ROUNDTABLE/ADDRESS TO STUDENTS OF "SUMMER JOBS FOR ST. LOUIS YOUTH PROGRAM--STUDENT LAW JOBS TASK FORCE"

DATE: Monday, June 29, 1992
LOCATION: Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club
4245 North Kingshighway Boulevard
St. Louis, Missouri
TIME: 2:50 p.m.
FROM: John L. Howard JH
Richard W. Porter RWP

I. PURPOSE

To underscore the Administration's urban agenda and commitment to education and traditional values by visiting with community leaders and students involved in the "Summer Jobs for St. Louis Youth" Program.

II. BACKGROUND

This year, the Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club, the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, and the Law and Citizenship Unit of the St. Louis Public School System inaugurated the "Summer Jobs for St. Louis Youth - Student Law Jobs Task Force." The program provides 52 public high school students with summer jobs in law firms. These students were recruited from the Club's Motivation Vocation Preparation (MVP) and the Bar Association's Mock Trial program run by the Bar Association in the schools.

In addition to being paid, the students have the opportunity to interact with lawyers, judges, and court personnel. The Bar Association also provides each student with new business attire (blazers and slacks/skirts).

We are told that the Student Law Jobs program is one of the first of its kind and that there have been several inquiries from other bar associations and youth programs.

According to Martin L. Mathews, who founded the Boys Club 30 years ago "under a shady tree," the purpose of the program is to provide meaningful jobs to the motivated inner city youth of St. Louis, keeping them off the streets and away from gangs. In the future, Mathews hopes to offer similar opportunities to 5000 students by expanding into other local businesses and professions.

The Boys' Club has initiated a number of programs aimed at enhancing the quality of life for inner-city youth. In addition to the MVP program, they offer the "Stamp Out Illiteracy Through Learning" Program and the "Reviving Baseball in Inner-Cities" (RBI) Program--a co-sponsored effort with the St. Louis Cardinals. Mathews says that St. Louis has never had a riot and has avoided a major gang problem in part because of programs like these around which the community has rallied.

Upon arrival at the Boys' Club you will immediately proceed to the Roundtable and Photo Opportunity, which will include 25 people. The focus will be on how inner city problems are being addressed by the programs, such as this one, offered by the Boys' Club and the Bar Association.

You will then proceed to another room for an "Ask Dan Quayle" where you will be introduced by John Shepherd, Past President of the ABA. As you may recall, Mr. Shepherd has been very supportive of the Civil Justice Reform initiative. We expect approximately 200 attendees.

Briefing Paper

Corporations, Law Firms and Individuals who have made this possible.

1. Richard B. Loynd of INTERCO, Inc., who saw the vision of the MVP program and provided the financial support of the project, which led us here today.
2. Ben Edwards of A. G. Edwards & Company, who met with the St. Louis School Board and the Superintendent to encourage the St. Louis Public School system to support the MVP concept. Ben Edwards also met with RCGA to ask their assistance in providing jobs for our youth.
3. William (Bill) Maritz of Maritz, Inc. with the "Be There" program encouraging students to stay in school was instrumental in supporting the MVP concept and addressing a critical need of the St. Louis Public Schools.
4. Mark Levison, of Riezman and Blitz, President of the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis and Tom Hullverson of Hullverson and Hullverson and fifty two (52) law firms who have law interns from the public school system and the MVP program.

All of the above mentioned leaders in the St. Louis community were responsible in bringing us here today to this historical and momentous occasion.

5. We would like to pay tribute to the two (2) men who were the prime movers in the development of this outstanding facility where we stand today:

August Busch, III
of Anheuser Busch Companies

and

Charles (Chuck) Knight
of Emerson Electric Company

6. Let us not forget the countless number of volunteers and supporters who have worked tirelessly to make a difference.

As Martin Mathews always says: "All things are possible in this great country with the help of good people!"

OUR HISTORY

On March 16, 1874, some 138 members of the St. Louis bar and bench convened to organize themselves professionally. Their forum was the Old Courthouse, already known to the law as the place where Dred Scott filed his first state court action seeking his freedom. On March 23, 1874 they adopted the Articles of Agreement giving form to the Bar Association of St. Louis.

The Articles were filed in downtown St. Louis in what was then, prior to the geographical separation of St. Louis from St. Louis County, the St. Louis County Circuit Court. The organization they established, The Bar Association of St. Louis, known since 1967 as The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, now claims a membership in excess of 6,000 lawyers and a vast network of committees and sections. Yet its key purposes have remained constant: to maintain high standards among practitioners of the law; to be watchful of the fair administration of justice, and to promote social relations among its members.

St. Louis had already become a burgeoning town by 1874. River and rail traffic were growing, and St. Louis was in fact the gateway to the west. With commerce and industry came legal problems and a increased demand for lawyers. As the lawyers came they demanded standards for admission to the Bar; establishment of ethical guidelines and a fair selection process for judges. To such concerns and others, the Bar Association turned its attention.

Merit selection of judges was formally advocated by the Association as early as 1904. The Association's efforts in this area finally bore fruit in 1940 when the state Constitution was amended to establish the nonpartisan court plan in the Supreme Court, the courts of appeals and the circuit and probate courts of St. Louis and Jackson County. The amendment authorized extension of the plan to other judicial circuits by vote of the residents.

The Bar Association was also responsible for creation of the Legal Aid Society, today known as Legal Services of Eastern Missouri, Inc. The Society was established in a fledgling form in the administration of Daniel G. Taylor, 1909-1910. Its purpose: to provide counsel for indigent persons. The Society was incorporated in 1956 under the Association presidency of T. Hartley Pollock. In 1965, under the administration of Rexford H. Caruthers, it received its first federal funds and began to thrive.

In 1970, the Association was the recipient of the prestigious Harrison Tweed Award in recognition of its work through the Legal Aid Society. The Award was presented by the National Legal Aid and Defender Association and the Standing Committee on Legal Aid and Indigent Defendants of the ABA.

In the area of criminal law, the Association promoted a Voluntary Defenders plan in the late 1920s and early 30s to provide free counsel to indigent defendants. The City of St. Louis responded in 1936 with an ordinance creating a Public Defenders Bureau, which was functioning with support from city tax dollars by 1938. St. Louis County set up a public defender system in 1963, and in 1972, with urging from the Bar Association, a state-funded and statewide public defender plan was finally approved by the Missouri Legislature. The Association has consistently supported the concept of the public defender program. In 1981 it was instrumental in legislation which established the basic Public Defender system we have today. Again in 1989 it worked to improve that system and see that it was adequately funded.

