FROM: JEFF ROGOFF

SUBJECT: Impromptu stops for Fort Lauderdale, Florida

- 1- PUBLIX SUPERMARKET - This is a popular supermarket in the South Florida Area. It is located along the route and should have a decent crowd. There is a Bakery inside therefore it would be convenient to purchase a cookie or a cup of coffee.
- 2- SUBS MIAMI - This is a sub shop located along the route. It is a new, popular franchise with many locations in South Florida. The restaurant serves sandwiches, salads and frozen yogurt. This would make a good stop, however I am concerned at 2:15 there will be a limited number of people eating there.

These were the only viable options given the time of day and the areas we were visiting. The route takes us through a predominantly commercial area. I looked for a school or sporting activity but was unsuccessful.

Dear President Bush,

I was delighted to hear of how strongly you felt about the American family. The tremendous weight you gave in your State of the Union Address last night to the issue of strengthening families reflects a great wisdom.

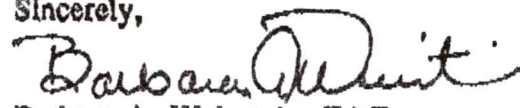

For years we at Child Care Connection have realized how critical family support is and have done all we can to implement family support programs in our child care centers. In 1988 we were fortunate to be part of a national dissemination project and had our staff trained in an innovative, highly adaptive model called Parent Services Project (PSP), which was first developed in California. Enclosed is a brochure which more fully describes PSP.

We replicated the model in Broward County and through a creative public - private partnership we were able to lead its dissemination throughout Florida. In a little over three years the project has been replicated in more than 100 child care centers and agencies, and has profoundly affected the lives of thousands of families.

While the program is extremely cost effective, it does have costs associated with it. Oftentimes these minimal expenses are more than local communities, particularly in times of economic hardship, can absorb. Therefore, we were tremendously excited with the possibilities of your family initiative and look forward to your leadership in finding monies in the budget to support worthwhile and necessary programs like PSP.

I would be delighted to talk with you about our program and the future of the American family.

Sincerely,

Barbara A. Weinstein, Ed.D.

Child Care Connection (CCC) is a comprehensive, multifaceted, nonprofit social service agency serving more than 10,000 Broward County children and their families a year. Most of these young boys and girls are economically disadvantaged, at-risk, HIV positive, drug affected, or otherwise vulnerable to the effects of poverty. The Child Care Connection's mission is to empower parents and strengthen the family unit; support child's development to promote opportunity for fair start in life; develop, promote and provide quality family support programs and services; serve as a local, regional and national leader for family and child care issues.

Child care and family support become critical components in decreasing a child's vulnerability. These programs help parents escape from the cycle of poverty and help their children get a fair start in life. The proven success of quality early childhood education programs clearly demonstrate the great significance early education programs can have on the lives of children. Quality programs can and do affect a child's intellectual, emotional, and social growth and are a major factor in a child's later success in school.

CCC was founded in 1971 to provide affordable, quality child care for low income families. At that time, CCC managed four day care centers. In the last two decades the scope of CCC's mission and the range of services it provides has increased dramatically. Currently CCC directly administers 13 day care centers and renders administrative, supervisory and technical assistance to over 160 centers and family day care providers. To promote quality programs for children, CCC serves as an ongoing trainer for more than 1,500 day care teachers and providers; conducts family education programs; and runs an extensive lending library of books, audiovisual materials, and toys which assist professionals in the field and parents at home.

Significantly, CCC is an important county and state leader in the family support movement. In Broward County it has implemented a highly effective family support program, Parent Services Project (PSP) serving more than one thousand families in eleven child care centers in the county. CCC was the originator of a major Florida training initiative to replicate PSP in 24 communities throughout the state. Under CCC's leadership PSP is now part of more than 100 centers statewide, with the potential of serving 25,000 families in five years.

Additionally, CCC is the provider of child care resource and referral information for the entire county. This important service, available free of charge to the general public, and under contract with many corporations responsive to the needs of their employees, gives parents vital information about child care options. It also teaches parents how to identify and choose quality child care for their children so they can make responsible choices for their children.

CCC, as the central child care agency in Broward, is the county's sole administrator of subsidized child care funds. This critical support to families allows parents to work or return to school, while providing a safe, nurturing environment for their children. Without that support, these economically disadvantaged families would be trapped in economic dependency on welfare, food stamps, or other expensive governmental interventions. Changes in federal regulations, giving parents the choice of child care options, provide a great opportunity for CCC to educate parents in choosing quality child care. Parental choice will help empower parents; give them greater responsibility in the care of their children; and provide greater child care options, including the use of the family's relatives, church centers, and home-based programs. Additionally, CCC places protective service children in child care facilities. These innocent victims of abuse or neglect need the safety and support quality child care provides.

CCC also provides social services to child care centers and assists in referrals and follow-ups. Additionally, it operates an innovative, multidimensional therapeutic treatment and prevention day care program, which provides intervention for abused, neglected, and cocaine-affected children and their parents.

These important programs and projects are funded through state and local contracts, corporate agreements, United Way, corporate and foundation grants and donations, fundraisers, and special events. Additionally, community support of programs has been far reaching.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

FROM: ZELDA J. NOVAK Zn
SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE VICE PRESIDENT FOR POLITICAL AFFAIRS

BARBARA J. SCHLEIBAUM
SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE VICE PRESIDENT FOR POLITICAL AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: TERM LIMITATIONS ROUNDTABLE/PHOTO OPPORTUNITY

Date of Event: Wednesday, June 3, 1992

Location: Fort Lauderdale -- Hollywood International Airport
Fort Lauderdale, Florida

Time: 1:40 p.m.

I. Purpose

To participate in a photo opportunity and roundtable (15 attendees) with leaders and major donors active in Citizens for Limited Political Terms.

II. Background

You participated in a roundtable with Phil Handy and business leaders involved with Citizens for Limited Political Terms in Orlando on August 13, 1991. Most recently, you attended a reception with the group in Orlando on December 6, 1991.

Orlando businessman Phil Handy is the founder and chairman of Citizens for Limited Political Terms, a non-partisan, Florida term limitation movement. He will introduce you.

Handy is the Chairman and President of Winter Park Capital Company, a private investment firm in Winter Park, Florida, which he founded in 1980. Handy served as State Finance Chairman for the successful Bob Martinez campaign for Governor of Florida in 1986 and subsequently served on the Governor-elect's four member transition team from November 1986 to January 1987. He is rumored to be interested in running for office in Florida at some point.

Eight is Enough:

Handy founded Citizens for Limited Political Terms -- also known as "Eight is Enough" -- with the goal of gathering enough signatures to place a term limit amendment to the State Constitution on Florida's 1992 ballot. The group's amendment would:

- Limit officeholders to eight consecutive years in the same office.
- Limit terms of Florida House of Representatives, Senate, Cabinet, Lieutenant Governor and U.S. House of Representatives to eight years. Limit U.S. Senate to two six-year terms. Florida already limits the Governor to two four year terms.

Petition Requirements:

To place the amendment on the November 1992 ballot, organizers need the signatures of 364,000 registered voters by August 1, 1992. The petition must include 8% of the number who voted in each congressional district.

To date, organizers have collected over 484,000 signatures. They hope to collect 500,000 gross signatures in order to have the required number of valid signatures.

The group collected over 141,000 signatures on Super Tuesday.

Anti-Incumbent Sentiment in Florida:

Jacksonville, Florida began the term limits movement in the state by passing a municipal term limit initiative with 82% of the vote in June of 1991. Citizens for Limited Political Terms claims that the vote for the measure was split about evenly between Democrats and Republicans.

Organizers are optimistic, and say that they have two-thirds to three-fourths of the electorate's support. Congress' check-kiting scandal and last year's indictments of twenty-four Florida legislators for taking undisclosed lobbyist-paid vacations will surely help the term limits movement.

Endorsements:

NFIB of Florida has reportedly endorsed the term limit amendment as has the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce.

They are supported by the Republican Party of Florida; however, the state Party has not formally endorsed the initiative. Phil Handy reportedly convinced the State GOP not to endorse the initiative, in order for the group to maintain its bipartisan stance.

Congressman Bill McCollum (R-5) chairs the Congressional Organization to Limit Terms (COLT) which supports a 12-year limit for Congress. He previously indicated that he did not support the eight-year limit of the initiative, but has now signed the petition and is actively campaigning for the group. McCollum has suffered some embarrassment for his support of term limits, as he is currently running for his seventh term, putting him over the term limit he has endorsed. Congressmen Craig James (R-4) became the first congressman to sign the petition on December 4, 1991. Congressman Cliff Stearns (R-6) is reportedly supportive of the initiative, but has not signed on as of yet. The group is taking the advice of Terry Considine of Coloradans Back In Charge, in not boxing in politicians by asking them to endorse term limits -- they will eventually come on board as the movement grows in popularity.

A group of Tallahassee lobbyists have formed a political action committee called Restore Our American Rights (ROAR), in order to oppose limiting the terms of elected officials.

Fundraising:

Citizens for Limited Political Terms has raised over $500,000. Handy has loaned the organization approximately $104,000. Organizers hope to raise another $1.1 million.

Organizers fear that while their petition drive has been very successful, and while they are doing well in the polls, the opposition is capable of raising money to wage an aggressive "deceptive" advertising campaign as was done in Washington State. They would like the Vice President to stress to these leaders, the importance of raising the appropriate funds to combat such an advertising campaign in the fall.

