GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state

partnership collected a record $11.8 billion from non

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

40,976 FEWER PEOPLE ON WELFARE. The total number of AFDC recipients in Alabama has decreased 29%, from 141,746 in January 1993 to an estimated 100,770 in July 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS OVER $59 MILLION MORE -- an increase of 61% since FY 1992. In FY 1996, Alabama distributed $158,000,000 in child support collections, up from $98,140,974 in FY 1992.

58,499 FEWER PEOPLE ON FOOD STAMPS. The average number of persons who participated in the Food Stamp program per month decreased from 560,047 people in FY 1993 to 501,548 people in July 1996.

school regularly by providing incentives for good grades and reductions in AFDC payments to recipients who fail to maintain a D average. Also under these waivers, families can deposit $5000 into savings to purchase a home, start a business or finance a child's education or training. There will also be no increase in AFDC benefits for additional children conceived by a family currently on welfare. One waiver provides transitional child care benefits when families become ineligible for further benefits because of marriage.
California is also increasing penalties for fraud and expanding work experience programs. Another waiver is helping them find work through incentives and the removal of the limitation on two parent families working more than 100 hours.

an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

Through its "Family Transition Program," welfare recipients will be limited to collecting benefits for a maximum of 24 months in any five

After that time, individuals who are unable to find employment will be guaranteed the opportunity to work at a job paying more than their AFDC grant. Florida's second waiver reduces by half AFDC benefits for those who have additional children conceived while on welfare. Additional children would still be eligible for Medicaid and the family's Food Stamp allotment will increase. The waiver also requires minor parents to attend school.

GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton

signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state
partnership collected a record $11.8 billion from non

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS $49 MILLION MORE -- an increase of almost 52% since FY 1992. In FY 1996, Kentucky distributed $143,000,000 in child support collections, up from $93,901,880 in FY 1992.

191,000 FEWER PEOPLE LIVING IN POVERTY. The percentage of persons living in poverty in Kentucky declined from 20.4% in FY 1993 to 14.7% in FY 1995.

53,380 FEWER PEOPLE WERE ON FOOD STAMPS. The average number of people who participated in the Food Stamp program per month decreased from 530,494 people in FY 1993 to 477,114 people in July 1996.

Maine's "Welfare to Work" program requires AFDC recipients to sign a personal responsibility contract outlining commitments to work, cooperate with child support enforcement, attend parenting classes, and ensure health check and immunizations for their children. Unmarried parents under 18 will be required to live in an adult

-supervised setting, and benefits will be issued in the form of vouchers to cover the cost of rent and utilities. In addition, welfare recipients who get jobs will be eligible for up to 12 months of transitional Medicaid and child care benefits after one month on AFDC. A second component of the waiver, "ASPIRE

-Plus," will help welfare recipients move into private sector jobs by combining the cash value of their AFDC and Food Stamp benefits to partially subsidized job placements for up to six months.

Maryland's "Family Investment Program," requires welfare applicants to participate in job searches as a condition of eligibility. After six months of non -compliance, AFDC benefits will be denied and cases will only be reopened after the applicant complies with the JOBS program for 30 days. In addition, the incomes of dependent children will not be counted in determining AFDC eligibility, and the resource and vehicle value limits will be raised to $5,000. This program also eliminates automatic benefit increases for additional children conceived while receiving AFDC. The family state will retain all child support payments, and will issue voucher payments for the purchase of goods for additional children. Unmarried minor parents must reside with a parent or guardian and must attend family health and parenting classes.

MISSISSIPPI CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION WAIVERS. Mississippi's "A New Direction" promotes health and education for children receiving welfare through mandatory school attendance, immunization and regular health check

-ups. This statewide initiative also denies additional AFDC benefits when children are conceived while the family is receiving welfare. Implemented in six counties, the "WorkFirst" portion of this demonstration provides subsidized, private -sector employment for job

-ready participants. Families on welfare for less than three months are eligible for transitional Medicaid and child care. Each "Work First" participant will also have an Individual Development Account for family savings, to which employers will contribute one dollar per hour of work. The "Work Encouragement" component allows recipients to keep more of their earnings and still receive AFDC in two of Mississippi's counties.

GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state

partnership collected a record $11.8 billion from non

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

34,889 FEWER PEOPLE ON WELFARE. The total number of AFDC recipients in Missouri has decreased 13%, from 259,039 in January 1993 to an estimated 224,150 in July 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS ALMOST $98 MILLION MORE -- an increase of 43% since FY 1992. In FY 1996, Missouri distributed $264,000,000 in child support collections, up from $166,339,157 in FY 1992.

348,000 FEWER PEOPLE LIVING IN POVERTY. The percentage of persons living in poverty in Missouri declined from 16.1% in FY 1993 to 9.4% in FY 1995.

MISSOURI CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION WAIVER. "Missouri Families - Mutual Responsibility Plan" requires welfare recipients to establish a plan for work and places a two -year limit on benefits. An additional two years may be allowed, if necessary, to achieve self

-sufficiency. Individuals who are not self -sufficient by the end of the time limit must participate in job search or work experience programs. Those who have received AFDC benefits for 36 months or more and have completed their agreement by leaving AFDC will not be eligible for further benefits. Children's' benefits will not be affected. Minor parents must live with their parents or guardians to receive benefits. For two

-parent families with at least one parent under 21, the limit will be waived on the number of hours the principal wage earner can work.

