Grassroots support the only way to get it done.

Donna Burris - wouldn't firm limitation help this reform movement. UP - yes

Gov. Castle - Need to make this an issue to get more grassroots support. People don't understand impact of this on competitiveness.

Myra ~~Bair~~ Bair - wrapping this into jobs and competitiveness key to selling this idea

Glenn Kerton - Civil Rico a big problem too (long-time Pete DuPont supporter)

Lozelle Delaz - Status quo a real problem, both in litigation + health. Cows McD franchises

Vel Carpenter - Focus on abuses, but don't ... rights ... donations need

Peter Jordan - macro, micro effects of interest rate caps for credit cards. Interest rates & consumer spending not correlated. Credit impact of rate caps

Foster Friess - Disease of envy - concerned about 1986 tax act

Willis Barrington - Rest of world learning socialism, but ~~was~~ are moving in that direction

Civil Justice Reform Roundtable

DATE: February 25, 1992
LOCATION: Wilmington, Delaware
Hotel DuPont
TIME: 10:30 a.m.
FROM: John Howard JH

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the Administration's Civil Justice Reform initiative and to seek support for reforms at the federal and state levels.

II. BACKGROUND

This Civil Justice Roundtable is hosted by the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. In addition to Governor Castle and a bipartisan group of state legislators, we have invited representatives from several smaller businesses.

To date, Delaware has had little success with civil justice reform primarily because of strong opposition from the trial bar. When the legislature reconvenes in March, Governor Castle plans to introduce a bill similar to the Model State Punitive Damages Act. The Delaware proposal would require pre-litigation notice; vest the judge, rather than the jury, with the authority to award punitive damages; and cap punitive damages at the amount of the compensatory award. [The Model Act also requires a showing of intent and bifurcates the determination of compensatory and punitive awards.]

In addition, the Governor is prepared to reintroduce legislation abolishing the doctrine of joint and several liability and is exploring the possibility of imposing caps on awards for pain and suffering in civil suits. Governor Castle is considering proposing legislation to implement the "loser pays" rule.

The Governor's Counsel has expressed interest in other reforms proposed in the Civil Justice Reform Model State Amendments. Given Governor Castle's efforts, it is likely he will be a strong ally in our attempt to reform the civil justice system.

III. PARTICIPANTS

BIOGRAPHY OF GOVERNOR MICHAEL N. CASTLE

Michael N. Castle first took office as governor of Delaware on January 15, 1985, and was elected to a second term -- by the greatest margin in the history of the state -- in 1988. He served as lieutenant governor from 1981 to 1985, and for 10 years was a member of the Delaware General Assembly. He is a graduate of Tower Hill School, Hamilton College and Georgetown University Law School.

Governor Castle, 52, played a pivotal role in the reform of national welfare policy, serving as lead Republican governor for the National Governors' Association (NGA) and working as liaison with the White House and Congress to win passage of a comprehensive welfare reform package. He played a similar role this year with NGA on health care reform.

During Castle's Administration, Delaware has enjoyed a robust economy. While personal income taxes were cut in three of his first four years in office, the combination of steady employment growth and higher per capita income has made possible increased state spending on education, social programs, transportation, and environmental projects. Delaware's job growth since 1985 ranks as 12th highest in the Nation. Highlights of the Castle Administration include:

- * Creation of a plan launched in January 1992 to make health care services available to all Delaware children under age 18. The Governor has also proposed programs for insurance reform, physician recruitment and health care for needy adults that will be considered and in part begun this year.
- * Development of a comprehensive "Environmental Legacy" program to address environmental issues in the coming decade, including efforts to preserve Delaware's beaches and a major program of land acquisition which will result in the protection of nearly 18 percent of the state's total land and in creation of greenways for public recreation.
- * Creation of DELAWARE 2000: The First State Plan to dramatically improve education through a framework of grassroots restructuring efforts to meet the six National Education Goals.
- * Support for teacher salary increases which rank the average Delaware teacher salary as 13th highest in the Nation. Higher classroom standards have been established, teacher salary policy has been revamped to reward quality teaching, and a pilot program is underway to increase the role of teachers in curriculum development.
- * Establishment of innovative human service programs recognized nationally. Delaware has a successful welfare reform program, "First Step," designed to provide education and training to long-term welfare recipients, and has launched a pilot program to provide HMO coverage for families making the transition from welfare to work.

