STATEMENT BY DONNA E. SHALALA
SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Secretary Shalala issued the following statement in conjunction with publication of the article "Firearm-Associated Years of Potential Life Lost Before Age 65 Years--United States, 1980-1991" in the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention:

"If any additional evidence were needed that the time has come for the Senate to free the Crime Bill, it came today in a chilling new report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

"The CDC's National Center for Injury Prevention and Control reported that premature mortality from firearms jumped 14 percent between 1980 and 1991.

"That is the biggest increase for any leading cause of death except AIDS.

"This study also confirms that those losing their lives to firearms are becoming younger. Kids are killing kids in record numbers.

"These numbers are not just statistics -- they are our children.

"Violence involving firearms is a public health crisis and must be addressed by strong, direct action by our national legislature.

"Today's report sends a powerful message: we must take handguns out of the hands of our children and assault weapons off of our streets. President Clinton's Crime Bill would do both. Further delay in its enactment would be both inexcusable and lethal."

"AN AMERICAN CRIME BILL"

"Every Senator without regard to party ought to continue the bipartisan spirit that was established in the House for an American approach to an American problem. That is the service we ought to be performing... - to make this an American crime bill, and to do it without delay."

President Bill Clinton

- We must not let partisan politics get in the way of the safety of the American people. The Crime Bill before the Senate is the product of years of work by Democrats and Republicans. The bill includes provisions from members of both parties, and has bipartisan support around the country.
- BIPARTISAN VOTE: The bipartisanship behind the Crime Bill is clear from Sunday's vote in the House -- overwhelming approval, with almost one-third of House Republicans (46) joining with three-fourths of House Democrats to pass the Bill.
- BIPARTISAN SUPPORT: The Crime Bill has bipartisan support throughout the country, including:
 - ◆ Mayors - National Conference of Republican Mayors and Municipal Elected Officials; New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani; Los Angeles Mayor Richard Riordan; Provo, Utah Mayor George Stewart; Anchorage, Alaska Mayor Rick Mystrum; Knoxville, Tennessee Mayor Victor Ashe (President of the United States Conference of Mayors) and others.
 - ◆ Police - Every major law enforcement organization in the country.
 - ◆ Prosecutors - Bipartisan support from individual prosecutors, as well as the National District Attorneys Association and the National Association of Attorneys General.
- BIPARTISAN PROVISIONS: But it's not just bipartisan support, it's bipartisan substance. Many of the provisions in the Crime Bill were initiated, sponsored and actively endorsed by Republicans as well as Democrats.
 - ◆ The Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund was a bipartisan effort from the start with Republicans, like Senators Dole, Gramm, Domenici and Hatch joining Democrats like Senators Byrd, Mitchell and Biden in strongly and consistently sponsoring and supporting it.

- ◆ The assault weapons ban is based upon proposals cosponsored by Republican Senators Chafee and Kassebaum as well as Democratic Senators.
- ◆ Senators Dole and Hatch proposed a program similar to the Crime Bill's Community Policing program to put 100,000 police on the streets, but would have provided for fewer cops.
- ◆ Senators Dole and Hatch have joined Senator Biden and others in the effort to develop programs such as the Violence Against Women Act.
- ◆ The Dole-Molinari provision to allow prior accusations of sexual misconduct in trials is a Republican provision.
- ◆ The registration and community notification of sexual predators, sponsored by Republican Senator Gorton and Democratic Congresswoman Slaughter, has broad bipartisan support.
- ◆ The Police Corps has been actively sponsored by Republicans Senator Specter and Congressman Dornan.
- The prevention package is fully bipartisan:
 - ◆ President George Bush gave a Point of Light award to a midnight basketball league in 1990.
 - ◆ Included are anti-gang provisions based upon Senator Dole's amendment to the Senate bill that included grants to fund programs for academic, athletic or artistic enrichment and youth sports activities, including girls' and boys' clubs, scout troops and little leagues.
 - ◆ Senator Danforth sponsored the Community Schools program to keep schools open for afterschool and summer extra-curricular activities.
 - ◆ Senator Durenberger sponsored the Family Unity Demonstration program.
 - ◆ The Olympic Youth Development Centers was sponsored by Senator Stevens.
- Crime transcends politics, and this is a bipartisan Crime Bill. Americans understand that every day of partisan maneuvering means another day without the benefits that this bill will bring.

TALKING POINTS ON BUDGET ACT POINT OF ORDER

Background

Section 306 of the Budget Act prohibits legislating on matters within the jurisdiction of the Budget Committee unless it is on a budget related vehicle. Sixty votes are required to overcome the point of order. If the point of order is sustained, the conference report falls and the underlying bill is subject to amendment.

Talking Points

- * This point of order has nothing to do with deficit reduction or spending discipline. It is a technical matter that protects matters within the Budget Committee's jurisdiction.
- * The overwhelming majority of Senate Republicans supported and in fact helped to draft the trust fund provision. All but four Senate Republicans voted in favor of a Biden motion to instruct the conferees to include it in the conference report. All Democrats supported the Biden motion.
- * The conference report contains $30.2 billion in spending compared to Senate passed levels of $23.4 billion. Half of this increase is the result of an additional $1 billion for border control and $3 billion for prisons over and above Senate passed levels.
- * The conference report establishes stricter budgetary controls than the Senate trust fund and includes a sequestration mechanism that would cause spending to be cut if it exceeds trust fund levels.

POINT OF OBSTRUCTION:
THE NEXT ATTEMPT TO BLOCK CRIME BILL

- After the House's bipartisan vote to pass the conference crime bill, some Republican Senators are attempting another procedural trick to block the most comprehensive anti-crime legislation ever considered by Congress.
- These Senators say they plan to raise a point of order against the trust fund mechanism to fund the bill's programs, claiming that the fund violates budget rules. But many Republican Senators were among those who first proposed the trust fund when the Senate passed its version of the crime bill last November.
- Here's what Senators Gramm and Hatch had to say about the trust fund before the current attempt to obstruct the crime bill:
 - ◆ Senator Gramm: "I was a cosponsor of it [the trust fund]."
"So the first thing I want our [crime bill] conferees to do is stay with our funding mechanism."
 - ◆ Senator Hatch: "Creation of the violent crime trust fund will ensure that we do in fact make a difference in the fight against violent crime." "It took a very ingenious set of Senators to come up with this methodology for paying for our anticrime bill."
- The Senate voted 94 to 4 to demand that its conferees put the Trust Fund in the bill. Now, is it going to block the bill because those conferees followed those instructions?
- Each additional "procedural" delay is a blow to every major law enforcement organization in the United States (they've all endorsed this legislation). America demands a bipartisan effort to defeat this procedural delay so that we can pass this historic crime bill. The time has come to put politics and special interests aside and enact this critical legislation.

the House passed
Sunday night

THE CRIME BILL CONFERENCE REPORT

Congress has moved one important step closer to passing comprehensive legislation that will help make our neighborhoods, our homes and our families safer from crime. The new Crime Bill Conference Report still contains the central elements of President Clinton's balanced anti-crime strategy -- more policing, more punishment, and more prevention. Trimmed by $3.3 billion -- with all of its promises now fully funded from a Crime Trust Fund -- the Crime Bill is, in the President's words, "the toughest, largest, smartest Federal attack on crime in the history of our country."