Recipients must participate in JOBS, comply with child support enforcement provisions, and obtain medical screening and immunizations for their children. Third, adults who do not leave welfare by the specified time, must participate in the Community Services program and perform 20 hours of community work per week. GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state

partnership collected a record $11.8 billion from non

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

65,153 FEWER PEOPLE ON WELFARE. The total number of AFDC recipients in North Carolina has decreased 19%, from 331,633 in January 1993 to 266,480 in July 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS NEARLY $93 MILLION MORE -- an increase of 55% since FY 1992. In FY 1996, North Carolina distributed $260,300,000 in child support collections, up from $167,894,174 in FY 1992.

203,000 FEWER PEOPLE LIVING IN POVERTY. The percentage of persons living in poverty in North Carolina declined from 15.8% in 1992 to 12.6% in 1995.

35,510 FEWER PEOPLE WERE ON FOOD STAMPS. The average number of persons who participated in the Food Stamp program per month decreased from 629,000 people in FY 1994 to 593,490 people in July 1996.

NORTH CAROLINA CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION

WAIVERS. North Carolina's "Work First" project requires welfare recipients to work a minimum of 30 hours a week and are limited to 24 months of benefits. Minor parents must live with their parents or guardians and there will be no additional benefits for additional children. Parents must ensure children's school attendance, immunization, and regular medical exams. To help those not on welfare to stay off welfare, North Carolina can pay a one -time lump sum equal to 3 months of AFDC benefits. Implemented in Cabarrus County, the state's second waiver program "Work Over Welfare" (WOW) is targeted to AFDC applicants and recipients with children between the ages of one and five. When the youngest child reaches five, WOW recipients either work for up to 40 hours a week, or participate in training and JOBS activities, job searches, or subsidized employment. Recipient wages will not be less than the amount they would have received in AFDC and food stamp benefits.

In Ohio's first demonstration "A State of Opportunity," the state works with local business, industry, and community leaders in five sites to generate up to 2500 wage

Wages are supplemented with AFDC grants and Food Stamps. In addition, participants in the program must ensure the school attendance of their children. Ohio's second initiative, Learning, Earning, and Parenting (LEAP) requires AFDC recipients, who are either pregnant or parents under the age of 20, to attend school or a program leading to a high school diploma or equivalent. Ohio's third demonstration limits AFDC eligibility to 36 months in any 60

-month period. To encourage work, the first $250 of earned income and one -half of income over $250 will be disregarded when calculating benefits. Those without a high school diploma must enroll in an education program. Pregnant women will be required to get prenatal care and cooperate with substance abuse treatment, if necessary.

Oklahoma's second demonstration, "Mutual Agreement: A Plan for Success" (MAAPS) increases work incentives through allowing recipients to keep a portion of their earnings without losing AFDC benefits. It also waives the requirement that the principal wage earner in a two

South Carolina's two waivers encourage parents to work by setting work requirements and providing transitional assistance to help participants find jobs. Under the first waiver, AFDC recipients have up to 60 days to find a private sector job, after which time they must participate in community work programs to continue to receive AFDC benefits. The second waiver requires that families with dependent children participate in a job search as a condition of eligibility. Participants in this program will be limited to two years of AFDC participation. This waiver also allows participants to own one vehicle, save up to $10,000 in Individual Development Accounts and keep earned income from children attending school, and interest and dividends of up to $400 per year. It also expands AFDC eligibility for two

GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

Another provision of the program allows a family's welfare benefits to be reduced or terminated if parents fail to comply with education, training or work preparation requirements. Under further amendments to SPED, children must attend school regularly, and preschool children must receive immunizations. Heads of households who have been barred from welfare payments because of fraudulent activity will still be eligible to receive help in finding and keeping employment if their children continue to receive AFDC payments. Finally, income rules will be simplified to require families to report only monthly income fluctuations that exceed $100.

In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

PROMOTING SELF SUFFICIENCY. Due in part to the Administration's emphasis on welfare reform and its policies to strengthen the economy, welfare caseloads are down while work and training activities among recipients are up. And child support collections have reached a record high.

? The welfare rolls have decreased by 1.8 million -- over 13% -- since President Clinton took office after they grew by 20% during the previous four years.

? In 44 states, welfare rolls have fallen, some by as much as 34%.

? Participation in the Food Stamp program has dropped by nearly 2 million people since May 1994 which has helped save taxpayers more than $1.8 billion.

? Work and training activities among welfare recipients have increased by 28% since 1992.

? And the President's expanded Earned Income Tax Credit has given tax relief to 15 million working families helping them move from welfare to work.

STRENGTHENING CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT. In 1996, the federal

-state
partnership collected a record $11.8 billion from non

-custodial parents, an increase of $3 billion or nearly 40% since 1992. In addition, paternity establishments increased by over 40% from 1992 to 1996.

