Reappointment of Judge Marian Blank Horn to the United States Court of Federal Claims

Marian Blank Horn was appointed to the United States Court of Federal Claims by President Ronald Reagan in 1986 after serving in the Reagan administration for five years at the United States Department of the Interior. Her final position at the department was as the Principal Deputy and Acting Solicitor under Secretary Donald Hodel. A resume is attached.

Judge Horn's fifteen year term on the court will expire on April 13, 2001. She seeks reappointment to the job in which she has served ably as one of the highest producers on the court in terms of dispositions. She has authored numerous complex opinions and manages one of the largest caseloads on the court. Although the time between now and April is short, it is important for court continuity and for reasons of insurance and benefits that, if possible, there be no lapse in service.

Reappointment of a member of the judiciary, assuming productive and loyal service as well as willingness to serve, should be evaluated with thoughts of continuity and benefits to the judicial system in mind. It should be considered differently from a judicial position for which no incumbent requests to continue in service.

There is one vacancy already on the court following the assumption of senior status by a judge last summer. Judge Horn's term expires on April 13, 2001. Judge Horn has submitted the statutorily required letter to the President requesting reappointment. The term of a third judge expires on April 15, 2001. Although that third judge has submitted the required letter requesting reappointment, he has informally indicated that he will take senior status or seek a different appointment. A fourth vacancy on the court will occur on October 13, 2001.

Her husband offered active support from the beginning of the campaign to elect President Bush. He is the Chairman of the Republican Lawyers Association at the RNC and was on the ground in several primary states, in additional states during the election campaign, and was in Florida as one of the lawyers in the Broward County canvassing room during the recount.

On January 19, 2001, outgoing President Clinton appointed Sarah L. Wilson to be a Judge on the Court of Federal Claims. At the time, she was serving in the White House Counsel's office as the Senior Counsel for Nominations. She was sworn in on January 22, 2001.