MORE POLICE

100,000 More Police

The legislation will put 100,000 new police officers on the streets, walking the beat, working with citizens to prevent and solve crimes. Through "community policing" we can combined an increased police presence with the development of partnerships with communities -- to create safer neighborhoods.

The plan to put 100,000 police officers onto America's streets represents an almost 20% increase in the number of police officers nationwide. Half of the 100,000 new police will go to large cities and counties (over 150,000 persons); the balance will go to smaller cities and rural areas.

Assault Weapons

The Bill makes our police officers safer on the street by banning 19 listed weapons, copycats, and other clearly-defined semi-automatic guns, that are weapons of choice of drug dealers and gang members, and mass murderers. The Bill expressly protects over 600 other weapons from being regulated.

Law Enforcement Scholarships

The Crime Bill contains the Police Corps, which is similar to the ROTC program, to provide funds to individuals who are committed to joining police departments after graduation; another program provides scholarships to men and women already serving as police officers.

Kids and Guns

This provision makes it illegal for kids to carry handguns, except where with parental authority.

Federal Agents

The bill funds hundreds of additional federal law enforcement agents, at the FBI, DEA, and BATF.

Border Patrol

While strengthening immigration laws, the Crime Bill will also provide the resources necessary to enforce them. These measures include funding for an additional 1,000 Border Patrol agents, and funding for reforms to speed alien deportation.

MORE PUNISHMENT

Three Strikes and You're Out

The President's "Three Strikes and You're Out" life imprisonment provision will keep off the streets those career violent offenders who do the most harm to society.

Death Penalty

The Crime Bill will reinstate the Federal death penalty for the most heinous of crimes, such as killing a Federal law enforcement officer.

Prisons

States will receive almost $10 billion to help keep violent criminals and criminal aliens behind bars. Measures include a prison grant program which will help states lock up violent offenders, and $1.8 billion in funding to reimburse states for incarcerating criminal aliens.

Truth in Sentencing

A total of $7.9 billion in prison funding has some "truth in sentencing" requirements, with 40% of the funds set aside for the states that meet the most rigorous standards for jailing violent offenders for their full sentences (such as insuring that second offenders serve 85% of the time sentenced).

Drug Courts

Drug Court programs will support intensive court supervision of drug dependent defendants to provide the carrot-and-stick approach that can help them beat their addiction.

Youth Crime and Violent Young Offenders

The Crime Bill includes smart incarceration programs and tough alternative approaches, such as boot camps that provide the discipline and training necessary to deter young people from embarking on a life of crime, and discretionary authority to prosecute hardened young criminals, 13 and above, as adults for serious violent offenses. The Bill also funds detention facilities for violent juvenile offenders.

Rural Crime

Special provisions will combat rural crime, by putting more police officers in rural areas, and by specifically targeting funds to reduce drug trafficking, gang and domestic violence in rural communities.

Safety Valve

While insuring that violent offenders serve longer terms, the Bill also insures, on a prospective basis, that non-violent drug offenders do not tie up prison cells that could be used for more dangerous criminals.

Sexual Predators/ Rape Prosecutions

The Bill requires sexual predators to register with law enforcement even after their sentences end, and allows local law enforcement to notify the community that such a predator is in their midst. Also, the bill mandates HIV testing of accused rapists, and broadens the use of "prior acts" evidence against them.

MORE PREVENTION

Ounce of Prevention

Prevention programs in the Crime Bill will help steer young people away from crime and drugs and, as the President often says, "give them something to say 'yes'" to. The Ounce of Prevention Council and programs will help effectively coordinate and integrate the delivery of the Federal Government's new youth development and youth oriented crime prevention initiatives.

Community Schools

The Community Schools/FACES Program will give grants to community groups to keep schools open after hours and on weekends, so kids will have a place to go and stay out of trouble.

Violence Against Women

The Violence Against Women Act will increase Federal resources available to combat sexual and domestic violence, through education programs, law enforcement training and a national domestic violence hotline. The bill will also mandate higher penalties for perpetrators of gender-motivated crimes and strengthen victims' rights.

Local Partnership Act

The Local Partnership Act will provide grants to thousands of American cities to fund health and educational crime prevention programs.

Model Intensive Grants

The Model Intensive Grant Program will fund comprehensive crime prevention programs in chronic, high-intensity crime areas.

Gangs Prevention

The Gang Resistance Education and Training program ("G.R.E.A.T."), already a proven success, will help kids fight the allure of gang membership. Also, a Youth Academy Program will prevent youth violence by getting kids off the streets and into positive activities.

Drug Courts

The Bill funds innovative programs to get drug users out of our overcrowded courts, and into drug treatment or appropriate punishments.

Crime Prevention Block Grants

The new Conference Report streamlines the Bill by combining what were over a dozen, separate categorical grant programs into a single "Crime Prevention Block Grant" program, distributed by a violent-crime rate formula. This will give local communities the resources they need -- and the flexibility they desire -- to fund effective crime prevention programs.

PAYING FOR THE CRIME BILL ... AND THE NEED FOR ACTION

By reinventing government and focusing our priorities, we will make the money necessary to achieve these goals -- without increasing the deficit or raising new taxes.

- With the savings realized by the elimination of more than 250,000 Federal Government jobs, the Crime Bill will set up a $30 billion Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund to pay for the comprehensive police, punishment and prevention programs authorized in the anti-crime legislation.
- The new Conference Report fully funds from the Trust Fund every program it proposes -- making no unfunded promises, and insuring that our crime fighting efforts are fiscally responsible.
- The revised Conference Report reduces spending by $3.3 billion from the earlier proposal. About $2 billion of the cuts are in prevention (which still receives 23 % of the Bill's funds, or about $7 billion); the rest are spread among the Bill's other programs.
- The Crime Bill has broad bipartisan support. Outside of Washington, Democratic and Republican elected officials -- Governors, Attorneys General, Mayors -- have all endorsed the Bill.
- Law enforcement supports the Crime Bill. Every major police organization -- including groups representing over 450,000 police officers -- has endorsed the Bill. So too have the National Association of Attorneys General, and the National District Attorneys Association. Major victims' groups are also supporters.
- As the President has said:

"The American people want a 20 percent increase in the police forces in this country, 100,000 police; they want the tougher punishment; they want the capacity for imprisonment; they want the prevention funds; they want the assault weapons ban; they want the ban on teenagers owning guns; they want the protection for women against violence; they want the schools to be safer -- they believe the Crime Bill makes sense because it deals with the problem in a human, intelligent, and firm way. And it gives us a chance to come together again as a people."

