Mr - Civil Rights speaks for itself, but direct costs w/ Clean Air + ADA. Now enforcing the law at the lowest possible cost. We're all environmentalists but we need jobs too. We're holding off.

2nd in from east) Tom Ward, Owns land, found cotton dust bags there. Bought and not knowing about it.

Mayo Buddie - People not grasping an economic program.

David Jones - (lost on UP's left) Need to get message to people we live in a global economy - and tell people just how far we've come in last 10 years now.

Jon Keely
Any big news coming from White House re economy?

David Jones - What % of CSR
Congress are lawyers? Exp.
here is that anything affecting legal profession goes through Judiciary committee - and they look out for themselves
P.C. Burch (next to Dr.) ADR is working
& I'm getting pressure from clients
As everyone looks to cost cutting it creates opportunities for ADR.
Dr. Coffey - Regulatory burden on health care cost. Dr. Med.
malpractice reform is key.

Next to Gov) _____ - 3 pieces of legislation will cause explosion of litigation. Clean Air, ADA &
Civil Rights Restoration Act. Gov't taking more and more on our backs and not letting us back.

Sam - There's a reason why men are not around. There are social policy and historical reasons why men aren't there. We'll give you two books to go through.

Joe Skosh - ~~what~~ up - what are the changes we need to make for welfare to create more opportunity?

Joe - Needs to be a gradual decrease of welfare. Need more case work - welfare should not be a black & white issue

Mayor - Conservative philosophy calls for negative income tax.
JP - Subsidizing values we aren't espousing.

Rev. Arthur Johnson - If you were black ... Dad can't take care of family on $5 an hour. Black women are hired 3 times as fast as black men w/ the same education.

Lay Mitchell - Are we not paying enough attention to young people? Structural changes are here today & it may be creating an intergenerational gap.

Sam - We are living in 2 nations one black and poor, Hispanic & poor - but we need to bring resources to bear to solve this problem.

TALKING POINTS JTPA ROUNDTABLE

- o It is good to see the Mayor and other friends at home taking the lead in bringing our neighborhood community organizations and especially our churches into the effort to provide job-training for our young people.
- o Neighborhood community organizations will teach skills --- but more importantly they will teach values.
- o It is important for young citizens to learn marketable skills --- but it is doubly important for them to learn right from wrong.
- o Young people need to be associated and work with the good people in our communities who do more than talk about values -- - these good citizens live their values every day.
- o What used to be called "character building" is now called "imposing values" on someone else. Community leaders such as yourselves need to continue to emphasize that some behavior is just plain wrong --- regardless of how tolerant we are taught to be.
- o There are certain values that are shared by all civilized communities: faith, family, duty, honor.
- o The churches, as job-training sites, can reassert their proper role in the community by helping these young to respond to the hard decisions in life with fidelity and integrity.

DROP-BY GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS ANNUAL CONVENTION

Date: Tuesday, June 9, 1992
Time: 10:45 a.m. (10 minutes)
Location: Main Ballroom, The Westin Hotel
Indianapolis, Indiana

From: Anne Hathaway AH
Assistant to the Vice President and Director of Scheduling and Public
Liaison

I. PURPOSE

For you to drop-by the General Federation of Women's Club's 101st Annual Convention.

II. BACKGROUND

The General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) was established in 1890 and is one of the oldest and largest volunteer women's organizations in the world. Headquartered in Washington, D.C., GFWC has 8,500 active clubs in communities across the country with approximately 350,000 members including business owners, teachers, elected officials, homemakers, corporate executives and retirees. Ms. Phyllis Dudenhoffer, International President of GFWC, is a native Hoosier originally from Indianapolis.

GFWC is dedicated to community improvement through volunteer service. Their programs aim to promote education; preserve natural resources; stress good citizenship, moral and spiritual values, and good health; contribute to world peace and international understanding; and support participation in the arts.

Although involved with the legislative activity on Capitol Hill, GFWC historically has not supported political candidates.

The issues that the GFWC will address at their annual convention in Indianapolis include:

Abortion/Reproductive Health: GFWC recognizes the health and economic implications of women's decisions in family planning. They believe the choice of when to bear children is the most important and private decision a woman can make. The GFWC work with many national organizations whose mission is to protect the rights of women to make private decisions regarding their health and oppose any legislative action that prevents access to essential reproductive healthcare.