Florida Initiative Process:

Very few measures make it to the ballot in Florida. In the past ten years the only initiatives passed established the state lottery and the Florida sunshine law for ethics in government. A casino initiative failed as well as a cap on non-economic jury awards.

Term Limits Nationwide:

In 1990, voters in Oklahoma, California and Colorado overwhelmingly passed legislation to limit the terms of their state legislators. Colorado limited their federal delegation as well. Current movements to limit terms around the country include:

-- 1992 General Election: Florida
 Oregon
 Michigan
 Texas (Non-Initiative State)

Other states that are in the process of filing include Arizona, Oklahoma (Federal), California (Federal), Wyoming, Idaho, North Dakota, Montana, Maine, Massachusetts, Ohio, and Arkansas.

According to John Sowinski of Citizens for Limited Political Terms, the loss in Washington State does not hurt Florida's term limits movement, as Floridians recognize that Washington State's retroactive measure was its fatal flaw.

NOTE: This event will take place in Rep. Clay Shaw's (R-15) congressional district. The Mayor of Fort Lauderdale is Jim Naugle (non-partisan).

III. Participants

The Vice President
Phil Handy, Chairman, Eight is Enough

Notes and photos will be sent to participants.

Quayle calls single moms 'true heroes'

But the vice president says, "The preferable option is marriage; the preferable option is mother and father."

By Ron Ishoy
Miami Herald

OAKLAND PARK — Six women told Vice President Dan Quayle on Wednesday about the often difficult task of being a single mother.

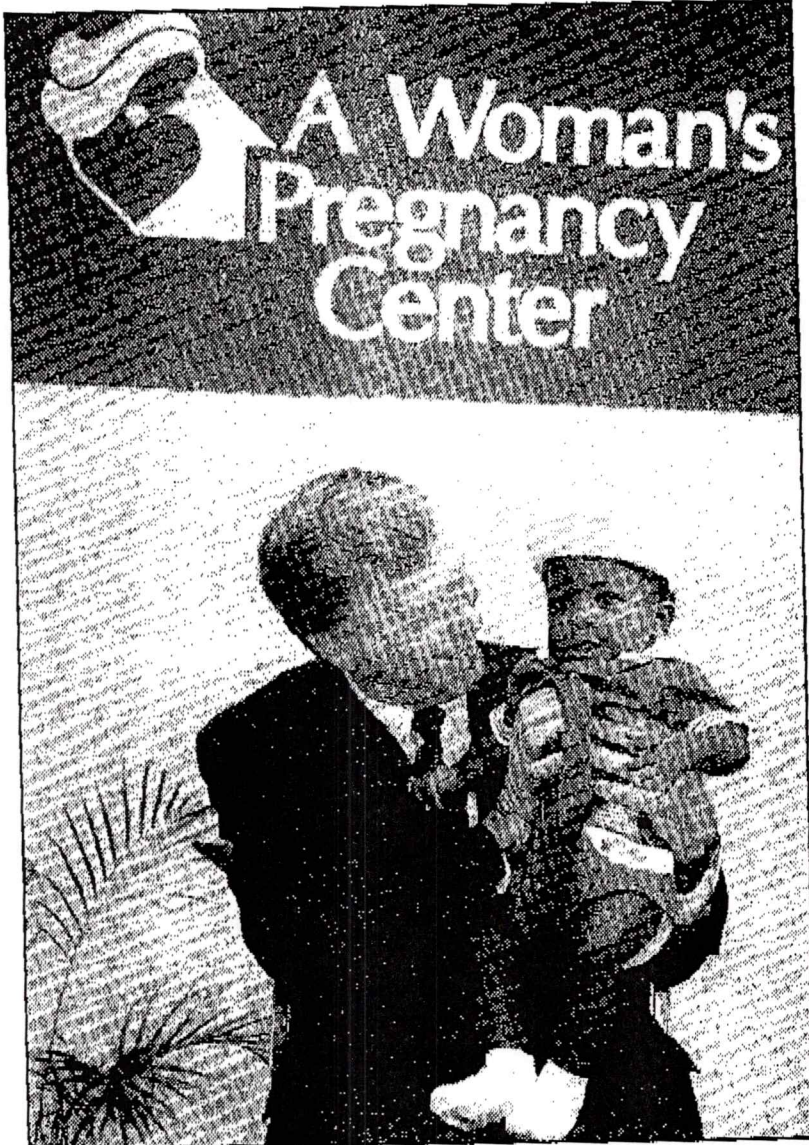

Afterward, Quayle called single mothers "true heroes" and said he understood that in some situations, being a single parent is preferable to being married.

But the vice president, relishing the attention he has gotten for saying the television program "Murphy Brown" had falsely glorified single motherhood, said he would not back off.

"I'm going to continue to emphasize the importance of the family," Quayle said after meeting the six single mothers from South Florida at an Oakland Park anti-abortion counseling center. "The preferable option is marriage; the preferable option is mother and father. Unfortunately, from time to time, that's not an option."

A Woman's Pregnancy Center offers free pregnancy testing and provides counseling with a goal of preventing abortions. At the center, Quayle said he had a "wonderful, open conversation" with six women who had decided not to have abortions.

Not once during the 45-minute discussion, said center director Margy Richardson, did "Murphy Brown" come up.

Lynne Sladky/Associated Press

Vice President Quayle holds Joe Gregory at a clinic in Fort Lauderdale. Joe's mother is single.

"These were real stories," Richardson said. "They (the women) responded to him, and he responded to them."

One woman, who was pregnant at 15, told Quayle she knew the father would not make a good parent or husband. Persuaded to keep the baby by the pregnancy center, she obtained her high-school diploma and has enrolled in college to be a nurse.

Quayle went to the center at the encouragement of the Christian Action Council, an evangelical, anti-abortion organization in Washington.

Council President Tom Glessner said he met with Quayle the day after the "Murphy Brown" controversy started. "We praised him for that statement and encouraged him to speak out on family values," Glessner said.

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON

June 3, 1992

BRIEFING MEMORANDUM FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT

FROM: DAVE JUDAY [Signature]
SUBJECT: BACKGROUND INFORMATION ON FLORIDA

o Florida's unemployment rate was 8.6 percent in March of this year, which is an increase of 1.2 percent from March of 1991. The March unemployment rate for the metro Fort Lauderdale area was 8.2 percent. The national unemployment rate o In his State of the State address, Governor Chiles called for the "empowerment of workers" and a decentralization of governmental decision making back into communities -- he also called for the largest tax increase in the state's history. Since the legislature cut the Governor's budget and did not include the $1.35 billion tax increase he requested, Chiles vetoed the budget that the House and Senate had agreed upon. To resolve the issue, the legislature will reconvened a special session.

o On March 24th, Governor Chiles signed into law the Health Care Access Act. The plan promises a process for assuring that all Floridians have access to an affordable basic health care package by December 31, 1994. The program also includes strategies for promoting voluntary health insurance coverage, insurance reforms, creating a Healthy Communities and Healthy People program, and establishing the Florida Health Services Corporation.

FEDERAL ISSUES

o On December 16, 1991, Secretary Watkins announced a plan to consolidate DOE's Pinellas plant, operated by General Electric to manufacture non-nuclear components for nuclear weapons, with two other similar plants into one site in Kansas City. The plan will save the taxpayers approximately $100 million a year. Secretary Watkins also ordered an Environmental Assessment (EA) to be conducted in conjunction with the proposal. Barring unforeseen findings of the EA, the Pinellas plant is slated to be phased out of non-nuke production operations by the end of FY 1995.

o In 1988, the U.S. Department of Justice initiated litigation against the State of Florida for failure to enforce state water pollution laws. The Department successfully argued that the Everglades National Park and Loxahatchess National Wildlife Refuge ecosystems were being irreparably damaged by high concentrations of phosphorous and nitrates in the surface water. A settlement agreement was reached last year between the federal government, the State of Florida, and the South Florida Management Water Board. The plan adopted, the Everglades SWIM program, calls for flooding 58 square miles of productive farmland in an effort to create huge filtering ponds, which would alleviate the phosphorous levels before the water enters the Everglades. Additionally, the agreement requires farmers to reduce phosphorous delivery from their fields by 25 percent. The plan is estimated to cost between $400-600 million. Agricultural interests, particularly the sugar industry, are livid over the plan. They feel that they are being unfairly saddled with the lion's share of the financial costs. The industry estimates that as many as 15,000 jobs will be eliminated and that two mills will be closed.

o The sizeable Florida produce industry is concerned about the potential of restricting the use of methyl bromide under the Clean Air Act. The Natural Resources Defense Council petitioned EPA to recategorize methyl bromide as a stronger pollutant (move from a class III to a class I ozone depleter). EPA will likely be issuing a rule for public comment this summer about the use of methyl bromide. There is considerable controversy about the science used to determine whether methyl bromide is an ozone depleter. The primary produce application is as a post harvest fumigant -- used on more than 80 commodities. Most of our trade with Japan requires post harvest fumigation, and methyl bromide is most often used. Japan is the single largest ag export market totaling nearly $8 billion in 1991.

o To date, the Department of Transportation has allocated $338 million to Florida; the state's 1992 apportionment is estimated at about $680.3 million compared to $497.8 million in 1991. The new highway bill designates over $4.5 billion for Florida from FY 1992-97. Florida is a "donor" state, having a return rate of about 80 percent on its contributions to the Highway Trust Fund.

o Florida has had the highest food stamp caseload growth in the Southeast during the past year. According to the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service this can be attributed to the loss of several major employers (including Eastern and Pan Am airlines) and from an influx of Caribbean refugees.

o The President directed the Treasury and Transportation Secretaries to deny the use of American ports to ships that violate the trade embargo against Haiti. This is in support of the resolution adopted by the OAS on May 17. The U.S. is providing substantial aid to the people of Haiti: so far $47 million, food for 600,000 people and health care for 2 million.

o The President also recently directed the Coast Guard (by Executive Order) to return directly to Haiti those Haitians picked up at sea. Since October 29, 1991, the Coast Guard has rescued nearly 37,000 Haitians from 487 boats and vessels. The first rescue of June was made on the morning of June 1 by the cutter Thetis where 97 people were rescued.

