THIS PAST WEEK:

- o Rural rollout:
 1. Disseminated the rural document to over 30 senior and labor groups, 27 Medicaid groups, over 75 national rural groups, and the 50 state rural health offices.
 2. Rural hospital conference call with six rural hospital included press conference and rural health forums at each of the six hospitals to emphasize the devastating impact of hte GOP cuts (total press report yet to come).
 3. The following states provided statewide press coverage and activities on behalf of the rural conference call: Florida, California, Iowa, Missouri, New York, Vermont, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.
- o AMA reaction:
 1. Worked with Citizens Action, the National Council of Senior Citizens, and the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare to release statements responding to the AMA action.
 2. In addition, the Am. College of Physician, and Am. Academy of Pediatrics offered to be available for press calls to on their opposition to AMA action.
 3. And finally, we met with several phsyicians and hospital groups (led by the Am. College of physicians) to discuss their holding a press conference this week in opposition to the GOP cuts and to show that the AMA and AHA do not speak for all physician and hospital groups.
- o Continued Group Activity:
 1. Nat. Council of Senior Citizens will hold a regional conference on Medicare adn Medicaid in Orlando on Tuesday.
 2. Save Our Security and AFL-CIO will sponsor a Medicare hearing in Ft. Lauderdale on Tuesday with Sen. Graham.

3. Disabilities Groups will hold candlelight vigil on October 18 at 7:00pm at the Capitol to show opposition to the Medicaid and Medicare cuts.

- o Medicare/Medicaid Ads:

- 1. Am. Academy of Pediatrics and Nat. Assn., of Children's Hospitals began a print ad campaign.

- 2. Save America's Families Coalition (AFSCME and NCSC) have announced their plan to fund another $750,000 in TV ads opposing medicaid/medicare.

- 3. AARP began their Medicaid print ads.

- 4. Am. Hospital Assn. is prepared to begin Medicaid ads.

- o Policy meetings:

- 1. Chris Jennings, Jack Ebeler, Jennifer Klein and I met with the American Hospital Assn to discuss Democratic options - they remain convinced the GOP proposals serve them better.

- 2. Nancy Ann Min, Chris Jennings and I met with the Federation of Am. Health Systems (for-profit hospitals) to discuss policy options, but they remain convinced the GOP proposals serve them better.

- 3. Met with the New York Hospitals who oppose the GOP Medicare/Medicaid proposals and are public attack efforts.

- 4. Met with Western Dental, a primary care dental group in California who oppose the GOP Medicaid proposal - talked about their opposition activities.

- o Children's Week:

- Talked with several children's groups about potential ideas for a week to focus on children (week of 23rd) and about their data and impact numbers. CDF is sending their material which is already broken down state by state.,

Do you have the answers?

----- [Original Message] -----

Marianne/Kathy -- I'm just trying to think of all the questions they will be asking me, so I can pre-emptively include them in my memo...

- What is this event? A speech? Dinner? Clutch?
- Any idea how many people? What kinds?
- Are we at a table or is just chairs (speech/lecture style)?
- VPOTUS? POTUS? Any other notable folks speaking?

Thanks very, very much -- and sorry I didn't think of all this when we were on the phone....

PS Did you see any piece of the Million Man march? What was it like?

Opening the Labor Movement to Women and Minorities

NEW YORK (AP) John Sweeney learned about diversity at his working-class parochial school nearly 50 years ago. Students were seated in alphabetical order, and the Arthur Sweeney next to him was black.

``I didn't have to go too far to appreciate civil rights and all the equality issues,'' Sweeney said. ``One Sweeney was as good as another.''

Sweeney and incumbent AFL-CIO President Thomas Donahue are locked in a bitter fight to control the 13.3 million-member federation this week. But there's no argument between these 60-something white males about the need to involve more women and minorities in the labor movement.

Convention delegates began taking up several proposals Wednesday aimed at getting blacks, Latinos and women involved at all levels of the federation.

``If we don't come out of this convention with a solid expression of diversity, with some ways of showing the faces of our membership at the highest levels of the governance of the AFL-CIO, we will have failed,'' said Sweeney, president of the Service Employees International Union, the federation's third-largest union, with more than 1 million members.

The federation hierarchy traditionally has been a bastion of older white males who dealt with internal politics privately. But there's nothing traditional about this year's convention.

``To restore this federation to its rightful place at the center of national life and destiny, we must make the right choices today,'' Donahue said. ``We must build a movement that's broadly reflective of the work force, and serves their interests always.''

