Discussion

The Craters of the Moon National Monument, Idaho, was established in 1924 to protect the unusual landscape of the Craters of the Moon lava field. The Monument has been expanded several times by presidential proclamation, including in November 2000, when former President Clinton added approximately 661,000 acres to the 53,440-acre Monument. The November 2000 proclamation directed the DOI's National Park Service (NPS) to continue to administer the old Monument and to administer approximately 410,000 acres of the expansion area, subject to the laws and regulations applicable to the original Monument. The Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) had previously administered the entire expansion area, and retains jurisdiction over the remainder of the added acreage within the Monument.

Unlike BLM, which allows hunting on land it manages, NPS regularly prohibits hunting on land under its jurisdiction, unless hunting is specifically mandated by Congress. Consequently, one of the effects of the November 2000 proclamation has been to prohibit hunting on 410,000 acres of land where it previously had been allowed.

H.R. 601 would redesignate 410,000 acres of the Monument expansion area as the Craters of the Moon National Preserve and authorize the DOI to permit hunting in that area in accordance with applicable Federal and State laws. In consultation with the State, DOI may designate zones where, and time periods when, hunting would be prohibited for reasons of public safety, protection of the area's resources, administration, or public use and enjoyment. Any regulations prescribing such restrictions could be put into effect only after consultation with the State, except in emergencies. The enrolled bill also specifies that, except as regards hunting, the Preserve is to be administered in accordance with the November 2000 proclamation, the Antiquities Act, and applicable National Park System law.

Conclusion and Recommendations

In its views letter, DOI recommends approval, advising that the enrolled bill incorporates changes that were recommended by the Administration to improve DOI's ability to manage the site.

We join Interior in recommending approval of H.R. 601, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.

United States Department of the Interior

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, D.C. 20240

AUG 08 2002

Honorable Mitchell E. Daniels, Jr.
Director, Office of Management and Budget
Attention: Assistant Director for Legislative Reference
Washington, DC 20503

Dear Mr. Daniels:

This letter responds to your request for the views of the Department of the Interior with respect to H.R. 601, a bill to redesignate certain lands within Craters of the Moon National Monument.

We recommend that the President approve the enrolled bill.

The Department supports H.R. 601. The House-passed bill would redesignate the National Park Service (NPS) portion of the monument expansion as a national preserve and authorize the Secretary to permit hunting on those lands. The effect, therefore, would be to restore hunting to lands on which it had been allowed when they were under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM). The Department also recognizes that legislation to provide the authority for hunting within the NPS-managed portion of the monument expansion would give the Superintendent the ability to work cooperatively with the State of Idaho on issues concerning adjacent landowners. For example, hunting could be used as a tool in mitigating agricultural depredation caused by elk grazing on alfalfa crops on privately owned lands outside the monument.

Craters of the Moon National Monument was established by Proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge in 1924 for the purpose of protecting the unusual landscape of the Craters of the Moon lava field. This unusual landscape was thought to resemble the surface of the Moon and the Proclamation stated that the area "contains many curious and unusual phenomena of great educational value and has a weird and scenic landscape peculiar to itself." Between 1924 and 1962, the monument was expanded and boundary adjustments were made through four presidential proclamations. In 1996, a minor boundary adjustment was made by section 205 of the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act of 1996 (110 Stat. 4093; Public Law 104-333). On November 9, 2000, Presidential Clinton's proclamation expanded the 53,440-acre monument by adding approximately 661,287 acres of federal lands.

The expanded monument includes almost all the features of basaltic volcanism, including the craters, cones, lava flows, caves, and fissures of the 65-mile long Great Rift, a geological feature that is comparable to the great rift zones of Iceland and Hawaii. It comprises the most diverse and geologically recent part of the lava terrain that covers the southern Snake River Plain, a broad lava plain made up of innumerable basalt lava flows that erupted during the past 5 million years.

