Epidemic: AIDS In Africa
A Proposal for an educational film about children effected by AIDS in Africa

PURPOSE

Epidemic: AIDS In Africa is a 10-minute educational film about the impact of the AIDS epidemic on children and families in Africa. People from African countries have been particularly vulnerable to the disease. Of the 30 million HIV positive people in 1996 world wide, 80% came from Africa. True to many epidemics, children and young people bear much of the burden. USAID projects that up to 40 million children will be orphaned by HIV/AIDS by the year 2010, over 90% of whom live in developing countries with few resources to provide for their care and support. The purpose of this film is to increase awareness and help improve policies about children effected by the AIDS epidemic in Africa.

TREATMENT

The film will be a verite style documentary, following characters where they lead. The thrust of the film will be two narrative stories which will be augmented by interviews from AIDS experts, health professionals, children's advocates and policy makers providing background and contextual information.

The film will go beyond the statistics and focus on how families are effected by this health care crisis. For example, we might meet Zuri, a grandmother who lives in Twapai, a small village in eastern Zambia. Zuri has already lost ten of her children and many of her grandchildren to AIDS. She now cares for her thirty-five grandchildren. Through a loan from FINCA (a village banking program), Zuri has started several small businesses and uses the extra money to feed her children and pay their school fees. She now actively participates in UWESO (United Women's Effort to Save Orphans).

Despite her relentless efforts, Zuri cannot save her family from this fatal plague. We follow Zuri to the local hospital as she visits her only surviving child, seven-year-old Suka who is sick from complications from AIDS, including Pneumonia. We witness Zuri's great inner strength as she comforts her frail child, and we feel her sorrow when Doctor Ochorro Tunya informs her that Suka may not survive. Doctor Tunya tells us that Suka may have lived longer if the proper medications had been available. They simply do not have the funds or resources to afford them. Sadly, we learn that there are many like Zuri and her family and that 30% of the people in her region have already died of AIDS and 47% are currently infected.

However, Epidemic is not simply a portrayal of want and need, sickness and suffering. For it is also an endorsement of the programs and policies which are helping people survive and preventing the crisis from spreading. It is a sympathetic and strength-giving portrait about people who are capable of love and kinship in the face of hard time.

TIMELINE

The film will be shot on Beta SP with a professional camera crew and gear. The crew will join the African Children Affected/Orphaned by AIDS delegation scheduled to visit Zambia, Uganda and South Africa between March 27- April 5, 1999. The film will be edited between April 6 - May 6, 1999 when the completed film will be delivered. The filmmakers will work with members of the delegation to produce a fact sheet/Viewer's Guide to be distributed along with the film to AIDS activists and information agencies, health care groups and children's advocates as well as educators, and legislators. The Epidemic Awareness Campaign will use the film to increase awareness about African children and AIDS. This outreach effort is based on the success of the Fire In Our House film and outreach campaign which helped create awareness about AIDS prevention in the United States and was directed by Rory Kennedy.

PERSONNEL

The film will be produced by Rory Kennedy and Liz Garbus and Directed by Rory Kennedy. Nick Doob will be the Director of Photography. Rory Kennedy has recently produced and directed American Hollow, a 90-minute documentary for HBO which received critical acclaim at the 1999 Sundance Film Festival. Liz Garbus recently completed The Farm, a non-fiction feature which is nominated for an Academy Award. Nick Doob was the Director of Photography on The War Room, American Hollow and numerous other documentaries. Epidemic will be a Moxie Firecracker film which is a documentary production company based in New York City and founded by Ms. Kennedy and Ms. Garbus.

BUDGET AND COSTS

Moxie Firecracker is seeking $40,000 to cover the total cost for the production. Supporters will receive credit in the film and will be listed on the viewer's guide and in all publicity materials.

Subject: Africa Trip

Regarding the proposed trip to Africa that resulted from the President's remarks on World AIDS Day, I wanted take the opportunity to convey my concerns about the suggestion that the mission be led by the Congress and to reiterate a brief history of this project.