Of the federation's 78 affiliated unions, only three, representing professional athletes, school administrators and government employees, are led by black men. Just two, representing flight attendants and retail workers, are led by women.

Two of the black men are on the federation's 35-member executive council. Three women, including one black and one Hispanic, serve on the council.

One of the proposals being discussed would increase the executive council by six seats that would be designated for women and minorities.

Others would expand the executive council to all 78 affiliated unions, and use some of the extra seats to ensure that the council adequately represented the diversity of their workers.

Sweeney wants to create a new position, executive vice president, and give it to Linda Chavez-Thompson, who is running in the third slot on his ticket. Donahue chose a woman, Barbara Easterling, as his secretary-treasurer.

Many on the Donahue side suggest a new position smacks of tokenism, and that if Sweeney were sincere about diversity he would have chosen a woman or a minority, instead of United Mine Workers President Rich Trumka, to run for the No. 2 slot on his ticket.

``We really wanted to clearly show that we were committed to establishing this third officer, not only for the outreach, but also to reflect the diversity of the federation,'' Sweeney said in reply.

Union officials recognize they must organize more women and minorities if organized labor is to have any chance of gaining more influence.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the number of women age 16 and older in the work force grew from about 40 million to 51 million between 1983 and 1994, but the percentage of women who were union members dropped from 14.6 percent to 12.9 percent.

Black and Hispanic workers over 16 years old numbered 13.8 million in 1983 and 22.2 million in 1994. Union membership among blacks and Hispanics dropped from 24.1 percent to 17.4 percent during the same period.

Lenore Miller, president of the 75,000-member Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, said fighting for issues such as child care ``will bring people into the movement.''

John Sturdivant, president of the 153,000-member American Federation of Government Employees, who is black, said training minorities to be effective labor leaders at the local level is as important as opening up the federation's top ranks.

``As they develop those skills and abilities, there will be less opposition to electing them to top positions,'' he said.

Sturdivant says he needs to recruit 35,000 new union members each year to maintain membership rolls, so reaching out to minorities is ``a survival issue.'' Having representatives who are women and minorities helps.

``It helps if you send people to do the organizing who look like the people you're trying to organize,'' he said.

On Monday, October 30 (next week) the AFL-CIO and senior groups have put together another one of their Medicare/Medicaid hearings in Atlanta, GA from 10 -12 noon.

As you know they have been putting these together for three months and have generated a good amount of regional press when they happen. With each event they have asked for a cabinet secretary, and as you may recall we have not been successful (I have not been able to get someone since early August, and their most recent one was in Miami Florida, a great location, but I could not get anyone to go [despite your call to Reich, Erskine]).

I have asked cabinet affairs to put a priority on getting someone to the atlanta event on Monday, and suggested either Reno or Jamie Gorelick to focus on Fraud and Abuse (since Gingrich is particularly vulnerable on this issue).

Cabinet affairs (Ann Maguire) has asked me whether this is a budget group priority and I have told them that it was - it would help if any or all of you could add your support to my effort, so that Cabinet affairs indeed knows this is a priority.

October 25, 1995

Mr. John J. Sweeney
International President
Service Employees International
Union, AFL-CIO, CLC
1313 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005

Dear John:

Thank you for your recent letter on the importance of providing worker protections as part of welfare reform. I agree that welfare reform is about helping people to work their way out of poverty, not pitting low-income workers off against one another. As you know, the welfare reform legislation I sent Congress last year, the Work and Responsibility Act of 1994, included strong provisions to prevent displacement. My Administration will make every effort to ensure that the House-Senate welfare reform conference incorporates and strengthens the anti-displacement protections in the Senate-passed bill. My Administration is also concerned that there be safeguards to ensure program integrity and accountability for federal funds. We would support stronger measures to guard against possible program abuses, including audits of nongovernmental organizations, provisions to safeguard confidentiality, and provisions for competitive bidding.

Secretary Shalala has made these concerns clear in her views letter to the House and Senate welfare reform conferees. We look forward to working with you to see that the conference produces the best possible bill with respect to these and other areas of mutual concern.

Thank you for your letter.

Sincerely,

Jack Joyce, President, Bricklayers

The top 3 are in priority order. I am not sure the order of the last three. I know we only have four to invite. But you can go with this list and we will invite four of them -- so if one of the top three can't go, then probably Barry and Moore will both be invited. Subject: Student Aid Hotline Update

The Alliance for Student Aid Phone number, 1-800-574-4AID, has recently begun charging individuals for the calls they place on that line. If students or others plan on using it for call-ins, they may want to consider other alternatives.

