To the attention: Director Sandra Thurman

Dear Director,

We are writing to you from Radio 24, the national italian radio of the most read financial newspaper in Europe, "Il Sole 24Ore".

I work in the staff of our daily peak programme, called "Viva Voce", on air every morning from 9 to 10 a.m. (italian time), dealing with hard news.

This program is presented by Giancarlo Santalmassi, our most important journalist.

We are putting together for the next Tuseday (6th June) a program on the problem of Aids in the world. Our starting point will be the recent speech of the U.S. President Bill Clinton, in which Aids was indicated as a great threat for the world security.

That is why it would be very useful for us to record an interview (just two or three questions for ten minutes) with you about what we should expect now from United States as far as the political and medical strategies in the world are concerned.

Your opinion, as you can imagine, would be very precious for us.

We hope you will be able to accept our invitation.

Best Regards