29,386 FEWER PEOPLE ON WELFARE. The total number of AFDC recipients in West Virginia has decreased 24%, from 119,916 in January 1993 to 90,530 in July 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS NEARLY $49 MILLION MORE -- an increase of nearly 137% since FY 1992. In FY 1995, West Virginia distributed $84,300,000 in child support collections, up from $35,561,319 in FY 1992.

101,000 FEWER PEOPLE LIVING IN POVERTY. The percentage of persons living in poverty in West Virginia declined from 22.3% in 1992 to 16.7% in 1995.

27,886 FEWER PEOPLE ON FOOD STAMPS. The average number of persons who participated in the Food Stamp program per month decreased from 322,480 in FY 1993 to 294,594 in July 1996.

WEST VIRGINIA CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION WAIVER. West Virginia's "Joint Opportunities for Independence" (JOIN) program helps adults in two

-parent families gain work experience with private employers and provides a travel expense stipend and an income disregard. Employers who provide work experience positions to JOIN participants would pay individuals $1.00 per hour for work and travel expenses. The state will provide child care when both parents participate in JOIN.

GRANTING UNPRECEDENTED STATE FLEXIBILITY. Even before President Clinton signed welfare reform legislation on August 22, 1996, America's welfare system had already changed profoundly under the Clinton Administration. Since taking office, the Clinton Administration has approved 77 welfare waivers in 43 states -- more than all previous administrations combined. In an average month, these welfare demonstrations are making work and responsibility a way of life for more than 10 million people -- approximately 75% of all AFDC recipients. States are now reforming welfare rules by requiring work, time limits, making work pay, improving child support enforcement, and encouraging parental responsibility.

89,658 FEWER PEOPLE ON WELFARE. The total number of AFDC recipients in Wisconsin has decreased 37%, from 241,098 in January 1993 to 151,440 in July 1996.

TOUGHER CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT COLLECTS NEARLY $151 MILLION MORE -- an increase of nearly 51% since FY 1992. In FY 1995, Wisconsin distributed $444,000,000 in child support collections, up from $293,459,750 in FY 1992.

187,000 FEWER PEOPLE LIVING IN POVERTY. The percentage of persons living in poverty in Wisconsin declined from 12.6% in 1993 to 8.5% in 1995.

74,176 FEWER PEOPLE ON FOOD STAMPS. The average number of persons who participated in the Food Stamp program per month decreased from 337,317 in FY 1993 to 263,141 in July 1996.

WISCONSIN CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION
WAIVERS. Wisconsin's "Work Not Welfare," requires that welfare recipients either work or look for jobs facilitated by case management, employment activities and work experience. Receipt of AFDC benefits is limited to 24 months in a four

-year period. Wisconsin's second initiative, AFDC Benefit Cap, specifically denies additional benefits to welfare recipients who have another child. The child will still remain eligible for Medicaid benefits and Food Stamps. All welfare recipients will be offered family planning services and parenting education. Wisconsin's third demonstration, "Pay for Performance," requires welfare applicants to meet with a financial planning resource specialist to explore alternatives to welfare. If individuals still want to apply for welfare, they must first complete 60 hours of JOBS training prior to approval. Recipients who do receive welfare will be required to participate in JOBS for up to 40 hours per week. Failure to do so will result in AFDC grant reductions or terminations.

WYOMING CHARTS ITS OWN WELFARE REFORM THROUGH CLINTON ADMINISTRATION WAIVERS. Wyoming's first reform plan "New Opportunities and New Responsibilities" requires welfare recipients to enroll in school, participate in a training program, or enter the workforce. The plan will allow AFDC families with an employed parent to accumulate $2500 in assets, rather than the current ceiling of $1000. Failure to comply with these requirements will result in AFDC grant reduction. Wyoming will also deny payment to welfare recipients who have confessed to or been convicted of program fraud until full restitution is made to the state. Wyoming's second waiver requires minor, unmarried parents to reside in an adult

-supervised household.

TEXT:

I met this morning at USAID with Liz Maquire from AID, Margaret Pollock from State, and others involved in drafting the Presidential Determination on the population funding. We reviewed the draft in progress and discussed various strategy issues.

So far, the report looks good. Most of the field reports are in and analyzed. The bottom line is this: If no FY '97 funds are received until July, the population programs will have $124 million less in FY 97 than if funds were available in March. This translates into an estimated 1.3 million additional unintended pregnancies and over 500,000 abortions. Further, at least 15 bilateral programs and 13 centrally funded programs would need to suspend, defer, or terminate service delivery and other supporting activities, directly affecting millions of clients.

AID and State believe they have the data to make a good case to prevent the funding delay. However, they are very uncertain about strategy.

I have talked with key outside groups (Population Council, etc.) and am building a coalition of other groups not usually associated with int'l family planning. I think it is a good idea to bring these groups together into a small working group resembling that put together for HR 1833. I'll have a suggested list together that I will distribute this Friday with the draft report in preparation for next week's meeting.

ONE MAJOR CONCERN: Apparently Rep. Ben Gilman (R-NY) is likely to request a GAO report re: the funding restrictions. Rep. Gilman does not have a strong reputation for supporting family planning. Further, the data collection is so complicated that AID believes that GAO will have to rush through the process without fully understanding the issues and will produce a report that might not mesh with the President's findings. Rep. Gilman has not yet requested the report, but I do have what is a draft letter from him to the GAO. Advice on this issue?