Vote Against Motion to Recommit

THEY SAY IT'S TOUGHER, BUT HOW WILL YOU EXPLAIN YOUR VOTE?: WHAT THEY AREN'T TELLING YOU ABOUT THE MOTION TO RECOMMIT

After six years of waiting, passage of the motion to recommit means more delay on the Crime Bill -- no Crime Bill now, maybe no Crime Bill this year. That is reason enough to vote against it.

But the substance of the Brewster-Hunter Crime Bill makes it far weaker than the Conference Report. Before you support Brewster-Hunter, ask yourself how you are going to explain your vote for:

- No Death Penalty for Cop Killers: Brewster-Hunter deletes all of the federal death penalties in the Crime Bill, including death penalty for terrorist murders, drug kingpins, and killing a law enforcement officer.
- No "Three Strikes and You're Out": Brewster-Hunter keeps the revolving door spinning, by stripping from the Crime Bill the "three strikes and you're out" law.
- No Funds for Rural Enforcement: Brewster-Hunter eliminates the Bill's grant program for rural drug law enforcement -- taking a quarter billion dollars away from rural police and sheriffs.
- No Federal Law Enforcement Officers: Brewster-Hunter strips from the Crime Bill funds for putting FBI agents, DEA agents, and ATF agents on the streets.
- No Funds for Prosecutors and DAs: Brewster-Hunter contains no funding for federal, state, and local prosecutors. Explain that to your local DA!
- No Byrne Grant Increase: Brewster-Hunter strips from the Crime Bill $1 billion in additional funds for the local law enforcement Byrne Grants. Remember how your sheriffs felt when a $300 million cut in this program was considered this year -- don't vote for a cut three times as large!
- No Crack Down on Sex Offenders, Spouse Abusers: Brewster-Hunter drops $1 billion for local cops and prosecutors to crack down on sex offenders and spouse abusers -- and cuts $300 million for battered womens' shelters.

A vote for Brewster-Hunter is a vote to strip the death penalty and "three strikes;" to slash funds for FBI, DEA, & prosecutors; to eliminate money for Byrne grants and the crack down on sex crimes and domestic violence. How are you going to explain that?

A vote for Brewster-Hunter is a vote for a weaker Crime Bill -- or no Crime Bill at all.

[Note that these talking points are based on the Brewster-Hunter Bill; the motion to recommit may differ from the Bill.]

WHY PROGRESSIVES SHOULD SUPPORT THE REVISED CONFERENCE REPORT

The revised Conference Report does cut prevention funds, and toughen certain provisions. But it still merits strong support from progressive Members of Congress. Here's why:

- Balance of Bill Remains: Even with the cuts, prevention's share of the Bill remains at 23% (down just 4%, from 27% previously). The Bill is still the most balanced Crime Bill ever, in terms of its mix between law enforcement, prisons and prevention.
- Prevention Funding Still Substantial: Prevention and Drug Court programs are still funded at $7 billion -- a level higher than in the CBC's own Crime Bill. It's an unprecedented effort to prevent crime and give our kids something to say "yes" to.
- Major Programs Remain: Among the programs still funded in the Bill, at substantial levels, are:
 - Local Partnership Act, $1.6 billion
 - Model Intensive Prevention Grants, $790 million
 - After School Activities, $800 million
 - Youth Violence/Gang Prevention, $400 million
- Assault Weapon Ban: The Ban remains, with no cut backs, in the Conference Report. This Bill is the best (and probably only) chance to get these weapons of war off our streets. If this Bill goes down, the assault weapon ban probably dies with it.
- Other Key Provisions Also Included: The Conference Report also includes key provisions that progressive fought for, like the mandatory minimum safety valve (with retroactivity), and grants for alternatives to incarceration.
- What Comes Next: If this Crime Bill goes down, what comes next. No crime bill? Unlikely. Instead, the Congress is likely to move to a Crime Bill that contains everything you dislike -- and none of the prevention funding. That is what Rep. Gingrich, on the GOP side, and Rep. Brewster, on the Democratic side, are proposing.
- You Won't Stand Alone: In supporting this Bill, you stand with most of America's Mayors and local officials. They know how much this bill means to their communities -- and yours.

This Bill is the nation's best chance for a balanced, sound attack on crime. It deserved your support 10 days ago -- and it still does today.

THEY SHOULD KNOW BETTER: THE TRUTH BEHIND THE NRA LIES

More than 70 percent of Americans support the crime bill's ban on assault weapons, and the National Rifle Association is desperate. In a last-minute bid for crime bill gridlock, the NRA is buying up television time and turning to Hollywood for a rewrite of the truth.

NRA abandoned the facts long ago. Here's a guide to the "false witness" the NRA is bearing against the American people:

NRA Lie 1: The crime bill spends vast amounts on social programs -- more than on police.

The Facts: Wrong. More than $7 of out every $10 in the bill (72%) is for police, federal and state law enforcement, prisons and detention facilities.

Almost half of the remaining spending (13 percent of the total) is devoted to combatting violence against women, drug courts, and crime prevention programs originally sponsored by Republican Senators Danforth, Stevens and Domenici.

That means that 85% of the bill's funding is for law enforcement, prisons, drug courts, violence against women, and bipartisan prevention programs.

NRA Lie 2: "The Crime Bill will put two social workers on the street for every cop."

The Facts: Wrong again. As the July 16 Los Angeles Times said about this attack: "An examination of the facts shows that [this] calculation rests on a pyramid of questionable or flatly improbable assumptions." The crime bill earmarks no funds for the hiring of social workers -- none at all. On the other hand, the bill does provide almost $9 billion to put 100,000 cops on the street and increase community policing programs across America.

So where does the 2-1 figure come from? A Heritage Foundation study ludicrously estimates the crime bill will hire 40,000 social workers by applying every dollar for crime prevention to the hiring of a social worker -- even though such a use of these funds would be illegal under most of the bill's prevention programs. The prevention programs do not mandate the hiring of any social workers -- not one.

Instead, they fund sex crime and domestic violence prosecutors, special agents to track down gang gun-running, judges, police officers, DNA labs, improved criminal history records, domestic violence shelters, evening hours for schools and teachers, and dozens of other crime prevention functions having nothing to do with social work or social workers.

The NRA and the Heritage Foundation also say that just 20,000 cops will be hired under this bill -- an error debunked below.

NRA Lie 3: The crime bill will only hire 20,000 new cops.