Fetal Tissue: GFWC recognizes that fetal tissue has provided breakthroughs in research in Alzheimers Disease, Parkinsons Disease, Diabetes and other serious illnesses. To date they have not taken a side on this issue, but GFWC continues to actively follow the progress of the NIH Reauthorization Bill.

Sexual Harassment: GFWC is presenting a resolution at its annual convention which supports increased enforcement of the laws against sexual harassment.

Comparable Worth: GFWC takes the position that anti-discrimination laws should be enforced to ensure that women are given equal access to managerial and higher paying jobs.

ERA: GFWC has supported equal rights and responsibilities for women since 1944.

Handgun Control: GFWC supports the adoption of strong and effective gun control laws and has resolutions to that effect. In states where such laws exist, GFWC seeks enforcement. GFWC endorses the adoption of strong and effective gun control laws where state and local laws do not control the indiscriminate sale and possession of firearms.

The following list reflects issues that the GFWC members have focused their attention on in the past:

GFWC was instrumental in securing passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990;

During the 1990's, GFWC has been committed to working closely on legislation regarding the aging, child welfare and family issues;

GFWC continually strives for legislation protecting volunteer liability;

GFWC established 75 percent of the nation's public libraries over the past 100 years. Barbara Bush is Honorary Chairman of the GFWC Literacy Program.

of accomplishments

GFWC is responsible for the establishment of 75 percent of America's public libraries.

1899 - Established the national model for juvenile courts

1906 - Turned the tide for passage of the Pure Food and Drugs Act

1911 - Supported legislation for the 8-hour workday

1938 - Supported the first child labor law

1944 - First endorsed a resolution supporting equal rights and responsibilities for women

1958 - Supported equal pay for equal work

1974 - Started an alcohol and drug abuse education program for women and youth

1988 - Instituted a youth suicide prevention program

Centennial objectives

- To bring the GFWC Centennial celebration into every country, state and community and to create in club members a feeling of involvement
- To solidify and expand membership
- To focus attention on volunteerism
- To create an awareness of GFWC's accomplishments
- To maintain the spirit and ideals of GFWC and volunteerism through creative and inspired programs

and Resource Center

The Women's History and Resource Center, located at GFWC Headquarters, is a special collection devoted to women's history with an emphasis on women in volunteerism. There are more than 1,000 volumes of contemporary and rare books in addition to periodicals, vertical files and manuscripts in the collection. Of particular interest are materials documenting the history of the women's club movement.

Also housed at the Center is the Good Housekeeping Collection on the UN Decade for Women (1975-85), which consists of correspondence, audio and video tapes, films, books, pamphlets, press releases, conference and convention proceedings, surveys and photographs documenting women's activities in commemorating this historic decade.

The Center provides access to materials for researchers, GFWC members and staff, students, scholars and the public, through bibliographic records, computerized databases, finding aids and assistance with research strategies.

GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

A Message to GFWC Clubwomen from Barbara Bush, Honorary Chairman of the GFWC Literacy Program:

So much has happened for literacy since 1984, when the General Federation of Women's Clubs first began its Literacy Project, and you very kindly asked me to serve as Honorary Chairman. A national literacy movement has emerged, largely because of the efforts of groups like GFWC. Today there are few Americans who do not know that more and better literacy is one of our country's most compelling needs.

The business community knows that a healthy economy depends on literacy, and that our workers must have strong basic skills in order to be productive, flexible and happy. Concerned citizens and service providers know that poor literacy is linked with virtually all our other social problems—poverty, teenage pregnancy, drug abuse, homelessness, crime, unemployment. Educators know that, to have a real chance at the good life, our children must become increasingly literate with every year in school. Literacy problems play a sizeable role in our estimated 30 percent drop-out rate; and our national, state, and local leaders know that the strength of our democracy truly depends upon a literate, informed populace.

But knowing about the need for greater literacy and making strides toward meeting it do not mean that the job is done. We have only just begun our progress toward lasting solutions to our literacy problems. That is why I am so heartened that GFWC will continue to enrich the national movement with its special emphasis on literacy at least through 1990.

Following in GFWC's footsteps, almost all our major civic and service organizations are now helping with literacy. Churches are involved as never before, including the National Council of the Churches of Christ and a wonderful ecumenical group called Project Literacy Los Angeles. We have gotten unexpected sources of professional support, like the American Bar Association's excellent drive to involve state and local bars in "Lawyers for Literacy."