First, while a congressionally driven delegation may save money, this approach could be serious trouble for us if the Republican Congress decided to get deeply involved in the politics, the policy, or the invitee list. For example, what if they decided that since they were paying for the code to Africa -- a look at the family planning programs, abortion, or other issues were also in order? Further, as you know, Dr. Coburn has taken a keen interest in HIV/AIDS, particularly with respect to women and children. Should he or any of his highly conservative colleagues seek to be part of the delegation, our inability to restrict the invite list would be problematic. Finally, those who are looking to us for leadership on this issue (i.e. the CBC and the African American and AIDS communities) would be extremely disappointed if we gave control of this process to the Republican Congress, and the trip ended up being a failure.

In the end, the idea of this trip is to advance the politics and the policy of this issue. I strongly believe that we can do just that, but our control of the process would dramatically enhance our control of the outcome. With this in mind, I continue to believe that a Presidential mission is in the best interest of the President.

In addition, I thought I would be useful to reiterate the history of how we got where we are.

On December 1, the press release issued by the White House press office specifically stated that we would "lead a fact-finding delegation" and that the "delegation would include representatives from key Congressional offices". This release created an expectation of a White House delegation including members of Congress among:

- (1) members of Congress themselves, particularly CBC members;
- (2) NGOs, advocates in the African-American, AIDS, and religious communities; and
- (3) a range of government officials and NGOs in Southern Africa.

Based on this directive, we began to receive numerous telephone calls from congressional staff and members about their desire to participate in such an effort. At that point, we drafted a proposed congressional invite list and vetted it with NSC, leg affairs, State, and USAID.

As we discussed, it was our hope to move expeditiously on the delegation, and we sought to schedule it for the period between New Year's and the beginning of 106th Congress. However, the impeachment trial, and the Iraq situation and its safety implications for African embassies, ultimately complicated taking a delegation to Africa which included members of Congress during that period.

Once we realized that it would be impossible to move forward in January, we began to tell interested congressional members (who continued to call) that due to circumstances beyond our control, the trip would have to be postponed -- perhaps until the Easter recess.

At this juncture, there is certainly an expectation on the hill that we will be leading a delegation including members of Congress to Africa some time soon.

This expectation also applies to the USAID teams and US Ambassadors in a host of African nations. Shortly after the President's World AIDS Day speech, the countries were notified -- by the State Department -- that a codel was coming to Africa. While I was there on the advance trip, all of the US Ambassadors expressed serious excitement about an upcoming delegation including members of Congress. The State staffer who accompanied us on the entire trip, engaged in these conversations, and remained genuinely supportive of the codel.

After many years of ignoring the international situation, the US AIDS community is now very focused on the pandemic in Africa. The President's AIDS Council talked with him specifically about the need for increased Administration leadership on the international AIDS front. They are returning to Washington March 15th and will be seeking updates. Given that the FY2000 budget does not provide the USAID funding increases they were looking for, being able to demonstrate our leadership in other ways would be helpful.

As Ben said at our meeting, the CBC and the African American community is actively engaged in this issue and is monitoring this project closely. We are certainly receiving many calls, letters, and emails -- and Ben says that he is as well. While they feel good about my recent trip -- they are looking to us to help build a partnership with Congress for an enhanced response.

I am scheduled to give remarks on Friday at the conference of African Americans on AIDS. This is a large gathering and will be carried on CSPAN. They are expecting me to talk about international issues and what our plan is. Even if I do not mention the delegation, it will certainly be raised in the Q & As.

The religious community including the Catholics and the Methodists have all been actively engaged in this project since World AIDS Day. They worked closely with me on my recent advance trip and continue to call frequently about our upcoming trip and how to coordinate visits to their programs in Africa.

In terms of the strategic objectives we discussed: to elevate the importance and the responsiveness to this issue in host countries; and to build a partnership for progress with the Congress; it certainly seems to me that we have not yet accomplished our goals.

All in all, I believe that this project is well worth pursuing. If we work together, I am confident that we can achieve a substantive and political win for the President.

I have attached a revised Congressional invite list as you requested. I have been hesitant to schedule the briefings we discussed until we are clearer about how we plan to proceed.