The 1930s witnessed a concerted effort by the Bar Association to enforce standards of professional conduct. The Grievance Committee, under the chairmanship of Thomas F. McDonald, from 1932 to 1935 instituted 23 court actions, all successfully prosecuted, for disbarment or discipline of lawyers. Less than half that number had been instituted in the Association's first 58 years. The effort brought to the Association, in 1935, the year of McDonald's presidency, the St. Louis Civic Award for public service.

What is now called The Young Lawyers' Section was first established in 1937, then called the Junior Bar. It is one of the most active and innovative sections of the Association.

In 1955, the Association appointed its first executive director, and in 1960 it opened a downtown headquarters in the Mayfair Hotel.

Recent history has seen dramatic improvements in physical facilities for the Association and its burgeoning activities. Clayton quarters were moved in 1973 from the Colony Hotel to private dining and meeting rooms at 7777 Bonhomme Avenue. The downtown headquarters were relocated in 1977 to the elegant top floor of the Mercantile Tower.

In 1974, the Association paused to reflect on its first 100 years. It conducted a centennial year celebration in which it signed its Second Century Charter and staged a dramatic reenactment of its founding in the Old Courthouse. Former United States Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., then chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, addressed the Association on April 28, 1974--the 100th anniversary of the filing of Articles of Agreement.

Early on, the St. Louis Bar leadership recognized the need for organization at both state and national levels.

The ABA, founded in 1878, resulted in part through these efforts. Two of the Association's early presidents--James O. Broadhead and Henry Hitchcock--met with other lawyers in Saratoga, New York, in 1878 and founded the American Bar Association. Broadhead became the first president of the ABA; Hitchcock was its 12th in 1889. Five other presidents of The St. Louis Bar Association have headed the ABA: James Hagerman (1903); Frederick W. Lehmann (1908); Guy A. Thompson (1931); Jacob M. Lashly (1940) and John Shepherd (1986). Few other cities have contributed so many presidents to the national body.

Similarly, the Missouri Bar was in part the result of the vision of St. Louis Bar leaders. St. Louis Bar Association leaders were also instrumental in formation of The Missouri Bar Association in 1880, the precursor to the present integrated Missouri Bar of which all state lawyers and judges are automatically members. Broadhead and Hitchcock, as well as John Rutledge Shepley and Samuel M. Breckenridge, the first and second presidents respectively of The St. Louis Bar Association, were in the forefront of the 114 lawyers who met in Kansas City to establish The Missouri Bar Association.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION OF METROPOLITAN ST. LOUIS RESOURCE CENTER FOR LAW-RELATED EDUCATION MOCK TRIAL PROGRAM

One of the most important programs the Center coordinates is the National High School Mock Trial Competition. During the summer, a sub-committee of volunteer attorneys is formed to develop and write the mock trial case or problem. Many volunteer hours go into the research of the case. The stipulated facts along with witness statements for six witnesses are then written. After editing, a complete case, along with exhibits, is prepared and printed in booklet form. After the case (or problem) is completed, a manual is developed to help the students prepare for their mock trial and to give them an overview of the law, trial procedure, and trial preparation.

In the late fall, a Mock Trial Training Seminar is held for the participating schools and each school is assigned a volunteer attorney coach. All schools in the St. Louis area are invited to participate. The attorney coach meets with his or her team and guides them in the preparation of their case for the competition. Competition begins in February with Round I and continues through March with Round II and the Regional Rounds. In April, the top teams compete in the State Finals with the top team going on to the Nationals in May. Each trial is evaluated by three volunteer judges and attorneys. Over 250 volunteer evaluators are needed for this competition.

This past year we had 37 teams from 32 high schools in the St. Louis area participating. This involved approximately 350-400 students and 37 volunteer attorneys. The top six teams competed against teams from the Kansas City, Jefferson City and Columbia areas with Parkway South winning the State competition and competing in the Nationals held in Madison, Wisconsin the week-end of May 7-10. At Nationals, Parkway South placed ninth in the nation becoming the first Missouri team to ever place among the top ten teams during this competition.

BAMSL's Resource Center is sponsored by the Law-Related Education Committee chaired by Patricia Flood.

MEDIA ADVISORY:

The Vice President Visits The Bar Association of Metropolitan
"St. Louis Summer Law Internship Program"

Vice President Dan Quayle will participate in a RoundTable Discussion and a Forum with the high school students and the sponsors of the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis' (BAMSL) "Summer Law Internship, a program for St. Louis Youth." The event will take place on Monday, June 29, 1992 at the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club at 4245 N. Kingshighway.

BAMSL and other Bar Associations in cooperation with the St. Louis Bar Foundation, the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Program of the Law and Citizenship Education Unit of the St. Louis Public School District and the Motivation Vocational Program of the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club created the "Summer Law Internship," a jobs program for St. Louis Youth. Through a donation from a BAMSL member, the students received new business attire (blazers, slacks/skirts and shirts) from Famous-Barr.

The students, who are being supervised throughout the summer, were recruited from the (MVP) program of the new Mathews-Dickey Boys Club and the BAMSL Mock Trial Program. As an educational component, lawyers and judges will be speaking to students throughout the summer program.

According to BAMSL President Mark Levison the legal profession has given this program tremendous support, but it is just a beginning. "We believe that other organizations and groups could organize a similar endeavor. I have challenged other professional organizations to consider a like program," comments Levison.

The program kicked-off on Thursday, June 11, at the Salad Bowl restaurant where an introductory meeting was held for participating students, their parents and "Summer Law Internship" coordinators. On June 15, the students had a one day orientation and the firms employing the students had a one-hour orientation the same day. The orientation concluded with a joint session for both the students and their employers.

Participating Bar Associations are: The Lawyers Association of St. Louis, The Mound City Bar Association, The St. Louis County Bar Association and The American Board of Trial Advocates.

Law firms sponsoring and employing interns are: Amelung, Wulff & Willenbrock; Armstrong, Teasdale, Schlafly & Davis; Aubuchon & Raniere; William A. MOTIVATION VOCATION PREPARATION

The MVP Program initiates and coordinates total community efforts to emphasize existing programs and develop new programs that will have an impact on area youth and their families for life preparation and successful achievement.

MVP was implemented in September of 1991 through the assistance from funds provided by INTERCO, Inc. The program's main thrust has been to provide an alternative life-style for inner-city youth. The objective is to deter gang activity by isolating or cutting off the source of new gang members. The MVP Program accomplishes this goal by providing an alternative to gang activity with coordinated city-wide programs. This is the philosophy of the Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club - to provide structured activities for inner-city and area youth.