Because of efforts like the National Governors Association's Task Force for Literacy, a majority of states now have extensive multi-sector literacy initiatives of their own.

The impetus for all this activity is coming from our wonderfully supportive media. Project Literacy U.S., the unprecedented joint effort of public and commercial television, has reached into homes throughout America and organized communities nationwide for literacy. But we owe a special debt of gratitude to our print media for keeping the issue squarely in the public eye. The American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) is doing an especially fine job of promoting attention to literacy throughout the country, and I am absolutely delighted that ANPA has chosen to sponsor the good work of GFWC.

It is especially gratifying for me to act as Honorary Chairman of your Literacy Program during the 1988-1990 administration of President Alice Donahue. Now is the time to institutionalize support for literacy on every front and for all Americans, and GFWC members are the kind of gifted volunteers who can do it. The theme "Education for Everyone—our Gift for 1990" is particularly appropriate for literacy, and I urge you to redouble your efforts in schools and adult literacy programs, with local businesses and media. In my opinion, GFWC clubwomen would have special talents to bring to intergenerational literacy programs that deal with both parents and children. There is no more important reason for being concerned about the literacy of adults than the futures of their children.

My highest praise goes to GFWC for being among the first of our important volunteer groups to give real help to literacy, and for sustaining the effort throughout three of your administrations. My strong hope is that literacy will become a basic and permanent feature of GFWC's Education Department, and that your theme will be "Education for Everyone—Forever."

What we do

How we work

For 100 years, GFWC has worked to address the most pressing needs of our communities and our nation. This includes promoting education, preserving natural resources, stressing good citizenship, moral and spiritual values and good health, contributing to world peace and international understanding and supporting participation in the arts.

Model programs are suggested by volunteers and staff at GFWC international headquarters in Washington, DC. Working through state and district structures, GFWC clubs have the ability to tap into the expertise available at these levels and the freedom to shape their programs to suit particular community needs.

GFWC points with pride to:

- air and water pollution
- care of the elderly
- community improvement
- day care
- drug and alcohol abuse
- hazardous waste management
- health care
- illiteracy
- international understanding
- leadership development
- opportunities for people with disabilities
- solid waste management
- youth suicide

- Allstate Foundation
- American Council of Life Insurance
- Chevron, U. S. A.
- Exxon Company, U. S. A.
- Procter & Gamble
- Robinson Kramer Group Plans
- Shell Oil

A fundamental approach that GFWC follows in all our community service work is to network with more specialized organizations, as well as with local public agencies and private groups in order to maximize the effectiveness of our volunteer efforts. This not only brings many segments of a community together, but also increases both the level of involvement and the level of awareness among citizens. Cooperating agencies include:

- American Library Association
- CARE
- Foster Parents Plan
- Hugh O'Brian Youth Found.
- Keep America Beautiful
- March of Dimes
- Operation Smile
- Safe Kids
- U. S. Dept. of Agriculture
- Very Special Arts

GFWC TALKING POINTS/LEGISLATIVE ISSUES AND MEMBERSHIP FACTS

ABORTION/REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH

Our resolutions recognize the health and economic implications of women's decisions in family planning. We believe the choice of when to bear children is the most important and private decision a woman can make. We work with many national organizations whose mission is to protect the rights of women to make private decisions regarding their health -- and we oppose any legislative action that prevents access to essential reproductive healthcare services.

FETAL TISSUE

GFWC recognizes that fetal tissue has provided breakthroughs in research in Alzheimers, Parkinsons Disease, Diabetes and other serious illnesses. Fetal Tissue research has support from Congress on both sides of the aisle and, while GFWC has no positions to date, our legislative director has been following the progress of the NIH Reauthorization Bill.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT

GFWC is presenting a resolution to this convention body that supports increased enforcement of the laws against sexual harassment. We are aware that current law provides little deterrent against continued harassment and little remedy for victims.

COMPARABLE WORTH

GFWC endorses the concept that women be given equal access to higher paying and managerial positions and be paid salaries equal to men in like positions through enforcement of anti-discrimination laws.

ERA

Our position since 1944 supports equal rights and responsibilities for women.

HANDGUN CONTROL (Sale of Firearms)

GFWC supports the adoption of strong and effective gun control laws and has resolutions to that effect. In states where laws exist we seek enforcement. And we support the adoption of strong and effective gun control laws where state and local laws do not control the indiscriminate sale and possession of firearms.