The Facts: More Heritage Foundation fiction. The Crime Bill earmarks almost $9 billion to put 100,000 new police on the streets -- an increase of almost 20 percent over the nation's current 504,000 local law enforcement officers. Indeed, last year's supplemental police hiring program awarded $150 million in grants to hire more than 2000 new officers. At that rate 20,000 officers could be hired for only $1.5 billion.

Last year, entry-level police officers in cities over 10,000 earned an average of less than 24,000 a year¹ (and two-thirds of the jurisdictions eligible for police money have fewer than 10,000 people.) Even if you add fringe benefits and allow for inflation, the average salary and benefits per police officer is no higher than $42,000.

Maybe the Heritage Foundation was thinking of the Republicans' alternative proposal offered by Republican Senator Hatch -- it would have cut $1.6 billion from police hiring money.

Take it from the Los Angeles Times: "Critics appear to underestimate the number of police the bill could produce."

NRA Lie 4: The crime bill's prevention programs provide recreation and other soft activities for would be criminals.

The Facts: Than why are they supported by every major law enforcement organization, including the Fraternal Order of Police and the National District Attorneys Association -- as well as Republicans like former President Bush and Senators Dole and Hatch?

Crime prevention programs have had bipartisan support for years -- until politics took hold:

The Republican conference proposal includes substantial sums for "sporting and recreational equipment...nutrition guidance...supervised sports programs...workforce preparation...entrepreneurship...tutorial and mentoring programs...parenting classes...nonviolent dispute resolution...sports mentoring...Boys and Girls Clubs in Public Housing."

President Bush gave a Point of Light to a midnight basketball league in 1990.

Senators Hatch and Dole support the Violence Against Women Act.

Senators Danforth and Domenici support the Community Schools program.

Senators Dole and Hatch support the anti-gang grants.

Senator Gramm and Former Drug Czar Bennett supports Drug Treatment in Prisons.

Senators Stevens and Domenici support the Olympic Youth program.

Senators Dole and Hatch support the Boys and Girls club grants.

Senator Durenburger supports the Family Unity provisions.

Prevention programs are vital to fighting crime, but they don't magically turn into pork just because another party also supports them.

NRA Lie 5: The crime bill would release 10,000 drug dealers from prison.

The Facts: Wrong again. Rather than set violent offenders free because of prison overcrowding, the crime bill would allow an emergency "safety valve" for a few minor drug offenders -- but only if they are not violent, their offense was low-level, and they had not used a weapon. Most would need to have served four or more years already. If applied retroactively, only 100 to 400 prisoners -- not 10,000 -- could be eligible for release.

Just ask tough-on-crime Republican representatives Henry Hyde and Bill McCollum -- they support including the safety valve retroactively.

NRA Lie 7: The NRA ads are motivated by anything other than their desperation over the ban on assault weapons.

TEN STRIKES AND YOU'RE WAY OUT:
CRIME BILL MYTHS AND REALITY

Major league baseball may be on strike, but special interests are swinging at anything to stop the crime bill. Here is a scorecard of the top ten crime bill myths, and the facts that opponents don't want anyone to know.

Strike 1: The crime bill spends vast amounts on social programs -- more than on police.

The Facts: Wrong. More than $7 of out every $10 in the bill (72%) is for police, federal and state law enforcement, prisons and detention facilities.

Almost half of the remaining spending (13 percent of the total) is devoted to combatting violence against women, drug courts, and crime prevention programs originally sponsored by Republican Senators Danforth, Stevens and Domenici.

That means that 85% of the bill's funding is for law enforcement, prisons, drug courts, violence against women, and bipartisan prevention programs.

Strike 2: Some members say they abandoned the crime bill because the Conference Committee report boosted spending on prevention programs.

The Facts: Wrong again. The conference committee cut $820 million in spending on prevention programs contained in the House bill -- the same bill that 65 Republican representatives voted for in April. Meanwhile, the conference committee added $6.4 billion in spending for new police officers, FBI agents, DEA agents, local prosecutors, and police and prosecutors to fight violence against women.

Strike 3: The Conference Committee increased the crime bill's total spending from $27 billion to $33 billion.

The Facts: Still wrong. The $27 billion estimate of the cost of the House crime bill excluded the true cost of many of its programs which were simply authorized at "such sums as are appropriate." This includes the Byrne Grant program and new border control agents -- both "scored," for example, at no cost in the $27 billion calculation. Including OMB estimates for all the programs in the House bill, that would actually have cost $35 billion.

The conference report provides $33 billion in real dollars for every program -- a $2 billion cut from the House bill.

Strike 4: "The Crime Bill will put two social workers on the street for every cop."
(Heritage Foundation)

The Facts: An "A" in some think tanks, but an "F" in any math class. As the July 16 Los Angeles Times said about this attack: "An examination of the facts shows that [this] calculation rests on a pyramid of questionable or flatly improbable assumptions." The crime bill earmarks no funds for the hiring of social workers -- note at all. On the other hand, the bill does provide almost $9 billion to put 100,000 cops on the street and increase community policing programs across America.

So where does the 2-1 figure come from? First, the Heritage Foundation ludicrously estimates the crime bill will hire 40,000 social workers by applying every dollar for crime prevention to the hiring of a social worker -- even though such a use of these funds would be illegal under most of the bill's prevention programs. The prevention programs do not mandate the hiring of any social workers -- not one.

Instead, they fund sex crime and domestic violence prosecutors, special agents to track down gang gun-running, judges, police officers, DNA labs, improved criminal history records, domestic violence shelters, evening hours for schools and teachers, and dozens of other crime prevention functions having nothing to do with social work or social workers.

The Heritage Foundation also estimates that just 20,000 cops will be hired under this bill -- an error debunked below.

Strike 5: The crime bill "virtually guarantees that fewer than 20,000 new cops will be hired," at a cost of $70,000 to $80,000 per year. (Heritage Foundation)

The Facts: More bad math. The Crime Bill earmarks almost $9 billion to put 100,000 new police on the streets -- an increase of almost 20 percent over the nation's current 504,000 local law enforcement officers. Indeed, last year's supplemental police hiring program awarded $150 million in grants to hire more than 2000 new officers. At that rate 20,000 officers could be hired for only $1.5 billion.

Last year, entry-level police officers in cities over 10,000 earned an average of less than 24,000 a year¹ (and two-thirds of the jurisdictions eligible for police money have fewer than 10,000 people.) Even if you add fringe benefits and allow for inflation, the average salary and benefits per police officer is no higher than $42,000.

Maybe the Heritage Foundation was thinking of the Republicans' alternative proposal offered by Republican Senator Hatch -- it would have cut $1.6 billion from police hiring money.

Take it from the Los Angeles Times: "Critics appear to underestimate the number of police the bill could produce."