Prior to the recent proclamation, Craters of the Moon National Monument was managed solely by the National Park Service. The expansion area of the monument, however, consists of lands that had been administered by the Bureau of Land Management. The proclamation gives both agencies responsibilities for administering the monument cooperatively. The National Park Service has the primary management responsibility for the old monument, plus the approximately 400,000-acre portion of the expansion area that consists of exposed lava flows. The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for administering the remaining portion of the monument.

The proclamation specified that the NPS portion of the monument expansion is to be managed under the same laws and regulations that applied to the original monument. Since hunting has not been authorized in the original Craters of the Moon National Monument, the effect of the proclamation was to prohibit hunting in the NPS portion of the monument expansion. Although the proclamation specifies that the National Park Service has jurisdiction over the exposed lava flows, the on-the-ground reality is that there is not a precise delineation between areas of vegetation and areas of bare rock, making it difficult in many cases to determine the exact location of the boundary. For the average visitor or hunter, it would be difficult, if not impossible to distinguish whether they were on BLM lands or NPS lands, at least in the vicinity of the jurisdictional boundaries.

The Department testified in support of H.R.601 at a hearing before the House Resources Subcommittee on National Parks, Recreation, and Public Lands, on March 13, 2001. At the hearing, the Department expressed concern that the bill appeared to preclude any authority of the Secretary to exercise jurisdiction over hunting. The Department believes that the Secretary has a role to play, in cooperation with the State, to ensure that hunting is consistent with public safety, area administration, protection of the monument's resources, and public use and enjoyment of the monument. In addition, the Department noted that the bill's requirement that the Taylor Grazing Act continue to apply to the disposition of grazing fees arising from use of the expansion area was unnecessary, since no grazing occurs in the NPS portion of the expansion area and the proclamation does not affect grazing on the BLM portion.

The House-passed bill included these recommended amendments and also redesignated the NPS portion of the monument expansion as a national preserve. Designation as a national preserve is appropriate in this case because the category was established for units of the National Park System that are created primarily for the protection of certain resources, while activities such as hunting may still be allowed if they do not jeopardize the natural values. On July 31, 2001, the Department testified in support of H.R. 601, as amended, at a hearing before the Senate Energy Subcommittee on National Parks. For the reasons outlined in this letter, we are pleased to recommend the approval of H.R. 601 to the President.

Sincerely,

Discussion

The Craters of the Moon National Monument, Idaho, was established in 1924 to protect the unusual landscape of the Craters of the Moon lava field. The Monument has been expanded several times by presidential proclamation, including in November 2000, when former President Clinton added approximately 661,000 acres to the 53,440-acre Monument. The November 2000 proclamation directed the DOI's National Park Service (NPS) to continue to administer the old Monument and to administer approximately 410,000 acres of the expansion area, subject to the laws and regulations applicable to the original Monument. The Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) had previously administered the entire expansion area, and retains jurisdiction over the remainder of the added acreage within the Monument.

Unlike BLM, which allows hunting on land it manages, NPS regularly prohibits hunting on land under its jurisdiction, unless hunting is specifically mandated by Congress. Consequently, one of the effects of the November 2000 proclamation has been to prohibit hunting on 410,000 acres of land where it previously had been allowed.

H.R. 601 would redesignate 410,000 acres of the Monument expansion area as the Craters of the Moon National Preserve and authorize the DOI to permit hunting in that area in accordance with applicable Federal and State laws. In consultation with the State, DOI may designate zones where, and time periods when, hunting would be prohibited for reasons of public safety, protection of the area's resources, administration, or public use and enjoyment. Any regulations prescribing such restrictions could be put into effect only after consultation with the State, except in emergencies. The enrolled bill also specifies that, except as regards hunting, the Preserve is to be administered in accordance with the November 2000 proclamation, the Antiquities Act, and applicable National Park System law.

Conclusion and Recommendations

In its views letter, DOI recommends approval, advising that the enrolled bill incorporates changes that were recommended by the Administration to improve DOI's ability to manage the site.

We join Interior in recommending approval of H.R. 601, which passed the House by voice vote and the Senate by unanimous consent.