During 1991, the MVP Program had success in mobilizing and coordinating efforts with the following groups: St. Louis Public School System; the St. Louis Community Schools; St. Louis Police Department - Area III; Neighbors Involved in Community Endeavors (NICE); Regional Commerce and Growth Association (RCGA); Omega Psi Phi Fraternity; East St. Louis Community Project; Northside Team Ministries; Construction Workforce Coalition 2000; Pine Lawn and Elmwood Park Citizens' Group; Interfaith Partnership; the St. Louis Juvenile Courts and Civic Progress.

MVP has attracted a broad-based St. Louis inner city community support. Through the school's program, MVP has exposed the members to programs and seminars such as role modeling, self-esteem sessions, job interview techniques, structured athletic competition; educational field trips, moral development seminars, and most important, summer jobs.

MVP networking has united several key community groups: St. Louis Youth Corp Experience (SLYCE); St. Louis Clergy Coalition; World Impact; St. Louis Department of Parks and Recreation; Operation Conserve; United to Serve-America; Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); the George Warren Brown School of Social Work; St. Louis Agency on Training and Employment; North St. Louis Career Educational Program and the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The total emphasis is an approach to counter the influences of gangs and gang-related activity. What we can do about it as private citizens, community organizations, educational institutions and area businesses has been heightened and put into perspective by MVP. The positive message and creative concepts of reaching youth through structured activities, networking with organizations and bringing in informative speakers to address social and educational change on our communities has played a vital role in the success of this program.

STAMP OUT ILLITERACY THROUGH LEARNING
TUTORIAL PROGRAM

Since its inception in 1986, the "Stamp Out Illiteracy Through Learning" Program has assisted many students with their educational needs. The program was initiated to fight illiteracy and high-school dropout by strengthening their basic learning skills. Children, in kindergarten through the eighth grades are eligible to participate. Through one-on-one tutoring, the children in the program receive free assistance in developing the tools necessary to successfully complete their primary and secondary education.

Open to children throughout the St. Louis Metropolitan area, the program matched volunteer tutors with students at Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club. With training provided by the St. Louis Public Schools, each tutor met with his/her student at a minimum of one hour every week throughout the school year. Two sessions were held every Monday through Thursday evening. The tutors helped the children by concentrating on their weak areas as defined by their teacher. This provided not only teaching assistance; but these volunteers also became role models and mentors to the students.

COMPUTER LITERACY INSTRUCTION PROGRAM

The Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club developed a Computer Literacy Program to augment the Club's existing Tutorial Programs. The program will be operated by a trained professional volunteer Lab Coordinator along with other professional experts. Participants will be recruited from the St. Louis Public School System and local area school districts. The goal of CLIP is to:

1. Establish a curriculum that will produce computer literacy and proficient CLIPPERS (CLIP participants).
2. Augment the existing tutorial program in the areas of math, science and reading.
3. Establish an all-encompassing computer laboratory that youth kindergarten through eighth grades can utilize for homework, special papers, and documents requiring the aid of a computer.
4. Enter high-school CLIPPERS into national computer competition, thereby enhancing their levels of expertise, likelihood of college admission, and employment in the job market.
5. Schedule field trips to local businesses to observe their operations and possibly participate in apprenticeship programs.

REVIVING BASEBALL IN INNER-CITIES (RBI)

The RBI program is designed to provide opportunity for youth to participate in a structured athletic program with the benefits of key role models, academic counseling, total value enhancement and personal direction, thereby offering alternatives for 'at-risk' youth to combat the negative influences in today's society and provide avenues and visions for college and professional baseball.

RBI was instituted in St. Louis two years ago as a pilot program sponsored by the St. Louis Cardinals' Baseball Club and Major League Baseball. The project began the first year as a 16-team league and expanded to 20 teams in 1991. Expansion plans allowed the program to reach a greater population of inner-city youth during 1991.

The joint relationship that exists between the St. Louis Baseball Club and Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club presents the ideal combination for an effective baseball program for inner-city youth. The program serves a large inner-city population consisting of many who are underserved recreationally. These youth have low self-esteem, have little interest in school, do not take ownership for unacceptable behavior and must travel long distances to participate in structured athletic games.

During the past two years, the program has had a major impact on the community in which RBI serves. Many of the volunteers and players return each year to participate in the projects. The RBI program has received wide and positive acceptance from community leaders and from the communities themselves. The development and training we do now in the RBI program will prepare these youngsters for solid high-school academic careers and provide them with the opportunity to get a college or university athletic scholarship. The highest casualty for inner-city youth is found within the 13-to-16 year-old group and the RBI can be that alternative program for these young athlete. Baseball being a summer sport, it can offer quality recreation, team-orientated goals and an alternative to youth gang-involvement. The potential for the growth of RBI is very promising.

The St. Louis Cardinal Baseball Club is driven by their commitment to the project, and has pledged the team's support to insure its longevity.

MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club is a community gathering place. In our thirty-one years of existence we have been able to encourage young people to become successful in life and make valuable contributions to society.

The Mathews-Dickey's goal is and has been to develop the total person in athletics and educational, social and cultural growth. History has proven that all we need is the encouragement to believe in ourselves. Mathews-Dickey stresses each day this encouragement and is a stimulant to the thousands of youth who pass through its doors! Whether it be a smile of approval between a volunteer and the members, the successful completion of a community service project or the note on the board from a counselor, the responses are meaningful and are treated with pride. We here at Mathews-Dickey know that little successes lead to bigger and greater achievements.

Mathews-Dickey has been fortunate to have a dedicated board of directors, experienced and loyal staff, volunteers, supportive parents and generous donors. These are its sources of life. By them, Mathews-Dickey has provided and will continue to provide viable opportunities for today's youth to become tomorrow's heroes!

Thanks to each of you for making it possible for us to be the best that we can be for the common good.

Sincerely,

Martin L. Mathews
Executive Director

The Girls' Program conducted numerous fund-raising activities throughout the year. In 1991, a community celebrity cookbook was compiled to accomplish a fund-raising goal providing scholarships for deserving members. Periodically, the girls also operated concession booths at special events and athletic tournaments to raise funds. These learning experiences furnished them with business concepts and entrepreneurial aspirations for the future.

The Girls' Program participants conducted presentations to highlight their program at various schools, shopping centers, churches and special events throughout the year. The group also hosted special board meetings and award banquets along with appearing on several talk shows to speak about their involvement in the various club projects. Out of these activities, many of the girls received special recognition and scholarship opportunities.