TOPICAL

o On June 12, the President will travel to Rio de Janeiro to participate in the United Nations' Conference on Environmental Development (UNCED pronounced: "unsaid") next week. BUSH RECORD: 1) The $1.4 billion being spent by the U.S. in FY 93 for global climate change research is more than the rest of the world combined. 2) The President announced this week "Forests for the Future" which will double international assistance for forests to $2.7 billion from $1.35 billion. 3) The U.S. spends more than any other nation on pollution control and protecting the environment -- $100 billion per year

REFORM AGENDA STATE FACTS

DRUGS/CRIME: Nearby Miami is one of the nation's four metropolitan High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas (HIDTA) because of Florida's significance as a smuggling corridor for Central and South American drugs. (In FY 1992, Miami received $11.9 million in HIDTA funding, which was the largest award to any city in the program.) Federal anti-drug assistance to Florida has increased to approximately $63 million in FY 1992, up from $28.6 million in 1989.

o Florida has the second highest violent crime rate in the nation -- second only to the District of Columbia. Florida has the second highest property crime rate in the nation as well. Florida has the twelfth highest murder rate in the nation.

WETLANDS: Nearly 30 percent of Florida is considered to be wetlands. This total, 11 million acres, is over 20 percent of all estuarine wetlands in the United States. Florida's population increased 32.7 percent during the 1980's and, as a result, there has been increasing pressure on the wetlands in terms of land and water use. A U.S. Geological Survey study is underway to determine the rate of erosion in the Florida wetlands.

EDUCATION: Governor Chiles has verbally committed to the America 2000 effort but political pressure from the state Democratic party has prevented a formal announcement. However, thirteen communities in the state have America 2000 programs underway. (Miami 2000 will officially kick-off on May 29th, with Deputy Secretary Kearns attending the event.)

o In nearby Dade County, the school system is nationally recognized as a leader in education reform and a pioneer of the concept of school-based management. It has a magnet program which offers 50 schools of choice and has opened one of the 535+ "model schools" envisioned in the America 2000 strategy (the name of the school is South Pointe Elementary and it is located in South Miami Beach).

FLORIDA EXPORTS: Florida exports to more than 177 foreign markets. Canada is Florida's largest customer -- exports there have doubled to 1.5 billion since 1987. Mexico is Florida's eighth largest trading partner -- exports there have more than doubled to $494 million since 1987. Exports employ 213,000 Floridians, including about 12,500 workers in Miami-Fort Lauderdale metro area.

JTPA: Florida has 24 SDA's and will receive $138,693,642 this year. Last year 99,682 participants were served. The State Job Training Coordinating Council Chairman is Nathan Wilson (of Jacksonville). The Broward County (includes Ft. Lauderdale) PIC Chair is Mason Jackson.

CJR: The Florida Medical Association is trying to work for the total elimination of joint and several liability; joint and several was severely limited in 1986, including abolishing joint and several for non-economic damages. This year's session of the legislature was dominated by budget debate.

STATISTICS: Index of leading indicators increased .4% in April; private forecasters had projected .3% growth (announced June 2)

Sales of new single family homes rose 1.3 percent in April, after falling 16% in March and 7% in February (private forecasters had expected sales to increase 7%). Sales rose in the West, were unchanged in the Northeast, and fell in the South and Midwest.

TO COME: Manufacturers' inventories, shipments, and orders for April will be released at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday June 3rd while you are in Florida. (Advance data show a 1.4% increase).

NOTE: You have been to Florida 13 times since taking office; you were in Ft. Lauderdale on October 4, 1990 for political events.

Is there anything more helpless than a newborn baby? Yes! An unborn baby! Invisible to the outside world, this little individual is completely dependent upon one person: its mother. In normal circumstances the birth of another completely unique person, made in the image of God, is a time of rejoicing, of celebrating. But we don't live in a normal world.

Among other things, today's hectic, high-tech world causes its share of fractured relationships and lonely, needy people. Women today have pregnancies that are untimely, unwanted or difficult. Where can they go for understanding, guidance and practical assistance?

A Woman's Pregnancy Center is a non-profit 501(c)3 organization in accordance with the Internal Revenue Code. We are affiliated with the Christian Action Council, a nationwide organization dedicated to solving the abortion problem through the application of Biblical truths. The CAC has been in existence since 1975 and has established over 400 crisis pregnancy centers across the United States.

Margy Richardson
Exec. Director

Our chief goal is to help women with crisis pregnancies. The very best we can offer them is the Gospel of Jesus Christ, as well as ourselves and our help. Our staff includes a full-time director and a dedicated staff of trained volunteers. A Board of Directors oversees the policies and programs of the Center. It is our prayer that these women will "choose life" (Deuteronomy 30:19) for themselves and their babies in obedience to God's command.

SUPPLEMENTAL "FACTIODS" FOR THE AWPC VISIT

Fetal Tissue Bank

The President directed the Secretary of HHS (through its component the NIH) to establish a fetal tissue bank as a source for research and experimentation on Parkinson's disease, diabetes, and other disorders. The Secretary has assured that the bank will be available to the research community. The bank will provide tissue from miscarriages.

About 60 fetal tissue transplants have occurred in the US in the past 30 years -- there has been a moratorium on federal support for such research; private research, however, has not been affected. (In FY 93, NIH will spend $600 million on research on Parkinson's, diabetes, and Alzheimer's)

Doc Bowen, in a letter, has questioned the viability of the fetal tissue bank. The NIH estimates that up to 1,500 to 2,000 miscarriages and unviable pregnancies per year will provide tissue suitable for research.

Pennsylvania law

The Justice Department has argued that Pennsylvania's law should be upheld. The provisions of the law include: parental or judicial consent for a minor's abortion, 24 hour waiting period to ensure informed consent, require married women to notify husbands.

Children's programs

The Bush Administration has increased funding for children's programs 66 percent since 1989 (from $60 billion to $100 billion)

Included in that increase:

- * Child immunizations
- * Healthy Start -- target 15 areas with high infant mortality rates; Congress did not fully fund the initiative in FY 92
- * WIC -- the President's FY 93 budget proposes the largest ever one-year increase ($240 m increase to $2.84 b total)
- * Head Start -- the President's FY 93 budget proposes the largest ever one-year increase ($600 m for $2.8 b total)

PREPARED ADDRESS BY THE VICE PRESIDENT
34th GRADUATION CEREMONY
UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ACADEMY

A career awaits you in a world far different from the one we faced when you took your oath four years ago. Today, for the first time in almost half a century, a generation of Americans is growing up without the Cold War. Our strategic bombers stand down. Yet when the threat was real, the Air Force helped keep it at bay. Think of your predecessors who stood on alert over the last three decades -- those who were our key to deterrence for three hundred thousand unbroken hours. And think of all of those who devoted their careers -- or even gave their lives -- in the cause of defending freedom and preserving the peace.

What did their efforts produce? Their efforts produced victory, pure and simple. Their efforts produced triumph -- the triumph of freedom over tyranny. We prevailed because of the strength and character of our leaders and our military. And though some don't like to hear this, I'm going to say it anyway: America won the Cold War.

The first great challenge of the post-Cold War world came soon afterward in a faraway place called Kuwait. Americans will not forget the legendary successes in the Persian Gulf War, nor will we forget the experience of watching air power come of age. First we witnessed an unprecedented airlift of personnel and equipment; then we marvelled as the number of attack sorties passed 40,000 -- a succession of air strikes that removed the enemy's ability to terrorize its neighbors.

But look at the bigger picture, and consider the overall record of American military flight: In nearly forty years -- nearly half the entire history of airpower -- not one single American soldier has been killed by an enemy aircraft. And no person now serving in our ground forces has ever come under attack by an enemy plane. That is what I call air supremacy. My friends, no force on earth can match the United States Air Force.

Desert Storm taught us that the Air Force's mission is anything but over. We do not know where the next Kuwait will be. We do not know who will be the next Saddam Hussein. But wherever it is and whoever it may be, the United States of America and our Air Force will be prepared.

The world depends on us. The cause of freedom depends on us. That is why we must maintain our edge in technology, and that is why we cannot and will not allow America's defenses to be weakened. For the Air Force, that will mean core capabilities that depend on modern jet fighters, bombers and airlifters; state-of-the-art precision munitions; and the continuing evolution of keys to victory like stealth aircraft. It will also mean full deployment of the ultimate peacekeeper, the Strategic Defense Initiative -- which will be centered right here in Colorado Springs.

But for all our superior technology and training, the security of our future will rest, in the end, on the character of our people -- on the values that make us who we are. As junior officers in the Air Force, you will be entrusted with great responsibility very early in your careers. And you will be ready to assume it because this Academy has never shirked its duty to teach what is best in the American character: Values like integrity, loyalty, hard work and personal responsibility.

Now, talking about such things as right and wrong, personal responsibility, integrity, work, and the family is to invite loud protest from within the cultural elite. When you say our country is threatened by a poverty of values, some will simply deny it. When you say that certain things are right and certain things are wrong, some will reply that it's all relative. And when you call for a national conversation on values, some will simply denounce you for raising the subject and insist that you drop it.