The AFL-CIO has two numbers, 1-800-962-3524 and 1-800-972-3524, that are in use for a limited time. Students and others should try them before using them for call-ins.

The final number is the Capitol switchboard, 1-800-962-3524, which is generally busy due to the high volume of calls.

Don't forget that you can always call members of Congress directly in Washington, (202) 224-3121 or in the district office (just check your white pages under U.S. Government).

Thank you for your time and effort on this issue.

There are a few issues the AFL-CIO needs answers to today. Could you please run these by Harold and get back to me before you guys leave. Thanks.

1. Sweeney wants to meet with Harold and Leon, face to face, this week on the upcoming budget negotiations. He stressed the "this week" part. Does Harold want to do this? Should I go ahead and schedule with Jen? Does Harold want it to be someone other than Leon (i.e. Rivlin, Tyson, etc?). I should let them know by the end of the day if this can happen this week, or if it needs to be next week or if it needs to be with other people.

2. The AFL is TODAY making final decisions on their activities for the endgame of this budget stuff. Jerry is going to walk me through it. I assume it will involve advertisements, grassroots activities, etc. Who should I check this plan with in the WH? Does Harold want to be in on it? McCurry? Sperling? Sosnik?

3. The AFL needs this week to decide whether to have merely an Executive Council meeting in January, or a whole Board meeting. They need to have one or the other and need to decide which. They will only have the EC meeting (which is smaller) unless we agree that it would be good for them to endorse in January. If so, they would have a full board meeting in January and endorse then. So the question for us, is when do we want an AFL endorsement -- and we need to let them know so they can mail the right invitations out to their January meeting.

If Harold knows already the answer, please e-mail me back.

Otherwise, let me know who I should check with who should be the decisionmakers on this question.

Thanks.

There are a few things I wanted to raise at 11:00 and then at 12:30 (John tried to reschedule the 11am) and now won't get to raise, I assume, until it is too late, so let me pass them on to you:

1. Timber. There are some technical changes to the language that Justice has made. I will type them up so Harold can have them at his 3:00pm meeting. He should read them beforehand.
2. Tobacco. Harold is coming to the 4pm tobacco meeting. They haven't seen him in a month or two so they will be looking for vision. In particular, they will ask him about whether they can let the Synar regulation go, and they will try to engage him in a substantive discussion about the merits.

[REDACTED] (b)(6)

[REDACTED] (b)(6)

[REDACTED] (b)(6) So it would be helpful for him to read my 2 page memo of November 9 on this subject. Then he can have the substantive discussion and say, perhaps, that he wants to chat with Leon about it and get back to them, and explain that the reason the decision is not yet made here is that everyone was dealing with the budget.

- [REDACTED] (b)(6)
3. AFL-CIO and POTUS. Harold asked me yesterday to draft a note to the President to ask when he wants to have the AFL-CIO endorsement. I did that and figured I could go over it with him earlier today. I thought that would mean I could then deliver it to Staff Secretary and be done with it. As it is getting late, I will have Daniel walk it over to him and won't wait to discuss it with him. The decision needs to be made as soon as possible, so please have him look at it and get it to the President today.

4. The other issue which is not critical to a particular time today, but which has been languishing since Friday is the unions and delegate selection. I need to go over with him the list of meetings he wants to personally participate in. I gave him the list that we collectively should participate in prior to his Sweeney meeting. But I need to know if he wants to do them all or if Jeff Forbes, Doug and I can do some alone. It's a lot of meetings.

Yes, I did discuss it with Rosenthal. I think Harold will disagree with his advice.

Here's the long list of people we collectively should meet with. Stev thinks Harold only personally should do the first two. He thinks Doug and I and Forbes should do the others without Harold.

regarding your e-mail:

1. we have since added language on nursing home standards.
2. we did not include language on forcing state and local employees to pay medicare taxes; we actually proposed that in the health security act, and we don't necessarily oppose it at this point.
3. we can't talk about changing CPI; that's just too politically hot and it could only get us in trouble. the president has said publicly that a CPI change could be part of a deal (though i know labor opposes it).
4. republicans did not eliminate TAA benefits, so we have nothing to complain about.

WHITE HOUSE WEIGHS VETO OF NHS BILL, BUT CLINTON STILL EXPECTED TO SIGN
Although some administration officials have reportedly been urging a veto of the National Highway System bill, President Clinton appeared likely Nov. 27 to sign the measure into law soon, thereby freeing up billions in highway construction funds.