MALE MEMBERSHIP

GFWC has never set a policy which excluded men. Many clubs across the country currently have active male members and this has been true over the years. The Indiana Federation of Clubs has always had male members and even had a male state president in 1898.

SIZE OF MEMBERSHIP

Although our early records are incomplete, GFWC's membership in the post-war years, 1948 through the early 50's, ranged between 700,000 and 800,000. But times changed during the 60's, 70's and 80's and we saw a drop in numbers as did the Kiwanis, Lions, Knights of Columbus and all other volunteer groups. Our membership now runs around 350,000 but we are seeing a resurgence in volunteerism. This is due in part to the push from the White House and the Thousand Points of Light as well as to a renewed interest in doing something for others that followed the "me generation" of the 80's.

In some communities we are beginning to interest younger, college age women in joining clubs and nationwide we are seeing retirement-age women who are bringing us their expertise from the workplace.

Many younger women join clubs because they want to be able to do something for themselves and for the community -- aside from their families and their jobs. Our clubs are a good place to network with a variety of people in the town or city where they live, to learn new skills and to learn leadership skills. Also, employers looking at resumes seem to take note of volunteer activities.

GFWC PUBLIC POLICY PRIORITIES 1992

The General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC International) is the world's oldest and largest nondenominational, nonpartisan international volunteer women's organization. Founded in 1890, GFWC International is dedicated to community improvement through volunteer service. For 100 years, GFWC clubs have worked to address the most pressing needs of their communities and the nation. They have been remarkably successful in marshalling all of the resources of their cities and towns to tackle problems ranging from illiteracy to environmental pollution to crime. The organization's programs are organized into six departments: Arts and Crafts, Conservation, Education, Home Life, International Affairs, and Public Affairs.

Recognizing that federal and state laws have a profound effect on local communities, GFWC has long supported the adoption of legislation consistent with its goals, as set forth in policies and programs approved by the GFWC Executive Committee, the GFWC Board of Directors, and delegates to annual GFWC international conventions.

For the 1990-92 GFWC Administration, the following public policy priorities have been identified to guide GFWC's activities in legislation and public policy.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

To support funding and encourage active participation in programs for art, music and dance education in school curricula that are open to students of all ages and abilities.

To assist in providing development and recognition of creative writing by students and adults in the community by working with public school officials.

CONSERVATION

To support passage of state and local laws adopting a balanced, environmentally safe and integrated approach to solid waste management.

To encourage legislation to establish and protect public lands, to preserve wildlife, and to advocate conservation of soil, water and other natural resources.

To support the labeling, safe use and proper disposal of chemical compounds and the development of less toxic chemicals and drugs.

To reduce the emissions of compounds that harm the air quality of our environment and support greater research into global warming and ozone depletion.

To support a coordinated national energy policy that encourages the exploration and development of domestic resources of various fuels with the proper management of resources and conservation of energy by all segments of society.

EDUCATION

To support adequate appropriations for local and state libraries and the Library of Congress and to advocate expansion of library services to meet the needs of people of all ages and socioeconomic levels.

To support legislation and appropriations to improve and expand literacy services for people of all ages and to coordinate a national response to the problem of illiteracy.

To support programs to meet the individual educational needs of those with learning disabilities and to expand the opportunities for people of all ages to further their education through public and private means.

HOME LIFE

To work to meet the economic and social needs of the aging and their families through careful monitoring of current programs and new proposals in the areas of health care, long-term care, retirement income, and social services.

To continue to improve the economic status of all women, including mid-life and older women, through support of improved employment training, expanded business opportunities, better child care services and more equitable retirement and medical benefits.

To promote policies of wellness, fitness and preventive medicine for people of all ages and support for school and community based education and services for health advocacy.

To encourage state and federal legislation providing greater resources for law enforcement, substance abuse services for the chemically dependent and their families, and for youth suicide prevention programs.

To support equal opportunity and access for people with disabilities in all facets of society, including public facilities, housing, employment, transportation, and education.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

To support legislation promoting international cultural exchange programs.

To study and support legislation promoting free and fair trade among nations and international development.

To study and debate foreign policy issues and to communicate with U.S. officials about relevant topics before Congress and the United Nations.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

To encourage laws designed to preserve our nation's cultural and historic landmarks.

To increase the participation of all eligible citizens in local, state and national elections.

To work for effective laws and programs to prevent child abuse, child abduction, domestic violence and elder abuse, and to advocate legal recognition of victim rights and increased funding for victim services.