Girls' have become more conscious of being in good physical health. The athletic program provides them with the opportunity to meet their physical needs through cheerleading, pom-pom, tennis, swimming, double dutch, gymnastics and basketball. Of course, they have been taught team spirit and have experienced the joy of excelling in addition to a re-evaluation of their potential as prospective college students.

The Girls Leadership Program allows members to take an active role in developing leadership skills by working closely with positive role models and serving as peer counselors. Many leadership members participated in cross-cultural educational field trips to gain knowledge in how other cities and communities function. The leadership group met with local government, civic and business persons to experience first-hand the requirements for being competent leaders and decision makers.

GIRLS' PROGRAM

The Mathews-Dickey Girls' Program was implemented in 1986 and serves girls ages 6 - 18 with an emphasis on educational, social, cultural and recreational enrichment.

All applications of the program are accepted to avoid problems resulting from teen idleness, substance abuse and teen pregnancy. Girls' Programs are implemented in small, large or classroom team groups. The program utilizes volunteer leaders and role models to stimulate, motivate and nurture girls in a positive and supportive setting. The potential benefit of its membership is instilling the desire to achieve self-confidence and self-pride in oneself.

Volunteer leaders, role models and professionals have collectively provided direction and encouragement to the participants so that they can examine and reshape their goals, values, dreams and hopes. The project's objectives have been field-tested with diverse populations consisting of multi-social and economic groups. The training and classwork involved with these enrichment programs have added to personal growth of each participant and have thereby increased and expanded areas for learning and fun not only for the program participants, but the volunteers as well.

The Girls' program contains many components including cultural, personal, educational, leadership, athletic, social, fundraising and economic development. Training is also provided in community and public relations.

During 1991, the Girls' Program explored many artistic and creative areas in drawing, handicrafts, cartoon art, sewing, dance, theatre, modeling, personal etiquette, and culinary arts, all administered by professional instructors.

The Dance program has expanded to include the study of ballet, tap, jazz, modern and the Dunham Technique. The results of the training is highlighted at the Annual Dance Concert, "Gotta Dance, Dance, Dance."

Education is a major emphasis in the Girls' Program. The members participated in several community-sponsored projects including the Missouri Botanical Gardens, the St. Louis Science Center, the Science at-Home Program, and the touring exhibit of famous women inventors. Visiting area museums, tourist sites and other points of interest, the girls had the opportunity to speak with local and national role models.

The girls were introduced to current social issues through local forums and awareness seminars. To facilitate their social development, Guidepost 2000 was implemented to create a bond and friendship with adult volunteer mentors. Etiquette and grooming workshops provided further social skills and opportunities for peer networking and practice in making significant contributions to society. The girls participated in a "Feed-the-Needy" Breakfast Program which provided the girls the opportunity to make an immediate contribution to society. This in turn allowed everyone to channel their energies toward solving a major problem.

I cannot say enough for the Board of Directors a group of dedicated citizens bonded together to energize and utilize resources and make a difference in the lives of our youth. We are blessed with such an effective and productive team.

Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club, a gathering place for the community, wants everyone to continue to utilize the facility to its fullest. It is yours. We are the caretakers, and we encourage you to visit us for a tour and to meet some of our members and staff.

Thank you for your continuous support and your prayers.

Prayerfully yours,

Rev. William G. Gillespie
Chairman of the Board

THE CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

It is a unique pleasure and a personal honor for me to serve as Chairman of the Board of the Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club an outstanding and worthwhile organization. The year 1991 has been a very challenging and exciting term. During this time, two new projects were added to the Club's extensive program development offering: (1) Just Between Us Girls (JBUGS), a special program for young ladies ages 12 to 18 years of age, the purpose of which is to exchange ideas, share experiences, know the available resources and career options for goal-setting and life-planning; (2) The Motivation Vocation Preparation (MVP) Program. MVP provides alternative life-styles for inner-city youth. These two programs will immediately address the needs of our young people.

Our well-established programs have continued to grow and their acceptance by our communities obligate us to expand these programs to meet the needs of our growing population.

Mathews-Dickey's athletic programs are offered in three dominant sports: baseball, basketball and football. These programs are very successful and are the cornerstone of our success. Reviving Baseball in Inner-cities (RBI) has completed its second year of operation and is surely the wave of the future. The Girls' Program and the Tutorial Program are other projects in this same category, each being successful in its own right. The Board of Directors recognizes the success of these programs and is very proud of Mr. Martin Mathews, Executive Director and his competent hard working and dedicated staff.

The Summer Day Camp Program continues to grow each year, making it possible for us to serve more youth. This program has increased substantially in number since inception.

It is an amazing sight to see the Club at full capacity during the summer months. The baseball diamonds are packed with young aspiring players, the parking lot is busy with parents and volunteers coming and going, and the space inside of the building is completely utilized. We have been able to move youth from the streets and offer their parents peace of mind while their children are participating in these types of learning programs and activities. Yes! We can say we see a lot of smiling faces, from parents just knowing that their children are in a safe place, and from the children who are able to participate.

We have been successful because of the commitment and dedication of our volunteers who serve the Club in all capacities. The spirit of volunteerism at Mathews-Dickey is commendable. It is evidenced by individuals from all areas of our society, public, private and city and county communities, making a contribution and giving back time and energy. The volunteers deserve great honor because they are the ones who make the Mathews-Dickey story beautiful and successful.

The support we receive from the United Way of Greater St. Louis, local corporations, businesses, community organizations, foundations, parents and volunteers providing us with the necessary resources to meet our obligations and continue our pursuit of a

MISSION STATEMENT

The Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club, a non-profit organization, was founded in 1960 by Martin L. Mathews and Hubert "Dickey" Ballentine. Initially, the Club was designed to provide structured recreational activities to neighborhood youths. Today, the Club's goals are more focused and comprehensive and are aimed at:

1. Emphasizing the three R's (Respect, Restraint, Responsibility) through athletic competition in football, baseball, basketball, swimming, softball, boxing and cheerleading; team building as well as individual growth.
2. Building self-esteem while allowing for personal growth emphasizing the important of becoming literate and educated citizens;
3. Addressing problems stemming from teen idleness (such as substance abuse, gang violence, teen pregnancy, and illiteracy);
4. Instilling the desire to lead productive lives and to become positive contributors and future leaders in the community;
5. Teaching moral, personal, social and cultural development and practices.