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

From: Carol H. Rasco

Subject: Report for November 9 - 15, 1996.

UPDATES ON KEY INITIATIVES

PRINTER FONT 12_POINT_ROMAN

WELFARE REFORM IMPLEMENTATION

Technical Corrections to Welfare Reform -- We are working with OMB and the agencies to finish a package of technical corrections to the welfare law. The law calls for this package to be submitted next week.

Notices to Families with Children at Risk of Losing SSI -- From November 22 to December 2, approximately 300,000 families with disabled children on SSI will receive notices from the Social Security Administration that their child may not meet the new definition of disability in the welfare reform law, and therefore may lose monthly cash SSI payments and Medicaid. Cases will be reviewed by SSA over the spring and summer. Children who are determined ineligible by SSA will lose benefits in July and August, 1997, unless they appeal the decision.

We are still working with SSA as they work to interpret the statutory language and draft a regulation with a new standard. The law calls for SSA to issue its regulation by November 22, but the agency will miss that deadline because of the delay in this decision. Over 40,000 new applications are now pending because of this delay.

Naturalization Information for Legal Immigrants Losing SSI -- The

INS is working with the Social Security Administration on a plan to send information on how to naturalize legal immigrants who may lose their SSI benefits. The details of this plan are still being completed; and we will report on it more fully in the coming weeks.

CHILD WELFARE

Child Welfare Reforms -- I hosted the first internal meeting this week to discuss possible steps to address the many weaknesses in child welfare systems. OMB and the First Lady's Office participated. We plan to hold additional meetings in December with HHS.

TEEN PREGNANCY

National Prevention Strategy -- DPC staff is working with HHS to ensure the timely preparation of a strategy to prevent teen pregnancy, as mandated by the welfare reform law. The statutory deadline for the strategy is January 1, 1997.

HIV/AIDS

National AIDS Strategy -- Patsy Fleming and the ONAP staff met with representatives of 11 major national AIDS organizations to discuss plans for the coming year and to present them with draft copies of the national AIDS strategy for their review and comment. We are working to complete the strategy by World AIDS Day, December 1.

MEETINGS AND SPEECHES

[CHR INSERT]

DPC hosted a discussion session with Dr. David Hawkins who is a Professor of Social Work and Director of the Development Research Group for the University of Washington, Seattle. He presented preliminary findings from a 12

-year longitudinal study of at

-risk

students K

-12 assessing the affects of his prevention treatment model on delinquency, drug abuse, and development. His work shows early intervention has positive, lasting impacts on all three factors.

Patsy Fleming attended a symposium and dedication of a new floor for the Aaron Diamond AIDS Research Center in New York. This research center is funded by the Aaron Diamond Center as well as NIH grants and contracts. It is the largest private AIDS research center in the world and a leader in the search for a vaccine and a cure. It is responsible for some of the most ground

-breaking AIDS research, including the finding that a triple combination of drugs can clear the bloodstream of detectable amounts of the HIV virus.

FROM LYN -- NOT FOR POTUS

Family Planning. DPC continues to work with USAID and the State Department to draft the Presidential Determination on international population funding due to Congress by Feb. 1, 1997 as required in the Foreign Ops Appropriation.

Microenterprise. DPC is working with the Small Business Administration to highlight how states might use microenterprise, as discussed in the welfare reform law, to help recipients move from welfare to work.

SUBJECT: Follow-up Meeting to the International Family Planning Meeting

As was discussed at the October 23 meeting, the State Department and USAID will prepare by November 15 a draft of the substantive material needed for the International Family Planning report requested in the Omnibus Appropriations bill.

We would like to meet on Tuesday, November 19 at 1:00 pm in room 211 of the Old Executive Office Building to discuss the draft material. A copy will be distributed to each of you prior to this meeting.

Also, please hold Wednesday, November 20 at 1:00 pm in room 211 as a backup time and date in case a conflict occurs with the November 19 meeting. Please call Dorothy Craft at 456-5571 if you have scheduling questions.

Thank you.

Sarah Bianchi mentioned that you would like a brief written description of major activities of the Health Resources and Services Administration. The following paragraph should do it. Let me know if you have any questions.
Greg.

HRSA administers a variety of "gap-filling" grants to States, cities and local clinics that help support health services for low-income and disadvantaged populations. In FY 1997, the agency's major health service activities include Ryan White AIDS treatment grants, Community and Migrant Health Center grants, Title X Family Planning grants, the Maternal and Child Health (MCH) block grant and the Healthy Start infant mortality demonstration project. The agency also administers several Health Professions Curriculum Assistance grants that go directly to educational institutions to support training curriculums in a variety of different health profession occupations (e.g. nursing, family medicine and minority health professionals).

Hawaii Healthy Start would not be affected in any way by this discontinuation. However, the HHS/MCHB projects have utilized many of their successful interventions.