But if we truly care about our children's future, we must talk about these things. If we want to breathe new life into America's great cities, we must revive the values that build success: Faith, work, education, and families with devoted mothers and devoted fathers.

We as a nation should continue to talk about the family -- about what strengthens it and what weakens it; about what is good for children, and what endangers their future. The truth is that while some "lifestyle choices" are easy to glamorize, they are exceedingly hard to defend. Children born out of wedlock are more likely to live in poverty, more likely to have trouble in school, and more prone to delinquency than those who are raised by two parents. These are facts, not opinions. And our society cannot afford to close our eyes to simple realities.

Every child is brought into this world by two individuals -- parents with a duty to provide love and security. But too often we see this shared responsibility neglected, or even abandoned, by fathers.

Imagine the life of a single mother. Every day is a struggle. More than that, it is typically a struggle caused not by the mother -- who has been left with the difficult task of raising a child -- but by the father who walked away from his responsibility.

Let me address, for just a moment, the men of this class. Most of you here will become fathers. From experience I can tell you -- and so can the proud dads I see here this morning -- that nothing in life will bring you more joy or satisfaction than fatherhood. And just as you fulfill your duties as officers in the Armed Forces, never, never forget the obligation that comes first: To be the loyal and loving father that your children deserve.

It is true that the solutions to most of our problems will be found in the individual homes, churches and community organizations around our country; it is also true that government has a role to play, by reforming a system that works against sound values. Simply stated, government should be on the side of those who live by the rules -- abiding by the law, staying in school, taking care of their families, and working.

But another part of the solution, and a critical one, is for those in positions of influence to speak forthrightly and without apology about what is right and what is wrong. That goes for national leaders, it goes for the news media, and it goes for Hollywood.

Two centuries ago, the English philosopher Samuel Johnson said that a military officer is "much more respected than any other man who has so little money." Yes, the officers and all others in the Armed Services are held in high esteem and appreciated around this country. But not always, and not everywhere. And when the idea of traditional values is jeered at, I can't help but notice that many of the naysayers are the same ones who used to mock and scorn our military.

These critics have derided your patriotism and your pride. They have called the military "out of touch," "insensitive," "reactionary," or worse. And in spite of your high standards of loyalty, merit, integrity and accountability, there are those who refuse to recognize the contributions of our military to American society.

Well, let's take a look at those contributions -- in the area of racial justice, for example. What organization has a better record on racial issues than our military? It was one of the first American institutions to be fully desegregated. Since then, thousands of minority men and women have served with distinction and moved up the ranks -- and thousands more are doing so as we speak. To get ahead in our military you didn't need a quota; you did it the old fashioned way -- you earned it.

Our goal has been equality of opportunity, and the results have been splendid. Today we have the most talented and gifted military personnel ever, led by an extraordinary son of immigrants -- the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Colin Powell. We have every right to be proud of how far we have come -- and I think the rest of the country could learn a few lessons from the American military about racial justice and equal opportunity.

By the same measure, our military teaches us about values and worthy traditions -- the things that remind us where we came from, what brought us together and what keeps us together. And that, ultimately, is the foundation of our security.

As a senator from Indiana I had the honor of appointing some in this graduating class to the Academy. And that simple word, "appointment," is worth remembering throughout your careers. As Cadets you did not merely apply to come here. You were appointed, called, needed. Some leave college with degrees and no direction -- but not the Cadet. You leave the Academy with a mission to fulfill. Whether in war or in peace, you will be in the forefront of those who defend this great nation and what she stands for. Standing here today, I know America is in good hands.

So, as the last blue light goes on for "True Blue Ninety-Two," I am honored to be here as the representative of a proud and thankful people. On their behalf I salute you, I congratulate you, and I wish you well as you embark on a mission that will occupy the very best years of your lives. God bless you, and may God bless this great country of ours.

A Woman's Pregnancy Center

Purpose Statement

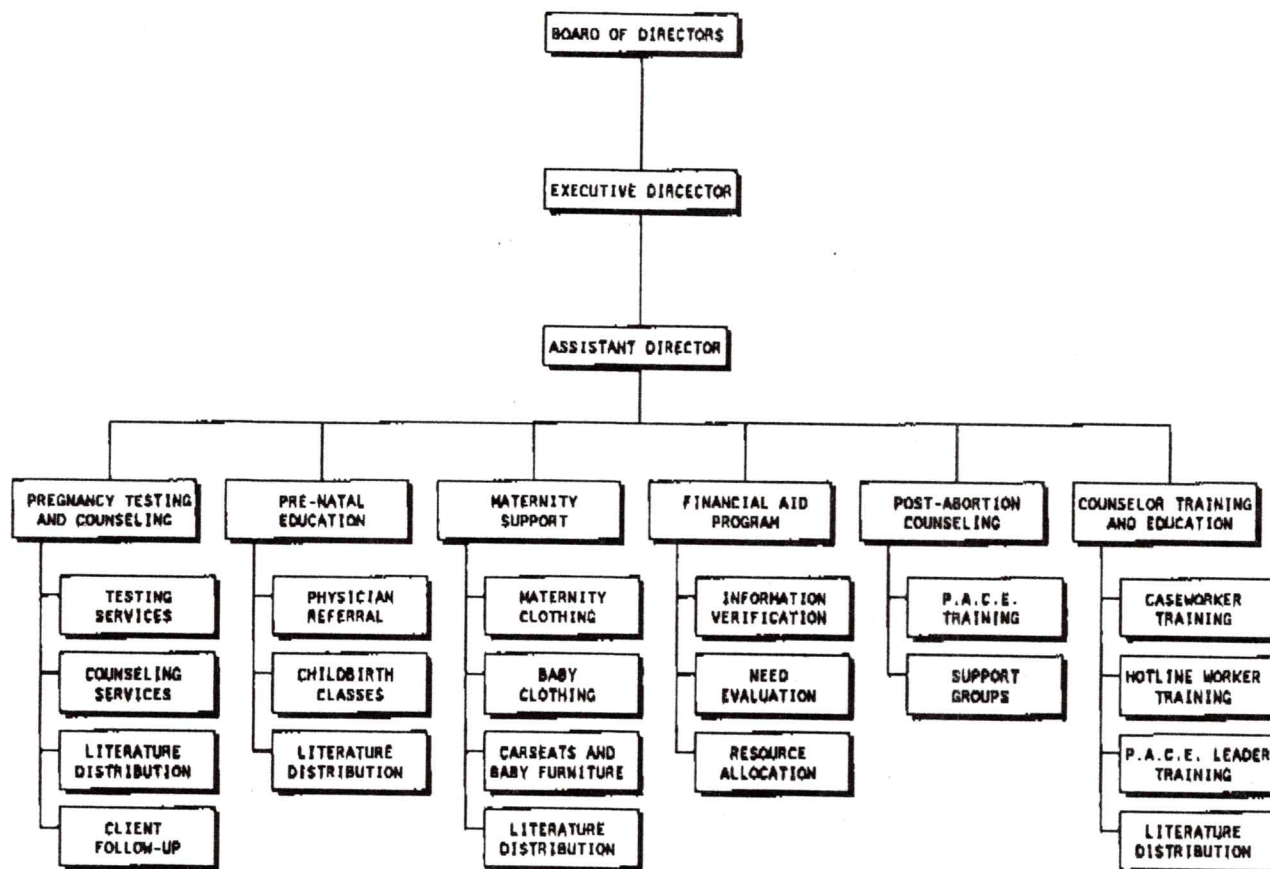

Realizing that, as Christians, we are to be the salt and light of the world (Matthew 5:15-16), the ministry of A Woman's Pregnancy Center purposes to promote the sanctity of human life by providing positive alternatives to abortion through education, counseling, referrals, and by seeking to meet the emotional, material, social, and spiritual needs of the unborn, the mother, and the father where appropriate.

Statement of Principle

1. A Woman's Pregnancy Center (AWPC) is an outreach ministry of Jesus Christ through His church. Therefore, AWPC, embodied in its volunteers, is committed to presenting the Gospel of our Lord to women in crisis pregnancies--both in word and in deed. In keeping with this purpose, those who labor as board members, center directors, and volunteers are expected to know Jesus Christ as their Savior and Lord.
2. AWPC is committed to providing its clients with accurate and complete information about both prenatal development and abortion.
3. AWPC is committed to integrity in dealing with clients: earning their trust, providing promised information and services, and eschewing any form of deception in its advertising or individual conversations.
4. AWPC is committed to assisting women to carry to term by providing emotional support and practical assistance. Through provision of God's people and community resources, women may face the future with hope and plan constructively for themselves and their babies.
5. AWPC does not discriminate in providing services because of the race, creed, color, national origin, age, physical handicap, or marital status of its clients.
6. AWPC does not recommend, provide, or refer for abortion or abortifacients.
7. AWPC offers assistance free of charge at all times.
8. AWPC is committed to creating an awareness within the local community of the needs of pregnant women and an awareness that abortion only compounds human need rather than resolving it.
9. AWPC does not recommend, provide, or refer single women for contraceptives. Married women seeking contraceptive information will be encouraged to seek counsel, along with their husbands, from their pastors and physicians.
10. AWPC recognizes the validity of adoption as one alternative to abortion but is not biased toward adoption when compared to other life-saving alternatives. AWPC is independent of adoption agencies relating to them in the same manner as to other helpful referral sources. AWPC receives no payment of any kind from these agencies, does not enter into contractual relationships with them, and does not share combined office space. AWPC neither initiates nor facilitates independent adoptions, though it may refer for independent adoptions in states where it is legal.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Board of Directors
A Woman's Pregnancy Center, Inc.