While the administration remains concerned about the legislation's repeal of the federal speed limit and other highway safety laws, officials said late in the day that Clinton may sign the bill (S 440) as early as Nov. 28 in order for the funds to begin flowing to the states.

With the deadline for enacting the bill already two months old, the White House is under pressure to approve the legislation and allow FY 1996 funds for the NHS and the interstate highway system to become available to the states. But officials also have been lobbied in recent days to veto the bill in order to prevent the safety law repeals from going into effect.

Key administration officials met at the White House Nov. 27 to discuss the fate of the bill, including Federal Highway Administrator Rodney Slater, who earlier urged quick enactment of the bill. Although others raised concerns about the impact of the safety provisions, following the meeting officials were more optimistic that the president ultimately would sign the legislation, possibly before leaving late Nov. 28 for a European trip.

The president was urged Nov. 27 by numerous transportation industry groups to sign the bill, with the Keep America Moving coalition saying in a letter that the delay the enacting the NHS has caused several states to put off highway projects because of insufficient funds. ''Those delays translate into lost jobs and a growing backlog of highway safety projects,'' the coalition said in the letter.

Repeal Of Speed Limit Under Attack

While the legislation remains on hold, states cannot receive any of their FY 1996 NHS or interstate maintenance funds. The funds have been withheld since Congress missed the Sept. 30 deadline for designating the priority road system.

Although earlier the administration expressed support for the bill, in more recent days it raised concerns about the bill's repeal of the federal speed limit, as well as other provisions to abolish the program that encourages states to enact mandatory motorcycle helmet laws. The administration has also been under pressure from highway safety and insurance industry groups to veto the bill, with safety advocates saying that the bill could result in thousands of additional highway deaths and injuries (226 DER A-19, 11/24/95).

Since it appeared likely that Congress this year would endorse repealing the 20-year-old federal speed limit, several states have taken steps to allow higher limits. Many are poised to increase maximum speeds to 70 m.p.h. or higher.

Addition criticism was lodged recently by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters AFL-CIO, which called on the White House Nov. 21 to veto the NHS bill. In particular, the union raised concerns about the bill's provisions that could exempt nearly two million trucks -- or 40 percent of all commercial motor vehicles -- from federal safety rules. The vehicles that would be affected by the provision are small and medium size trucks weighing between 10,000 and 26,000 pounds.

Highway Groups Respond To Criticisms

Fearing that the bill was endangered by the various urgings for a presidential veto, highway groups then mounted their own lobbying campaign, calling on Clinton to sign the measure quickly.

In the Nov. 27 letter, KAM officials said the legislation has broad bipartisan support on Capitol Hill, suggesting that a presidential veto might be easily overridden. Among other things, S 440 was approved 80-16 in the Senate. In the House, it was approved by unanimous consent after little debate.

The coalition said the NHS actually could save lives because it will result in lane widening, clear zone enhancements, improved road alignments and other improvements that cut down on accidents.

Since the Sept. 30 deadline was missed, $5.2 billion in FY 1996 funds have been withheld from the states, KAM said. During those eight weeks, several states have delayed bid-lettings, causing projects to be put off and jobs to be lost, it said.

Among the groups signing the letter to Clinton were the American Trucking Associations, the Associated General Contractors, the Highway Users Federation, and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile, other groups also called on the president to sign the bill, with the American Road & Transportation Builders Association saying in a Nov. 27 letter that freeing up the NHS funds is crucial to current and future employment in the construction industry. NHS funds also are key to designing and building safety improvements into the nation's most heavily traveled roads, ARTBA said.-- By Nancy Ognanovich

Fred Feinstein, the General Counsel of the NLRB, came to see Harold earlier this week. He laid out the devastating cuts the House gave the NLRB, and the basic impossibility of carrying out the NLRB's statutory mandates if the Senate and/or the President doesn't restore the funding. He also talked about some riders that would limit the NLRB's ability to issue injunctions. I gather all of these provisions are on the Labor-HHS approps bill. Separately, the AFL-CIO has been in to talk about their important issues, and the NLRB's funds and riders always come up. These issues were on a list given to Leon and Harold when John Sweeney came in to see them this past Tuesday.

Could you let me know what our administration position is on the NLRB cuts specifically: are we pushing for full restoration? Would it be on the list of reasons we veto the bill? Where does this issue rank? What's your prognosis for where the NLRB will land at the end of the day? Also -- is there a particular person on your staff I can check in with periodically to see where this is?

