.

It's scary to think that man had his finger on the button in the Little Rock War Room.

It isn't Bill Clinton's fault. While the Pentagon was designing missiles, Bill was at Oxford majoring in Letter Writing 101.

THE PRESIDENT SPEECH TO NATIONAL GUARD SEPT. 15, 1992

If you were a contestant on "Jeopardy" and Alex Trebek said, "The Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and National Guard", the correct response would be "Name five groups Bill Clinton loathes."

Bill Clinton's idea of military service is watching re-runs of "F Troop" (or "Hogan's Heroes").

During the Vietnam War, Bill Clinton was basically a conscientious objector. But to be a conscientious objector, don't you first have to have a conscience?

When "The Marines were looking for a few good men", Bill Clinton enrolled at Oxford.

During the Vietnam War, Bill Clinton heard that Oxford University was looking for a few good men.

During the Vietnam War, Bill Clinton was stationed at Fort Oxford.

When Uncle Sam called Bill Clinton, Bill Clinton called Uncle Raymond.

Governor Clinton claims he doesn't remember getting his induction notice. They say people can have selective amnesia. Bill has Selective Service amnesia.

Bill Clinton does have experience in foreign affairs. He spent the Vietnam War at Oxford.

THE PRESIDENT...TRAINRIDE AND GENERAL MATERIAL

Siller

Bill Clinton gets nervous when he's asked about the draft. Hell, he breaks into hives watching an episode of "Major Dad".

This guy keeps shifting his positions. Maybe he ought to debate himself. They could bill the contest "Slick Willie versus Shifty Billy".

Bill Clinton has threatened to debate himself in Michigan. That should be interesting. Each Bill Clinton will accuse the other of distortion (fibbing).

They were gonna decide which Bill Clinton speaks by a coin toss. But they figured before the coin hit the ground one of them would have spent it.

Bill Clinton debating Bill Clinton. Don King couldn't promote a crowd for that matchup.

Bill Clinton debating Bill Clinton. You can't beat that matchup for excitement. It makes the Bobby Fischer-Boris Spassky chess match seem like the Super Bowl.

(OHIO TRAINRIDE)

We passed through cornfields with scarecrows. One scarecrow was really scarey. He was dressed up like a lawyer (or...like a trial lawyer, member of Congress, Democratic politician, specific local pol, Sam Donaldson, Mario Cuomo, etc.)

The scarecrow was so scarey some crows brought back the corn they had stolen two years ago. (OLD FRED ALLEN LINE)

Don't you love the way Bill Clinton's handlers stage events and have him sitting on a bale of hay like he's downhome and in his natural environment? If they really want to show the governor in his natural environment, they should have him pose with his hand in a taxpayer's pocket.

The governor's handlers try to present him in a setting out of Norman Rockwell...when he's closer to Norman Bates.

The handlers had Bill climb aboard a tractor that read "John Deere". The governor thought it belonged to a farmer practicing an alternative lifestyle.

One farmer invited Governor Clinton to speak at his farm. Later the farmer said he was voting for the Republicans. Clinton said, "Then why did you ask me to come her and speak?" The farmer said, "Cause I noticed wherever you talk, the crops seem to grow faster".

(COLUMBUS)

I want to congratulate the Columbus Clippers for their come-from-behind win to capture the ^{THE WHITE HOUSE} International League title. You did it the hard way...without hiring ringers from the Philippine Little

^{WASHINGTON}
League team.

The Clippers pulled it out in the bottom of the ninth. I must talk with (NAME OF MANAGER OR STAR PLAYER) and ask if I can borrow their Gatorade.

It proves the underdog can win. Soon as I get back to Washington,
I'm gonna teach the Republicans in Congress to do the Wave.

The goal of every Clipper is to one day be sent up to the New York Yankees and negotiate a contract with George Steinbrenner. And I thought running for re-election was tough. (OR, ...AND I THOUGHT DEALING WITH CONGRESS WAS BAD.)

Imagine having to negotiate with Steinbrenner? To prepare for that moment, some Clippers lie down in a field and ask a farmer to run a tractor over them.

(ARLINGTON)

Someone told me the first log cabin was built in Arlington in 1834.
There's a drawing of the log cabin with a crowd of politicians lined up waiting to be born in it.