We have audited the accompanying balance sheets of A Woman's Pregnancy Center, Inc., a non-profit organization, as of August 31, 1991 and 1990, and the related statements of support, revenue, functional expenses and changes in fund balances, and changes in financial position for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Organization's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of A Woman's Pregnancy Center, Inc., as of August 31, 1991 and 1990, and the results of its operations and the changes in its financial position for the years then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

A WOMAN'S PREGNANCY CENTER, INC.
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
August 31, 1991 and 1990

Note 1 - Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by A Woman's Pregnancy Center, Inc. (the "Center") in the preparation of the accompanying financial statements.

Organizational Purpose - The Center was organized to offer creative alternatives to women considering abortions; to meet the material, social, emotional, and spiritual needs of both the unborn child and the mother; and to disseminate information, offer counsel, and educate the public. The Center is supported by contributions from members of the surrounding community and revenues earned from special events.

Fund Accounting - To ensure observance of limitations and restrictions placed on the use of resources available, the accounts of the Center are maintained in accordance with the principles of fund accounting. This is the procedure by which resources for various purposes are classified for accounting and reporting purposes into funds established according to their nature and purposes. Separate accounts are maintained for each fund, however, in the accompanying financial statements, funds that have similar characteristics have been combined into fund groups.

The assets, liabilities and fund balances of the Center are reported in two self-balancing fund groups as follows:

- Current funds, which include unrestricted and restricted resources, represent the portion of expendable funds that is available for support of the Center's operations.
- Furniture and equipment funds represent resources restricted for furniture and equipment acquisitions and funds expended for those fixed assets.

Expendable Restricted Resources - Operating funds restricted by the donor, grantor or other outside party for a particular purpose are deemed to be earned and reported as revenues in unrestricted funds when the Center has incurred expenditures in compliance with the specific restrictions. Such amounts received but not yet earned are reported as restricted deferred amounts.

Furniture and Equipment - Depreciation of furniture and equipment is provided over the estimated useful lives of the respective assets on a straight-line basis as follows:

Category	Life
Furniture and equipment	7 years

Furniture and equipment is recorded at its actual cost or, if donated, at the estimated fair market value at the time of donation.

Income Taxes - The Center is exempt from federal and state income taxes under Internal Revenue Code Section 501(c)(3).

Donated Materials and Services - Donated equipment and materials are reflected as contributions at their estimated value when received. The value of donated food, clothing and other supplies used in the Center's programs cannot be practically determined and is, therefore, not recorded. No amounts have been reflected in the financial statements for donated services as there is no objective basis available to measure the value of such services. However, a substantial number of volunteers have donated significant amounts of their time in the operations of the Center and in its fund-raising campaigns.

Name Change - Effective June 22, 1990, Organizational Model - Omega, Inc., changed it's corporate name to A Woman's Pregnancy Center, Inc.

Note 2 - Furniture and Equipment

A summary of furniture and equipment follows:

	1991	1990

	6,725	6,425
Less accumulated depreciation	2,852	2,056

SUBJECT: BUSH/QUAYLE '92 DINNER

Date of Event: Wednesday, June 3, 1992

Location: Dr. and Mrs. Zach Zachariah Residence
Fort Lauderdale, Florida

Time: 6:00 p.m.

I. Purpose

To participate in a private dinner with Bush/Quayle '92 donors at the residence of Zach and Rachael Zacharia. Prior to the dinner, you will participate in a photo opportunity and mix and mingle (36 attendees). Organizers hope to raise $100,000 from this event.

II. Background

Dr. Zach Zachariah and his wife Rachael will host this event. Zachariah serves as the Florida Bush/Quayle '92 Finance Chairman, and is the Director of the Cardiovascular Laboratories at Holy Cross Hospital in Fort Lauderdale. He is also a Clinical Professor of Medicine (Cardiology) at the University of Miami School of Medicine. His complete biography is attached.

Most of the attendees are from the medical profession.

FLORIDA BUSH/QUAYLE '92:

Florida's Bush/Quayle '92 Chairman is Jeb Bush. The Finance Chairman is Ft. Lauderdale physician Zach Zachariah. Florida's Presidential primary date was Tuesday, March 10, 1992. Governor Lawton Chiles, Lt. Governor Buddy MacKay and a number of Democrat state legislators endorsed Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton prior to the Florida primary, which Clinton won handily. The results for both primaries were as follows:

Republican Primary:	Bush/Quayle	68%	97 Delegates
	Pat Buchanan	32%	0 Delegates
Democrat Primary:	Bill Clinton	51%	87 Delegates
	Paul Tsongas	34%	58 Delegates
	Jerry Brown	13%	3 Delegates

According to WH political affairs, the general election campaign will be hard fought, as Clinton has a very strong statewide organization, and will have the support of the Democrat establishment.

H. Ross Perot has officially qualified for the November ballot, after submitting 230,000 signatures. Only 60,312 signatures were necessary.

FLORIDA POLITICAL BRIEFING:

In order of importance, the Florida GOP's top goals are: controlling the State Senate, challenging Sen. Bob Graham, and waging competitive races in the four new seats acquired from redistricting.

Senate '92:

Senator Bob Graham (D) will be up for re-election in 1992. an October 16 Mason Dixon Poll showed 51% of voters re-electing Graham, 31% considering another and 17% choosing to replace him. Graham's negative voter sentiment increased from a rating of 12 in May 1991 to 21 in the latest poll.

The RNC reports that while Graham is considered to be a difficult opponent, his connection to the CentTrust bank failure and opposition to the Gulf War could prove to be potent campaign issues.

The Republican primary date is September 1, 1992, and according to the State GOP, it is too soon to predict who will emerge as the Republican senatorial candidate. In February, former U.S. Congressman Bill Grant announced his candidacy.

A former Democrat, Grant switched parties in 1989 and was defeated in 1990. He is now a consultant with the USDA. The October Mason Dixon Poll showed Graham defeating Grant in a head-to-head matchup, 59% to 14%, with 27% undecided. Grant's name recognition was only 31% compared with Graham's 98%.

In 1986, Grant was elected in the 2nd Congressional district as a Democrat in a district in which Republicans did not even bother running a candidate. In his first 25 months in Congress, he compiled a very moderate voting record. Then, in February of 1989, Grant switched parties.

The Almanac of American Politics reports that "electorally, he would certainly have found it easier to win re-election in this Democratic district as a Democrat... perhaps the best explanation is that Grant acted out of conviction, and that his first term voting record was an attempt at accommodation with his then fellow Democrats of which he tired in early 1989." In 1990, Grant lost to Peter Peterson (D) who took 57%.

The other major Republican candidate is Federal Maritime Commission Chairman Rob Quartel of Orlando. According to the State GOP, Quartel is not well known in the state.

Other Republican candidates include Hugh Brotherton, Andy Martin, and Michael Stern.

Special Election in State Senate:

In 1990, the state Party failed in its effort to capture control of the Senate. However, in a special election on July 30, 1991, Republicans won an important Senate seat, bringing them closer to their goal.

Businessman Locke Burt beat former State Senator Ed Dunn (D) by only 227 votes out of 40,000 that were cast. Burt replaces State Senator Tom Brown (D-10) who resigned to take a job with the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

Burt's election brings the balance in the Florida Senate to 18 Republicans and 22 Democrats, the closest margin that Republicans have ever held in Florida. The House is controlled by the Democrats, 74 to 46. The Senate victory was particularly important as two Panhandle Democrats frequently vote with Republicans and the GOP hopes this victory might encourage them to switch parties.

Congressional Retirements:

The following Florida Congressmen have announced their retirements:

Andy Ireland (R-10)
Craig James (R-4)
Bill Lehman (D-17)
Dante Fascell (D-19)
Larry Smith (D-16)

Reapportionment:

Congressional redistricting legislation is passed as a Joint Resolution and then goes to the Governor for signature. The plan then goes to the State Supreme Court. The plans have been passed by both bodies, and are now in conference committee. The Florida State Senate and the Florida State House are under Democratic control.

Florida is projected to gain 4 congressional seats in the process, increasing the number of seats from 19 to 23. The State GOP hopes to pick up 3 to 5 seats. There are now ten Republicans in Florida's delegation.

Floridians for Fair Representation, a committee established by the Florida Republican Party, will litigate to ensure a fair redistricting process. Republican Congressman Andy Ireland (R-10) and Tom Lewis (R-12) have taken the lead in fundraising for FFR.

On Friday, May 29, a three judge Federal panel approved 23 new congressional districts. Three of these new seats have been designed to benefit black and Hispanic candidates. The State House and Senate maps still have not received Department of Justice approval.

Governor Chiles:

Democrat Governor Lawton Chiles has called a special session on June 1 through June 17, to pass his proposed service tax increase. Governor Chiles' proposed budget plan would increase taxes by $1.3 billion in 1992, and by $2.5 billion in the following year. The budget would implement service taxes on dry-cleaning, pest control, cable television, water, lawyers services, etc.