I hate to state the obvious, but we need to make a decision about this fairly quickly so that the members can make appropriate plans. We are currently looking at their departing on March 27 and retuning on April 5.

As always, thank you very much for your time and your assistance.

AIDS in Africa is a Crisis
But Presents Opportunities for Helping to Save Millions of Lives

✓ AIDS is currently hitting sub-Saharan Africa hardest.

- In sub-Saharan Africa, between 16% (South Africa) and 32% (Zimbabwe) of the adult population (15 to 49) is already HIV+.
- UNAIDS has declared HIV/AIDS in Africa “an epidemic out of control”. Each and every day, more than 16,000 additional people become HIV+; most live in sub-Saharan Africa. In South Africa alone, each day 1,500 people become HIV+.
- 87% of AIDS death to date -- 11.5 million -- have been in sub-Saharan Africa.
- By 2010, more than 40 million children will be orphaned by AIDS; 95% will live in sub-Saharan Africa.

✓ AIDS is reversing decades of progress in sub-Saharan Africa and stands as an obstacle to almost every development objective.

- In the coming decade, AIDS will reduce life expectancy in sub-Saharan Africa by 20 years, bringing life expectancy in South Africa from 60 to 40 years, and in Malawi, from 49 to 29 years.
- In the coming decade, AIDS will double infant mortality (infants under the age of 1) in many sub-Saharan Africa countries and triple child mortality (children ages 1 to 5).

✓ AIDS will not only bring unfathomable human suffering but will jeopardize the economies, the stability, and civil society of many sub-Saharan African nations.

- According to the Economist, “a recent study in Namibia estimated that AIDS cost the country almost 8% of GNP in 1996. Another analysis predicts that Kenya’s GNP will be 14.5% smaller in 2005 than it would have been without AIDS, and the per capita income will be 10% lower.”
- A report released by the World Bank last week states: “The question is, will this pandemic destroy the developing nations hard earned economic gains or will governments get their act together in time?” Clearly time is running out.
- Reports are that HIV/AIDS has hit professionals hard in sub-Saharan Africa, with a serious impact on civil servants, engineers, teachers, miners, and military personnel. Increased insurance and training costs, and disruption due to sick and bereavement leave is seriously affecting both the private and public sectors. Because advancement into management often requires an HIV test, fear of being fired often makes skilled workers remain in low level positions, thereby “decapitating” the promotion and advancement among experienced workers within a company.
- It has been reported that most sub-Saharan nations have a high HIV prevalence in their militaries, including an estimated 80% in Zimbabwe. US military officials have raised this as a serious stability concern. Uganda, the AIDS success story, turned its epidemic around because Museveni realized during the revolution that a high percentage of his soldiers were HIV+. When he became President he lead an all out war on the virus.

- A South African anti-crime institute has linked the growing number of children orphaned by AIDS to future increases in crime and civil unrest. Without appropriate intervention, many of the 2 million children projected to be orphaned by AIDS in South Africa will raise themselves on the streets, often turning to crime, drugs, commercial sex, and gangs for survival. This not only effects social stability but dramatically increasing their risk of HIV.

✓ The AIDS pandemic in sub-Saharan Africa foreshadows what lies ahead in Asia, India, and the newly independent Soviet states.

- According to UNAIDS, the worst is yet to come -- and sub-Saharan Africa provides a window on what that other parts of the world will look like. Given that the virus takes about nine years to develop into full blown AIDS, Asia and India are seen as “harboring time bombs just waiting to explode”.

✓ Determined leadership and partnership has made, and can continue to make, an extraordinary difference -- and save millions of lives.

- Uganda has been the world leader in demonstrating that even a country with limited resources and low level of literacy could turn the tide on a burgeoning epidemic. President Museveni demonstrated bold leadership early on and made every government ministry take the problem seriously, and develop and implement its own plan for reducing stigma and transmission, and caring for those who become sick.

- Uganda created an “enabling environment” for donors, such as the US, to assist in this effort. The US invested $40 million in HIV prevention in Uganda and HIV rates among pregnant women dropped from 30% in 1991 to 15% in 1995 to 8% in 1998. This is a result of: education from top officials (called the “big noise” in Uganda); sex/health education (peer counseling) in the schools, churches, everywhere else; the availability of HIV counseling and testing; and the aggressive treatment of STDs.

