Discussion

The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (P. L. 95-521) required, among other things, that certain Federal employees and officers file annual financial disclosure reports. In 1998, P.L. 105-318 amended the Ethics in Government Act to allow judicial officers and employees to redact certain personal information from financial disclosures that are released to the public, if the release of that information is deemed to present a possible security risk for them.

According to a statement made of the House floor, "reports can only be redacted to the extent necessary to protect the judge and only so long as a danger exists" and "[t]ypically, the information redacted is limited to such things as the spouse's place of work, the location of the judge's second home, or the name of a law school at which a judge may teach part time." The statement notes that six percent of the judges filing reports in 2000 had their reports redacted in whole or in part.

The authority for judicial officers and employees to redact financial disclosure statements expired on December 31, 2001. H.R. 2336 would extend this authority for four years, through December 31, 2005.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join Justice in recommending approval of H.R. 2336, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.

Dear Mr. Daniels:

This responds to your request for the views and recommendation of the Justice Department on the enrolled bill H.R. 2336, entitled "An Act to extend for 4 years, through December 31, 2005, the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers." The Justice Department recommends approval of the bill.

H.R. 2336 would extend for 4 years the provision in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 that permits judicial officers to redact information in financial disclosure reports filed by certain judicial employees and officers. We note that prior versions of the bill would have eliminated the sunset provision entirely.

The redaction authority reflects recognition of "the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails." H. Rep. No. 107-239 at 2. The authority is due to expire on December 31, 2001. The Congress undertook to repeal the sunset of redaction authority "because redactions were approved in only a limited number of cases where judges or their family members were endangered by the release of the information," id., suggesting that the authority worked properly. This being the case, we support a 4-year extension of the authority.

Thank you for the opportunity to present our views. Please feel free to call upon us if we may be of additional assistance.

MAKING PERMANENT THE AUTHORITY TO REDACT FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS OF JUDICIAL EMPLOYEES AND JUDICIAL OFFICERS

DECEMBER 7, 2001.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. LIEBERMAN, from the Committee on Governmental Affairs, submitted the following

R E P O R T

[To accompany H.R. 2336]

The Committee on Governmental Affairs, to which was referred the bill (H.R. 2336) to make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon and recommends that the bill do pass.

When ordering the bill reported, the Committee agreed that Members would further evaluate the bill prior to Senate consideration. That further evaluation has occurred, and, based thereon, an amendment to the bill will be offered, and a recommendation will be made that the Senate adopt the amendment and pass the bill as so amended. The purpose of the amendment will be to extend the redaction authority for 4 years instead of making it permanent.

I. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 2336 would make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements filed by judges and other officers and employees of the federal judiciary when the Judicial Conference, in consultation with the United States Marshals Service, finds that revealing the information could endanger the filer. The bill would accomplish this by repealing section 105(b)(3)(E) of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. app.), which now provides that the authority to redact shall expire on December 31, 2001.

When ordering the bill reported, the Committee agreed that interested Members would further evaluate the bill before the bill would be considered by the Senate. Based on that further evaluation, an amendment to H.R. 2336 will be offered, and a recommendation will be made that the Senate adopt the amendment and pass the bill as so amended. As so amended, the bill would extend the authority to redact for an additional 4 years, until December 31, 2005.

II. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

A. EXISTING LAW AND ITS IMPLEMENTATION

Under the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. app.), judges and certain other officers and employees of the judiciary, like officers and employees in other branches of government, must file annual financial disclosure reports. However, considering the nature of the judicial function and the security risk it entails, the 105th Congress enacted section 7 of the "Identity Theft and Assumption Deterrence Act of 1998" (Public Law No. 105-318), adding a new subsection 105(b)(3) to the Ethics in Government Act, which provides that the financial disclosure reports filed by judges and other judiciary personnel may be redacted before being made available to the public "if a finding is made by the Judicial Conference, in consultation with the United States Marshals Service, that revealing personal and sensitive information could endanger that individual."¹

The Judicial Conference has adopted regulations governing public access to financial disclosure reports filed by judges and other judicial employees under the Ethics in Government Act. Under these regulations, the Judicial Conference delegated to its Committee on Financial Disclosure the responsibility for implementing the financial disclosure requirements, and the regulations set forth the procedure by which members of the public may obtain access to the financial disclosure reports and by which decisions to redact the reports are made.