According to the State GOP, most State House and Senate Republicans are opposed to the plan. These are the results of a poll recently commissioned by the State GOP on Governor Chiles:

Strongly Approve	11%
Somewhat Approve	23%
Strongly Disapprove	45%
Don't Know	9%
Refused	1%

Term Limits:

Phil Handy, the Chairman of Citizens for Limited Political Terms -- also known as "Eight is Enough" -- is on the Bush/Quayle '92 Finance Committee. According to the State GOP, the term limits campaign is going well -- organizers are still in the process of gathering signatures to have a term limit amendment to the State Constitution placed on Florida's 1992 ballot. The group's amendment would:

- Limit officeholders to eight consecutive years in the same office.
- Limit terms of Florida House of Representatives, Senate, Cabinet, Lieutenant Governor and U.S. Senate and House of Representatives. Florida already limits the Governor to two four year terms.

To place the amendment on the November 1992 ballot, organizers need the signatures of 364,000 registered voters by August 1, 1992. The petition must include 8% of the number who voted in each congressional district.

To date, organizers have collected over 484,000 signatures. They hope to collect 500,000 gross signatures in order to have the required number of valid signatures.

The group collected over 141,000 signatures on Super Tuesday.

NOTE: This event will take place in Rep. Clay Shaw's (R-15) congressional district. The Mayor of Fort Lauderdale is Jim Naugle (non-partisan).

BIOGRAPHYAlec P. Courtelis

Of Greek heritage, Alec was born in Alexandria, Egypt on October 5, 1927. He graduated from secondary school in 1945 from Averoff Greek Gymnasium. Realizing that opportunities in Egypt were limited, Alec immigrated to the United States in 1948 choosing Miami, Florida as his residence.

Alec attended the University of Miami and received his B. S. Degree in Civil Engineering in 1955. While attending the University, he met his wife, Louise Hufstader, and they married in 1953. Alec and Louise have two children; son, Pan Thomas and daughter, Kiki Lisa.

Upon graduating, Alec joined Jureit & Associates, Inc. a soils engineer and community development consultant firm. As vice president and partner, he was responsible for supervising soils inspection and testing, and surveys and evaluations in conjunction with controlled compacted fill embankments. He also provided consulting services related to all facets of land development.

After five years of invaluable experience from Jureit & Associates, Inc., Alec decided to join the firm of Hotchkiss - Mank Construction Company and served as construction manager in a large single family apartment and commercial project in southwest Miami. In 1961 he founded Courtelis Company. The Courtelis philosophy "...to dedicate yourself to the principles of creativity, hard work, persistence and honesty...success will surely follow" has been the keystone to the company's recognition as a leader in major real estate developments for the past 30 years. These developments range from regional shopping centers to commercial and residential buildings including private residences.

While managing a very successful real estate development company in Miami, Alec has travelled to most parts of the world. In his extensive travels, he has been to Greece, Russia, China, Denmark, United Kingdom, Japan, Egypt, Poland, France, Sweden, Finland, Colombia, Panama, Mexico, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Holland, Spain, Germany and Hong Kong. He is fluent in Greek, French, Arabic and Italian.

Wanting to "give back" to the country that gave him so much, Alec became politically active by supporting republican candidates by raising funds for their campaigns on state and national levels. Currently, Alec is the Finance Chairman for the Republican Party of Florida, former Chairman of Team 100 and National Finance Co-

Chairman for the Bush-Quayle 1992 campaign.

Through Alec's efforts, the "George Bush for President" 1988 campaign in Florida raised $2.6 million -- almost double the budget of $1.4 million set by the Campaign. Through "Victory '88", Alec raised another $2.6 million. As Chairman of "Team 100", Alec was personally responsible for raising $4 million nationally. Thus, the total money raised under Alec's chairmanships was $9.2 million!

Alec dedicates a great deal of his time in the area of education. He serves as Vice Chairman of the Board of Regents for Florida's State University System which has 9 universities and over 160,000 students. He is also Chairman of The Armand Hammer United World College of the American West as well as a member of the International Board of the United World Colleges.

Through the family's love for animals, the Courtelises became avid promoters of Arabian horses. In 1970 they founded Town & Country Farms in Ocala, Florida which has become the largest breeding and training operation of Arabian race horses in the United States.

Here is the small biography on Mahendra P. Gupta:

I graduated from the Indian School of Mining with a degree in Mining Engineering in 1967. After working for a short period, I moved to the United States in 1970 and joined Columbia University and graduated with a Master of Science in Engineering in 1971.

After working for several years in the mining engineering field, I moved to Indianapolis in 1976 and worked for Amax Coal, a division of Amax, Inc. and worked there until 1985.

During this time, I was actively involved in political circles in your home state of Indiana - particularly in the re-election of Senator Lugar. He visited us a number of times, both as Mayor and then as Senator, attending most of our Indian festivals and functions.

In 1986, I moved to Fort Lauderdale and took over a very shaky home health care business and in only 5 years have grown more than 300% every year.

Presently, I am managing C.E.O. of 8 different companies where I am involved in the health care industry, hotel industry and real estate investments. I have been an active participant in the election campaign of Senator Connie Mack and the re-election campaign of Governor Martinez and now I am active in the re-election campaign of President Bush, working alongside Dr. Zachariah.

Here is a small biography on Mohan L. Gupta, M.D.:

After completing my initial education in 1974, I entered Medical school at SMS Medical College, India and completed my Medical Degree in 1979.

Just after graduation I moved to the United States where I finished my residency in Internal Medicine in 1983 in New Jersey. After my residency, I moved to Fort Lauderdale, Florida to start my practice. I, along with my wife who is also a physician, have developed an excellent state-of-the-art Medical Center in West Broward County.

I have been actively involved in the political campaigns for Senator Connie Mack, the election and re-election of Governor Martinez, and the re-election of President Bush.

An appeal from the national President

Dear Friends,

As Americans of Indian origin, we not only have the freedom to participate in the U.S. political process; we also have the civic responsibility to do so. The IAFPE is dedicated to promoting and assisting Indian Americans in our political involvement.

The Forum is now actively encouraging our youth to participate in civic affairs. When we came to the U.S., most of us were well-established professionals. However, the second generation of Indian Americans probably will select more mainstream careers. We cannot assume they will not face struggles; instead, we must prevent problems by building bridges instead of fences.

The Forum is committed to building those bridges—for ourselves and for our children. We can continue to do this only with your help. Become involved in the Forum and in the political process. Help us build a bridge of understanding for all Indian Americans, and for our children.

With best regards,
Gopal K. Basisth, M.D.
President, IAFPE
1751 Lake Berry Drive
Winter Park, Florida 32789

Political involvement: It does make a difference

Indian Americans can make a major impact through involvement in local, state and national political affairs.

Dr. Joy Cherian, the Forum's founding president, is an impressive example of what we can achieve. In May 1987, President Ronald Reagan announced the appointment of Dr. Cherian as Commissioner on the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

Whether we run for public office or contribute to a political candidate... testify at a congressional hearing or speak out at a town meeting, Indian Americans can make the difference in issues that affect all of us, our children, and every American.

A WOMAN'S PREGNANCY CENTER

Laurie White: "When I was seventeen I had my first abortion. I had four abortions before I found this center. I never received any counseling at the clinics I went to before my first abortion. I never received any advice from my parents either. After having my first abortion the life in me meant nothing, so I used abortion as a form of birth control. When you have an abortion you aren't treated like a living person, the whole thing is cold and clinical. They treat you like a medical experiment. Here they treat you like a human being. At this center they explain to you the negative effects of abortion, and the unsafe nature of the procedure. They showed me a lot of enlightening information like adoption and the choice of keeping the child. I decided to keep my daughter. The staff here still keeps in contact with me...they really care. I received post abortion counseling education from the center. Abortion clinics make women look like fools, they take away our dignity. They [the clinics] talk about women running the clinic and women's rights, but a man comes in and does the abortion. They [the abortionists] suck the life right out of you, they don't care about you. The abortionists are so calloused, they have died spiritually; they keep doing it because they have no relationship with God.

Louise Smith: "I thought I was pregnant, and I saw a sign saying 'free pregnancy test,' so I got it. I had an abortion. I'm a single mom and have a hyperactive child, so I couldn't afford to have another baby. I was working two jobs-- one to pay for day care, and the other to live by. It's just hard to survive. What am I going to do with another kid? I'm trying so hard to raise my family. I thought there was no way I could keep my kid, I couldn't even make it on my own. I chose abortion, though I knew it was wrong the whole time. I was never told what would happen to a person after [the abortion]. They say, 'it's a woman's choice, it's a woman's right,' but they never told me anything else. When I had my son they said I could have post-partum depression, but they never told me about post-abortion blues; I was going to commit suicide, I just felt like I was going to die. I thought, why didn't they tell me this was going to happen. They just made it seem as if I was just going to get a pap smear and everything was going to be fine, and I was going to simply go back and do everything you normally do. I thought that it sounded so simple, but the next day I was a completely different person. I thought that I was pregnant again, and I saw that there was free counseling here, so I came in. Someone spoke to me about the Lord, and I didn't have to kill myself. I was healed of my different personality. The different addictions and diseases I had were healed as well. My family has been healed. Things are really looking up now that I've got the Lord in my life. You do have a right to know what happens to you, and the decisions that you do have to make. I have one son and it's great, he keeps me going."

Raymond Deshomme: "My wife and I came from Haiti, we are visiting here. We only have three kids home: 15, 13, and 11. When we came here we found out that my wife was pregnant. As visitors we were getting trouble, because we didn't know where to go to find the care. A friend of mine who is an American brought me here to the center, and since we came here Maggie and all the other people working here...we have found a family. They care about us, they guide us, they show us where to go, and how to care for the baby. We have been blessed by this center here. God has raised these people here to help us. Since we are visitors here we could've had so much trouble, because we are visitors and we don't know much about the states here. We are so pleased to have them as our family. What is so nice about them is that when you have the child that's not the end. After our child was born they still call to see how you are doing. My wife and I...it seems like it's our birth place here. I thank Maggie for what she has done for us."