The current sites are as follows:

The 15 original projects:

1. Baltimore, Maryland
2. Birmingham, Alabama
3. Boston, Massachusetts
4. Chicago, Illinois
5. Cleveland, Ohio
6. Detroit, Michigan
7. New Orleans, Louisiana
8. New York, New York
9. Northern Plains Reservations (South Dakota, North Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska)
10. Northwest Indiana
11. Oakland, California
12. Pee Dee Region, South Carolina
13. Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
14. Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
15. Washington, District of Colombia

The Additional 7 in 1994:

1. Dallas, Texas
2. Essex County, New Jersey
3. Florida Panhandle
4. Milwaukee, Wisconsin
5. Mississippi Delta
6. Richmond, Virginia
7. Savannah, Georgia

As I mentioned in the earlier e

-mail, the data currently available is from the original 15 grantees. Here is some site

-specific data from their local evaluations:

- All projects are reporting a drop in infant mortality rates(IMR).

-NYC between 1990

-1994, the IMRs decreased by 38% in the project area compared to a 22% decline city

-wide.

-in FY 90, only 14% of women in the Northern Plains area received family planning services, currently 78% of the women who delivered received postpartum family planning services.

-the proportion of pregnant and parenting women in the Project Area who fail to keep or make prenatal and/or pediatric appointments due to the lack of child care and/or transportation decreased from 30% in 1990 to 9% in 1994 in Boston.

This is just a sampling of their successes, I'm sure there are a variety of issues that need to be improved, however I think these early statistics are promising.

As you indicated there should be some further discussion.

How would you like those discussions structured and who should be involved? What more information about the program would you like to see? Other issues?

Thanks.

Carol, attached is a summary of all these e

-mails back and forth
on Healthy Start for a conversation with Nancy

-Ann.
Jill has a copy for your book and has put Nancy

-Ann on your call list.

Background/Status:

According to the Health Budget Briefing, Lyn attended on Tuesday, November 19th, OMB plans to zero out the Healthy Start program for FY '98 and move those funds to other related programs. Specifically, $50 million of the $96 enacted for Healthy Start will likely be transferred to the Maternal and Child Health Block Grant. It is not clear yet where the other dollars would transfer.

As mentioned in Lyn's first e -mail, the OMB rationale to cut this program was that Healthy Start was a Bush demonstration program that is popular but hasn't really produced results. HHS attempted to zero it out once before, but was not successful. States like the block grant better, so it makes sense to put the money there.

Response Points

? It is true that they do not have consistent data across project, but this is because each project is community specific and chose their own benchmarks given the priorities in the communities they serve. This aspect of the program should not be a penalty.

? States do like block grants because of the flexibility they provide, however I'm not so sure that rational works here. Healthy Start programs have traditionally been flexible and their Maternal and Child Health Bureau link has helped their respective states make the most of their MCHB block grants.

? Healthy Start supports and encourages community collaboration.

? MCHB has forwarded some highlights from the original 15 sites they include:

? All projects are reporting a drop in infant mortality rates(IMR);

? NYC between 1990

-1994, the IMRs decreased by 38% in the project area compared to a 22% decline city

-wide;

? In FY 90, only 14% of women in the Northern Plains area received family planning services, currently 78% of the women who delivered received postpartum family planning services; and

? The proportion of pregnant and parenting women in the Project Area who fail to keep or make prenatal and/or pediatric appointments due to the lack of child care and/or transportation decreased from 30% in 1990 to 9% in 1994 in Boston.

Possible Next Steps

- 1) Convene larger discussion with appropriate HHS stakeholders, including contracted evaluators of the program.
- 2) Reduce number of sites, instead of whole program.
- 3) Outline the added value of giving states @ $1 million more toward their block grant vs. targeting those dollars to areas with high rates of infant mortality.

Martha,

This morning I distributed a one-page memo outlining the next steps we agreed to during the Nov. 20 meeting. Three questions for you:

1) Do you have any comments, additions, deletions to the list of next steps?

2) Dottie Rayburn from USAID called to say that, after some internal discussions at AID, they are very hesitant about releasing the report in early January before the GAO report is issued. She said they would prefer to release it at the same time as the GAO report.

Jeremy suggested I ask you whether it makes sense to put a brief decision memo together outlining the pros and cons of option 1 (release date early Jan.) and option 2 (release date Feb. 1) that you could then bring with you to the senior meeting. What do you think?

3) What else would you need from us for the senior message meeting? I assume you'll need the talking points from me. Anything else?

Thanks.

Draft One - Talking it Over - November 26, 1996

I am writing this week's column on Air Force One after taking off from Bangkok, Thailand, and still wearing the pale blue knit evening suit I wore to the State dinner hosted by the King and Queen at the Grand Palace. My head is spinning, not just because it's past midnight, and we're about to fly halfway around the world to get home in time for Thanksgiving. I'm also mentally digesting the memorable experience I had in Australia, the Philippines and Thailand.

I'll never forget my first sight of the Opera House in the harbor in Sydney, Australia; the solemn splendor of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra; the visual power of the Aboriginal art; the feel of a kangaroo's fur and the expression on the eyes of a koala bear named "Chelsea"; the rainbow colors of the Great Barrier Reef through my snorkeling mask; the sounds of friendly Australian voices saying "G'day" -- just like in the movies!

In the Philippines we stayed in the MacArthur Suite in the Manila Hotel, General MacArthur's home after he returned during the Second World War. In one room there is a collection of memorabilia, including a display on the wall of all his medals and decorations. I walked around the room imagining the history that was made there.