Castle has been active in the National Governors' Association, serving as chairman of the Human Resources Committee, chairman of the Committee on Justice and Public Safety and is past President of the Council of State Governments (1990), past chairman of both the Southern Governors' Association (1989) and the Republican Governors' Association (1988).

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

James V. Healy, Chairman
John M. Burris, President

John M. Burris

John M. Burris became president of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce in September 1989.

Burris, a life-time Delaware resident, has been active in government, business, and community affairs across the state.

A small businessman all of his working life, he has also held leadership roles in Delaware's legislature. Formerly president of Kent/Sussex Tire Service, he was also a vice president of Burris Foods, Inc., a frozen food distribution company serving the Mid-Atlantic Region, with over 500 employees.

First elected to the Delaware House of Representatives in 1976, he represented the Milford district for three terms. From 1978-79, he was a minority leader. From 1979 to 1982, Burris was majority leader of the House. From 1978-79, he was minority leader. While in the legislature, Burris co-authored "Handbook for State Legislative Leaders 1983-84" (Ballinger Press) and served as a director of the State Legislative Leaders Foundation. He is chairman of the State of Delaware Management Institute.

He has been active in many Delaware civic and community causes. In addition, President Reagan appointed Burris to the White House Small Business Conference in 1984.

Burris served in the United States Army Infantry from 1969 to 1971.

A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, Burris and his wife Linda, reside in Milford. They have three children, Michael ^{(b) (6)} David, ^{(b) (6)} and Scott, ^{(b) (6)}

Profile: James D. Randall

During a 20-year career that took him from credit manager for W.T. Grant to vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank (USA), N.A., James D. Randall moved to Delaware to pursue what were to be his last years working in the banking industry. In 1981, the year after the Delaware legislature passed the Financial Centers Development Act, he moved his family from their Paramus, N.J. home and with the other members of the Chase team, was charged with creating and implementing Chase Manhattan Bank's "Delaware Project". His responsibilities included organizing and formulating credit policies, operations and human resources. As a personal loan executive, his specific credit lines included Advantage Credit and Chase Equity products where he managed credit, collections, and customer service.

Because the new operation involved hiring many people with varied experience and skill levels, Jim became a large user of temporary services. He used temporary employees to staff positions from entry level through experienced collectors and word processing secretaries. Not only did he use temporaries as a resource for filling jobs, but he became fascinated with using them innovatively. Most notably, he noticed the high rate of burnout associated with rote jobs. Rotating temps when they exhibited these symptoms allowed him to bring in fresh people without resorting to massive employee layoffs and rehiring.

Intrigued with the temporary service business, Jim explored the possibility of owning a temporary service firm. He purchased Caldwell Temporary Services in 1984. Overall, the company has grown 500% under his leadership and is now one of the largest temporary services in Delaware. He has expanded the scope of services offered by Caldwell twice. In 1987, he added professional recruitment and placement, and in 1989 he established the organization as The Caldwell Group, adding Corporate Outplacement, Executive Search, and Career and Resume Services.

TALKING POINTS FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT
CIVIL JUSTICE REFORM ROUNDTABLE MEETING
WILMINGTON, DELAWARE
FEBRUARY 25, 1992

Thank you, John Burris, for hosting this meeting, and thank you all very much.

It's great to be here in Wilmington today.

The United States is the only remaining superpower.

- o Keeping pace with all the challenges facing us.
- o President has established a framework for peace.
- o We continued working on problems here at home.

We are still the world leaders in the marketplace.

- o Our economy is more than twice as large as any competitor.
- o Still, we have some competitive disadvantages.
- o Some come from trading partners; other from inside.
- o Council on Competitiveness is an avenue to help regain edge.

Unfortunately, we are also the world leader in lawsuits.

- o We have 70% of the world's lawyers.
- o System costs an estimated $300 billion dollars a year.
- o This is a self-inflicted competitive disadvantage.

Impact on economy of excessive lawsuits - saps our ability to compete.

- o Foreign companies have lower liability costs.
- o We also have higher prices for some everyday items.
- o Some beneficial products never come to the market.

