Discussion

At this time, only two (i.e., Defense and Military Construction) of the thirteen FY 2003 appropriations bills have been passed by the Congress. Because only limited progress has been made on the remaining bills, an extension of the fourth continuing resolution (CR) will be necessary to ensure continued funding for government operations. H.J. Res. 124 is a clean resolution that extends the terms and conditions of the current CR until January 11, 2003. H.J. Res. 124 passed the House by a vote of 270-143 on November 13th and the Senate by unanimous consent on November 21st.

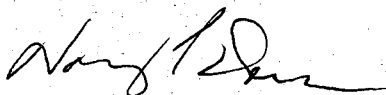

H.J. Res. 124 continues authorizations for expiring programs and funding anomalies included in the previous CRs and extends the authorization and funding for the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families and related welfare programs through the first quarter (March 31, 2003).

H.J. Res. 124 provides limited transfer authority for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The Secretary of Homeland Security is authorized to transfer $500 million in appropriations between DHS accounts through September 30, 2004. In addition, unobligated balances of not more than $140 million from funds appropriated prior to October 1, 2002, may be transferred in FY 2003 for the salaries and expenses associated with the initiation of the Department subject to certain limitations.

Recommendation

While, H.J. Res. 124 does not include language requested by the Administration to address funding anomalies for Veterans Affairs Medical Care or the reauthorization of FEMA Flood Insurance program, it is a clean CR that provides continued funding for the Government until regular appropriations bills can be approved by the Congress. Therefore, I recommend that you sign the enrolled bill.