History was also being made at the APEC meeting my husband attended. Manila was alight with Christmas decorations to welcome the participants and hurry along the holiday season. I felt very welcomed by the crowd of more than 12,000 people -- mostly women -- in the city's new cultural center. I spoke about progress being made around the world to protect women's rights and applauded the actions taken in the Philippines to promote family planning and reduce domestic violence.

After Manila, I went to Northern Thailand to see two projects designed to educate girls and protect them from child prostitution. When I landed at Chiang Rai, I was greeted by a troupe of two hundred dancers performing traditional Thai dances and hundreds of children waving American and Thai flags.

The first project I visited, Thai Women of Tomorrow, pays families a small stipend to permit their daughters to attend school. As I stood in front of the rows of school girls dressed in their uniforms of white blouses and blue skirts, I thought how young they were and how thousands of girls just like them all over the world are denied not only the opportunity to learn but to be young before they grow old.

In the hills above Chiang Rai, I visited a hill

-tribe

village where some of the students are from. Hill

-tribe girls,

whose families are desperately poor, usually illiterate and frequently stateless, are especially vulnerable to exploitation. I spoke with several girls dressed in their native dress and their parents who explained how they had decided education and job training could prepare them for a better and longer lasting job than the relatively short -lived -- and potentially deadly -- life as a prostitute.

When I returned to the airport, the full moon was up and the dancers and children were still there. Music filled the air and the tarmac was a sea of dancing lights from the candles strapped to the dancers' delicate wrists and the paper lanterns waved by the children.

As our plane approached Chiang Mai, Thailand's second largest city, the sky was filled with tiny red stars which turned out to be hot air paper lanterns launched as part of the annual Festival of Lights held during the last full moon of the lunar year. It is a three

-day celebration of fireworks, lanterns and candle

-lit

floats made of banana leaves and flowers launched into rivers and lakes. People believe they can make a wish for the next year and load their sins of the past year onto a float and ask for forgiveness, and cast it off in a body of water to carry them away. I lit a float and placed it in the Ping River where it joined the procession.

I thought about forgiveness and hope the next day when I visited the New Life Center, a project for girls rescued from prostitution run by Rev. Lauren Bethel, an American missionary. Rev. Bethel, her staff, and several students described the Center's commitment to educating and valuing girls. In the audience, there were girls from the House of Love, a shelter for former prostitutes suffering from AIDS. One eighteen year girl came in a wheelchair. She had been sold as a maid when she was ten and then forced into prostitution. Even after she became HIV

-old

-positive, she had to keep working. Only after she became too sick with AIDS to function, was she taken to the hospital. As I knelt beside her, I could see the skin stretched tightly across her face. She tried to speak but could not be heard. She was not expected to live out the week.

Despite the ravages of AIDS and the cruel reality of how girls are still being exploited, I came away from the Center hopeful and heartened by the commitment of private individuals, like Rev. Bethel, the organizations that support such work and the growing willingness of governments to combat perpetrators of sexual exploitation and the economic and social problems that lead to it. The Thai government passed legislation and adopted a plan to end the sex trade in girls. The United States passed a law permitting the prosecution of its citizens if they engage in such illegal activities. No one who saw the face of that dying girl in the wheelchair could doubt the urgency of persuading more countries to take similar steps.

So as I fly home to my daughter, I want to give thanks for her and for all our children. And wish all of you a Happy Thanksgiving.

Second, I understand that you were chairing an interagency group looking into the issue of family planning related foreign/domestic assistance -- where is that or who is the point person now?

I can't even imagine how much you must be doing in terms of clearing things off your desk, etc. -- what an exciting and enviable adventure you're heading toward. We'll all miss you.

Martha,

Apparently, there are more delays on the international family planning report.

- 1) Calculations will now be based on expenditures rather than outlays;
 - 2) State has asked that AID go back and look at the funding pipelines more closely, and;
 - 3) State and AID disagree over whether or not to include information about reproductive health programs in Cairo (the argument is over whether or not it makes sense to broaden the scope of the report from family planning to reproductive health. AID and State could use guidance on this issue. My thought is stick to family planning, don't water it down).
- Right now, AID says it looks as if a Jan. 8 delivery date to us is more realistic. I said, if that is as quick as they can do it, ok. But we really cannot push it back any farther.

I think I ought to put a new time line together, circulate it, make Jan. 8 the drop dead deadline, and call a Jan. 10 meeting to discuss final plans.

What do you think?

Also, does it make sense for you to go ahead and meet with Senior White House staff the first week of Jan. to discuss message, since the message will remain the same. That way, we could go into the Jan. 10 meeting ready to roll. Please advise. Thanks.

I've been working with HHS and DOJ and the following three reports due early January to the President as well as the International Family Planning Report due in Feb.

1) Statutory Rape Report, due from DOJ Jan. 1

I've seen a draft and passed my comments on to Bruce including event ideas, and will forward those comments to you in a separate e-mail.

2) Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program/National Goals, due from HHS Jan. 1
HHS progress on this has been slow. They have not been able to share anything in writing with us to date, though I received a phone briefing yesterday. The bottom line is that the strategy builds on the HHS document laid out last September. Overall message will be: abstinence, a focus on young adolescents, and developing a targeted, parallel strategy for boys. I will send around highlights of that phone briefing in a separate e-mail, with ideas for events.