Strike 6: The crime bill's prevention programs provides recreation and other soft activities for "would be" criminals.

The Facts: Than why are they supported by every major law enforcement organization, including the Fraternal Order of Police and the National District Attorneys Association -- as well as Republicans like former President Bush and Senators Dole and Hatch?

Senator Durenburger supports the Family Unity provisions.

Prevention programs are vital to fighting crime, but they don't magically turn into pork just because another party also supports them.

Strike 7: The crime bill would release 10,000 drug dealers from prison.

The Facts: Wrong again. Rather than set violent offenders free because of prison overcrowding, the crime bill would allow an emergency "safety valve" for a few minor drug offenders -- but only if they are not violent, their offense was low-level, and they had not used a weapon. Most would need to have served four or more years already. If applied retroactively, only 100 to 400 prisoners -- not 10,000 -- could be eligible for release.

Just ask tough-on-crime Republican representatives Henry Hyde and Bill McCollum -- they support including the safety valve retroactively.

Strike 8: The crime bill will order the hiring of Hong Kong police to carry out law enforcement functions.

The Facts: The strangest myth of all. The provision was dropped from the conference report. Sponsored by Republican Senator Bill Roth, it would have been a mere study of the feasibility of using former Hong Kong police to help penetrate Asian-American gangs and fight Asian-American drug trafficking.

Strike 9: The crime bill will cut funding for the FBI and DEA.

The Facts: A real whopper. The crime bill does not cut $1 dollar from the FBI and DEA. Indeed, it adds $250 million in spending on FBI agents and $150 million for DEA agents. It also provides $550 for Treasury law enforcement and more than $1 billion for border control and INS enforcement.

Strike 10: The crime bill will take away hunting rifles.

The Facts: Not a chance. The crime bill would ban only 19 specified assault weapons, as well as copy cats and guns with the same characteristics. It specifically protects 650 hunting and sporting guns and includes a hunter's rights provision to protect hunters from harassment.

TEN STRIKES AND YOU'RE WAY OUT:
CRIME BILL MYTHS AND REALITY

Major league baseball may be on strike, but special interests are swinging at anything to stop the crime bill. Here is a scorecard of the top ten crime bill myths, and the facts that opponents don't want anyone to know.

Strike 1: The crime bill spends vast amounts on social programs -- more than on police.

The Facts: Wrong. More than $7 of out every $10 in the bill (72%) is for police, federal and state law enforcement, prisons and detention facilities.

Almost half of the remaining spending (13 percent of the total) is devoted to combatting violence against women, drug courts, and crime prevention programs originally sponsored by Republican Senators Danforth, Stevens and Domenici.

That means that 85% of the bill's funding is for law enforcement, prisons, drug courts, violence against women, and bipartisan prevention programs.

Strike 2: Some members say they abandoned the crime bill because the Conference Committee report boosted spending on prevention programs.

The Facts: Wrong again. The conference committee cut $820 million in spending on prevention programs contained in the House bill -- the same bill that 65 Republican representatives voted for in April. Meanwhile, the conference committee added $6.4 billion in spending for new police officers, FBI agents, DEA agents, local prosecutors, and police and prosecutors to fight violence against women.

Strike 3: The Conference Committee increased the crime bill's total spending from $27 billion to $33 billion.

The Facts: Still wrong. The $27 billion estimate of the cost of the House crime bill excluded the true cost of many of its programs which were simply authorized at "such sums as are appropriate." This includes the Byrne Grant program and new border control agents -- both "scored," for example, at no cost in the $27 billion calculation. Including OMB estimates for all the programs in the House bill, that would actually have cost $35 billion.

The conference report provides $33 billion in real dollars for every program -- a $2 billion cut from the House bill.

Strike 4: "The Crime Bill will put two social workers on the street for every cop."
(Heritage Foundation)

The Facts: An "A" in some think tanks, but an "F" in any math class. As the July 16 Los Angeles Times said about this attack: "An examination of the facts shows that [this] calculation rests on a pyramid of questionable or flatly improbable assumptions." The crime bill earmarks no funds for the hiring of social workers -- note at all. On the other hand, the bill does provide almost $9 billion to put 100,000 cops on the street and increase community policing programs across America.

So where does the 2-1 figure come from? First, the Heritage Foundation ludicrously estimates the crime bill will hire 40,000 social workers by applying every dollar for crime prevention to the hiring of a social worker -- even though such a use of these funds would be illegal under most of the bill's prevention programs. The prevention programs do not mandate the hiring of any social workers -- not one.

Instead, they fund sex crime and domestic violence prosecutors, special agents to track down gang gun-running, judges, police officers, DNA labs, improved criminal history records, domestic violence shelters, evening hours for schools and teachers, and dozens of other crime prevention functions having nothing to do with social work or social workers.

The Heritage Foundation also estimates that just 20,000 cops will be hired under this bill -- an error debunked below.

Strike 5: The crime bill "virtually guarantees that fewer than 20,000 new cops will be hired," at a cost of $70,000 to $80,000 per year. (Heritage Foundation)

The Facts: More bad math. The Crime Bill earmarks almost $9 billion to put 100,000 new police on the streets -- an increase of almost 20 percent over the nation's current 504,000 local law enforcement officers. Indeed, last year's supplemental police hiring program awarded $150 million in grants to hire more than 2000 new officers. At that rate 20,000 officers could be hired for only $1.5 billion.

Last year, entry-level police officers in cities over 10,000 earned an average of less than 24,000 a year¹ (and two-thirds of the jurisdictions eligible for police money have fewer than 10,000 people.) Even if you add fringe benefits and allow for inflation, the average salary and benefits per police officer is no higher than $42,000.

Maybe the Heritage Foundation was thinking of the Republicans' alternative proposal offered by Republican Senator Hatch -- it would have cut $1.6 billion from police hiring money.

Take it from the Los Angeles Times: "Critics appear to underestimate the number of police the bill could produce."

Strike 6: The crime bill's prevention programs provides recreation and other soft activities for "would be" criminals.

The Facts: Than why are they supported by every major law enforcement organization, including the Fraternal Order of Police and the National District Attorneys Association -- as well as Republicans like former President Bush and Senators Dole and Hatch?

Crime prevention programs have had bipartisan support for years -- until politics took hold:

The Republican conference proposal includes substantial sums for "sporting and recreational equipment...nutrition guidance...supervised sports programs...workforce preparation...entrepreneurship...tutorial and mentoring programs...parenting classes...nonviolent dispute resolution...sports mentoring...Boys and Girls Clubs in Public Housing."

President Bush gave a Point of Light to a midnight basketball league in 1990.

Senators Hatch and Dole support the Violence Against Women Act.

Senators Danforth and Domenici support the Community Schools program.

Senators Dole and Hatch support the anti-gang grants.