- Countries such as Zambia, Malawi, Uganda, and Kenya have begun to develop initiative programs to care for the growing number of children orphaned by AIDS. In the longstanding African tradition, communities are finding creative ways to support “the village” in its efforts to raise its children, but many of these villages are already overwhelmed by the growing number of orphaned children.

- Through FINCA and other micro-finance programs, women are receiving loans, starting small businesses, and with increased household incomes, taking in children orphaned by AIDS. With support of NGOs, communities are coming together to deal with school fees, nutritional assistance, immunization and oral hydration, counseling, and the range of other needs that arise for orphaned children. These efforts are low cost strategies designed to empower women, protect children, and support extended families and communities in carrying for their own. For a small fraction of the cost of one orphanage bed -- an entire community of vulnerable children can receive care. The problem is, only a very small number of children receive even this modest level of support.

- Luckily, as captured in song by young AIDS educators in Uganda, “It is never too late to lead.” The crisis of children orphaned by AIDS is a horrible but still unfolding tragedy. It will continue to worsen throughout the next decade even if there are no new infections. We know this is coming, we know what works, and this knowledge beckons us to act.

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

December 1, 1998

PRESIDENT CLINTON COMMEMORATES WORLD AIDS DAY
BY UNVEILING NEW STEPS TO ADDRESS THE
GROWING CRISIS OF CHILDREN ORPHANED BY AIDS

December 1, 1998

Today, President Clinton will join Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and Brian Atwood, Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID), to commemorate World AIDS Day by launching a series of new initiatives to address the growing crisis of HIV/AIDS around the world, particularly the millions of children orphaned by AIDS. The President will unveil historic increases in funding for research at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) designed to develop an effective AIDS vaccine and prevention strategies to help address the problem of HIV/AIDS throughout the world. He will announce new emergency funding from USAID to support international AIDS orphan programs. In addition, he will direct his AIDS policy advisor, Sandra Thurman, to lead a delegation to Sub-Saharan Africa to assess the growing problem of AIDS orphans and recommend new strategies for responding to the crisis.

USAID projects that up to 40 million children will be orphaned by HIV/AIDS by the year 2010, over 90 percent of whom live in developing countries with few resources to provide for their care and support. Over 33 million people around the world are now living with HIV or AIDS, with another 5.8 million becoming infected every year. As with so many epidemics, children and young people bear much of the terrible burden of AIDS. In the United States, as many as 80,000 children already have been orphaned by AIDS.

Increases in funding by the National Institutes of Health for research to prevent and treat HIV around the world. The National Institutes of Health will undertake the largest single public investment in AIDS research in the world by supporting a comprehensive program of basic, clinical, and behavioral research on HIV infection and its related illnesses. This program will include:

$200 million -- a 33 percent increase from last year's funding -- for research on AIDS vaccines to prevent transmission around the world. The development of a safe and effective AIDS vaccine is critical to stemming the growing problem of HIV/AIDS and AIDS orphans internationally. The President will announce that NIH will dedicate $200 million to vaccine research in Fiscal Year (FY) 1999, a $47 million or 33 percent increase over FY 1998 and an 100 percent increase over FY 1995. This investment is critical in meeting the President's challenge to develop an effective AIDS vaccine.

$164 million for other research critical to addressing the HIV/AIDS epidemic around the world. The President also will announce that NIH will invest $164 million in FY1999, a $38 million increase over last year, in critical research projects aimed at reducing the number of AIDS orphans by preventing and treating HIV/AIDS internationally. These projects will include: a new prevention trials network to reduce adult and perinatal transmission of HIV/AIDS; new strategies to prevent and treat HIV infection in children; funding to train more foreign scientists to collaborate on this epidemic; research on the prevention and treatment of the opportunistic infections, such as tuberculosis, that commonly kill people with HIV/AIDS; and research on topical microbicides and other female-controlled barrier methods of HIV prevention.