To support highway safety initiatives, including passage and enforcement of drunk driving laws and universal safety belt, child restraint and motorcycle helmet laws.

... to give back something more than is given you. And we did a lot of good projects ... My mother was also a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs ... [she] was a person who wanted to push women ahead, thank goodness."

LINDA JOHNSON ROBB, former First Lady of the Commonwealth of Virginia

"Today we recognize a full century of women volunteering their time, energy and resources to provide vision and leadership in education, home life, public affairs, international affairs, conservation, the arts and other fields. In doing so, you have helped ensure that the freedoms and opportunities of past generations will be passed on and hopefully expanded for the young adults of the future."

JUDY MCDERMOTT, Chief of Exchange and Gift Division, Library of Congress

"... There appears to be no significant national issue in which your organization has not been involved: from conservation to health care, from solid waste management to illiteracy."

YVONNE SANTA ANA, staff member, Veterans Affairs Committee, U.S. Senate and former staff member House Select Committee on Aging

"My mother was in a woman's club in our home town and most of the PTA room mothers were in the same woman's club. And, I'll tell you my home town may be small, but the women in that town really got a lot done."

LINDA PULLIAM, President, Pulliam Associates, Inc.

"Clearly this organization has from the beginning attracted and been made up of forward thinking, energetic, optimistic women who see something that needs to be done and you set about finding ways to do it."

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT GFWC

During 1991, many prominent individuals have addressed the General Federation of Women's Clubs in various forums. Here are some of their comments, which clearly indicate the high regard they have for the organization and its work:

DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, noted psychologist, columnist and author

"The General Federation of Women's Clubs through its members has been on the front line of the movement for community improvement and enhanced quality of life. The pioneer clubwomen of the last century and those who succeeded them have recognized the value of the volunteer concept both as a means of personal growth and as a force for social improvement. GFWC's list of accomplishments ranges from conservation of natural resources to consumer protection, education, alcohol and drug abuse treatment and prevention, government reform, the fostering of world understanding and international cooperation, child labor laws, equal rights for women, equal opportunity in education and in laws and a score of other projects that have become the country's prominent issues."

DR. MICHAEL MCGINNIS, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Health, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services and Assistant Surgeon General, U.S. Public Health Service

"The General Federation of Women's Clubs is certainly doing its share to move this nation to a higher plane. Through your work in successfully marshalling resources, through promoting education, and through active participation in community service, you provide a great example of how to best approach some of the most challenging issues affecting the kinds of people and the kinds of communities this country turns out."

HELEN THOMAS, Chief White House Correspondent, United Press International

"I am honored to appear before an organization I have long admired. You invented volunteerism long before they heard of it in the White House."

ANN MCLAUGHLIN, Visiting Fellow and Board Member, The Urban Institute and former Secretary of Labor

"In most ways you women in this room represent, I think, the best hope to get something done in those 58,000 schools and those 58 million plants and offices where the solutions are to be found. As such you are the most effective movers and shakers we have, and I salute you. Your organization and your individual efforts share the values that we need . . ."

GFWC ACHIEVEMENTS -- PAST AND PRESENT

"Is it possible that women may have a life of their own, may learn to know and honor each other, may find solace in companionship, and lose sight of small troubles in larger aims?"

*Jane Cunningham Croly
 Founder, GFWC*

It was 1889 when pioneer journalist and syndicated columnist, "Jennie June" Croly asked that rhetorical question in an issue of the magazine, The Woman's Cycle. But Ms. Croly had already answered it 21 years earlier when she organized Sorosis, the first woman's club and the first step in the formation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, now the world's largest volunteer women's organization.

During the last decade of the 19th century, women's clubs not only increased in numbers, but also enlarged their focus from self to "larger aims" of community service and involvement. The partial list that follows indicates the enormous achievements GFWC clubs have made over the past 100 years as well as the complex issues that clubwomen are confronting today, both in their communities and through strong legislative initiatives:

- o Instrumental in securing passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990.
- o Committed to working closely during the 1990s on legislation regarding the aging, child welfare and family issues.
- o Continually striving for legislation protecting volunteer liability.
- o Established 75 percent of the nation's public libraries over the past 100 years.
- o First women's organization to implement an AIDS education program.
- o Conducted a nationwide Smoking Awareness Campaign (SAC) in 1986, in support of the Surgeon General's Report.
- o One of five women's organizations selected by the United States in 1945 to send a consultant to the United Nations Conference in San Francisco.