Today the Club serves more than 40,000 boys and girls ages 6-18 throughout the St. Louis Metropolitan area. The Club also serves as a meeting center for various community, social and business organizations and as an outreach resource center for troubled youth.

The Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club functions at all levels due to the generous contributions of time and talent from our volunteers. In 1991 there was a significant increase in volunteers. Volunteer have been recruited with special skills and are from a large segment of the entire St. Louis Metropolitan area.

Our impressive list of volunteers include the Board of Directors, the Parents Organization, the Development Committee, the Coaches Organization, Tutors and Youth Volunteers. Each volunteer has a extremely important duty, and it is only as a team that these duties are carried out. Our volunteers make us what we are today, a "home away from home" for the youth of St. Louis.

A special volunteer recognition program was developed along with a complete training manual for our volunteers.

The Mathews-Dickey Boys' Club is a volunteer organization, and is successful in its public relations efforts due to the contributions it receives: monetary, manpower or in-kind. As a result of these benefits, we initiated a very effective public relations campaign in 1991.

We have worked with all segments of the news media, including print, and electronic, making it possible for us to receive local and national coverage.

Mathews-Dickey has appeared live on several radio and television talk shows including: KMOX's TOTAL INFORMATION; Majic 108's Sunday Morning Live, Jennifer Blome's St. Louis Sunday, just to name a few. Many of our programs also were featured in various local and national magazines, such as: Commerce Magazine, the St. Louis Business Journals, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Times, Newsweek, The Sporting News and many more.

Last year was a very positive experience, and it was also the first time we received outdoor advertising via Gannett Outdoor.

Increased awareness of our programs was brought about by the development and introduction of several brochures, fact sheets, manuals and souvenir programs to promote specific Club activities. We also distributed flyers at local schools, churches and businesses. This allowed us the opportunity to recruit additional members, volunteers and sponsors.

The public relations team at Mathews-Dickey conducted numerous speaking engagements at local community and business organization, sororities and fraternities, churches and educational institutions to share the Mathews-Dickey concept and to explain the benefits we receive as a United Way member agency.

Last, but not least, we hosted three major fund-raising events including: Sheer Elegance Fashion Show benefitting the Girls' Program; the Coca-Cola Golf Tournament, supporting the athletic programs; and the "Say Amen" Banquet, supporting the literacy program. We also held several events to highlight our members, including the Annual Sports Awards banquet, Halloween party and Christmas program.

These joint public relations efforts enabled us to greatly increase our awareness in the community we serve.

Law and Citizenship Education Unit

The Law and Citizenship Education Unit of the St. Louis Public School District's Division of State and Federal Programs is the oldest school-based citizenship education program of its kind in the United States. The major emphasis of the Unit is to develop and institutionalize innovative programs that reinforce and expand citizenship competencies. The Unit offers programs that have as their aim to help students (a) participate fully and actively in our democratic society and (b) make crucial connections between their civic heritage and present civic responsibilities. As Harry Truman said, "the future of this great country depends entirely on the coming generations and their understanding of what they have and what was done to create it, and what they must do to keep it."

The Law and Citizenship Education Unit has been responsible for developing a number of national model programs including the Sports and Law Program, sports as a vehicle for teaching citizenship, and Law-Related Education For the Special Learner. Both programs were created working closely with The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The Unit has produced such national books as Juvenile Responsibility and the Law, Understanding Law Enforcement, Conflict, Courts, and Trials, and The Bill of Rights and YOU. These books are used in school districts throughout the United States.

The Law and Citizenship Education Unit administers the St. Louis Public School District's Drug Free Schools and Communities Program which includes the We Are Responsible (WAR) program. The Law and Citizenship Education Unit administers the School District substance abuse prevention and conflict resolution and conflict mediation programs. These initiatives play a major role in the District's classrooms.

The Unit has been recognized for its outstanding contributions to citizenship education by the American Bar Association, the Missouri Bar, and The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis.

For further information please contact: Linda Riekes, Unit Director, Law and Citizenship Education Unit, 5183 Raymond, St. Louis, Missouri 63113, 361-5500 ext. 237.

MOTIVATION VOCATION PREPARATION MVP Program Statement

The MVP program is an intervention and prevention program that has as its goal to coordinate and network all major resources that can be brought forward to support the total community in its efforts to combat gangs and gang violence. The program works primarily in four specific areas: the public schools, the community, business sector and through structured athletic activities.

The MVP program, is designed to bring resources to students who display the desire and potential to achieve in life, but may lack the means to pursue their aspirations. Funded by INTERCO, Inc., MVP operates a multi-faceted program in nine St. Louis City high schools. With gang activity and other anti-social behavior attracting so many youth, the MVP program provides direction and economic incentive in an effort to steer students away from the dangers of their environment.

The community MVP approach is intervention where the community, social and governmental agencies join together in a genuine partnership to assist in solving the gang problem, community decay and the general malaise of the citizenry. The MVP program attempts to emphasize existing programs and initiate new programs that will impact area youth and their families for life preparation and successful achievement.

MVP provides summer job training and career development for MVP candidates and eligible youth participants. The St. Louis RCGA acts as a major contact for promoting summer work experiences and internships. Those students interested in the summer offerings are provided job responsibility training and seminars dealing with interviews, career access, and job preparation.

Through the athletic structure, MVP will provide outdoor and indoor games in order to give youth the opportunity to belong, compete and participate in structured community games of baseball, basketball, football, soccer and volleyball. All athletic activities, facilitated and organized by the MVP program, will be managed by community leaders and volunteers. Through these many choices of activity, a sense of respect for each other, discipline and achievement will be the end result.

LAWYERS CREATE "SUMMER LAW INTERNSHIP" A PROGRAM FOR ST. LOUIS YOUTH

"Summer Law Internship" a program which will provide 50 public high school students with summer jobs in law firms throughout the community, was announced at the Old Courthouse on June 15, 1992 by Mark H. Levison, President of The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis (BAMSL). The program, a first of its kind in the St. Louis legal community, has already received inquiries from nearly half the states in the nation.

BAMSL and other Bar Associations in cooperation with the St. Louis Bar Foundation, the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Program of the Law and Citizenship Education Unit of the St. Louis Public School District and the Motivation Vocational Program of the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club created the "Summer Law Internships," a jobs program for St. Louis Youth. Through a donation from a BAMSL member, the students will receive new business attire (blazers, slacks/skirts and shirts) from Famous-Barr.