3) Domestic Violence Directive Progress Report, due to the President Jan. 3. HHS has prepared a progress report, as required in the October Directive, but it is not for public release. In fact, HHS has a lot of ideas for action, but has made little concrete progress on meeting the requests in the directive, namely offering states guidance and technical assistance. I am working with HHS to come up with something concrete they can announce on Jan. 3 to show progress. Women's groups and state folks are expecting something from them on Jan. 3.

4) Early January will be the one year anniversary of the privately run National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy launched as a result of the President's challenge. We should begin thinking about a possible event to showcase their progress. They now have a distinguished group of House and Senate members on their Congressional Advisory Panel, and the Campaign is fully operational.

Coming in February...

5) President's Report to Congress on Funding Restrictions on Voluntary Family Planning due to Congress by Feb. 1

I have been working with Martha Foley, State and USAID on this. It is in great shape and we should have a final draft around Jan. 10 to distribute to senior White House staff. The report will precipitate a vote on the Hill regarding family planning.

Please forward this information on to anyone else who should see it. Thanks.

I will send around highlights of that phone briefing in a separate e-mail, with ideas for events.

3) Domestic Violence Directive Progress Report, due to the President Jan. 3. HHS has prepared a progress report, as required in the October Directive, but it is not for public release. In fact, HHS has a lot of ideas for action, but has made little concrete progress on meeting the requests in the directive, namely offering states guidance and technical assistance. I am working with HHS to come up with something concrete they can announce on Jan. 3 to show progress. Women's groups and state folks are expecting something from them on Jan. 3.

4) Early January will be the one year anniversary of the privately run National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy launched as a result of the President's challenge. We should begin thinking about a possible event to showcase their progress. They now have a distinguished group of House and Senate members on their Congressional Advisory Panel, and the Campaign is fully operational.

Coming in February...

5) President's Report to Congress on Funding Restrictions on Voluntary Family Planning due to Congress by Feb. 1

I have been working with Martha Foley, State and USAID on this. It is in great shape and we should have a final draft around Jan. 10 to distribute to senior White House staff. The report will precipitate a vote on the Hill regarding family planning.

Please forward this information on to anyone else who should see it. Thanks.

FYI,

I've been working with HHS and DOJ and the following three reports due early January to the President as well as the International Family Planning Report due in Feb.

1) Statutory Rape Report, due from DOJ Jan. 1

I've seen a draft and passed my comments on to Bruce including event ideas, and will forward those comments to you in a separate e-mail.

2) Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program/National Goals, due from HHS Jan. 1
HHS progress on this has been slow. They have not been able to share anything in writing with us to date, though I received a phone briefing yesterday. The bottom line is that the strategy builds on the HHS document laid out last September. Overall message will be: abstinence, a focus on young adolescents, and developing a targeted, parallel strategy for boys. I will send around highlights of that phone briefing in a separate e-mail, with ideas for events.

I have scheduled a meeting for Monday, Jan. 13 from 2:00 p.m.-
3:15 p.m. in room 211 OEOb to discuss the international family planning report due from the President to Congress Feb. 1, 1997.
We will review the final draft of the report and discuss strategy for the draft report distribution.

A copy of the final draft report from AID and State will be distributed for your review prior to the meeting. Please bring your comments and questions to the meeting.
Please RSVP to me. I can be reached at 456-5567 or through e-

Do you think it makes sense to talk with senior White House staff before Monday's meeting with agency folks? It would be nice to have some decisions going into the agency meeting. I think by Monday, Jan. 13 the report will be in good shape and everyone will be ready to roll.

The key questions senior staff will need to answer are:

--When do we release the report?

--How do we release the report (press release, press conference, or more low key)?

--What message do we go forward with (this report and the upcoming vote are important building blocks to the President's pledge to keep abortion rare, etc. etc.)

I'll be happy to pull a meeting together for you with senior staff.

What do you think?

As you may recall from last year's budget negotiations of the foreign operations bill (HR 3540) , Republican succeeded in imposing tight funding limits on abortion - related international family planning aid.

The bill provided $385 million for these activities, but none of the money can be spent until July 1, 1997, unless both chambers of Congress vote to release the aid by February 28. The POTUS has until Feb 1, 1997 to submit a finding to Congress regarding the impact of the limitation of funding for population planning program. Funding may be made available beginnig March 1, 1997 if the Congress approves the findings of the POTUS by adoption of a joint resolution of approval not later than Feb 28, 1997. Th is is likely to be a controversial issue as I understand that the POTUS will take action soon to require action by Congress to release funds earlier than July 1, 1997.

Subject: Message Meeting/President's Int'l Family Planning Report

Martha Foley asked me to put together a message meeting to discuss releasing the President's report on international family planning. The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 16 from 2:30-3:30 in room 211 OEOB.

The President is due to submit his report to Congress no later than Feb. 1 and a vote on the report is likely to occur shortly thereafter. The report and the vote are expected to be controversial. In addition, the VP is scheduled to speak to NARAL on Jan. 22 (the Roe v. Wade and Mexico City policy anniversary) and he will likely have to field questions about the report and the upcoming vote, so we need to be clear on message as soon as possible.