Specific Civil Justice Reform proposals include:

- o ADR - The Multidoor Courthouse
- o Discovery Reform
- o Expert Evidence - Widely Accepted Theories
- o Fairness Rule
- o Punitive Damage Reform

The Administration is committed to Civil Justice Reform.

- o The President has signed an Executive Order.
- o "Access to Justice Act of 1992" sent to Congress
- o Amendments to Federal Rules – introduced last week.
- o Civil Justice Reform Model State Amendments and Model State Punitive Damages Act are here today.
- o Model state statutes embody many of the Council's proposals for reform.

I'm here today to ask for your help with Civil Justice Reform.

- o Impact on state is great, as most cases are brought in state courts.
- o Support Governor Castle's proposals which are similar to the Council's model state statutes.
- o Work to fight legislation creating unnecessary litigation.
- o Remove the costs and delays in the system.
- o Institute policy reforms – product liability and medical malpractice.

Please work hard to make this happen in Delaware.

- o The "litigation explosion" isn't just in Washington. The people of Delaware have realized that the legal system takes too long and costs too much.
- o I look forward to working with Governor Castle and the state legislature to make Delaware a model for the rest of the nation.

This year is the second half of a two-year legislative session in Delaware. The 1990 election and a logjam in the legislature, along with a strong trial bar, have created an inhospitable climate for new reform measures in Delaware. The Tort Reform Task Force is still working for passage of an automobile insurance reform bill that was tabled last session. Reapportionment before the start of the 1993-1994 session will shape the Task Force's future strategy.

The Medical Society of Delaware is studying the health access problem and will work to increase the public's awareness of how tort reform may help solve the problem. They hope that greater public interest in tort reform would encourage corporate sponsors to assist their efforts. Individuals interested in helping to bring about reform here should contact Andy Stayton or Mark Meister.

STATE OF DELAWARE
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

MICHAEL N. CASTLE
GOVERNOR

February 24, 1992

Mr. Eric Jowett
Office of the Vice President
Washington, D.C.

Dear Eric:

Governor Castle has embraced several of the reforms suggested by the Council on Competitiveness including proposed legislation relating to awards of punitive damages. Such a bill would require pre-litigation notice of claims for punitive damages, change the standard of proof necessary to be entitled to such damages, clothe the courts rather than juries with the authority to award punitive damages and set a cap on such damages not to exceed the amount of compensatory damages awarded to a plaintiff. We intend to introduce a bill similar to the Model State Punitive Damages Act when the General Assembly reconvenes next month.

Additionally, the Governor is considering legislation to permit the awarding of attorney's fees as part of the costs provided to a prevailing party in civil litigation. A bill is being drafted.

We are also attempting to pass a tort reform bill which would abolish the doctrine of joint and several liability in those cases where a plaintiff is found to be partially responsible for damages sustained. Individual defendants would only be liable for that portion of the plaintiff's damages caused by them. A bill is ready for introduction. (Past efforts at passage of this legislation have been unsuccessful.)

Finally, we are investigating the possibility of imposing caps on awards for pain and suffering in civil suits, although legislation has not been drafted at this time. All of these proposals are closely related to various recommendations of the President's Council on Competitiveness.

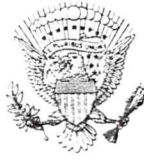

Please let me know if you need additional information.

Very truly yours,

Keith R. Brady
Counsel to the Governor

STATE PARTY

Committee Members:

Chairman BASIL BATTAGLIA

Elected: August 1988

Term Expires: May 1993

BASIL, a close personal friend of Governor MICHAEL CASTLE, is the Administrator for the Delaware Turnpike. He was elected to the RNC Budget Committee in January 1991 and also serves on the RNC Rules Committee.

National Committeeman W. LAIRD STABLER

Elected: May 1985

Term Expires: May 1992

LAIRD was initially with PETE DUPONT in 1988. When DuPont withdrew from the contest, Laird came on board with President GEORGE BUSH. He is the Vice President, Senior Trust Manager, and member of the Board of Directors of Delaware Trust Capitol Management.

National Committeewoman PRISCILLA RAKESTRAW

Elected: March 1975

Term Expires: May 1992

PRISCILLA, an executive with the DuPont Corporation, serves on the 1992 Arrangements Committee and was just appointed to the 1992 News Media subcommittee.