Senator Gramm and Former Drug Czar Bennett supports Drug Treatment in Prisons.

Senators Stevens and Domenici support the Olympic Youth program.

Senators Dole and Hatch support the Boys and Girls club grants.

Senator Durenburger supports the Family Unity provisions.

Prevention programs are vital to fighting crime, but they don't magically turn into pork just because another party also supports them.

Strike 7: The crime bill would release 10,000 drug dealers from prison.

The Facts: Wrong again. Rather than set violent offenders free because of prison overcrowding, the crime bill would allow an emergency "safety valve" for a few minor drug offenders -- but only if they are not violent, their offense was low-level, and they had not used a weapon. Most would need to have served four or more years already. If applied retroactively, only 100 to 400 prisoners -- not 10,000 -- could be eligible for release.

Just ask tough-on-crime Republican representatives Henry Hyde and Bill McCollum -- they support including the safety valve retroactively.

Strike 8: The crime bill will order the hiring of Hong Kong police to carry out law enforcement functions.

The Facts: The strangest myth of all. The provision was dropped from the conference report. Sponsored by Republican Senator Bill Roth, it would have been a mere study of the feasibility of using former Hong Kong police to help penetrate Asian-American gangs and fight Asian-American drug trafficking.

Daily Talking Points on Anti-Crime Legislation Tuesday, August 16, 1994

ONE FICTION AND TEN FACTS ABOUT PUTTING 100,000 NEW COMMUNITY POLICE OFFICERS ON THE STREETS

- Fiction: The Heritage Foundation's recent "Issue Bulletin" regarding the Crime Bill falsely claimed that the Crime Bill would fund only 20,000 new cops over the next six years, that each would cost $70,000 to $80,000 per year, and that the Crime Bill would produce the equivalent of only one new police officer for every police department in the country.

This misinformation has been cited on the floor of Congress by Crime Bill opponents and echoed over and over by conservative commentators in the press and on the airwaves. But the facts tell a very different story.

- Fact 1: ▶ The Crime Bill earmarks almost $9 billion for hiring or rehiring of community police officers and/or for increases in community policing programs. That money will help put 100,000 additional cops on the street -- an almost 20 percent increase in the nation's 504,000 local law enforcement officers.
- Fact 2: ▶ While some Republicans have been quoting the Heritage Foundation's attack of the President's crime bill plan to put 100,000 police on the streets, the Republicans' own alternative proposal offered during conference by Senator Hatch would have provided $1.6 billion less ($7.4 billion) for cops on the beat.
- Fact 3: ▶ The Crime Bill utilizes the same basic funding mechanism to put 100,000 new police on the streets as last year's popular $150 million Police Hiring Supplement program which awarded grants to hire 2080 new officers. Over 2000 cops for $150 million -- means that 20,000 officers can be hired for $1.5 billion not the $8.8 billion claimed by the Heritage Foundation. Moreover, the Administration received 10 applications for each grant awarded.
- Fact 4: ▶ The Crime Bill will put 100,000 new police on the streets of America's communities by the year 2000, starting with the 2,080 officers hired with this year's grants and adding:
- 14,822 new officers in 1995,
 - 20,586 in 1996,
 - 21,698 in 1997,
 - 18,916 in 1998,
 - 18,916 in 1999, and
 - + 2,982 in the year 2000, for a total of
- 100,000.
- Fact 5: ▶ Over six years the Crime Bill generally will provide multi-year grants of up to $75,000 to pay for up to 75% of the cost of salary and benefits for each new or rehired officer. Most communities will be expected to pay a 25% share of the salary and benefit costs.

Some communities may take advantage of a preference given for paying more than the 25% share. Needy communities that cannot afford to pay the 25% matching share or have much higher than average expenses may request a waiver of the matching requirement and the $75,000 cap.

- Fact 6: ▶ The median salary for entry level police officers last year for cities over 10,000 was $23,546 according to a survey conducted by the International City/County Management Association (ICMA). (More than 2/3 of the eligible jurisdictions are lower cost communities under 10,000 in population.) Fringe benefits might add another third to the average cost, bringing the total average entry salary and benefit costs to approximately $31,000. In order to allow for inflation and other variations, all the Justice Department's projections assume an average annual cost of salary and benefits of $42,000 per officer, still far less than the Heritage Foundation's unrealistic estimate of $70,000 to $80,000.
- Fact 7: ▶ The Crime Bill would help large cities like Los Angeles to hire 1000-1550 new officers.
- Fact 8: ▶ The Crime Bill would help cities like Beverly, Mass. to hire 13-15 new officers.
- Fact 9: ▶ The Crime Bill would help a small jurisdictions like Mineral County, Montana hire two deputy sheriffs and Lockhart, Texas hire two new police officers.
- Fact 10: ▶ Cities, counties, and communities nationwide need and want the Crime Bill's nearly $9 billion for community policing to hire 100,000 more police to help restore safety to our streets and neighborhoods.

PORK -- OR JUST GUN LOBBY SQUEALING?

Minority Whip Newt Gingrich says that the Crime Bill Conference Report is loaded with "pork." He asks "Why did the Bill go to Conference at $27 billion, but come out at $33 billion?" Here's the answer:

First: The Crime Bill Conference increased spending largely to put more resources into tough, crime fighting measures.

- Look at what's been increased since the House passed its Crime Bill in April:

	House Level	Conf Report
Police Officers	$3.5 bil	$ 8.8 bil
FBI Agents	$ 0 mil	$250 mil
DEA Agents	$ 0 mil	$150 mil
Local Prosecutors	$100 mil	$200 mil
Police and Prosecutors to Combat Violence Against Women	$400 mil	$1.0 bil
TOTAL	$4.0 bil	$10.4 bil

- Overall, more than $7 in $10 of all spending in the Bill (72%) is for police, federal and state law enforcement, prisons and detention facilities. Another 13% is devoted to combatting violence against women, drug courts, and crime prevention programs originally sponsored by Republican Senators Danforth, Stevens and Domenici.

Second: The Conference reduced spending for prevention programs from the House-passed levels.

- It's ironic that Rep. Gingrich is saying that the Bill was "porked up" in Conference; the Conference cut funding for many prevention programs, below their House-passed levels.
- Here are the prevention cuts made in the Conference Report, as compared to the House bill that 65 Republican members voted for in April (in per year amounts, in millions):

	House	Conf Rpt	Cut
Local Partnership Act	$400m	$300m	-$100m
Model Intensive Grants	$300m	$145m	-$155m
Community Schools/FACES	$230m	$150m	-$ 80m
Gang Prevention Grants	$100m	$ 5m	-$ 95m
Boys & Girls Clubs	$ 20m	$ 6m	-$ 14m
Hope in Youth (Gang Prvn)	$ 20m	$ 4m	-$ 16m
Police Partnerships w/Chldrn	$ 20m	$ 5m	-$ 15m
Midnight Basketball	$ 10m	$ 7m	-$ 3m
TOTAL	$1.1bil	$622m	-$ 478m

- Members can try to explain their flip-flops however they choose. But voting against the Crime Bill now -- after key prevention programs have been cut, and key law enforcement programs increased -- can have only one explanation: it's not "pork," but gun lobby "squealing" that accounts for the change. [Attached is a chart comparing funding levels for prevention programs in the House-passed Bill, and in the Conference Report.]