$10 million in USAID emergency relief funding to provide support for AIDS orphans. USAID will make available $10 million in emergency funding to support community-based efforts for orphans in the countries most affected by this problem. These efforts will include training and support for foster families, initiatives to keep children in school, vocational training, and nutritional enhancements. In addition, USAID will take steps to help prevent the spread of HIV from mothers to children and to improve medical care for children already infected with HIV.

* { AIDS Policy Advisor Sandra Thurman to lead fact-finding delegation to raise awareness and make recommendations to address growing problem of AIDS orphans. President Clinton will ask Sandra Thurman, Director of the Office of National AIDS Policy, to lead a fact-finding delegation early next year to Sub-Saharan Africa, where 90 percent of AIDS orphans reside. The delegation will include representatives from key Congressional offices. Its goal will be to raise awareness of this emerging problem and to develop recommendations for action.

New steps to address the continued needs of those living with HIV/AIDS in the United States. While the problem of HIV/AIDS is particularly acute internationally, the President will underscore the impact of HIV/AIDS on families in this country as well. The President will highlight an announcement today by Vice President Gore of more than $200 million in funds this year for the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program to prevent individuals affected by HIV/AIDS and their families from becoming homeless. The Vice President will announce these grants at a meeting with local community leaders who provide housing and other support services for people living with HIV/AIDS and with several individuals and families who have benefited from these services.

A solid record of achievement in HIV/AIDS. Today's announcements build on a deep and ongoing commitment by the Clinton Administration to respond to the AIDS crisis both in the United States and across the world. The Administration has fought for other critical investments in HIV/AIDS. This year alone, the President:

Declared HIV/AIDS in racial and ethnic minority communities to be a severe and ongoing health care crisis and unveiled a new $156 million initiative to address this problem. This initiative included crisis response teams, enhanced prevention efforts, and assistance in accessing state-of-the-art therapies.

Worked with Congress to secure historic increases in a wide range of effective HIV/AIDS programs. Increases this year alone include: a $262 million increase in the Ryan White CARE Act; a 12 percent increase in AIDS research funding at the NIH, totaling nearly $1.8 billion; a $32 million increase for HIV prevention programs at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and a $21 million increase in the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program at HUD.

RE: Delegation to Southern Africa Responding to AIDS Orphan Crisis

Dear Representative Houghton:

This past World AIDS Day (December 1, 1998), the President requested that I lead a trip to Southern Africa to look at the growing crisis of children orphaned by AIDS. The U.S. Agency for International Development has estimated that there will be over 40 million AIDS orphans by the year 2010, most of whom will live in sub-Saharan Africa.

I know that you have received several letters from me regarding this trip and soliciting your interest in participating. Unfortunately, because of logistical difficulties and safety concerns, the trip had to be postponed from the original January dates. The trip has now been rescheduled for the April recess, leaving March 27 and returning April 5. The current plan is to visit Zambia, Uganda, and South Africa. We believe that this schedule allows for a well rounded view of both the growing crisis and the programs that are demonstrating positive results.

I very much appreciate your patience with the necessary changes in this trip, and your continued support of efforts to address the AIDS crisis both here and across the globe. Your participation in this trip will make a world of difference and I hope you will be able to join us. Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact me or Michael Iskowitz at (202) 456-2437. Thank you for your time and your consideration.

Very truly yours,

U.S. House of Representatives

RE: Delegation to Southern Africa Responding to AIDS Orphan Crisis

Dear Representative Meek:

This past World AIDS Day (December 1, 1998), the President requested that I lead a trip to Southern Africa to look at the growing crisis of children orphaned by AIDS. The U.S. Agency for International Development has estimated that there will be over 40 million AIDS orphans by the year 2010, most of whom will live in sub-Saharan Africa.

Because of logistical difficulties and safety concerns, it has been difficult to schedule this trip. However, it has now been scheduled for the April recess, leaving March 27 and returning April 5. The current plan is to visit Zambia, Uganda, and South Africa. We believe that this schedule allows for a well-rounded view of both the growing crisis and the programs that are demonstrating positive results.

While I realize that this is short notice, I would very much appreciate it if you would give strong consideration to joining us. Your participation in this trip will make a world of difference. Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact me or Michael Iskowitz at (202) 456-2437. Thank you for your time and your consideration, as well as your continued support of efforts to address the AIDS crisis both here and across the globe.