Party Leaders:

Governor MICHAEL CASTLE

Former Governor PETE DUPONT

U.S. Senator WILLIAM ROTH

Lt. Governor DALE WOLF

State Treasurer JANET RZEWNICKI

Bush-Quayle '92 Leadership:

Chairman:

Governor MIKE CASTLE

State Party Overview:

This is a small but effective state party which runs sound and competent voter programs without much financial assistance from outside sources. Chairman BASIL BATTAGLIA and Governor MICHAEL CASTLE have helped strengthen the party in recent years.

Financial Status:

The party is financially stable and came out of 1991 with a small surplus. Its fundraising is above average especially for the size of the state.

1991 Convention: May 3, 1991

The Republican Party of Delaware meets in Convention annually -- nominating conventions in election years and organizational conventions in off-years. This, of course, was an organizational convention. The major purpose of this convention was to elect state party officials, including Chairman, Vice Chairmen, Treasurer, and Secretary. BATTAGLIA was easily re-elected this year. The party will meet in May, 1992 to select delegates to the Republican National Convention.

ELECTION UPDATE1992 Ballot:

President/Vice President

U.S. Representative

Governor - MICHAEL CASTLE (R)

Lt. Governor - DALE E. WOLF (R)

Insurance Commissioner

State Senate - 21 seats.

State House - 41 seats.

New Castle County Offices

Kent County Offices

Sussex County Offices

City of Wilmington

1992 Electoral College Votes: 3 votes

Political Environment/Overview:

There were no major elections in 1991; however, selected municipalities held local elections. The state party focused primarily on voter registration and candidate recruitment.

DE p. 3

President:

In 1988, Delaware came on board for then-Vice President Bush late in the game. This was due to PETE DUPONT'S candidacy. As soon as he withdrew, the state threw its support wholeheartedly behind the President.

In 1992, the Re-elect effort should benefit from a good State Party organization which includes its own in-house phonebank operation.

1992 Governor:

The Governor's seat is up in 1992, but Governor MICHAEL CASTLE is barred from running because of a two-term limitation. Castle has been a popular Governor with a moderate ideology. Castle's popularity and organization will be a great help to President Bush and the re-election effort.

Lt. Governor DALE WOLF was considered a candidate for Governor. However, he will not enter the race -- primarily because he believes that Congressman TOM CARPER will be the Democrat nominee, and feels Carper is not vulnerable.

B. GARY SCOTT, a Realtor from Wilmington, recently announced he is running for Governor.

DAVID BUCKSON, a soon-to-be-retired family court Judge, announced he will run for Governor. He is approximately 90 years old and has no history of substantive party involvement.

Democrat Insurance Commissioner David Levinson recently formed his own political party, named "The Delaware Party". Levinson has said publicly that he intends to run for Governor in the general election in November as a third party candidate. This would substantially improve the chances of B. Gary Scott, as Levinson would win Dem votes that would automatically go to Tom Carper.

1992 Lt. Governor:

Republican DENNIS ROCHFORD, Vice President of the Philadelphia Maritime Exchange, and former Pennsylvania congressional candidate, has formally announced he is candidate for Lt. Governor. Rochford is a close friend of Governor Castle.

Republican New Castle County President PHIL CLUTIER announced he will run for Lt. Governor.

1992 Key Congressional Races:

Governor MICHAEL CASTLE announced he will run for Congress in 1992. Castle is considered the heavy favorite in the Fall election. The Governor's approval ratings are still high, especially after a no new taxes budget he recently submitted for FY 1993.

Republican State Treasurer JANET RZEWNICKI formally announced her candidacy for Congress. She said privately that she will stay in the race even if GOVERNOR CASTLE runs for the seat. Rzewnicki has stepped-up her personal attacks against Governor Castle in recent public appearances.

Democrat Congressman TOM CARPER will run for Governor and is expected to easily gain the Democrat nomination over a little known retired teacher. Carper is extremely popular throughout the state.

Redistricting Update:

Legislative lines are passed as standard legislation and are subject to veto by the Governor. A 3/5 vote of both houses is required to override a veto by the Governor.

Although the statutory deadline for new lines was June 30, 1991, Governor Castle signed into law a new legislative map the last week of October.