Thanks!

I spoke with Ed Wytkind of the AFL-CIO's Transportation Trades Department - they are working with START to address rail labor concerns with the ICC bill. In his view they have "at least" 200 votes in the House. I asked him how they would get around membership's fear of voting against "the elimination of an agency," and he said this would be a "labor vote." A vote for the conference report would be viewed as "anti-labor." They want the current law labor protection levels. Barring that, they want the Whitfield levels. While they "wouldn't object" to our pushing for merger review standards changes and elimination of anti-trust immunities, and the wasteful board, those issues will not be their focus.

However, it is uncertain how they could get current law given that Congressmen Whitfield and Quinn have both rejected current law as a suitable outcome.

I'll let you know what I learn as the day wears on. I am going to try to get a hold of a copy of the conference bill (400 pages) and report (100 pages).

Hi Ed --

I'm on Harold Ickes' staff and handle labor issues for him. He received a letter from the Metropolitan Washington Council of the AFL-CIO asking him to help set up a meeting between organized labor and Andrew Brimmer and other members of the Control Bd. The unions allege that there is arbitrary treatment of union workers in the DC govt, and, apparently, Brimmer won't meet with them. If it is appropriate, Harold would like to be helpful. The unions asked him to pull everyone in here for a meeting. I doubt that makes sense since he is not involved in any of these issues. But perhaps we could get them together independently, or perhaps you (or someone else here) are the right person to convene such a meeting.

What's your take on this -- what can or should we do?

FROM: RAY MARTINEZ

SUBJECT: OREGON SENATE RACE

The race appears to be tight between Ron Wyden (D) and Gordon Smith (R). Wyden tracking polls at the end of last week showing the two candidates even at 39%.

Wyden and Smith have agreed to two televised debates to be held later this month. The first debate is scheduled for January 7 and will take place in Medford, Oregon. The second debate will be held in Portland on January 14. Both debates will be televised to a statewide audience. A possible third debate, hosted by the Portland City Club tentatively scheduled for January 5 has been put on hold due to Rep. Wyden's congressional schedule in D.C.

The National Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee (NRSCC) filed a federal election complaint last week alleging that labor and abortion rights groups are planning to mount illegal campaigns on behalf of Wyden. The NRSCC has accused the AFL and the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League (NARAL) of planning to spend large amounts of money on independent campaigns to support Wyden. The complaint also charges that because Wyden's campaign manager, Amy Chapman, has strong ties to organized labor, any spending by the AFL behalf of Wyden should be considered illegal. The Wyden campaign has called the allegation by the NRSCC "totally false."

Retiring Senator Mark Hatfield (R) endorsed Smith in a television ad aired during the Christmas holidays. The endorsement comes as somewhat of a surprise, since Smith had been severely critical of Hatfield for casting the decisive Senate vote against a balanced budget amendment earlier this year. The endorsement is seen as a boost for Smith among moderate Republicans and conservative Democrats who've crossed party lines to vote for Hatfield in the past.

In other campaign events, a Portland television station recently threatened legal action against the Smith campaign for using footage which the station deemed a "violation of copyright laws."

The controversy started when the Smith campaign produced a television ad which used footage of Democratic candidate Ron Wyden's inability to answer questions in a now

-notorious "pop quiz." KOIN

-TV, which originally shot the footage, had said that such unauthorized use of its material violated legal copyright protections. The television station has since backed

-off it's legal claim, and the Smith campaign continues to run the ad in a heavy buy rotation.

Both campaigns are receiving extensive surrogate help. Jack Kemp and Senator Fred Thompson (R

-TN) were in Oregon last week campaigning with Smith. Meanwhile, former Texas Governor Ann Richards (D) is expected to travel to Oregon for an evening fundraiser on January 15 with Wyden. Also on January 15, Senator Barbara Boxer will be in Oregon to campaign with Wyden, while Senator Bob Kerrey is expected to travel to Oregon this weekend.

THE WOMEN'S NEWSLETTER

NUMBER: 4

THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICE FOR WOMEN'S INITIATIVES AND OUTREACH
JANUARY 3, 1996

"At stake (in the budget debate) is far more than just numbers and abstract programs and proposals and far more than the normal political debates in Washington. This debate is about people, the lives they lead, the hopes they have, the desires they have for a better life."

-- President Clinton, December 9, 1995, Radio Address

President Fights for a Budget

Good for Women and Families

President Clinton continues to fight to balance the budget and to prevent wrongheaded cuts and misplaced priorities that will unfairly hurt women and families.