Lasonia Hudson: "Some people don't want to get married, things don't work out and that's how you become a single parent. Some fathers, they just don't know how to grow up even if they're in their thirties, forties, or fifties-- It's just the way of life. Some girls grow up faster than guys. My brother is 18 years old, he is in college right now. He has a 2 year old son. He's out of high school and takes care of his child, but he still does not know how to grow up. I have two kids from two different men. My son, his father went to prison, he left and I can't help that. He'll get out in two weeks and be here, but I don't want that kind of role model for my son, but I won't deny him the right to see his child. I would love to be married right now, but it is not the thing that happened. My son, you would think his father was around here every day the way he acts. He'll sit down right now and have a conversation with you, and he's only 2 years old. He goes to school every day. My mom raised two kids. She was on welfare with me when I was one years old. She was working, but she lost her job six years ago because her husband got disabled, and her job just gave her 90 days to be back to work--what can she do? She lost her job. Right now 5 years out of work, what can she do? She's trying to fight to get back in, but has received no call. She was with her job for 17 years, but if you don't go back in 90 days...she lost. There are jobs out there, but you have to have high school diplomas, college, this and that. But people that just got out of college can't even get a job. My brother just got through his first year of college, he got a 3.0. He can't find a job-- the waiting lists are 300 to 400 pages long. He's got to get ready to go back to school. I'm here and he's been away at school; I'm on a waiting list and people like him just getting out of school still can't find a job...so what can we do? We want to help each other, we don't want to just sit down and have babies, but our babies are here and we are going to take care of them. I have a son. I was going to school and I was working, but that still wasn't enough income. I wanted to get out on my own. I got housing, and the center helped me to get furniture. They helped me with my daughter, and they're still helping me. They counsel me, they call me, and that's something I need. My mother's here...she's okay financially, but she can't help me either, and I can't help myself. I'm trying, but doors are always closing. Where do you go? I have all these qualifications, but I still can't get a job. It's not just education, you've got to know people that are there. You've got to have somebody knock on the door and open it for you to get work. You can know how to do the stuff, but it's hard to actually do it. A child is only split and confused and doesn't know which way to go when the parents separate, and the mother says one thing and the father says another. When you break up you should still have talks with each other. I still care for my kid's father, but what can I do? He has someone else and another baby. His wife is going on five months...he works day and night and takes care of both of them."

Louise Smith: "I take a lot of pride in being a mother. I think every woman should take pride in being a mother and keeping the family together. A mother has a real important job of nurturing the family, and even the husband who's supposed to be the provider. Through my pregnancy and the first two years of my son's life, I had no help. When I told him I wanted him to help pay child's support, he threatened me by claiming that if I couldn't pay child's support on my own, he would take it from me when I had it. I took care of myself all my life, but I was so pregnant that I couldn't work. I was working all the way up to the last two weeks. But the first three or four weeks I really needed some help, so I asked my husband to please help me. I had no electricity, this newborn baby, and a carton full of my breast milk. Let's just say I had to do other things for him if he was going to help me. He said if I couldn't handle this he'd take the baby. He has a lot of money. I found out he was married when I was into my pregnancy. He said that he and his wife would take my baby, and I said, 'This is my baby, and you are not going to take it away from me!' I'm not rich and financially set, but that doesn't give anyone the right to threaten to take away my child. I didn't press for child support because I was afraid. People at HRS had asked me how I was going to support the child, and I got frightened that they would take the child from me."

Patty Trephan: "It's a father's job to be head of the household and be responsible. When the two of you get together and create life and human beings, and decide to have a family, first of all your basic responsibility is a commitment to that marriage and that family. Basic family values need to be reinstated.

Lasonia Hudson: "Why should you be somewhere if you're not happy. There are plenty of other men out there that you can be happy with. You don't have to go from this man to that man."

Patty Trephan: "My husband just started helping this last year. As a single parent I think that the father should have a part. I would never deny my child the right to his father. The child has the right to know who his father is. The father has an obligation. To just send you a check, that's just not it...they have to talk to their kids--they have a responsibility."

Lasonia Hudson: "Most of the problem is that the men always want more than one woman."

Laurie White: "My husband was around till the end of my pregnancy, and the first couple of weeks...he was paying child support. He left about three weeks ago to California, and just left a note. He said he didn't want to be a father, and that when he found out what he wanted he would be back. But I won't be there waiting for him...I'll have him arrested. He's already got another daughter who's a year old. He has to get his priorities straight...you can't run around and be irresponsible. It's very important to have a father. I don't think it's fair to intentionally have a child on your own. You shouldn't go out and get artificially inseminated and have a baby and raise it without a father. I'm horrified. I can't believe that people would intentionally raise a child without a father. I was adopted, and I was lucky to have been adopted by a mom and a dad. I'm sad that Sarah doesn't have a father, but I know that I'm supposed to be her mother. God is going to be the surrogate father until maybe someone else comes along."

Lisette Berger: "I feel it's very important. I was 15 when I got pregnant. If I had gotten married it would have been a bigger mistake than I had already made. I felt I had to finish school first. I had to put my life together, before I could make a marriage work. I live with my parents, so I have my dad as my child's father. Her real father is around, but he's not the most responsible person. My baby will have a better life if I get my life together first. I need to get a career and support her before I have a husband, but I think it's important for her to have a father. I went to a high school that had child care while I was pregnant, but when I had my child I went back to my old high school. But it was difficult going back and going to school at 7:20. I went back to the school with child care. If it wasn't for that school I would have never finished."

WASHINGTON

BRIEFING MEMORANDUM FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT
VISIT TO "A WOMAN'S PREGNANCY CENTER"

Date: June 3, 1992

Time: 3:00 - 3:55 p.m.

Location: A Woman's Pregnancy Center
Fort Lauderdale, FL

From: Dave Juday

I. PURPOSE

... To meet with a group of single mothers, in a pro-life setting, and to discuss with them the issues facing single mothers.

II. BACKGROUND

A Woman's Pregnancy Center (AWPC) has been established to "provide positive alternatives to abortion through education, counseling, (and) referrals" (AWPC does not recommend, provide, nor refer for abortion. AWPC does not recommend, provide, nor refer for single women contraceptives. Married women will be referred to their physicians and pastors.)

AWPC is religiously based, and affiliated with the Christian Action Council. It is one of approximately 425 such affiliated crisis pregnancy centers around the nation. The AWPC's statement of principle declares that its volunteers are "committed to presenting the Gospel of our Lord to women in crisis pregnancies." As a religious based organization, Christian spiritual faith, of course, is the essential element in their counseling.

Slightly more than half of the AWPC's funding is from individual contributions. Fundraising events and local churches provide the other half; AWPC receives no government nor corporate funding.

The AWPC provides a number of services, all free of charge (and confidential), including: pregnancy testing, information on alternatives to abortion, referrals for medical and community services (such as housing, etc.), maternity clothes, baby clothes and supplies, referral for adoption or foster care if necessary, post-abortion counseling, and birth classes.

The women served by the AWPC, ...

- * About two-thirds are under 24 years of age
- * About two-thirds are single; one-fourth are married
- * About 61 percent are white; 32 percent are black
- * About 54 percent are employed; 25 percent are at home; 14 percent are in school
- * About 34 percent of the women are referred by friends; 46 percent find the center through phone directories, ...

Phone directories for such crisis pregnancy centers are controversial with the "pro-choice" movement, particularly Planned Parenthood. Planned Parenthood, in conjunction with the National Abortion Federation have published a document entitled "A Consumer's Alert to Deception, Harassment, and Medical Malpractice" that includes a section entitled "How to Recognize an Anti-Abortion Counseling Center." The "pro-choice" movement complains bitterly about Yellow Page ads for pro-life centers that make any mention of abortion without an explicit disclaimer that abortions are not provided at the site. The AWPC Yellow Page ad does indeed list "abortion information" as a service provided.

TALKING POINTS FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT
VISIT TO "A WOMAN'S PREGNANCY CENTER"

- o First of all let me congratulate all of you on your association with the goals and the ideals of the AWPC.
- o I really came here today, though, to hear from you, ...
- o About a week ago, I spoke at the Air Force Academy commencement, and I did something a little unusual -- I directed a small part of my speech to not all of the cadets and their families and friends, but just the young men of the class.
- o I told them that being a father -- and I am speaking from experience -- will bring them more joy and satisfaction than anything else in their life.
- o And I told them that just as they have duties to honor as new officers in the Air Force, I told them that their first obligation was to be the loyal and loving father their children deserve.
- o The duty of a father is a sacred duty ...
- o I know that the cards are stacked against single mothers -- and those who beat the odds are true heroes.
- o I know that in the case of single moms, more often than not it is the father who has walked away from his responsibility, ...
- o And I know that more often than not, children who are left by their fathers are likely to do worse in school, become mired in poverty, and get caught in the trap of crime. There's no two ways about it. If you look at the statistics, those are just the plain facts.
- o I met with some former gang members in Albuquerque not too long ago. They told me they joined gangs because they wanted to feel like they belonged. They had nothing else.
- o That is why the support, the counseling, the friendship -- and the material needs -- found here are so important to providing a second chance for both moms and babies.
- o I want to hear from you what you face, how you made your decisions, and where you want to go.
- o God bless you.

Richard - FYI.
We will enter into Database.