Very truly yours,

Sandra L. Thurman

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

December 1, 1998

PRESIDENT CLINTON COMMEMORATES WORLD AIDS DAY
BY UNVEILING NEW STEPS TO ADDRESS THE
GROWING CRISIS OF CHILDREN ORPHANED BY AIDS

December 1, 1998

Today, President Clinton will join Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and Brian Atwood, Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID), to commemorate World AIDS Day by launching a series of new initiatives to address the growing crisis of HIV/AIDS around the world, particularly the millions of children orphaned by AIDS. The President will unveil historic increases in funding for research at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) designed to develop an effective AIDS vaccine and prevention strategies to help address the problem of HIV/AIDS throughout the world. He will announce new emergency funding from USAID to support international AIDS orphan programs. In addition, he will direct his AIDS policy advisor, Sandra Thurman, to lead a delegation to Sub-Saharan Africa to assess the growing problem of AIDS orphans and recommend new strategies for responding to the crisis.

USAID projects that up to 40 million children will be orphaned by HIV/AIDS by the year 2010, over 90 percent of whom live in developing countries with few resources to provide for their care and support. Over 33 million people around the world are now living with HIV or AIDS, with another 5.8 million becoming infected every year. As with so many epidemics, children and young people bear much of the terrible burden of AIDS. In the United States, as many as 80,000 children already have been orphaned by AIDS.

Increases in funding by the National Institutes of Health for research to prevent and treat HIV around the world. The National Institutes of Health will undertake the largest single public investment in AIDS research in the world by supporting a comprehensive program of basic, clinical, and behavioral research on HIV infection and its related illnesses. This program will include:

$200 million -- a 33 percent increase from last year's funding -- for research on AIDS vaccines to prevent transmission around the world. The development of a safe and effective AIDS vaccine is critical to stemming the growing problem of HIV/AIDS and AIDS orphans internationally. The President will announce that NIH will dedicate $200 million to vaccine research in Fiscal Year (FY) 1999, a $47 million or 33 percent increase over FY 1998 and an 100 percent increase over FY 1995. This investment is critical in meeting the President's challenge to develop an effective AIDS vaccine.

$164 million for other research critical to addressing the

HIV/AIDS epidemic around the world. The President also will announce that NIH will invest $164 million in FY1999, a $38 million increase over last year, in critical research projects aimed at reducing the number of AIDS orphans by preventing and treating HIV/AIDS internationally. These projects will include: a new prevention trials network to reduce adult and perinatal transmission of HIV/AIDS; new strategies to prevent and treat HIV infection in children; funding to train more foreign scientists to collaborate on this epidemic; research on the prevention and treatment of the opportunistic infections, such as tuberculosis, that commonly kill people with HIV/AIDS; and research on topical microbicides and other female-controlled barrier methods of HIV prevention.

$10 million in USAID emergency relief funding to provide support for AIDS orphans. USAID will make available $10 million in emergency funding to support community-based efforts for orphans in the countries most affected by this problem. These efforts will include training and support for foster families, initiatives to keep children in school, vocational training, and nutritional enhancements. In addition, USAID will take steps to help prevent the spread of HIV from mothers to children and to improve medical care for children already infected with HIV.

* { AIDS Policy Advisor Sandra Thurman to lead fact-finding delegation to raise awareness and make recommendations to address growing problem of AIDS orphans. President Clinton will ask Sandra Thurman, Director of the Office of National AIDS Policy, to lead a fact-finding delegation early next year to Sub-Saharan Africa, where 90 percent of AIDS orphans reside. The delegation will include representatives from key Congressional offices. Its goal will be to raise awareness of this emerging problem and to develop recommendations for action.

New steps to address the continued needs of those living with HIV/AIDS in the United States. While the problem of HIV/AIDS is particularly acute internationally, the President will underscore the impact of HIV/AIDS on families in this country as well. The President will highlight an announcement today by Vice President Gore of more than $200 million in funds this year for the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program to prevent individuals affected by HIV/AIDS and their families from becoming homeless. The Vice President will announce these grants at a meeting with local community leaders who provide housing and other support services for people living with HIV/AIDS and with several individuals and families who have benefited from these services.