We'll Be Back

"I want [the House] to come back tomorrow and the day after that and the day after that, and to keep coming back until we give the American people the essential elements of this crime bill; until we put 100,000 police on the street . . . [pass] the assault weapons ban . . . and make "three strikes and you're out" the law of the land."

President Bill Clinton

"The vote was a setback, not a defeat. It is absolutely imperative that we get a vote on the Crime Bill. The American people want action. They will let their voice be heard and let Congress know that they want this bill voted on."

Attorney General Janet Reno

- ▶ Yesterday, Republicans in the House of Representatives voted 167 - 1 to kill the Crime Bill. Joined by the gun lobby, the Republican party threatened Members that they could be denied campaign funds and opposed in their primaries if they dared to cast of vote to support the President's Crime Bill.
- ▶ Capitalizing on the Republican's willingness to ignore, for purely partisan reasons, the desire of the American people for the Congress to take action against crime, the gun lobby was able to convince Members that rather than accept a ban on 19 specific weapons of mass murder, they should:
 - abandon funding for 100,000 cops on the street, in large and small cities and towns across the country
 - forego $9 billion dollars of grants to states for new prison and detention facilities,

- reject the "Three Strikes and You're Out" law which will put repeat violent offenders behind bars for life,
 - drop plans for added border patrol agents to stop illegal immigration, Drug Enforcement Administration agents to curb drug-trafficking, and FBI agents to investigate violent crime
 - delete $1.8 billion to reimburse states that incarcerate criminal aliens
 - eliminate resources for "boot camps" and other "shock incarceration" programs that instill discipline and respect for authority in young people who have veered in the wrong direction
 - forsake expansion of the successful Gang Resistance Education and Training program which helps keep kids out of gangs
 - discontinue development of drug courts aimed at forcing the 20% of cocaine users who consume 2/3 of the cocaine off the street and into treatment
 - eviscerate the most comprehensive program ever designed to combat violence against women
- The gun lobby's willingness to cavalierly dismiss the crime-fighting, crime-reduction and crime-prevention provisions of the crime bill in order to hold onto their assault weapons is as offensive as the partisan members of Congress willing to allow political considerations to interfere with the needs of the nation
- Claims that the bill is full of "pork" and "social spending" are belied by the facts:
- More than $7 in $10 of all spending in the bill (72%) is for police, federal and state law enforcement, prisons and detention facilities
 - Another 13% is devoted to combatting violence against women, drug courts and Republican sponsored crime prevention programs, by Senators Danforth and Domenici.
 - Thus, 85% of the Crime Bill's funding is for law enforcement, prisons, drug courts, violence against women, and bi-partisan crime prevention programs.
- We must not let the hypocrites, the partisans or the gun lobby have their way when there's so much else at stake. The Crime Bill's balanced approach -- with police, punishment and prevention -- should be passed by the House within the next week.

ISSUE BRIEFING: PUNISHMENT

Punishment Provisions in the Crime Bill Conference Report

Tuesday, August 2, 1994

Today's issue briefing describes provisions in the Crime Bill under the second key element of the President's anti-crime strategy, punishment (Monday's briefing examined police provisions, and tomorrow's will cover prevention programs). All the good work done by the law enforcement community is lost if we don't punish those who devastate our neighborhoods. With strict sentences for violent criminals and prisons to put them in, all Americans will be safer.

Criminal Sentencing

- Americans are fed up with the fact that even when violent criminals are caught, they are all too often returned to the streets to victimize again. The Crime Bill includes tougher and smarter sentencing procedures to make sure that those who deserve to be in prison, don't get out before they should -- and that sentences are appropriate for the crime committed.
- A small number of violent, repeat offenders, commit a great deal of the crime in this country. We must end the revolving door and lock up those offenders for good. The Crime Bill's "Three Strikes and You're Out" measure sends a strong message that those who repeatedly commit serious violent crimes against others will be punished severely.
 - * The provision will impose life imprisonment on a person who commits a serious violent felony under Federal law, after having been previously convicted of two or more serious violent felonies (under either Federal or state law). The measure is aimed at those offenders who fail to get the message and change their conduct even after repeated convictions for violent offenses. Individuals with such criminal histories should be put away for good.
 - * The plan is both tough and smart: It targets those truly dangerous offenders in our society without sweeping so broadly as to include persons convicted of crimes that, although serious enough to warrant significant sentences, should not result in mandatory life imprisonment; the measure limits its coverage to "serious violent felonies," such as murder, rape, sexual abuse, kidnapping, and using a gun in drug crimes.
- The Crime Bill includes minimum sentences for violent and gun offenders, as they provide the certainty of punishment which society rightfully expects for those who commit serious crimes.

- * We will use this important tool in a targeted, judicious manner to make sure that these sentences apply only to those who deserve such stiff sentences.
- * It is also important that there be a "safety valve" which permits very limited sentencing flexibility in the case of non-violent, low-level, first time offenders. Such individuals must be punished, but the taxpayers should not be asked to house them for the long, mandatory minimum sentences reserved for the most serious threats to society.
- Through "truth in sentencing" provisions, the Federal Government will encourage states to make criminals serve the time to which they are sentenced. And clearly, states which get tough with violent predators and make them serve their real sentences are going to need to build more prisons. We will support states that meet the most rigorous standards for jailing violent offenders for their full sentences (such as insuring that second offenders serve 85% of the time sentenced) by favoring them when it comes time to give out Federal grant money for incarcerating violent offenders.
- Those who ruthlessly kill others must be treated as severely as they have treated their victims.
 - * The Crime Bill will expand the death penalty to more than 60 crimes not currently covered by the Federal death penalty, like the killing of a state or local law enforcement official assisting in a Federal investigation.
 - * The bill will also adopt procedures enabling Federal prosecutors to seek the death penalty for a wide range of crimes that have lacked death penalty eligibility because of missing procedural requirements -- and will insure that this penalty is used fairly, justly, and in appropriate cases only.

Prisons

- We must work to lock up the largest number of violent offenders and criminal aliens, as quickly as possible, at the lowest possible cost.
- The Crime Bill will fulfill the Administration's commitment to helping states that are struggling to keep violent criminals and criminal aliens from being released prematurely because of overcrowding. While the Federal Government builds enough prisons and detention facilities to insure that Federal inmates are not released early for lack of space, many states are forced to release criminals routinely due to space limitations.