The regulations restate a requirement, which is established generally under the Ethics in Government Act, that any request from a member of the public for access to a financial disclosure form must be in writing and must identify the requester and any other person on whose behalf the request is made. The regulations further provide that, when a request is received, the Committee will immediately notify the judge (or other employee who filed the requested report) and will send the judge (or other filer) a copy of the request.

The judge (or other filer) may request redactions when filing the annual report, and may also request redactions upon receiving notification of a request from a member of the public for access to the report. In requesting a redaction, the filer must state specifically what material is sought to be redacted and provide detailed reasons justifying the redaction. The Committee on Financial Disclosure then determines, in consultation with the United States Marshals Service, whether the information sought to be redacted could endanger the filer and either grants or denies the request accordingly. A judge (or other filer) whose request for redaction is denied may appeal to a Special Redaction Review Panel of the Judicial Conference. The Committee may also redact information without a request if it receives evidence that release of information could endanger the filer. The regulations provide that the redaction is allowed to the extent necessary to protect the filer, and for as long as the reasons for redaction exist.

The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts provided to the Governmental Affairs Committee detailed information about the implementation of the redaction authority. In the calendar year 2000, financial disclosure reports were filed by 2357 judges, of whom 179 requested redaction. Of these requests, 108 were granted in full by the Committee on Financial Disclosure, 32 were granted in part and denied in part, and 39 were denied in full. Sixteen judges appealed these decisions, and all 16 appeals were denied.

Of the 140 judges whose redaction requests were approved in full or in part, 59 judges' approved requests were based on specific threats such as high-threat trials, ongoing Marshals Service investigations, or continuing threats and financial harassment. For 81 judges, the approved redaction requests were based on what the Judicial Conference calls "general threats," without a specific identified threat against the judge, but these "general threat" redactions applied only to information that would disclose the workplace, school, home, or other unsecured locations of judges or their family members.

For the 140 judges whose reports were redacted during the year 2000, a total of 218 individual disclosure reports were partially redacted, and a total of 13 individual reports were totally redacted. In each instance where a report was redacted in its entirety, the Committee on Financial Disclosure had determined that the judge who filed the report or reports was subject to a specific, active security threat.

B. GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE'S CONSIDERATION OF H.R.

As enacted in 1998, the provision of the Ethics in Government Act authorizing the judiciary to redact financial disclosure reports included an approximately three-year sunset clause, under which the authority will expire on December 31, 2001, unless the authority is extended by Congress. H.R. 2336 would strike the sunset clause, thereby making the redaction authority permanent. H.R. 2336 was introduced on June 27, 2001 and passed the House of Representatives on October 16, 2001.

The Governmental Affairs Committee considered the bill at its business meeting on November 14, 2001. At that meeting, no Committee Member spoke in opposition to favorably reporting the bill, but certain Members did express concerns. Senator Thompson noted that in some instances the redaction authority was used to avoid revealing stocks and other financial assets owned by judges, gifts in the form of trips taken by judges, and other gifts received by judges. This is a problem, he said, because financial assets and gifts can produce a conflict of interest. He stated that the redaction authority should not be used for financial assets or gifts of this kind and that he expects the Judicial Conference and the Administrative Office of the Courts to take notice of these concerns. Senator Bunning raised the point as to why authority to redact financial disclosure statements was only granted for judges and other officers and employees of the judiciary. He noted that U.S. Attorneys, Assistant U.S. Attorneys, and other federal personnel could be equally at risk from certain information in their financial disclosure statements. Redaction authority does not apply for them, and Senator Bunning raised the issue as to whether or not redaction authority should apply for those and other federal personnel.