As a Presidential candidate, I would love to say I was born in a log cabin. Actually, it was a log condo...My parents used it for a tax writeoff.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Where I grew up, it wasn't easy to become a politician. We didn't have outdoor plumbing 'til I was 21.

In 1897 (?), Arlington had its first newspaper, the Arlington Gazette. Someone showed me a copy of the first headline..."Democrats win. Taxes skyrocket".

In 1900, Arlington got its first telephone. And in 1901, Jerry Brown's great grandfather installed the first 800 number.

(ARLINGTON SOFTBALL)

Not many people know that "softball" was named for the questions TV reporters ask of Democratic presidential candidates.

(MICHIGAN)

Governor Clinton wants American cars to get 40 miles per gallon, which will cost thousands of jobs in Michigan. Contrary to what the Democrats say, all the lemons don't originate in Detroit. At least one comes from Little Rock.

(SOFTBALL)

Governor Clinton was supposed to attend a softball game. He backed out after he learned there'd be three umpires instead of one.

(HORSESHOES along train ride)

i had a horseshoe pit (court?) ^{THE WHITE HOUSE} built at the White House. I like to play with my family. We ^{WASHINGTON} Bushes are tough competitors. The other day, my grandson accused me of corking my shoe.

Al Gore said in his book that "the automobile is a mortal threat to our natuional security". And all these years we thought it was the Commies.

Governor Clinton took a break on the campaign trail and went into a tavern for a sandwich and ordered a beer. The bartender said, "Draft?" Bill said, "I don't remember".

Governor Clinton picked up an endorsement from Aunt Jemima...for his skill at waffling. (OR, BILL WAS NAMED MOST LIKELY TO WAFFLE.)

✓ I get the sense there's support out here for our ticket. We passed a farm and a herd of cows did the Wave.

✓ One dairy farmer said he'd be pulling for us.

(SOFTBALL AND/OR BASEBALL GAME ALONG TRAIN TRIP)

Governor Clinton planned to attend your game. He wanted to be there to throw out the first fib. (falsehood)

The Clinton bus tour must be planning a trip through here. A local tailor told me his customers have asked that their pockets be sewn shut.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

(ARLINGTON, OHIO)

(PICNIC)

Bill Clinton attended a picnic and unfortunately ants got into the food. That didn't bother the governor. These days, he's more concerned with uncles.

✓ Governor Clinton tells us America is being ridiculed around the world. I think the day he said it he may have been inhaling some of his bus fumes...and enjoyed it.

Governor Clinton, America isn't last. It's first. We are the locomotive that pulls the world forward. Negative thinkers like you and your kind will always be the caboose...pulling up the rear...hitching up to someone else's engine and getting a free ride.

The Clinton-Gore gang would have Detroit build cars with a 4-speed transmission...all speeds in reverse.

When you're constantly campaigning around the country, the jet lag can get to you and you can have trouble falling asleep. Governor Clinton has a surefire way to sleep. He counts sheep straddling a fence.

Governor Clinton's worried. There's a rumor his late uncle Raymond wrote a book about Bill...called "Nephew Dearest".

We've had a disagreement on the format of the debates. I wanted one moderator and three panelists as in the past. Governor Clinton wants just one moderator. And unfortunately, Murphy Brown's baby isn't available (takes a nap at the time) (hasn't yet learned to talk) (disagreed on the location for the debate. Governor Clinton wants to hold it in Murphy Brown's baby's crib.)

Governor Clinton and I have disagreed on the format for the debate. He refuses to take sodium pentothal.

A sad story in the news. Following this past week's episode of "Murphy Brown", Murphy Brown's baby sued Murphy...charged her with being an unfunny mother.

Turns out her kid is a Republican.

Some sad news to report from the world of TV sit coms. Today Murphy Brown's baby sued Murphy...claiming she was an unfit fictional mother.

There's a scandal brewing on the set of "Murphy Brown". It was disclosed that Murphy's baby enrolled at Oxford nursery school to avoid being drafted into kindergarten.

We're beginning to make headway even among TV's cultural elite. Today Murphy Brown grounded her baby. Murphy caught her kid with a radio in her crib tuned to Rush Limbaugh.