The President's fight for Medicare and Medicaid is especially important to women:

- o Of the 37 million Medicare recipients, over 20 million, or 57 percent are women.
- o Nearly 5 million or 23 percent of women aged 65 or older depend solely on Medicare to help with their medical bills.
- o Nearly 70 percent of Medicaid beneficiaries between ages of 18 and 64 are women and 60 percent of all Medicaid beneficiaries are women.

President Clinton will make the cuts we need to balance the budget, but he refuses to make cuts into our fundamental American values.

The President and Vice President Meet Women Leaders At the Table
President Clinton and Vice President Gore met with women leaders on Dec. 20 in the Cabinet Room to discuss the importance of putting a woman's face on the issues. The President asked them for their help in getting the specifics about the impact of Republican cuts in such areas as education and the environment out to women. The meeting was attended by: Pat Reuss, NOW Legal Defense Fund; Marcy Love, Personal PAC; Hedy Ratner, Women's Business Development Center; Marilyn Monahan, National Education Association; Audrey Tayse Haynes, Business and Professional Women/USA; Linda Chavez Thompson, AFL-CIO; Nancy Zirkin, American Association of University Women; Judy Lichtman, Women's Legal Defense Fund; Marcia Greenberger, National Women's Law Center; Geraldine Marullo, American Nurses Association; Deb Briceland Betts, Older Women's League; Judith Conover, League of Women Voters; Gloria Johnson, Coalition of Labor Union Women; Nancy Chupp, Church Women United; Elisa Sanchez, Mexican American National Women's Association.

Clinton Administration Giving Women a Voice At the Table
The White House Office for Women's Initiatives and Outreach (The Women's Office) has launched its main outreach initiative called At the Table. Presidential appointees are holding roundtables with women across the nation to hear their concerns and ideas. Reports from these roundtables are coming back to The White House and a monthly report will be sent to the President to ensure that women have a voice at the policy table. (More than 100 roundtables have been held and more than 1,000 women across the U.S. have participated.)

Some of the topics being discussed:

- o The Budget: Women are concerned that their families and children will be the losers with budget cuts and block granting.
- o Welfare Reform: Women believe that the Congressional welfare reform bill should be vetoed because it will have a strong adverse impact on women.
- o Choice: Women want to prevent any legislative setbacks to a woman's right to choose.
- o Crime/Domestic Violence: Women are proud that the President has taken a leadership role on domestic violence. Women are also very concerned about violence in schools.
- o Health Care: Women are afraid of losing their health insurance. They have concerns also about the quality of health care available to them.
- o Education: Women want stronger investment in early childhood education.
- o Affirmative Action: Women express a strong desire to continue affirmative action.
- o Childcare: Women express a need for greater access to affordable quality childcare for all families.

Vice President Stresses Administration's Pro-Family Budget
Vice President Gore addressed approximately 800 guests on Nov. 29 at the General Assembly of Women of Reform Judaism, the women's arm of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. The Vice President stressed the Administration's pro-family stand in the budget debate by questioning the Republican budget on several points:

"...how can you say you're for working families if you try to cut the Earned Income Tax Credit and increase their taxes? How can you say you are for the middle class if you make it harder for middle class families to pay for college or afford health care for their parents? How can you say you're for welfare reform if you're willing to push a million children into poverty? And how can you say you're for the well-being of all Americans if you propose to virtually dismantle all of our public health and environmental protections?"

Dr. Laura Tyson Speaks to National Committee on Pay Equity

Dr. Tyson spoke to the National Committee on Pay Equity on Nov. 28. She spoke about the budget debate and the Administration's objective to restore fiscal responsibility in such a way that we also address our society's major difficulties.

She listed some of the President's economic successes:

- The deficit has come down 50 percent since fiscal year 1992.
- The deficit is at a 17-year low compared to the size of the economy.

Secretary Shalala Unveils PSA's on AIDS Prevention

Secretary Shalala on Nov. 30 joined White House AIDS Policy Coordinator Patsy Fleming to unveil a new series of public service announcements about AIDS prevention. The series emphasizes the need for personal responsibility in preventing AIDS transmission.