GFWC Achievements

- o 1989 winner of the National Crime Prevention Award for programs in crime prevention and personal safety.
- o Conducted national educational and legislative campaigns among clubwomen to raise awareness of endangered species as well as to secure passage of the Endangered Species Act. Raised funds during the late 1980s to establish a GFWC Preserve in Southern Utah, in cooperation with the Nature Conservancy.
- o Working to connect GFWC volunteers with major literacy providers in order to assist in tutor training and other school-related programs.
- o Training leaders in every state regarding the problem of youth suicide and how to implement prevention programs in schools and on the community level.
- o Conducting region conferences during the 1990s to educate members on Solid Waste Management issues and to promote community-level programs.
- o Promoting cross-cultural exchange among women the world over.
- o Initiating alcohol and drug abuse education programs for women and youth.
- o Established first traveling libraries in the United States.
- o In 1904, asked Congress to "enact legislation to establish a Department of Education, whose head shall be a cabinet officer."
- o Helped establish kindergarten as part of public schools throughout the country.
- o Established and developed night schools for adults, and raised funds to keep public schools open at night.
- o Helped establish reforms in the juvenile court system.
- o Instrumental in the enactment of the first child labor and protection laws.
- o Instrumental in the establishment of the first Worker's Compensation Act.
- o Fought for property rights of married women.

-more-

- o First women's organization to undertake a relief program in the food deficit regions of the world through the "Signs of Crisis" program in association with CARE.
- o Launched nationwide campaign for the improvement of school conditions and for compulsory attendance laws.
- o In the 1920s, worked for the establishment of a National Gallery of Art, in the nation's capital.
- o In 1916, established Royal Palm State Park in Florida; maintained the park until 1947 when it became the nucleus of the Everglades National Park.
- o In 1920, endorsed the establishment of minimum wage commissions in all states and urged a legal eight-hour day for women in industrial pursuits.

Dear Ms. Kramer:

The General Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its annual convention June 7-11, 1992 in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Being a Hoosier, I am very proud to show off my home state and my home town. Naturally, I would like to have the honor of showing off Indiana's favorite son, Vice President Quayle, to our 1500 delegates representing 350,000 women from each of the states and ten million world-wide.

My request is to have the Vice President as our keynote speaker and we will be able to change the times to suit his busy schedule. I have speakers scheduled for Monday, June 8th both morning and afternoon; Tuesday, June 9, morning, afternoon and evening; Wednesday, June 10, morning, afternoon and evening.

Your name was suggested as a contact for this invitation by Randy Peters who is a friend of mine.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Phyllis J. Dudenhoffer

Dear Ms. Kremer:

I am writing as follow-up to our correspondence of July 1991, and my invitation to have Vice President Quayle address GFWC's international convention, in Indiana this June, as the keynote speaker.

As I mentioned in my letter of July 18, I would be more than happy to adjust our program as necessary on June 8, 9 or 10 to suit the Vice President's busy schedule.

I also want to take this opportunity to let you know that in the event Mr. Quayle is unable to attend on any of these dates, I am certain our 1500 delegates from around the nation would be very pleased and honored to have Mrs. Quayle address them. This would be especially appropriate since during the past two years of my administration, we had a very successful cancer prevention/mammography campaign.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Phyllis J. Dudenhoffer

Member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (chartered by Congress in 1901)

The Honorable J. Danforth Quayle
Vice President of the United States
Washington, D.C.

Dear Dan,

I was shocked to hear that you are speaking to the Southern Baptists and not stopping at the Westin to visit the eight hundred members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

We represent the largest volunteer organization in the world, Ten Million Members and are everything Murphy Brown isn't! Some staffer certainly made a mistake and this election year is not the time to make such errors.

Dan, it has been awhile since Anne Eckrich brought you to the Macedonian Ball in Fort Wayne when you ran against Roush - I was a proud person at the inauguration and hopefully will be proud on Monday or Tuesday of next week when you take a few minutes for our federation.

The Westin is a few steps away from the Convention Center and I hope that you will positively respond to the GFWC invitation issued one year ago by our International President Phyllis J. Dudenhoffer, Indianapolis native. Either Day 10 a.m. - 1 p.m. or 3:15 p.m. - 5 p.m.

I can be reached at (telephone 317 262 8100)

Very truly yours,

Rosie