The Committee decided to report the bill favorably to the Senate, but, in light of the concerns expressed, the Committee agreed that Members would have an opportunity to further evaluate the legislation and to resolve any doubts before the bill would be considered on the Senate floor. The Committee proceeded to convene a meeting with a representative of the Administrative Office of the Courts, to obtain additional information about the Judicial Conference's implementation of the redaction authority and to discuss the concerns that had been expressed about that implementation.

The information considered by the Committee indicates that the judiciary's current implementation of the redaction authority is prudent and responsible overall. However, to address specific concerns raised by certain Committee Members, the following steps are being taken. An amendment to H.R. 2336 will be offered, and a recommendation will be made that the Senate adopt the amendment and pass the bill as so amended, to extend the redaction authority for 4 years, until December 31, 2005, rather than now making the authority permanent. This 4-year sunset period will give the Committee or interested Members an opportunity to inquire further into specific areas of concern regarding the implementation of the redaction authority, to evaluate any responses by the judiciary to these concerns, and to consider whether any legislative changes to the redaction authority are necessary.² This will also provide an opportunity to look into whether the redaction authority, which is an exception to the generally applicable provisions of the Ethics in Government Act, should apply only to the judiciary, as it does now, or whether the authority should also apply to U.S. Attorneys or others outside of the judicial branch.

Although the judiciary has generally exercised the redaction authority well, the Committee has some specific concerns about certain ways in which the redaction authority has been used since it was enacted three years ago with a three-year sunset. The Committee hopes that the judiciary will examine whether any of the Committee's observations might warrant changes in the operative regulations.

The Committee understands that, although the redaction authority has not been used often to withhold a judge's entire financial disclosure report, such complete withholding has, upon the recommendation of the United States Marshals Service, occurred on occasion. The Committee believes that the intent of the legislation is to authorize withholding only that specific information that could endanger judges. Even if the information in one section of a report must be redacted, it may be safe to release another section of the report that either contains information posing no danger or that is blank because the judge had nothing relevant to disclose. The Committee questions whether it would ever be necessary to withhold every part of a judge's report. The Committee has shared this view with the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, which has indicated that the judiciary plans to use redaction authority in the future with a careful, section-by-section review and decision so that only the information that could endanger the filer would be redacted from a disclosure report. The Committee appreciates that position and hopes that the Judicial Conference will consider modifying its regulations to clarify its intent in that regard.

The Committee also believes that the judiciary might desire to review its practices with respect to the redaction of financial assets. A judge's financial assets can potentially create a conflict of interest. Redaction of those assets could therefore prevent the public from learning that a conflict was present in a case. On the other hand, under some circumstances, disclosing financial assets might enable a hostile person to learn a judge's home address or might otherwise pose a danger. But there may be ways to maintain judicial safety through ways other than redacting the holdings. For instance, it may be worth considering whether holding assets in a brokerage account in "street name,"³ or using a mailing address other than the judge's home address in connection with ownership of the assets, might eliminate danger that might otherwise arise from publicly identifying the assets. The judiciary might consider whether, if measures like these were used, redaction of financial assets might be unnecessary.

Additionally, some redactions have been made with respect to reimbursement for travel to various conferences. The Committee has some difficulty understanding why this redaction has occurred, and has communicated its reservations to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. Although a judge could be harmed by someone learning that a judge was attending a conference as it was occurring, the judge would have long since left that location by the time the reimbursement of the expense was reported. The Administrative Office has advised that no judge has asked that reimbursed travel be redacted, but that such items have been redacted in several occasions where the financial disclosure report was redacted in its entirety. (Concerns about some reports having being redacted in their entirety were discussed above.) Especially in light of the fact that a number of reimbursements have inadvertently not been reported at all, the Committee suggests that the judiciary review its policies for redacting information of that type, and consider whether to strengthen its enforcement or other compliance policies for assuring that judges comply with the legal obligation to disclose reimbursed travel.