A solid record of achievement in HIV/AIDS. Today's announcements build on a deep and ongoing commitment by the Clinton Administration to respond to the AIDS crisis both in the United States and across the world. The Administration has fought for other critical investments in HIV/AIDS. This year alone, the President:

Declared HIV/AIDS in racial and ethnic minority communities to be a severe and ongoing health care crisis and unveiled a new $156 million initiative to address this problem. This initiative included crisis response teams, enhanced prevention efforts, and assistance in accessing state-of-the-art therapies.

Worked with Congress to secure historic increases in a wide range of effective HIV/AIDS programs. Increases this year alone include: a $262 million increase in the Ryan White CARE Act; a 12 percent increase in AIDS research funding at the NIH, totaling nearly $1.8 billion; a $32 million increase for HIV prevention programs at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and a $21 million increase in the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program at HUD.

Subject: Delegation visit

Greetings all Some thoughts, comments, and requests vis a vis the upcoming delegation ...

URGENT request is item No. 5

1. Timing -- I am assuming that the delegation will arrive on Thursday April 1 and leave on Sunday, April 4th.
2. Size -- We may have to break up the delegation into two or more groups if the size is too large - we have talked to Durban site visit hosts and they feel that 10-12 would be max. One question I have with regard to this is whether additional folks will attache themselves to the group, fly by regular commercial airlines
3. Press -- several of the potential sites have told us in no uncertain terms, no press.
4. Site Visits -- in spite of the holiday weekend, most people are willing to accomodate a site visit. We could do Baragwanath and Hope Worldwide on Friday, and then travel to Durban; On Saturday, do several sites around Durban Pietermaritzberg on Saturday, and then travel to Cape Town. On Sunday, we will try to get a township based Easter Sunday event with religious leaders and a discussion of AIDS. Rest of Sunday will be free, and they will leave late Sunday nite for the U.S.
5. Cables -- PLEASE - ASAP - a cable through State, even if the dates and names of individulas are tentative -- Embassy needs to start working on landing permits and such with the SA Air Force.
6. Point of contact -- Nellie Gqwaru and Lulama Makena from our office will be working on the logistics.
7. Meetings -- given that the visit will take place during the holiday weekend, it is possible that meetings with high level dignitaries will not be possible.

The development of a safe and effective AIDS vaccine is critical to stemming the growing problem of HIV/AIDS and AIDS orphans internationally. The President will announce that NIH will dedicate $200 million to vaccine research in Fiscal Year (FY) 1999, a $47 million or 33 percent increase over FY 1998 and an 100 percent increase over FY 1995. This investment is critical in meeting the President's challenge to develop an effective AIDS vaccine.

$164 million for other research critical to addressing the

HIV/AIDS epidemic around the world. The President also will announce that NIH will invest $164 million in FY1999, a $38 million increase over last year, in critical research projects aimed at reducing the number of AIDS orphans by preventing and treating HIV/AIDS internationally. These projects will include: a new prevention trials network to reduce adult and perinatal transmission of HIV/AIDS; new strategies to prevent and treat HIV infection in children; funding to train more foreign scientists to collaborate on this epidemic; research on the prevention and treatment of the opportunistic infections, such as tuberculosis, that commonly kill people with HIV/AIDS; and research on topical microbicides and other female-controlled barrier methods of HIV prevention.

$10 million in USAID emergency relief funding to provide support for AIDS orphans. USAID will make available $10 million in emergency funding to support community-based efforts for orphans in the countries most affected by this problem. These efforts will include training and support for foster families, initiatives to keep children in school, vocational training, and nutritional enhancements. In addition, USAID will take steps to help prevent the spread of HIV from mothers to children and to improve medical care for children already infected with HIV.

AIDS Policy Advisor Sandra Thurman to lead fact-finding delegation to raise awareness and make recommendations to address growing problem of AIDS orphans. President Clinton will ask Sandra Thurman, Director of the Office of National AIDS Policy, to lead a fact-finding delegation early next year to Sub-Saharan Africa, where 90 percent of AIDS orphans reside. The delegation will include representatives from key Congressional offices. Its goal will be to raise awareness of this emerging problem and to develop recommendations for action.