Newsletter 4

Ellen Haas Speaks Out for School Lunches and Food Safety Net
Under Secretary for Food and Consumer Services Ellen Haas continues to stress that feeding the needy is a shared public-private partnership. At the Union Station Foundation emergency shelter in Pasadena Calif., Haas said recently: "...the federal government must take the primary responsibility for providing a national nutrition safety net. Congressional welfare reform efforts avoid taking this responsibility. The deep cuts in the Food Stamp and Child Nutrition Programs and the optional Food Stamp block grants in the budget reconciliation bill would place an enormous burden on the private sector that they could not possibly carry."

Women Who Are Making a Difference for Other Women

With each newsletter, we will highlight some of the Presidential appointees who are inviting women to join them At the Table. In this issue, they are: Chantale Wong, senior advisor to the Director at OMB; Anne Elliott, Department of Energy; and Marie-Louise Caravatti, Department of Commerce.

Chantale met with Asian Business women in San Francisco and discussed several topics including welfare reform, immigration, the budget and Medicaid cuts.

Anne Elliott met with businesswomen and attorneys in Chicago -- with Russian women visitors looking on to learn the American policy process. Marie-Louise Caravatti met with the state's most influential women leaders from the private and public sectors in Wilmington, Delaware. "For this group, turning our problems over to the invisible hand of the private sector was not seen as a solution," Marie-Louise wrote in her report to The Women's Office.

Be Counted, Get Included in Women Presidential Directory

Currently, more than 42 percent of President Clinton's appointments are women. He has appointed more women to serve in his Administration than any President. We have six-Cabinet level appointees who are women and there are about 2,500 women appointees throughout the Administration. To help identify who is serving where, The Women's Office is working to publish a directory of women Presidential appointees to share with women groups and women appointees. To get included call The Women's Office, 202-456-7300.

Briefing for Women Appointees

The White House press and communications teams briefed women appointees on Dec. 13 in the OEOB on the Administration's message and priorities and the importance of At the Table outreach. Those briefing the women included Evelyn Lieberman, Mike McCurry, Don Baer and Peggy Lewis. Also briefing the group was Tony Lake who discussed Bosnia. The Women's Office organizes a briefing each month as well as a social event. Gloria Steinem will speak at a briefing soon.

I don't think you would want to get there before Sunday anyway. I'm told (since I have no actual experience with this) that people often get there Saturday and hang out by the pool. Saturday night and Sunday there are receptions. The meetings, etc. are Monday-Tuesday.

So, depending on how long you guys want to stay, we could work out a series of meeting for H with international presidents -- some Sunday, maybe some Monday. And we could schedule him to address Rosenthal's group Monday. And we can see if the Executive Council wants to hear a speech too.

The reason this is all so up in the air is the AFL-CIO wants this to be low key and to accomplish that, they are considering barring all non-labor individuals from the whole meeting. But they have not decided this yet -- and I'm sure they will end up not deciding to do this. But because it is all up in the air, they have not invited anyone to anything and they have no agenda.

"At stake (in the budget debate) is far more than just numbers and abstract programs and proposals and far more than the normal political debates in Washington. This debate is about people, the lives they lead, the hopes they have, the desires they have for a better life."

President Fights for a Budget

Good for Women and Families

PRINTER FONT 12_POINT_ROMAN

President Clinton continues to fight to balance the budget and to prevent wrongheaded cuts and misplaced priorities that will unfairly hurt women and families.

The President's fight for Medicare and Medicaid is especially important to women:

- o Of the 37 million Medicare recipients, over 20 million, or 57 percent are women.

- o Nearly 5 million or 23 percent of women aged 65 or older depend solely on Medicare to help with their medical bills.

- o Nearly 70 percent of Medicaid beneficiaries between ages of 18 and 64 are women and 60 percent of all Medicaid beneficiaries are women.

President Clinton will make the cuts we need to balance the budget, but he refuses to make cuts into our fundamental American values.

The President and Vice President Meet Women Leaders At the Table

PRINTER FONT 12_POINT_ROMAN

President Clinton and Vice President Gore met with women leaders on Dec. 20 in the Cabinet Room to discuss the importance of putting a woman's face on the issues. The President asked them for their help in getting the specifics about the impact of Republican cuts in such areas as education and the environment out to women. The meeting was attended by: Pat Reuss, NOW Legal Defense Fund; Marcy Love, Personal PAC; Hedy Ratner, Women's Business Development Center; Marilyn Monahan, National Education Association; Audrey Tayse Haynes, Business and Professional Women/USA; Linda Chavez Thompson, AFL

PRINTER FONT 12_POINT_ROMAN

The White House Office for Women's Initiatives and Outreach (The Women's Office) has launched its main outreach initiative called At the Table. Presidential appointees are holding roundtables with women across the nation to hear their concerns and ideas. Reports from these roundtables are coming back to The White House and a monthly report will be sent to the President to ensure that women have a voice at the policy table. (More than 100 roundtables have been held and more than 1,000 women across the U.S. have participated.)