In considering the rationale for the redaction authority, the Committee understands that the need to reveal information that can potentially create a conflict of interest may be outweighed when disclosing the information might reveal the location of a judge or family member at an insecure location or might otherwise endanger the individual physically. But, in extending the program, the Committee believes that where the reason stops, so should the rule. Thus, redactions made not to protect a judge from a threat to his or her person, but to stop false liens from being placed on a piece of property or to prevent "theft of identity," may not fit within the rationale for the redaction authority. The Committee believes that the judiciary might want to review its use of the redaction authority in this context. The judiciary might also want to evaluate whether decisions to grant waivers to disclosure should be made public.

The Committee believes that the judiciary is undertaking strong efforts to ensure that assets and reimbursements are disclosed, but recognizes that public confidence in that process is necessary even if all information required to be disclosed is in fact disclosed. This is true for redacted information as well. Ultimately, a well-functioning redacting process is in the interest of both the judiciary and the public. The Committee believes that the Judicial Conference has been conscientious in its review of judicial requests for individualized redactions, and appreciates that appeals of rulings adverse to individual judges have not been granted when the Conference believes they are not warranted.

These suggestions are offered in an effort to be helpful, rather than critical. The judiciary can determine for itself which, if any, it might choose to consider. The Committee appreciates the reactions it has received to some of these ideas from the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, and looks forward to further reviewing the operation of the program.

III. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

H.R. 2336 was introduced on June 27, 2001, by Congressman Coble, for himself and Congressman Berman, and was referred to the House Committee on the Judiciary. No hearings were held, and on October 2, 2001, the House Judiciary Committee ordered the bill favorably reported by voice vote. The bill was then considered in the House on October 16, 2001, under suspension of the rules and passed by voice vote.

In the Senate, H.R. 2336 was referred to the Committee on Governmental Affairs. No hearings were held on the legislation. H.R. 2336 was considered by the Committee at its business meeting on November 14, 2001, and was ordered reported favorably, without amendment, by voice vote. When ordering the bill reported, the Committee agreed that Members would further evaluate the bill before the bill would be considered by the Senate. Committee members present were Senators Akaka, Durbin, Cleland, Carper, Carnahan, Thompson, Voinovich, Cochran, Bunning, and Lieberman.

Based on that further evaluation, it was decided that an amendment to H.R. 2336 will be offered, and a recommendation will be made that the Senate adopt the amendment and pass the bill as so amended. As so amended, the bill would not make the redaction authority permanent, but would instead extend the authority for 4 years, until December 31, 2005.

IV. REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

Paragraph 11(b)(1) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate requires that each report accompanying a bill evaluate the "regulatory impact which would be incurred in carrying out this bill." Carrying out H.R. 2336 would have no regulatory impact.

V. CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, November 19, 2001.

Hon. JOSEPH I. LIEBERMAN,
Chairman, Committee on Governmental Affairs,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 2336, a bill to make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Lanette J. Walker.

Sincerely,

STEVEN LIEBERMAN
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

Enclosure.

H.R. 2336—A bill to make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

H.R. 2336 would repeal the sunset provision in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 relating to the authority of certain judicial employees and judicial officers to revise their financial disclosure statements. CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 2336 would have no significant impact on the federal budget. The bill would not affect direct spending or receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures do not apply. H.R. 2336 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

On October 12, 2001, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for H.R. 2336 as ordered reported by the House Committee on the Judiciary on October 3, 2001. The two versions of the legislation and our cost estimates are identical.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Lanette J. Walker. This estimate was approved by Peter H. Fontaine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

VI. CHANGES TO EXISTING LAW

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 2336 is to make permanent the authority of the Judicial Conference of the United States to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers where the release of the information could endanger the filer or his or her family.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

Under the Ethics in Government Act, judges and other high-level judicial branch officials must file annual financial disclosure reports. However, recognizing the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails, the 105th Congress enacted section 7 of the "Identity Theft and Assumption Deterrence Act of 1998," which allows the Judicial Conference to redact statutorily required information in a financial disclosure report where the release of the information could endanger the filer or his or her family. This provision will sunset on December 31, 2001, in the absence of a legislative extension.