A WOMAN'S PREGNANCY CENTER

Laurie White: "When I was seventeen I had my first abortion. I had four abortions before I found this center. I never received any counseling at the clinics I went to before my first abortion. I never received any advice from my parents either. After having my first abortion the life in me meant nothing, so I used abortion as a form of birth control. When you have an abortion you aren't treated like a living person, the whole thing is cold and clinical. They treat you like a medical experiment. Here they treat you like a human being. At this center they explain to you the negative effects of abortion, and the unsafe nature of the procedure. They showed me a lot of enlightening information like adoption and the choice of keeping the child. I decided to keep my daughter. The staff here still keeps in contact with me...they really care. I received post abortion counseling education from the center. Abortion clinics make women look like fools, they take away our dignity. They [the clinics] talk about women running the clinic and women's rights, but a man comes in and does the abortion. They [the abortionists] suck the life right out of you, they don't care about you. The abortionists are so calloused, they have died spiritually; they keep doing it because they have no relationship with God.

Louise Smith: "I thought I was pregnant, and I saw a sign saying 'free pregnancy test,' so I got it. I had an abortion. I'm a single mom and have a hyperactive child, so I couldn't afford to have another baby. I was working two jobs-- one to pay for day care, and the other to live by. It's just hard to survive. What am I going to do with another kid? I'm trying so hard to raise my family. I thought there was no way I could keep my kid, I couldn't even make it on my own. I chose abortion, though I knew it was wrong the whole time. I was never told what would happen to a person after [the abortion]. They say, 'it's a woman's choice, it's a woman's right,' but they never told me anything else. When I had my son they said I could have post-partum depression, but they never told me about post-abortion blues; I was going to commit suicide, I just felt like I was going to die. I thought, why didn't they tell me this was going to happen. They just made it seem as if I was just going to get a pap smear and everything was going to be fine, and I was going to simply go back and do everything you normally do. I thought that it sounded so simple, but the next day I was a completely different person. I thought that I was pregnant again, and I saw that there was free counseling here, so I came in. Someone spoke to me about the Lord, and I didn't have to kill myself. I was healed of my different personality. The different addictions and diseases I had were healed as well. My family has been healed. Things are really looking up now that I've got the Lord in my life. You do have a right to know what happens to you, and the decisions that you do have to make. I have one son and it's great, he keeps me going."

Raymond Deshomme: "My wife and I came from Haiti, we are visiting here. We only have three kids home: 15, 13, and 11. When we came here we found out that my wife was pregnant. As visitors we were getting trouble, because we didn't know where to go to find the care. A friend of mine who is an American brought me here to the center, and since we came here Maggie and all the other people working here...we have found a family. They care about us, they guide us, they show us where to go, and how to care for the baby. We have been blessed by this center here. God has raised these people here to help us. Since we are visitors here we could've had so much trouble, because we are visitors and we don't know much about the states here. We are so pleased to have them as our family. What is so nice about them is that when you have the child that's not the end. After our child was born they still call to see how you are doing. My wife and I...it seems like it's our birth place here. I thank Maggie for what she has done for us."

Lasonia Hudson: "Some people don't want to get married, things don't work out and that's how you become a single parent. Some fathers, they just don't know how to grow up even if they're in their thirties, forties, or fifties-- It's just the way of life. Some girls grow up faster than guys. My brother is 18 years old, he is in college right now. He has a 2 year old son. He's out of high school and takes care of his child, but he still does not know how to grow up. I have two kids from two different men. My son, his father went to prison, he left and I can't help that. He'll get out in two weeks and be here, but I don't want that kind of role model for my son, but I won't deny him the right to see his child. I would love to be married right now, but it is not the thing that happened. My son, you would think his father was around here every day the way he acts. He'll sit down right now and have a conversation with you, and he's only 2 years old. He goes to school every day. My mom raised two kids. She was on welfare with me when I was one years old. She was working, but she lost her job six years ago because her husband got disabled, and her job just gave her 90 days to be back to work--what can she do? She lost her job. Right now 5 years out of work, what can she do? She's trying to fight to get back in, but has received no call. She was with her job for 17 years, but if you don't go back in 90 days...she lost. There are jobs out there, but you have to have high school diplomas, college, this and that. But people that just got out of college can't even get a job. My brother just got through his first year of college, he got a 3.0. He can't find a job-- the waiting lists are 300 to 400 pages long. He's got to get ready to go back to school. I'm here and he's been away at school; I'm on a waiting list and people like him just getting out of school still can't find a job...so what can we do? We want to help each other, we don't want to just sit down and have babies, but our babies are here and we are going to take care of them. I have a son. I was going to school and I was working, but that still wasn't enough income. I wanted to get out on my own. I got housing, and the center helped me to get furniture. They helped me with my daughter, and they're still helping me. They counsel me, they call me, and that's something I need. My mother's here...she's okay financially, but she can't help me either, and I can't help myself. I'm trying, but doors are always closing. Where do you go? I have all these qualifications, but I still can't get a job. It's not just education, you've got to know people that are there. You've got to have somebody knock on the door and open it for you to get work. You can know how to do the stuff, but it's hard to actually do it. A child is only split and confused and doesn't know which way to go when the parents separate, and the mother says one thing and the father says another. When you break up you should still have talks with each other. I still care for my kid's father, but what can I do? He has someone else and another baby. His wife is going on five months...he works day and night and takes care of both of them."

Louise Smith: "I take a lot of pride in being a mother. I think every woman should take pride in being a mother and keeping the family together. A mother has a real important job of nurturing the family, and even the husband who's supposed to be the provider. Through my pregnancy and the first two years of my son's life, I had no help. Meeting notes

Laurie White

Her two year old could not come because she was sick.

17-1st

never received counseling before

Had four abortions before she found this place.

After having the first one, the life in her meant nothing to her, so she basically used abortion as birth control.

You aren't treated like a living person when you have an abortion. The whole thing is cold and clinical. They treat you like a medical experiment. Here they treat you like a human being.

At this center they explain to you the negative effects of abortion.

Her baby's father hung around for a little while. He had a child from another woman in the area too. But he just left about three weeks ago to go to California. All he did was leave a message on my phone machine: "I have to go to California to find myself. I can't be a father until I find out what kind of a man I am."

They have helped me to find God here. "God is a surrogate father for my daughter now."

Louise Smith

I'm a single mom, working two jobs -- one to pay for day care and the other to live by. Recently, she got pregnant again. This time she chose abortion, but no one ever told her what it would be like. They all act like it is no big deal, but no one told her how she would feel after having an abortion. You hear about getting depressed after having a baby. Well, the same thing happens after an abortion.

I got so depressed, I lost control of the baby and I really thought about killing myself.

That's was just about the same time I drove by and saw the sign to this place -- "Free Counseling." Well, that's what I needed, Counseling, and it had to be free too. So I stopped and ran up. I met Margie and we talked and talked.

* People shouldn't be embarrassed to stay at home with their baby -- to be a housewife. I take a lot of pride in being a mother.

Sure it would be great to have the father around, but sometimes having him around is a problem too.

The father of her child is threatening her, threatening to take away the baby if she sued for child support. The man is rich -- and married. She found out he was married after she was pregnant. He says he would tell the court she is not a fit mother if she tries to sue him. He said that he and his wife could raise her baby better.

He does provide some support, but he expects -- well, let's just say he expects certain things from me in exchange. He will only give me money if I keep being his girlfriend.

Fathers shouldn't deny the child's rights to support and to being there to help the child grow up.

Lisette Berger It is very important to have a father for a child, but she was only 15 when she got pregnant. It was not the right time to get married -- and the boy was too immature. Getting married would have only compounded her problems.

She is 17 now and graduating from high school. Next year, she is going to college. This center helped her get through the crisis.

She went right back to the same school, but having a baby was too distracting. She had to get to child care at 7:00 and then to school by 7:30. So she transferred to a school with child care.

She is still living at home with her mom and dad, so her baby has a father figure around -- her father. "I am going to college now and then I am going to get a good job before I get married."

Lasonia Hudson Sure it would be great to have a father, but some boys never grow up. You know the way men are, they all want to have more than one woman. Why be married to someone like that.

Sometimes the father can't be with his children. My two kids have two different fathers. The first one went to prison. I am still in touch with his family, though, and his mom helps out. He is getting out of jail in two weeks, though, but I don't know if I want him around.

The other father? Well he just left.

Why be married to someone if you are not happy? There are plenty of men around to be with.

Patty Trephan (Counselor) You're wrong. You're showing the wrong kind of values. Life is not about trying to be happy, it's about living up to your responsibilities. That's the problem with society. Jesus was not here to be happy.

Raymond Deshomme From Haiti, here to work. He's married and already has two teenagers. But the center helped he and his wife out. The Center is like an extended family. They call even after the baby is born to see how we are doing.

1400 East Oakland Park Boulevard

Dear Mrs. Richardson:

As we discussed today by phone, while I was visiting your offices the other afternoon, Vice President Quayle personally requested that I make myself available for legal services for one of the young ladies whom he interviewed while visiting "A Woman's Pregnancy Center". Naturally, I do not have the name, address or telephone number of this individual, but as we discussed today by phone, possibly you will be advising this lady that my office will be available to assist her in legal representation. I must bring to your attention that the Vice President was genuinely concerned about the physical, mental and economic welfare of this woman and her child and, any assistance that I could give to this woman would be accomplished as soon as possible.

I understand that you are going to provide to this lady a copy of this letter and should she elect to communicate with me, I will be back in touch with you.

Thank you very much for your attention to this request of the Vice President.

Sincerely,

WALTER R. BLAKE, ESQ.