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON

February 24, 1992

MEMORANDUM FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

FROM: GEORGE RASLEY GJR

SUBJECT: BACKGROUND INFORMATION ON WILMINGTON, DELAWARE

NOTE: While you are in Wilmington 24 days remain until the President's March 20th deadline.

- > Your visit to Wilmington, Delaware marks the 50th state you have visited as Vice President.
- > The economy of Delaware has improved slightly over the course of the last year. The unemployment rate has dropped from 6% in December of 1990 to 5.4% in December of 1991. This means almost 20,000 more people are working in Delaware today compared to a year ago. In the immediate Wilmington area the unemployment rate is 5.7% as of December 1991
- > According to Senator Roth's office Delaware has more autoworkers per capita of population than any other state.
- > More than 180,000 corporations are chartered in Delaware, including one-half of the Fortune 500 companies.
- > Wilmington is the home of Eleutherian Mills the original DuPont powder mill. DuPont is still headquartered in Delaware, as are other chemical giants Hercules Incorporated and ICI Americas, Inc.. Delaware is known as "The Chemical Capitol of the World".
- > DuPont's corporate headquarters, eight plants and four laboratories are located in Delaware. Next to State Government DuPont remains the largest employer in Delaware. Over 20,000 workers are employed by DuPont in Delaware.
- > There is concern among DuPont workers about the economy and corporate downsizing, some workers have been laid-off recently and the company has announced a cost cutting campaign which will result in employment cutbacks totaling roughly 5,500 jobs; more than half in the Wilmington area.

> In 1991 DuPont posted its first quarterly loss in more than 50 years. The $240 million loss was mainly attributable to one time charges, but points up a world-wide weakness in demand for many of DuPont's products.

> Wetlands are strongly protected in Delaware, and Governor Castle recently joined Governor Florio of New Jersey in applying for U.N. designation of hundreds of acres of Delaware Bay tidal wetlands as "wetlands of international importance". Property rights activists typically oppose this type of U.N. designation.

> Clean Air issues are important in Delaware. Wilmington is designated severe non-attainment for Ozone.

> The City of Wilmington recently instituted a hiring freeze. No lay-offs are planned, but Mayor Frawley's administration has indicated a desire to eliminate 60 positions through attrition or early retirement incentives.

> U.S. Senator William Roth has announced an economic plan he terms "JOG America". The plan designed to stimulate the economy is founded upon a reduction in the income tax rate. Sen. Roth's plan is to pay for the tax cut by reducing the defense budget by $139 billion and the domestic program budget by $90 billion.

> Governor Mike Castle recently announced his Valentine's Day engagement to Jane DiSabatino. A late May wedding is planned. The Governor and Ms. DiSabatino have known each other for many years and have been dating for over six years. Jane DiSabatino at one time worked for Long Island New York GOP Congressman William Carney.

> During your visit Bill Kristol will meet with Linda Gottfredson and Jan Blits, two University of Delaware scholars whose ground breaking research exposed the intellectual bankruptcy of race norming. Gottfredson and Blits are under fire for not being "PC" and have been threatened with loss of funding for their research and fear dismissal from their posts at the University.

> We are not aware of any existing Delaware choice programs, however in 1991 former Governor Pete duPont began promoting a model voucher plan for Delaware. The plan has yet to be introduced in the General Assembly.

FUN FACTS AND LOCAL INFORMATION

> Although Delaware has a labor force of only 364,000 there are 1,800 lawyers in the state. There are 26 pages of lawyers in the Diamond State Telephone Directory, but only 2 pages of engineers or engineering companies.

> According to the State Chamber poultry production and tourism are Delaware's number one industries. Sussex County, Delaware is the nation's number 1 producer of poultry.

> Delaware is sometimes referred to as "the first state" because it was the first state to ratify the Constitution, December 7, 1787.

> Delaware is one of only five states without a sales tax.

> Delaware is also sometimes referred to as the Diamond State or The Small Wonder.

> If you meet Speaker of the Delaware House of Representatives Terry Spence you may want to kid him about loosing a bet with his wife. He has been joking that he bet his wife that Gov. Mike Castle was "much too smart to get married". Since the Governor has announced his engagement to Jane DiSabatino it appears Speaker Spence will loose, although the Governor still has a few months to redeem himself, and the Speaker's bet.