The Judicial Conference delegated to its Committee on Financial Disclosure the responsibility for implementing the financial disclosure requirements for judges and judicial employees under the Ethics in Government Act. The Committee monitors the release of financial disclosure reports to ensure compliance with the statute. The Committee reviews and approves or disapproves any request for the redaction of statutorily mandated information where the filer believes the release of the information could endanger the filer and his family.

The Judicial Conference Committee on Financial Disclosure recently submitted a report on section 7. The Committee monitors the release of financial disclosure reports to ensure compliance with the statute, reviews redaction requests, and approves or disapproves any request for the redaction of statutorily mandated information where the release of the information could endanger a filer. In 2000, the Committee noted that: (1) 13 financial disclosure reports were wholly redacted because the judge was under a specific, active security threat; (2) 140 reports were partially redacted (59 of which were based on specific threats; the other 81 due to general threats and the potential risk of disclosure of a family member's unsecured workplace or a residence of a judge or a judge's family); and (3) a total of 218 financial disclosure reports, which includes reports from previous years, were partially redacted.

The purpose of the annual financial disclosure reports required by the Ethics in Government Act is to increase public confidence in government officials and better enable the public to judge the performance of those officials. The Committee recommended that the sunset of section 7 be repealed because redactions were approved in only a limited number of cases where judges or their family members were endangered by the release of the information. H.R. 2336, therefore, achieves the objectives of providing public access to such information without compromising the safety of Federal judges and their families.

HEARINGS

There were no hearings held on H.R. 2336.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On October 3, 2001, the Committee met in open session and ordered favorably reported the bill H.R. 2336, by voice vote, a quorum being present.

VOTE OF THE COMMITTEE

There were no recorded votes on H.R. 2336.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee reports that the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

H.R. 2336 does not authorize funding. Therefore, clause 3(c) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives is inapplicable. The purpose of H.R. 2336 is to make permanent the authority of the Judicial Conference of the United States to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers where the release of the information could endanger the filer or his or her family.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY AND TAX EXPENDITURES

Clause 3(c)(2) of House rule XIII is inapplicable because this legislation does not provide new budgetary authority or increased tax expenditures.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee sets forth, with respect to H.R. 2336, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, October 12, 2001.

Hon. F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, Jr., Chairman,
Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 2336, a bill to make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

MARKUP TRANSCRIPT

BUSINESS MEETING

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 2001

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 2:00 p.m., in Room 2141, Rayburn House Office Building, Hon. F. James Sensenbrenner, Jr. [Chairman of the Committee] presiding.

Committee will be in order. A working quorum is present. Pursuant to notice, I now call up the bill, H.R. 2336, to make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers for purposes of markup and move its favorable recommendation to the House. Without objection, the bill will be considered as read and open for amendment at any point. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Coble, to briefly explain the bill.

[The bill, H.R. 2336, follows:]

107TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. 2336

To make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JUNE 27, 2001

Mr. COBLE (for himself and Mr. BERMAN) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary

A BILL

To make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. REPEAL OF SUNSET PROVISION.

4 Section 105(b)(3)(E) of the Ethics in Government

5 Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is repealed.

Mr. COBLE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. This bill, Mr. Chairman, came directly to the full Committee. As you know, it did not clear through Subcommittee. So if I may, I think I can read this, Mr. Chairman, in a couple minutes. Would this be in order?

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Surely. The gentleman is recognized.

Mr. COBLE. This bill will make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers. Under the Ethics of Government Act, judges and other high-level judicial branch officials must file annual financial disclosure reports. However, due to the nature of the judicial function of the increased security risks it entails, section 7 of the Identity Theft and Assumption Deterrence Act of 1998 allows the Judicial Conference to redact statutorily required information in a financial disclosure report when release of the information could endanger the filer or his or her family.

