THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

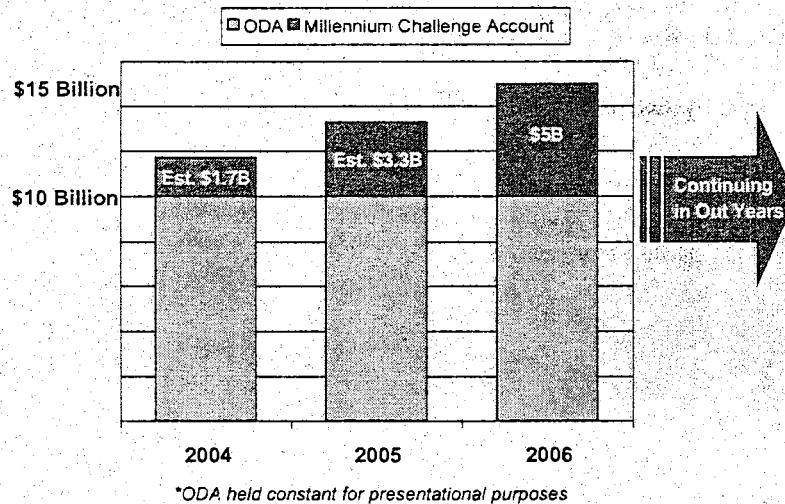

June 3, 2002

FACT SHEET

Millennium Challenge Account Update

On March 14, 2002 President Bush announced that the United States will increase its core assistance to developing countries by 50% over the next 3 years, resulting in a $5 billion annual increase over current levels by FY 2006. This increased assistance will go to a new Millennium Challenge Account (MCA) that funds initiatives to improve the economies and standards of living in qualified developing countries. The goal of the MCA is to reward sound policy decisions that support economic growth and reduce poverty.

Illustrative Funding Levels for ODA + Millennium Challenge Account

The President instructed the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury to develop a set of clear, concrete, and objective criteria for measuring progress. To aid in this process, the Administration is reaching out to other potential donor countries, developing countries, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), universities and think tanks, the private sector, and other interested parties.

Aid Linked to Sound Policies

The MCA recognizes that economic development assistance can be successful only if it is linked to sound policies in developing countries. In sound policy environments, every dollar of aid attracts two dollars of private capital. In countries where poor public policy dominates, aid can harm the very citizens it is meant to help – crowding out private investment and perpetuating failed policies.

The funds in the Millennium Challenge Account will be distributed to developing countries that demonstrate a strong commitment toward:

- ☑ Good governance. Rooting out corruption, upholding human rights, and adherence to the rule of law are essential conditions for successful development.
- ☑ The health and education of their people. Investment in education, health care, and immunization provide for healthy and educated citizens who become agents of development.
- ☑ Sound economic policies that foster enterprise and entrepreneurship. More open markets, sustainable budget policies, and strong support for individual entrepreneurship unleash the enterprise and creativity for lasting growth and prosperity.

Millennium Challenge Account Guiding Principles

In order to ensure that Millennium Challenge Account funds promote growth and reduce poverty in developing nations, funds will be distributed according to the following guiding principles:

- Country selection will be keyed to potential for economic growth and poverty reduction. All countries selected will have demonstrated their commitment to sound policies in the areas listed above.
- Funds will be distributed in the form of grants. Where appropriate, programs funded by this account will be coordinated with ongoing programs and leverage other funding streams, both from within the recipient country and from other private, bilateral and multilateral donors.
- Qualifying countries will be encouraged to actively engage with us in formulating uses for MCA funding through a participatory process involving local and federal elected officials, civil society, and development partners.
- The development priorities, investment needs, and growth potential of selected countries will determine how funds are allotted.
- Where possible, the Millennium Challenge Account will seek to broaden development partnerships by including new partners, such as private sector firms, national and local governments, U.S. and local universities, foundations, and international and local NGOs.
- Building capacity for quality data development and continuous country and project performance monitoring will be important components of the MCA and will be incorporated into its implementation.