Roth: Bush, Congress must think long-term

By JOHN O'HEILL
Staff reporter

The impact of the U.S. market in the world economy has been broken, but Americans should view growing markets in Asia and elsewhere as an opportunity, not as something to fear, says U.S. Sen. William V. Roth Jr.

The United States has entered a massive transition, the Delaware Republican said in an interview last week.

For 50 years, it focused on the Cold War, and for 30 of those years, its market dominated the world's business. Now, the Cold War is ending and other markets have grown in importance, Roth said. While markets in Asia and elsewhere continue to demand attention, they also provide opportunities for the United States to grow through trade.

For several months, Roth has been pushing his economic development plan, JOG America, — a plan that centers on a cut in income taxes — but he recently expanded the plan to push President Bush and Congress to think long-term as they work to jumpstart the economy.

Roth worries that Washington will settle for short-term answers in an election year, ignoring the economy's long-term needs.

In his State of the Union Address Tuesday, Bush will probably call for tax credits for businesses that expand, Roth said. He will probably call for ways to increase families' savings, and for some kind of income-tax reduction. Bush will be limited in what he can do this year, Roth said, because of the budget deficit and the 1990 budget agreement, which limits federal spending.

Short-term, the country must deal with the lack of consumer and business confidence, Roth said. Long-term, it must deal with competition from overseas.

The two problems are related, he said. Americans have lost confidence in part because they realize the country's largest firms won't rehire the people they cut loose in this recession, Roth said. Yet companies such as the Du Pont Co. are trimming staff to become more competitive worldwide, and success in the growing world markets will ultimately lead to more jobs.

Remember, Roth said, the United States approaches the growth in global competition from strength. U.S. workers remain productive, and U.S. research and development produces results. On the other hand, American management has not performed as well as it must, and the federal government must stop over-regulating, he said.

Confidence remains the major short-term issue, Roth said. People don't want to buy cars and other large items because they're uncertain about their jobs. Similarly, small businesses have been waiting for the economy to turn.

As part of his JOG America plan, Roth suggested a five-year reduction in income tax rates, which he said will build consumer confidence.

The administration and some members of Congress have been talking about a one-time tax refund rather than a long-term tax cut, Roth said. "My concern about these short-term deals is that they won't build confidence," he said.

JOG America would include a multiyear tax credit to defray the cost of business expansions, which Roth would like to see small businesses use. While large businesses continue to scale down, small businesses will continue to create jobs, he said.

Long-term, U.S. firms must compete for exports in ways they have not had to, Roth said. During the years when the U.S. market dominated, U.S. firms sold at home, secure in the knowledge that no one had a bigger playing field.

Yet by the end of this century, the U.S. market will become the world's third largest, outstripped by the combined markets of Europe and by the Japanese market, Roth said. View this as an opportunity, he said, realizing that "there's no magic wand that can do it overnight."

The United States must find better ways to get the benefits of its research and development to its businesses, Roth said. Despite the success of U.S. R&D, Japan has done a better job at funneling research to business. The United States must learn how to make R&D more quickly available to business, including small firms, Roth said.

The United States must be tough on unfair trade practices, even as it guards against sliding into protectionism, Roth said. For example, he said U.S. retailers must get approval from small Japanese retailers to open stores in their neighborhoods. That sort of structural bias must stop, he said.

On the other hand, calling for a specific reduction in the trade deficit and threatening to shut U.S. markets to force it will invite retribution, Roth said. "If we get involved in a trading war, other countries will respond."

Part of the U.S. predicament lies in the difference between the country's long- and short-term needs. Short-term, people must buy; long-term, they must save, Roth said.

The country can't continue to depend on foreign capital, Roth said. Germany and Japan have succeeded, in part, on their willingness to save and on their rebuilding ability to finance the expansion of industry.

Sit Down, Take A Couple Of Deep Breaths, And Prepare To Have A Few Myths Shattered.

Are you sitting? Good. We will try to make this as quick and as painless as possible.

Myth #1. The more money you spend, the better the car.

The automotive press has consistently ranked the Lexus LS400 higher than European luxury cars costing thousands of dollars more.

Myth #2. European luxury cars have the highest satisfaction ratings.