The students, who will be supervised throughout the summer, were recruited from the (MVP) program of the the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club and the BAMSL Mock Trial and Law Explorers Post Programs. As an educational component, lawyers and judges will be speaking to students throughout the summer program.

According to Levison the legal profession has given this program tremendous support, but it is just a beginning. "We believe that other organizations and groups could organize a similar endeavor. I have challenged other professional organizations to consider a like program," comments Levison.

The program kicked-off on Thursday, June 11, at the Salad Bowl restaurant where an introductory meeting was held for participating students, their parents and "Summer Law Internship" coordinators. On June 15, the students will receive one day of orientation and the firms employing the students will have a one-hour orientation the same day. The orientation will conclude with a joint session for both the students and their employers.

Participating Bar Associations are: The Lawyers Association of St. Louis, The Mound City Bar Association, The St. Louis County Bar Association and The American Board of Trial Advocates.

Remarks by — Mark Levison, President

The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, in cooperation with virtually all of the bar associations in the area, the St. Louis public schools and the Matthews Dickey Boys Club, announce the Summer Law Internship Program for St. Louis Youth.

The law firms in this community have undertaken to employ 50 St. Louis city high school students. These students will be wearing the Navy blazers, white shirts, khaki slacks or skirts that you see them in today. This business attire has been provided through a generous gift from a member of our Association. The students will wear badges indicating their names and high schools. We hope that judges, lawyers and citizens in general will recognize them by their attire, talk to them about their experience and give them encouragement.

These students will be getting to know and working with many of the great lawyers in our community. They will have a job this summer. They will earn a good amount of money at their job, and they will be expected to work hard.

This program will contain an educational component as well.

Rabbitt, Pitzer & Snodgrass, P.C.; Raskas, Ruthmeyer, Pomerantz, Wynne, Garavaglia & Susman; Riezman & Blitz, P.C.; Roberts, Perryman, Bomkamp & Meives, P.C.; Sandberg, Phoenix & von Gontard; Don Schlappizzi; Jerome Schlichter; Senniger, Powers, Leavitt & Roedel; Don B. Sommers, Inc.; Sonnenschein, Nath & Rosenthal; The Stolar Partnership; Suelthaus & Kaplan, P.C.; Susman, Schermer, Rimmel & Shifrin; Thompson & Mitchell; Walther/Glenn Law Associate; and Ziercher & Hocker, P.C.

Founded in 1874, BAMSL is a professional association of over 6,200 lawyers and judges with nine sections, task forces and nearly 80 committees serving the education, professional and practice of the organized bar. In addition, BAMSL has a broad range of programs and services that benefit the community.

For more information on BAMSL contact Christine Ward, Assistant Executive Director/Director of Communications at 421-4134.

During the summer we intend to have members of the bench and bar talking to those students about the law and the justice system.

The lack of jobs in 1992 is a very serious concern to all of us. We don't get as much help from the government as we used to. Some people think that's good, and some people think that's bad. Rather than spend time arguing over who's right, we thought we ought to do something. And we've done something that we know is right. We in the legal profession realize that if people go long enough without jobs, they might end up learning about the legal system in a fashion that doesn't help anybody. We want young people to learn about the law in a positive fashion.

Anyone who thinks we can abandon a large segment of our youth today, and not suffer for it tomorrow, is mistaken. We shall harvest what we plant, and here today we plant a few seeds of promise.

Last week I sent a letter to various professional and nonprofessional groups in our community asking them to move forward with us. I challenged them to take similar, positive steps for the future of our community.

This is not a challenge which springs from competitiveness; it is a challenge which springs from hope. We could choose to turn away from our young people who can't find jobs, but if we turn our backs what does it say to them, and what does it say about us?

If throughout this community all of us, each in our small ways, take steps to build a future for those who have had more obstacles laid in their paths than some of us had, then we will be shepherding this community down a path that leads to hope rather than disappointment.

None of us up here today believe we are going to change the world to any significant degree with these 50 jobs. But if we can convince others to join in, perhaps this year and certainly by next year, we will have taken a step in the right direction and we will have made a difference.

This is a pilot project, and as far as I know nothing exactly like this has been done before. Although this is our first official announcement of the Summer Law Internship Program, news about this effort has leaked out, and we have already received inquiries about this project from 21 different states and from the Vice President of the United States.

We have put this program together in about 3 short weeks. We could not have done it, were it not for the support and abilities of the Mathews Dickey Boys Club and the St. Louis public schools. Linda Riekus and Gladys Smith have labored tirelessly and diligently to make this effort a success, and they had very little time to do it. I believe the students are going to have a valuable experience, and they owe a debt to these organizations.

I cannot leave this podium without first acknowledging the overwhelming response I have received from this legal community. Today we are constantly barraged with reports of lawyer misconduct. Those examples are very few but they make the press, as well they should. But I don't know many of those lawyers, and I might know more lawyers than anybody else in town. The lawyers I know are almost always willing to lend a helping hand. There is no group that is more involved in the community, or does more volunteer work than lawyers. As I asked them to take this step forward with us, they could not have been more enthusiastic.

Steve Cousins and Kathy Schoene co-chaired this committee. Kathy is out of town today, but Steve is here. The president of the Lawyers Association is here, Dan Ranieri -- he's done a tremendous job in helping to put this program together -- as has Richard Bresnahan, President of the County Bar and T.C. Carter, President of the Mound City Bar -- this City's African-American bar.

John Sheppard is the past President of the American Bar Association as well as the St. Louis Bar Association. I am proud that he is with us here today, on his way to Washington. As President of the ABA he lead the fight against drugs which were infiltrating the schools. We at the St. Louis Bar Association are renewing his fight against drugs and violence this year as we try to build a community anti-drug coalition to protect our youth and our future. John is a good example of what is good about lawyers.

Another example is Tom Hulverson who has been the guiding force in this committee. Also on this committee are Carroll Donohue, Ruby Bonner, Rick Jaudes, Bill Guerri and Charles Seigel. All Community leaders in their own right.

We are proud that Mr. Matthews is here, from Mathews-Dickey Boys Club, along with Jeff Schwartz.

I've already mentioned Linda Riekus and Gladys Smith. Dr. Mahan, the Superintendent of the School Board, is out of town, but he has sent Charles Simms in his place. Senator John C. Danforth is also out of town, but he sent Karla Roaber. I am particularly proud to have the President of the St. Louis Board of Education here, Rev. Earl E. Nance. Thank you for being here, Rev. Nance.

Last, but certainly not least, is the Mayor of our City, Vince Schoemehl. We are proud to have him here. I know we have his wholdhearted support in this endeavor and with his help we will move forward.