The Administration's Commitment to the Developing World

The United States is the world's largest bilateral donor to the developing world. While many donors provide economic assistance, the United States provides resources both to strengthen security and foster economic growth. Congress appropriated $17.1 billion to support these activities in FY 2002.

Key Facts

- The United States is the world leader in humanitarian assistance and food aid, providing over $2.5 billion in 2001.
- The United States is the top importer of goods from developing countries, importing $449 billion in 2001, eight times the amount of total Official Development Assistance (ODA) to developing countries from all donors.
- The United States is the greatest source of private capital to developing countries, averaging $36 billion annually between 1997 and 2000.
- The United States leads the world in charitable donations to developing countries -- $4 billion in 2000.
- At $11 billion, the U.S. is the top provider of Official Development Assistance (ODA) in 2001. This ODA is expected to increase substantially from 2001 to 2003 in key sectors:
  - ✓ HIV/AIDS -- 54%
  - ✓ Basic Education -- 50%
  - ✓ Trade and Investment -- 38%
  - ✓ Agriculture -- 38%
- USAID's core "Development Assistance" account is expected to increase 22 percent overall from 2001 to 2003, with significant increases in key regions:
  - ✓ Africa -- 30%
  - ✓ Asia and the Near East -- 39%
  - ✓ Latin America and the Caribbean -- 29%
- The United States is the largest donor to the multilateral development banks (MDBs). The Administration's FY 2003 budget request for the MDBs totals more than $1.4 billion and includes significant increases in U.S. contributions to both the International Development Association and the African Development Fund.
- The MCA will complement not replace these existing efforts.

Thank you very much for the invitation but I will be out of the country at an OECD meeting on Monday. Might it be possible for the MCA point-man on my staff, Will Melick, to attend in my place?
Thanks,

Dear Mr. Kroszner:

This is a reminder to join a select group of congressional staffers for a lunch meeting to discuss President Bush's proposed Millennium Challenge Account for development assistance on Monday, June 10, from 12:30 to 2:00 PM, in room S-115 of the Capitol. Featured speakers will be Nancy Birdsall, President of the Center for Global Development, and Gene Sperling, Director of the Forum on Universal Education and former Director of the National Economic Council. This luncheon is the second in a series of development policy briefings for congressional staff hosted by the Center for Global Development, a new Washington think tank.

In their opening remarks, Ms. Birdsall and Mr. Sperling will address principles and examples for policy makers to consider in the design and implementation of the Millennium Challenge Account (MCA). After they have concluded their remarks, we will open the floor for discussion.

After President Bush's announcement of the Millennium Challenge Account (MCA), the Center for Global Development conducted a series of workshops around the design and implementation of the MCA. The discussions included specialists from the executive branch, Congress, the NGO community, the research community, and the international financial institutions. Based on both these workshops, and on our previous work on aid effectiveness and reform, we have drafted a set of principles for policy makers to consider in the design of the MCA, and one example of how to make these principles operational. This document is attached for your review.

We are inviting to this meeting congressional staffers who have responsibility for issues relating to U.S. development, foreign assistance, and international economic policies. Our aim is to provide an opportunity for a candid, informal, and mutually beneficial exchange between the speakers and staffers who are especially interested in developing country issues.

The Center for Global Development will host additional briefing sessions for congressional staff in the coming months. One session will feature Andrew Natsios, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development. Another session, focusing on the impact of U.S. trade policy on developing countries, will feature Arvind Panagariya, the former Chief Economist of the Asian Development Bank who is an advisor to the government of India and to the World Bank, the IMF, and WTO. We will invite you to these sessions once dates have been confirmed.

We hope you will be able to attend the June 10 session. If you plan to come, we ask that you RSVP to Vonique Bullock by phone (202-416-0759) or by e-mail (vbullock@cgdev.org). We look forward to seeing you on June 10 and at future events.

With warm regards,

David Weiner and Sarah Lucas