After only its first year, the LS400 scored the highest ever in overall satisfaction in the history of Car and Driver's New Buyer's Survey.

Myth #3. European luxury cars have the highest retained value.

According to recently released figures,* no other luxury car in its class has retained more of its original value than the Lexus LS400.

Those are all the myths we have room for right here. If you happen to have any left, we suggest that you bring them down to your Lexus dealer. He will be happy to shatter those for you as well.

My concern about these short-term deals is that they won't build confidence.

KFC to buy back 27 restaurants

Kentucky Fried Chicken reports that it will buy 27 KFC restaurants in Delaware, New Jersey, and upstate New York.

The franchises are being bought from David R. White, who opened his first Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Union, N.J., in 1967. Terms of the deal were not announced.

Eleven of the franchises are in Delaware, including locations in East, Claymont, Dover, Milford, Newark, New Castle, Rehoboth Beach, Smyrna and three in Wilmington.

The acquisition is part of an effort by KFC to acquire franchises when they become available. When the deal is done, KFC will own and operate about 37 percent of the more than 5,000 Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants in the United States.

White will retain four New York restaurants.

SENATOR ROTH

For America, competitiveness in world markets is top priority

America's top five priorities, in my view, are: 1. Making the United States competitive in world markets. 2. Making the United States competitive in world markets. 3. Making the United States competitive in world markets. 4. Making the United States competitive in world markets. 5. Making the United States competitive in world markets.

Only by making the United States No. 1 in the global economy can we achieve sustained economic growth and create new and better jobs for all Americans. How do we reach that goal? By making sure the central objective of all our federal policies is making America the top trading nation in the world by the year 2000. All of our federal priorities should be directed toward the overriding priority of competitiveness.

As a first step, Congress must pass a comprehensive plan that not only gives short-term relief from the current recession but also lays the groundwork for long-term sustainable economic growth. That is the only way to assure Americans of a continuing opportunity for jobs and growth in their standard of living.

My JOG America (Jobs, Opportunity and Growth) plan would do just that. My plan would:

- Reduce income tax rates by 3 percent for all but the wealthiest taxpayers.
- Restore and expand Individual Retirement Accounts, allowing early withdrawal of IRA savings without penalty for education expenses, first-time home purchases and catastrophic medical costs.
- Stimulate business investment with an incremental investment tax credit and a reduction in capital gains taxes.
- Gradually phase out the Social Security earnings limit, which discourages senior citizens from working.
- Give relief from passive loss rules for those actively involved in real estate.

I would pay for this extensive growth plan with a 9.5 percent cut in defense spending and a 10 percent reduction in federal government personnel. This would be accomplished not by firing anyone, but by limiting hiring to three for every five federal employees who quit or retire.

This brings me to another important step toward our nation's competitiveness: reorganization of the federal government to make it more efficient and cost effective. America simply cannot afford "big government" any longer. We must eliminate waste, streamline and minimize government regulation as much as possible without threatening the health and safety of American workers.

Perhaps nothing is more important for competitiveness than an effective U.S. trade policy. We must make it clear that the United States will not tolerate unfair trade and work to open up markets that remain closed to U.S. products and services.

To put trade at the top of the American agenda, I propose a unified U.S. Department of Trade, combining trade policy functions that are currently spread out between the Commerce Department, the U.S. Trade Representative's Office, the State Department and the Agriculture Department. With one single Department of Trade, our foreign competitors would get the message that we are serious about selling American goods.

America cannot compete with foreign trading partners unless our work force is as well educated as theirs. We must maintain and expand America's commitment to excellence in education. We must be open to new approaches and reform. Formulas that worked 20 years ago may not work today. We should offer tax incentives to promote saving for education, restore the integrity of the student loan program, encourage all students to become proficient in a second language and create a job bank for teachers.

Another link in the competitiveness chain is protecting the health of our workers. All Americans should have access to sufficient health care. Great care must be taken in studying the proposals put forth in Congress. Comprehensive health care coverage will be exorbitantly expensive, and the danger is that the taxpayer will ultimately be expected to shoulder that burden. Acting in haste will only increase that danger. We must be certain not to allow the needs of the American people for adequate health care to be turned into a political football.

To be competitive, American workers must have the best education and training available and the most modern equipment with which to work. They should be encouraged to save and invest their earnings. In turn, the federal government should provide an environment of growth for American business (especially small companies) and not burden them with unnecessary regulation.