New steps to address the continued needs of those living with HIV/AIDS in the United States. While the problem of HIV/AIDS is particularly acute internationally, the President will underscore the impact of HIV/AIDS on families in this country as well. The President will highlight an announcement today by Vice President Gore of more than $200 million in funds this year for the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program to prevent individuals affected by HIV/AIDS and their families from becoming homeless. The Vice President will announce these grants at a meeting with local community leaders who provide housing and other support services for people living with HIV/AIDS and with several individuals and families who have benefited from these services.

A solid record of achievement in HIV/AIDS. Today's announcements build on a deep and ongoing commitment by the Clinton Administration to respond to the AIDS crisis both in the United States and across the world. The Administration has fought for other critical investments in HIV/AIDS. This year alone, the President:

Declared HIV/AIDS in racial and ethnic minority communities to be a severe and ongoing health care crisis and unveiled a new $156 million initiative to address this problem. This initiative included crisis response teams, enhanced prevention efforts, and assistance in accessing state-of-the-art therapies.

Worked with Congress to secure historic increases in a wide range of effective HIV/AIDS programs. Increases this year alone include: a $262 million increase in the Ryan White CARE Act; a 12 percent increase in AIDS research funding at the NIH, totaling nearly $1.8 billion; a $32 million increase for HIV prevention programs at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and a $21 million increase in the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS (HOPWA) program at HUD.

SUBJECT Africa Trip

I know how busy you are, but at some point we need to get together on your upcoming trip.

The posts are coming in with a lot of questions, arrival times, schedule, fund cites, etc. I would very much like to be able to respond to them as soon as possible. I don't want anything to fall through the cracks for you, so that your trip runs smoothly and efficiently.

I have not had a response from the appropriate people regarding in country costs for the two press people. I have gone over some very general figures and I can provide you with a very rough estimate as to the cost:

Hotels, meals and in-country transportation for Zambia, Uganda and South Africa: $2,500.00

The above figure is a very, very rough estimate.

Items:

Visas are required for all three countries.

luggage tags for the delegates delegation list

plane manifest for AFB

meals for the aircraft

detailed schedule with times and greeters (with flying times and refueling stops - I will provide) will there be any arrival/departure statements?

what arrangements have been made for meals?

will cash be required to cover some of these meals?

any gifts?

interpreters?

will you have questionnaires for the delegates to complete?
(I have if you need) embassy contacts?

this is just a sampling of things I would very much like to go over at your convenience. I would like to send out a funding cable this week.

Many thanks, Maria

Subject: Delegation visit

Greetings all Some thoughts, comments, and requests vis a vis the upcoming delegation ...

URGENT request is item No. 5

1. Timing -- I am assuming that the delegation will arrive on Thursday April 1 and leave on Sunday, April 4th.
2. Size -- We may have to break up the delegation into two or more groups if the size is too large - we have talked to Durban site visit hosts and they feel that 10-12 would be max. One question I have with regard to this is whether additional folks will attache themselves to the group, fly by regular commercial airlines
3. Press -- several of the potential sites have told us in no uncertain terms, no press.
4. Site Visits -- in spite of the holiday weekend, most people are willing to accomodate a site visit. We could do Baragwanath and Hope Worldwide on Friday, and then travel to Durban; On Saturday, do several sites around Durban Pietermaritzberg on Saturday, and then travel to Cape Town. On Sunday, we will try to get a township based Easter Sunday event with religious leaders and a discussion of AIDS. Rest of Sunday will be free, and they will leave late Sunday nite for the U.S.
5. Cables -- PLEASE - ASAP - a cable through State, even if the dates and names of individulas are tentative -- Embassy needs to start working on landing permits and such with the SA Air Force.
6. Point of contact -- Nellie Gqwaru and Lulama Makena from our office will be working on the logistics.
7. Meetings -- given that the visit will take place during the holiday weekend, it is possible that meetings with high level dignitaries will not be possible.