Some of the topics being discussed:

- o The Budget: Women are concerned that their families and children will be the losers with budget cuts and block granting.
- o Welfare Reform: Women believe that the Congressional welfare reform bill should be vetoed because it will have a strong adverse impact on women.
- o Choice: Women want to prevent any legislative setbacks to a woman's right to choose.
- o Crime/Domestic Violence: Women are proud that the President has taken a leadership role on domestic violence. Women are also very concerned about violence in schools.
- o Health Care: Women are afraid of losing their health insurance. They have concerns also about the quality of health care available to them.
- o Education: Women want stronger investment in early childhood education.
- o Affirmative Action: Women express a strong desire to continue affirmative action.
- o Childcare: Women express a need for greater access to affordable quality childcare for all families.

PRINTER FONT 12_POINT_ROMAN

Dr. Tyson spoke to the National Committee on Pay Equity on Nov. 28. She spoke about the budget debate and the Administration's objective to restore fiscal responsibility in such a way that we also address our society's major difficulties.

She listed some of the President's economic successes:

The AFL Exec Bd is meeting Weds. of this week. They asked me yesterday (they'd mentioned it earlier but didn't decide til yesterday that they were interested in this) if we could have the President do a reception for them here, or go to one at the hotel. The Presaident is travelling. They asked if the VP would be interested.

Woudl the VP want to do something with them Weds. evening? I don't think this is critical, because they will have an Exec Bd meeting in March where we might do this, and another Exec Council in May where wecould do it. It would be last minute, so they won't feel bad if we say no -- they'll understand.

So, the question really is does the VP want to have a reception here (Indian Treaty room, or his ceremonial office) or go to one at their hotel (somewhere in DC) -- if so, we can work it out.

They have also been extremely active on the budget, and will be our most important senior group as we approach the fall.)

I'm told the meeting was cancelled b/c Doug had to head to New Hampshire.

Anyway, Dick Warden, NCSC's chief consultant, called Harold's office yesterday to reschedule the meeting. Harold's office called us for a recommendation.

TEXT:

I wanted you to know I asked John to schedule a meeting for Harold and John Sweeney. Sweeney wants to lay out his case against Alan Greenspan getting renominated. Sweeney feels a need to "discuss" with the White House before he goes public with his opposition. And Harold is the logical "White House" because Laura Tyson is trying to avoid having meetings on the subject with outsiders (so that she doesn't have to hear from everyone under the sun). Harold's job will be to listen and to relay to Laura the content of the meeting. (Harold and I discussed this briefly and he agreed he should talk to Sweeney.)

ALSO...

Gerry Shea asked me today about monthly AFL-CIO meetings that used to happen with Harold, George, Reich, Rubin/Tyson, Sperling -- on policy stuff. They would like to reinstitute these. They sound like a very good idea to me. Who took charge of this -- should I jsut reinstitute them, was it under the NEC's direction, was it George?

This is ok with the AFL-CIO -- BUT -- they would like us to allow the AFL-CIO state federation up there to invite some members/staff to our group events up there. Is this a problem?

Lee & Holly:

Just wanted to give you folks a heads-up on yet another meeting I'm pushing on Sosnik. (Lee, is he gonna love me or what!) NCSC has been calling Harold, and Marilyn Yager said it should be a priority. This is the group, as we move from policy to outreach, that we will lean on heavily in the coming year. Call if this does not make sense.

Thanks, Bill

Gordon:

Last month, Marilyn Yager scheduled a meeting with Doug and two representatives of the National Council of Senior Citizens; Executive Director Steve Protulis and Dick Warden, NCSC chief consultant. (NCSC is the retiree arm of the AFL-CIO, consists of 500,000 members, and reaches an audience of over 2 million labor retirees. They have also been extremely active on the budget, and will be our most important senior group as we approach the fall.)

I'm told the meeting was cancelled b/c Doug had to head to New Hampshire. Anyway, Dick Warden, NCSC's chief consultant, called Harold's office yesterday to reschedule the meeting. Harold's office called us for a recommendation. We would like to reschedule the meeting. We suggest that Doug, Alexis, and I meet with Protulis and Warden, and arrange for Harold to do a drop-bye. What do you think?