Government, with the support of the private sector, must move forward to meet the nation's challenges in the areas of employment, the environment, health, public safety, education and others. We must show a willingness to work together to reach a realistic, balanced solution and not remain entrenched in extreme, partisan positions that serve no one's purpose.

Recognizing and acting on these individual priorities will bring us to the threshold of a truly competitive America and a nation that can meet the needs of its people.

Sen. Biden: Two-tiered attack

incentives for investment, savings and research and to divide the tax burden fairly among corporate, wealthy and middle-income taxpayers;

■ Stop the practice of draining the Social Security trust fund to pay for current expenditures.

■ Evaluate the effect of domestic spending cuts already in place and the possibility of trimming costs in other areas.

1991 was a record year for murders, with rape and other violent crimes also at an all-time high. Hard-core drug addiction and its related violence are not relenting. And violence affects every community and every American.

I will again push for enactment of my comprehensive anti-crime bill, which the House endorsed last year but which was blocked in the Senate by the Republicans and the powerful gun lobby.

Congress should begin work on a major anti-drug bill in 1992 and I will be releasing a national drug strategy to serve as the basis for comprehensive legislation. My bill will target hard-core addicts, who account for the most demand for cocaine and heroin. These addicts are responsible for much of the nation's crime and violence. They pack jails and hospitals, draining our society's resources.

Americans spend $2 billion every day on health care, with costs consuming 13 percent (and climbing) of our gross national product. Nearly 36 million Americans cannot afford health insurance.

The immediate crisis and the perilous trend of still rising costs demand an immediate and, frankly, courageous response. Reform and sacrifice will affect everyone, from doctors and hospitals to insurance companies and consumers. Quality health care must be made available to the millions who now cannot afford it. Congress cannot shy away from stepping on toes to get there.

With regards to the breakup of the Soviet Union, effective American leadership does not mean untold billions in loans and grants; success does require, however, that the administration show the vision and commitment to deploy diplomats and technical experts in key cities among the newly independent republics.

Our objectives must include:

■ Coordinated support for the employment of upper echelon Soviet scientists.

■ Secure storage and internationally supervised dismantlement of major portions of the Soviet nuclear arsenal.

■ Adequate housing for major military units now driven by bitterness and discontent.

■ Stabilization support for the early convertibility of the ruble.

■ A program of incentives to spur Western private investment.

One of the greatest threats to the environment is the false promise of solving economic problems by weakening environmental protection. Preventing pollution can cut production costs and reduce liabilities. Ignoring or postponing environmental protection only makes things worse.

Rep. Carper: Foundations

Unfortunately, too many young people, both graduating from and dropping out of our schools, do not possess the skills necessary to compete in the modern world. They came into the school system unprepared to learn. Some were products of dysfunctional families where education was not valued, abuse or neglect were commonplace and discipline and values were not instilled.

It should be a national priority that all children reaching first grade are ready to learn.

Head Start must be available to all 3- and 4-year-olds from disadvantaged families. Educational support programs must be available in the schools to work with students and their parents to follow through on Head Start. Discipline must be restored to ensure an environment conducive to education in the classroom.

The cost of health care in America is out of control, and millions of our citizens still do not qualify for coverage under any plan. There are any number of competing approaches on how to restructure our nation's health care system. The 1992 elections provide us with an excellent forum for debate.

There are at least five areas to be addressed if we are to rein health care costs and health care availability:

Administrative costs, the defensive medicine, the promotion of healthier lifestyle, proliferation of costly high equipment and the need for ways to make competition to the benefit of consumers.

Much of our success in education will depend on families as the basic building block of our society. With teen pregnancy at control and over 40 percent single-parent families living in poverty, we are witnessing growth of a huge economic class largely without hope.

The challenge to government and all of us — is to find ways to keep families — especially at the lower end of the economic scale — together, to provide tools for a higher standard of living and a better life, and to give young people a chance to ex

The world is a safer place to the end of the Cold War, the fall of communism. As we the only remaining superpower our role in settling international disputes and fostering cooperation takes on new importance.

But here at home there is work to be done. Success will require leadership on many fronts and a common will to recommit our priorities and stick to them.