Finally, the most important people here, are you 50 students. Tom Carter, President of Mound City Bar, called you the best of the best. I have confidence you will prove him right.

I thank everyone for being here today.

TO: Anne Hathaway
FROM: Michael P. Balzano Jr.
SUBJECT: ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI
JULY 3-5, 1992 Veiled Prophet Fair

Attached is the schedule for the 1992 St. Louis V.P. Fair. There are several things to consider about this event:

1. LARGEST 4TH OF JULY EVENT IN THE MIDWEST:
The St. Louis V. P. Fair is the largest 4th of July event in the Midwest. As you can see from the listing of "daily attractions," it draws large numbers of families who picnic under the steel arch. This event generally draws crowds of about 1-1/2 - 2 million people per day.
2. LARGE CONCENTRATION OF AEROSPACE PRODUCTION WORKERS: St. Louis is the headquarters of McDonnell Douglas and has a large concentration of aerospace production workers, many of whom are minorities. The union leadership in this area has supported all of this administration's defense and aerospace initiatives. Given the tight margin expected in the November election, it is important to maintain the President's support base among aerospace and defense blue collar production workers.
3. POLITICAL COUP POSSIBILITY:
The administration is awaiting the outcome of the Israeli election later next week. The President is expected to formally submit the Saudi request for 72 F-15 Fighter planes, the bulk of which will be produced in St. Louis with suppliers coming from many other states. On May 12, six (6) international presidents signed a letter (see attachment) to George Bush urging him to send the request to Congress. Vice President Quayle could announce the President's intention to submit the request, which would be a political coup in terms of the workforce. If the Congress does not act on the request, the administration will be blameless.

SCHEDULE PROPOSAL

I propose that Vice President Quayle attend this event at a schedule to suit him. Obviously the 4th would be the best day. We could use the same format that was used for Bush's visit in 1988:

1. The Vice President could arrive early enough in the morning to administer the oath to people becoming new American citizens.
2. The Vice President could have a meeting with labor leaders from the aerospace and defense industries drawn from St. Louis and neighboring Illinois. Remember, Quayle has a good record with these people and will be well received.

I propose the meeting take place in the large dining room of one of the Mississippi riverboats. After the meeting, which would be no more than 20-30 minutes, the Vice President and his family can view the air show from the top deck of the boat along with the labor leaders and their families. As the schedule indicates, there are two air shows a day that feature all variety of advanced aircraft.

3. The Vice President could address the Fair visitors on the issues of jobs, families etc.
4. I was in St. Louis last week, and I am convinced that an event can be structured to rival the '88 event. In many ways it will be more important than '88 because of the jobs implication of the aerospace and defense budget in general and the Midwest impact of the F-15 sale in particular.
5. A Republican victory in '92 will hinge more on our ability to keep blue collar Democratic aerospace and defense workers in our camp than any other election in my experience. It is important to remember that in the aerospace, blue collar workers tend to work and vote in family groups.

Excluding the August convention, we have slightly more than three months to get our message before the American defense worker. We should do all in our power not to lose this one of a kind opportunity.

The Honorable George Bush
President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

As you are fully aware, our nation is facing tough economic times, and the most important issue to most Americans, today, is jobs. One of our Middle East allies, Saudi Arabia, has asked to buy 72 F-15 fighters. This sale would preserve some 40,000 aerospace jobs across the nation, maintain an additional 46,000 service related jobs, immediately inject $5 Billion into the U.S. economy and enable the U.S. to maintain its leadership position in the Middle East, all at no cost to the U.S. taxpayer.

It is vital for us all to remember that defense cutbacks and the recession have hit industry and our members hard. Last year alone more than 106,000 aerospace workers were laid off and so far this year many thousands more have had their jobs eliminated and been forced to file for unemployment. Union membership is suffering terribly as a result of layoffs and plant closings. Worldwide, we find market access for U.S. products denied by foreign governments. Here we have a customer who wants an American product and if our own government will not act, what can we tell our members?

In 1986 the U.S. did not approve a similar request from Saudi Arabia for the F-15. As a result they turned to Europe and bought several hundred aircraft, helicopters and other materials and support worth more than $29 Billion. This was a bad deal for American workers!

The decision not to sell 48 F-15s cost the U.S. more than 200,000 work years of employment, billions of additional construction and support contracts and did not stop the Saudis from buying the aircraft they needed for their self defense. We understand that on April 4, 1992, Saudi Arabia agreed to provide the United Kingdom $2.6 Billion to continue the Al

Yamamah series of arms sales. This commitment can be used as a down payment for European Tornado or EFA aircraft to be procured in lieu of the F-15s. We can't make this same mistake again at a time when our aerospace industry is rapidly shrinking and thousands of workers are being laid off.

During these trying economic times, it is simply unthinkable that our nation would ignore the opportunity to provide this much needed boost to industry and strengthen our influence in the Middle East. On behalf of our five million union members we urge you to move forward now and notify Congress of this sale so that we can avoid massive layoffs beginning this summer.

LAWYERS CREATE

"SUMMER JOBS FOR ST. LOUIS YOUTH" PROGRAM

"A first of its kind program in the legal profession," announced Monday, June 15, "will provide 50 jobs for St. Louis high school youth, has already received inquiries from nearly half of the other states in the nation," said Mark H. Levison, President of The Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis (BAMSL).

BAMSL and other Bar Associations in cooperation with the St. Louis Board of Education, Public Schools Law and Citizenship Unit and Mathews-Dickey Boys Club have created "Summer Jobs for St. Louis Youth" program. Developed by a Student Law Jobs Task Force, the program will provide 50 public high school students with summer jobs at law firms throughout the community. Through a donation from a BAMSL member, the Association will provide the students with new business attire (blazers and slacks/skirts).

The students who will be supervised by the Law and Citizenship Unit of the St. Louis Public School System, were recruited from The Motivation Vocation Preparation (MVP) program of the the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club and the BAMSL Mock Trial Program.

The students will receive one day of orientation June 15, and the firms employing students will have a one-hour orientation the same day, concluding with a joint session for both the students and their employers.

An educational component is included in the summer program with lawyers and judges speaking to the students.

"The legal profession has given this program tremendous support, but it is just a beginning. We believe that other organizations and groups could organize a similar endeavor. I have contacted the leaders of other professional associations, suggesting they consider a like program," comments Levison. "Through programs such as 'Summer Jobs For St. Louis Youth' BAMSL continues its commitment to serving the community," he continues.