We need to discuss the following questions:

- 1) Actual report release date (we have discussed Jan. 30)
- 2) Message
- 3) Release strategy (remarks, press release or what?)

A draft of the report will be distributed to you this evening.

State and USAID are making final edits to the report and are clearing it through Secretary designate Albright and others. The final report will be available

Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Options Memo

Following is an options memo on transmittal strategies for the President's report on international family planning. By February 1, the President must submit a finding on the effects of cuts and delays in disbursement of international family planning funds included in the 1997 Foreign Ops Appropriations Act. The President's report will detail the negative consequences of cuts and metering on international family planning programs. Following the transmittal of the President's report, Congress will vote up or down on the finding by adopting a joint resolution no later than Feb. 28, 1997. A positive Congressional vote would release FY '97 funds in March rather than in July. Funds are needed in order to prevent the erosion of the international family planning infrastructure. (These funds are not new money. The funds are already appropriated, but have been held back through statutory language placed in the '97 Foreign Ops appropriations bill by Republicans.) There are several upcoming events and positions to consider as you craft the transmittal strategy.

? During the Inauguration weekend and through Jan. 22, right to life groups will hold anti

-family planning/anti

-abortion rallys.

? Jan. 22 is the anniversary of both Roe v. Wade and President Clinton's overturn of the Mexico City Policy.

? On Jan. 22, the Vice President will give a C

-Span broadcast speech to NARAL, during which he will certainly be questioned about the President's report.
? On Wednesday, January 29, the Rockefeller Foundation will be releasing a general pro

-family planning report.
? As soon as the President's report is transmitted, Rep. Chris Smith (R

-NJ), will charge that international family planning programs use federal funds to provide or promote abortion.
These accusations are false. Using federal funds to provide or promote abortion is illegal.
? Once the President's report is transmitted, women's groups will send a strong message that family planning prevents abortion and that cutting family planning funds will increase abortion.
? This is the first reproductive health vote in the new

Congress and will be one of the only votes on family planning services.

I've sent my fax to you. Call me or e-mail if you don't have it. Also, NARAL's work is mostly on the domestic front but whenever there is legislation affecting international family planning, NARAL is on the front lines. So they do have a great record of advocacy for international family planning. Call me if you need more, 6-7307.

Would you please let Ann know that the VP is meeting with women leaders on Thursday and that David Sandalow of the VP's office/OEQ is pulling together a meeting tomorrow at 10:30 am in room 211 to explore what the VP should say as far as our strategy on the international family planning issue is concerned, which he believes will be a topic of discussion. As Ann knows, the VP speaks to NARAL at noon tomorrow and will mention the issue in general terms.

I spoke briefly with Ann Lewis on Friday, after she had taked to Martha Foley and Hilley (you probably know that she used to run Planned Parenthood, and therefore is quite well-versed on both the politics and the policy of this issue). She is going to be the lead communications person on this and plans to call a meeting for tomorrow to discuss the transmittal options. Who do you think should be there from USAID and State? I assume the leg and communications people, but I don't remember who they were from the last meeting. Please advise.

I hope the child welfare conference went well. Attached is the memo (saved in 5.1).

I left you a voice-mail message about Ryan Moore, the little boy whom HRC met a few years ago and then saw again in Sioux Falls on the campaign trail. The President then saw him a few days later, and they both invited Ryan and his family to the White House when they come to Baltimore for Ryan's surgery. His surgery date is February 18th -- is HRC around to see Ryan and his family at the White House on the 17th? I'm sure she would want to.

Also, fyi, as you may know, there is some talk about doing a POTUS event (in which HRC would surely want to participate) around the transmittal of the President's report to the Congress on International Family Planning. The event would be Jan. 30 or 31st, and we'll know more tomorrow.

Martha,

I understand you had a meeting Friday with senior staff re: the report. Are there any comments I need to pass on to State and AID?

Margaret Pollock at State is waiting to hear back from us. Their next step is to have the official transmittal letter signed by the Secretary in order to send the report to the President.

Let me know what you'd like me to do, if anything.

Thanks.

Thank you very much for doing this ... you know how these things go. The USAID folks say that they can do the meeting tomorrow at 2:30 or after 5:15 (I think 5:15 would likely be safer, don't you?). If you want, we can do the meeting in our conference room -- is up to you. The people to invite are:

Martha Foley
Elena Kagan (now DPC Deputy Dir.)
Lyn Hogan, DPC
Leg Affairs person (Stacy Rubin is checking who will be point person for Hilley)
Julia Moffett
Evan Ryan
Melanne & me (just send e-mail to me)

from USAID:

Jill Buckley, 647-4200
Ann Kitlaus, 647-4274
(please say that if Jill wants to bring another, that's fine)

from State:

USAID suggested someone of Tony Gambino's rank in the Comm. office, but I don't know who he is -- Dave Levy came to the last mtg.)

let me know if I can be of any help. Thanks again, Kevin.

I didn't have a meeting with senior staff; Tom and I chatted with LEP informally. I would like to try to read it myself today and then give you comments. I don't think there is any particular rush.