This provision will sunset on December 31, 2001, in the absence of further legislative action. This is why it is so important, Mr. Chairman, for us to consider this today because at the sunset—if we don't resolve it prior to the sunset effective date, then the redaction, of course, takes full force and they will have to fully disclose. We are not talking about many judges that are involved, but those who are involved who have security risks imposing. I think we do need to address this. As far as I know, Mr. Chairman, there is no opposition, and I move its passage.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Coble follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE HOWARD COBLE, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Thank you Mr. Chairman. H.R. 2336 will make permanent the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers.

Under the Ethics in Government Act, judges and other high-level judicial branch officials must file annual financial disclosure reports. However, due to the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails, section 7 of the "Identity Theft and Assumption Deterrence Act of 1998" allows the Judicial Conference to redact statutorily required information in a financial disclosure report where the release of the information could endanger the filer or his or her family. This provision will sunset on December 31, 2001, in the absence of further legislative action.

The Judicial Conference Committee on Financial Disclosure recently submitted a report on section 7. The Committee monitors the release of financial disclosure reports to ensure compliance with the statute, reviews redaction requests, and approves or disapproves any request for the redaction of statutorily mandated information where the release of the information could endanger a filer. In 2000, the Committee noted that: (1) 13 financial disclosure reports were wholly redacted because the judge was under a specific, active security threat; (2) 140 judges' reports were partially redacted (59 of which were based on specific threats; the other 81 due to general threats and the potential risk of disclosure of a family member's unsecured workplace or a residence of a judge or a judge's family); and (3) a total of 218 financial disclosure reports, which includes reports from previous years, were partially redacted.

The purpose of the annual financial disclosure reports required by the Ethics in Government Act is to increase public confidence in government officials and better enable the public to judge the performance of those officials. However, federal judges should be allowed to redact certain information from financial disclosures when they or a family member is threatened. Importantly, the practice has never interfered with the release of critical information to the public.

H.R. 2336 will eliminate the sunset in section 7 and permit the Judicial Conference to permanently redact information in financial disclosure reports where the information could endanger the filer or his or her family. H.R. 2336 is a good bill. It enjoys bipartisan support and there is no known opposition. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2336.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Gentleman yields back the balance of his time. Are there any amendments? Without any objection, any additional statements will appear in the record at this time, there being no amendments.

The report and quorum is now present. Without objection, the previous question is ordered. Further proceedings on the bill will be postponed.

Now the question—the report and quorum is now present, and the Committee will now return to the pending unfinished business upon which the previous question was ordered on H.R. 2336.

Those in favor of the motion to report the bill favorably will signify by saying aye. Opposed no. The ayes appear to have it. The ayes have it. The bill is favorably reported.

Without objection, the Chair is authorized to move to go to conference pursuant to House rules. Without objection, the staff is directed to make any technical and conforming changes and all Members will be given 2 days, as provided by House rules, in which to submit additional dissenting, supplemental or minority views.

[Intervening business.]

And the Committee is adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 8:30 p.m., the Committee was adjourned.]

Discussion

The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (P. L. 95-521) required, among other things, that certain Federal employees and officers file annual financial disclosure reports. In 1998, P.L. 105-318 amended the Ethics in Government Act to allow judicial officers and employees to redact certain personal information from financial disclosures that are released to the public, if the release of that information is deemed to present a possible security risk for them.

According to a statement made of the House floor, "reports can only be redacted to the extent necessary to protect the judge and only so long as a danger exists" and "[t]ypically, the information redacted is limited to such things as the spouse's place of work, the location of the judge's second home, or the name of a law school at which a judge may teach part time." The statement notes that six percent of the judges filing reports in 2000 had their reports redacted in whole or in part.

The authority for judicial officers and employees to redact financial disclosure statements expired on December 31, 2001. H.R. 2336 would extend this authority for four years, through December 31, 2005.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join Justice in recommending approval of H.R. 2336, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.

The Honorable Mitchell Daniels
Director
Office of Management and Budget
Washington, D.C. 20503

Dear Mr. Daniels:

This responds to your request for the views and recommendation of the Justice Department on the enrolled bill H.R. 2336, entitled "An Act to extend for 4 years, through December 31, 2005, the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers." The Justice Department recommends approval of the bill.