Participating Associations are: The Lawyers Association of St. Louis, The Mound City Bar Association, The St. Louis County Bar Association and The American Board of Trial Advocates.

Law firms employing students are: Amelung, Wulff & Willenbrock; Armstrong, Teasdale, Schlafly & Davis; Aubuchon & Raniere; Bartley, Goffstein, Bollato & Lange; William A. February Trade Gap Narrowed

Exports Soared 6.8%
For Surprising Gain

By KEITH BRADSHER

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, April 16 — The nation's merchandise trade deficit narrowed sharply to $3.38 billion in February, with exports reaching a record and imports falling slightly.

The deficit, smaller than most economists expected, gladdened Administration officials, who are looking for an election-year bonus in export sales to help lead the nation into recovery.

Over all, exports rose 6.8 percent in February, to $37.81 billion, from $35.41 billion in January. Imports fell four-tenths of 1 percent, to $41.20 billion from $41.36 billion.

Carla A. Hills, the United States trade representative, pointed out that if the rest of the year followed the pattern of January and February together, then this year's trade deficit could total as little as $56 billion, down from $66.26 billion last year. But many private sector economists predict that the trade deficit will actually widen this year, as economic recovery in the United States draws in more imports while recessions in Japan and many European countries dampen growth in American exports.

Jump in Aircraft Sales

They noted that more than one-third of the February jump in exports came from a $909 million increase in shipments of commercial aircraft and parts. "That may have been a one-shot deal," said Brian M. Jones, an economist at Salomon Brothers Inc., who pointed out that aircraft worth $100 million or more apiece are often delivered in bunches.

But Mr. Jones and other economists said that even leaving aircraft shipments aside, they were surprised by how much exports increased.

Stephen S. Roach, a senior economist at Morgan Stanley, said, "I was looking for a $5 billion deficit, which was a little more optimistic than the consensus but hardly consistent with the sharp narrowing of the deficit."

In another bit of upbeat news, the Government reported that the number of workers filing unemployment claims in early April declined significantly for the second consecutive week. [Page D2.]

Some Price Advantages

February's trade deficit, which followed a gap of $5.95 billion in January, was the smallest since a $2.84 billion deficit in March 1983. Several monthly deficits in the last year have been the lowest since 1983, as the low value of the dollar and small annual cost increases for American manufacturers have erased the $100 billion-plus annual deficits of the late 1980's.

For the last year, rapid growth in exports to third world has been offsetting stagnation in shipments to industrialized markets. But today's figures also showed a widening of the trade surplus with Western Europe, to $2.63 billion from $1.69 billion in January.

The politically sensitive trade deficit with Japan shrank to $2.97 billion from $3.82 billion in January, while the deficit with China dwindled to $1.23 billion from $1.40 billion.

Excluding oil, imports rose slightly. The nation imported less oil and paid 43 cents less a barrel in February than in January.

Exports of high-technology products, including not only aircraft but sophisticated medical and telecommunications equipment, jumped to $9.2 billion from $7.9 billion. Imports of these goods edged up to $5.1 billion from $4.9 billion in January.

Administration trade officials used the report to push their various causes. Barbara H. Franklin, the new Commerce Secretary, who is organizing a Cabinet-level review next week of Government assistance to industries, said in a statement that sustaining strong exports made it necessary "that we intensify trade promotion efforts in partnership with the private sector."

Mrs. Hills greeted the growth in exports as a sign that the United States was better off trying to open foreign markets than protecting its own market. "They're very, very strong," she said. "They continue to show how important it is to open markets."

But Clyde V. Prestowitz Jr., the president of the Economic Strategy Institute, a Washington public policy group, disagreed with assessment by Mrs. Hills. "Do these numbers reflect an opening of foreign markets?" he asked. "If it's mostly aircraft, that doesn't reflect the opening of markets."

Grading The States' Economies

Midwestern, Western Regions Fared Well

By Eric Pianin
Washington Post Staff Writer

A new region-by-region study of the nation's economy offers some counter-intuitive findings about the winners and losers of the recession:

- Job creation, in and of itself, is no guarantee of a region's economic success. Southern states that have spawned low-paying jobs offering workers few incentives to put down roots remain economically troubled.

- High rates of new business formation can signal a troubled economy as well as a thriving one. New Hampshire, Rhode Island and other recession-racked New England states ranked high in entrepreneurial energy, but failed miserably in sustaining and nurturing those industries.

- Government frugality in times of hardship may exacerbate economic problems. The remarkable improvement in the economic health of states in the industrial Midwest, which were badly hurt by the previous recession, underscores the importance of pumping funds into "fundamentals," such as roads and bridges, social programs and new technology.

"The distinguishing factor for states that are making it despite the recession is an investment in the fundamentals," said Mitchell Horowitz, director of state and local development for the Corporation for Enterprise Development, a non-partisan research group that released the study.

At a time when federal and state officials are developing schemes to end the recession, the study lends support to those who urge targeted government spending to stimulate the economy and oppose across-the-board spending cuts to offset deficits.

As part of the study, the group issued its annual report card on the economic performance, business vitality and development capacity of states, giving generally high marks to the "turnaround region" of the industrial Midwest, mixed grades to the Northeast, the Plains, the Mountain West and the Pacific, and dreadful grades to southern states. The study draws comparisons of data gathered between 1988 and 1992.

While the Midwest has suffered economically during the past two years—particularly Michigan and other states dependent on the auto industry—the region has fared much better than the Northeast because it "has worked on its liabilities, built upon its assets" and created a surprisingly healthy economy since the last recession, according to the report.

By contrast, the South, with its marginally competitive industries and relatively weak educational and financial institutions, has been hardest hit by the recession and is least prepared to take advantage of an upturn in the economy when it occurs.

Arkansas, home to Gov. Bill Clinton, the Democratic presidential front-runner, received failing grades for both economic performance and development capacity and a C for business vitality.

William Schweke, a senior fellow with the research group, said that despite its poor overall showing, Arkansas is doing relatively well in certain key areas of business vitality, including average annual pay growth, income distribution and manufacturing capital investment.

"While Arkansas' scores are not that great, they're not that bad when compared to other southern states," Schweke said.

Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, West Virginia, Oklahoma, New Mexico, South Carolina, Arizona, Hawaii and North Dakota also received failing grades in one or more categories of economic development.

Those states making the strongest showing, with A's in two out of three categories, were California, Colorado, Delaware, Maryland, Minnesota, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

Virginia received an A for development capacity, a B for business vitality and a C for economic performance.