H.R. 2336 would extend for 4 years the provision in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 that permits judicial officers to redact information in financial disclosure reports filed by certain judicial employees and officers. We note that prior versions of the bill would have eliminated the sunset provision entirely.

The redaction authority reflects recognition of "the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails." H. Rep. No. 107-239 at 2. The authority is due to expire on December 31, 2001. The Congress undertook to repeal the sunset of redaction authority "because redactions were approved in only a limited number of cases where judges or their family members were endangered by the release of the information," id., suggesting that the authority worked properly. This being the case, we support a 4-year extension of the authority.

Thank you for the opportunity to present our views. Please feel free to call upon us if we may be of additional assistance.

Sincerely,

Handwritten signature of Daniel J. Bryant, with the text "DAB" and "for DJS" written next to it.

Discussion

The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (P. L. 95-521) required, among other things, that certain Federal employees and officers file annual financial disclosure reports. In 1998, P.L. 105-318 amended the Ethics in Government Act to allow judicial officers and employees to redact certain personal information from financial disclosures that are released to the public, if the release of that information is deemed to present a possible security risk for them.

According to a statement made of the House floor, "reports can only be redacted to the extent necessary to protect the judge and only so long as a danger exists" and "[t]ypically, the information redacted is limited to such things as the spouse's place of work, the location of the judge's second home, or the name of a law school at which a judge may teach part time." The statement notes that six percent of the judges filing reports in 2000 had their reports redacted in whole or in part.

The authority for judicial officers and employees to redact financial disclosure statements expired on December 31, 2001. H.R. 2336 would extend this authority for four years, through December 31, 2005.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join Justice in recommending approval of H.R. 2336, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.

Dear Mr. Daniels:

This responds to your request for the views and recommendation of the Justice Department on the enrolled bill H.R. 2336, entitled "An Act to extend for 4 years, through December 31, 2005, the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers." The Justice Department recommends approval of the bill.

H.R. 2336 would extend for 4 years the provision in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 that permits judicial officers to redact information in financial disclosure reports filed by certain judicial employees and officers. We note that prior versions of the bill would have eliminated the sunset provision entirely.

The redaction authority reflects recognition of "the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails." H. Rep. No. 107-239 at 2. The authority is due to expire on December 31, 2001. The Congress undertook to repeal the sunset of redaction authority "because redactions were approved in only a limited number of cases where judges or their family members were endangered by the release of the information," id., suggesting that the authority worked properly. This being the case, we support a 4-year extension of the authority.

Thank you for the opportunity to present our views. Please feel free to call upon us if we may be of additional assistance.

Sincerely,

The signature is handwritten in dark ink. It appears to read "Carl Bryant" followed by a large, stylized flourish. To the right of the signature, there is handwritten text that reads "DAB" and "for DJS".

The authority for judicial officers and employees to redact financial disclosure statements expired on December 31, 2001. H.R. 2336 would extend this authority for four years, through December 31, 2005.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join Justice in recommending approval of H.R. 2336, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.

Dear Mr. Daniels:

This responds to your request for the views and recommendation of the Justice Department on the enrolled bill H.R. 2336, entitled "An Act to extend for 4 years, through December 31, 2005, the authority to redact financial disclosure statements of judicial employees and judicial officers." The Justice Department recommends approval of the bill.

H.R. 2336 would extend for 4 years the provision in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 that permits judicial officers to redact information in financial disclosure reports filed by certain judicial employees and officers. We note that prior versions of the bill would have eliminated the sunset provision entirely.

The redaction authority reflects recognition of "the nature of the judicial function and the increased security risks it entails." H. Rep. No. 107-239 at 2. The authority is due to expire on December 31, 2001. The Congress undertook to repeal the sunset of redaction authority "because redactions were approved in only a limited number of cases where judges or their family members were endangered by the release of the information," id., suggesting that the authority worked properly. This being the case, we support a 4-year extension of the authority.

Thank you for the opportunity to present our views. Please feel free to call upon us if we may be of additional assistance.

Sincerely,