- States must also contend with drastically shrinking resources. There are currently over 15,000 state prison beds which cannot be filled because states lack the necessary operating capital. The safety of our citizens depends upon states being able to keep violent criminals behind bars to do their time.
- The Crime Bill will help lock up violent offenders quickly and efficiently, and make our streets safer, by providing $9 billion in assistance to state correctional and detention systems. Such funding, when made available to the states on a discretionary basis, will allow states to build and operate appropriate facilities for housing serious drug and violent offenders -- including boot camps, prisons, jails, and community detention facilities. One such measure will allocate $1.8 billion to reimburse states that incarcerate criminal aliens.

Punishment for Young Offenders

- All too often, young offenders learn that the consequence for committing a crime is to be put on probation. That's it. In other circumstances, young non-violent offenders are thrown in with our most hardened criminals where they learn the "right way" to commit crimes.
- By providing alternative sanctions to probation or hard-core, long-term incarceration, we can teach young offenders that there is a certainty of punishment at the initial stages of a criminal career. That lesson learned might nip a new criminal career in the bud. Some alternative sanctions include: shock incarceration, electronic monitoring, weekend incarceration, home incarceration, restitution programs, vocational programs, community service, intensive supervised probation and other innovative and non-traditional options which ensure swift and certain punishment. Drug Courts are one such alternative, using the power of the criminal justice system to force offenders to kick their drug habits.
- "Boot Camps" provide penal authorities with a viable sentencing solution for young offenders. Frequently called "shock incarceration" programs, boot camps place young offenders in a program similar to a military basic training program that instills discipline, routine, and respect for authority. They also provide exposure to relevant educational and vocational training, drug treatment, and general counseling services to help youths develop more positive and law-abiding values and become better prepared to secure legitimate future employment.
- The Crime Bill will also lower the age at which violent offenders can be tried as adults in Federal court, so that young people who don't act like children won't necessarily be treated like children.

ISSUE BRIEFING: PREVENTION

Crime Prevention Programs in the Crime Bill Conference Report

Wednesday, August 3, 1994

This is the third of three issue papers discussing the key elements of the President's anti-crime strategy, represented in the Crime Bill before Congress. Just as certainly as we must punish those who break our laws and wreak havoc in our cities, we must also take whatever steps we can to stop crime before it happens. Those who have no hope, no job, no other answer, who know no other way are often drawn to crime and violence. All Americans deserve hope and opportunity; need to know that there is a better answer than crime, and must have the opportunity to go another way.

If we are going to steer young people away from crime and gangs we must, as the President often says, provide them with "something to say 'yes' to": after-school programs, summer youth activities, and employment, sports and recreation opportunities that can take the place of gangs. We can bring community groups, law enforcement officials, and struggling young Americans together in an effort to keep kids off the path to crime.

Key Prevention Programs in the Crime Bill

- The President's Youth Employment Skills program "Y.E.S." will provide young people with job training and opportunities in hard-hit, high-crime areas. We believe that neighborhood youths and young adults will say "YES" to jobs and no to crime. And we must work with existing businesses in these areas to encourage them to stay, expand, and hire young people from the community.
- The Ounce of Prevention Council and programs can provide the vehicle for effectively coordinating and integrating the delivery of the Federal Government's new youth development and youth-oriented crime prevention initiatives.
- The Police Partnerships for Children program encourages police officers to make a difference in young lives by becoming involved with children and family services agencies that deal with at-risk children.
- The Gang Resistance Education and Training program ("G.R.E.A.T."), is already a proven success, helping kids fight the allure of gang membership through education.
- The Community Schools Initiative of the Ounce of Prevention Program will provide grants to communities across the country to develop and implement after-school programs for youth, drawing together parents, clergy, social workers, teachers, youth groups, community and business leaders and local officials.

- The Model Intensive Grant Program is a competitive program which will award up to 15 highly targeted grants to support comprehensive crime prevention programs in chronic, high-intensity crime areas.
- The Local Partnership Act will provide grants to thousands of American cities to fund health and educational crime prevention programs.
- The Midnight Sports Program will provide grants to programs designed to prevent youth violence by getting kids off the streets and teaching them sportsmanship, teamwork and conflict resolution.
- Programs to place Boys and Girls Clubs in public housing projects -- which are all too often located in high-crime areas -- can provide young people with a meaningful alternative to gangs, drugs, crime and violence.

Drug Courts

- We will never control crime until we control substance abuse. We must get the hard core drug users -- the 20% of cocaine users who consume over 2/3 of available cocaine -- off the streets and into treatment. Effective, innovative programs, like drug courts use the power of the criminal justice systems to force addicts to kick their drug habits.
 - * Adequately funded and administered drug treatment and coerced abstinence programs are critical to breaking the drug and violent crime cycle that has so heavily burdened our criminal justice system.
 - * The program includes an intensive supervision of the participants by the court, drug testing and treatment, and the prompt application of a series of graduated sanctions for failure to comply with the conditions of the program.
 - * The program can be administered on a pre-trial diversion basis, as a post-conviction probation program, or in combination.

Violence Against Women

- Action must be taken to stop and/or more severely penalize those criminals who prey, intentionally, upon women. New Federal laws and programs in the Violence Against Women Act can help prevent some attacks and improve after the fact restitution for the victims of others.

- * The Crime Bill's Violence Against Women Federal cause of action for gender-motivated violence is both fair and smart. It's fair because it addresses those situations in which victims are without redress due to inadequate state remedies, and allows victims improved access to Federal courts. It's smart because it does not clog Federal dockets by automatically labelling whole categories of offenses as gender-motivated.
- * We should also be focusing on the interstate incidents of criminal abuse and violence against women, recognizing the Federal criminal justice system's role in such matters. The Crime Bill would create appropriate new Federal offenses in this area, such as fleeing across state lines in violation of a "stay away" or protective order.
- * The Violence Against Women Act would enhance the rights of crime victims through provisions including strengthened restitution and extension of the "rape shield law" which protects victims from abusive inquiries concerning their private sexual conduct.
- * By putting money into enforcement, training, and other prevention approaches, we can effectively respond to crime and prevent many crimes. The Crime Bill would fund such efforts as a national domestic violence hotline, anti-stalking programs, and state grant programs to educate college students about rape and violence prevention.

ISSUE BRIEFING: RURAL CRIME
Rural Crime Provisions in the Crime Bill Conference Report
Monday, August 8, 1994

One of the principal objectives of the President's anti-crime strategy in the Crime Bill Conference Report is an effort to combat rural crime. Through equitable distribution formulas and targeted programs for rural areas, the bill ensures that small towns and rural areas are not left out when it comes to law enforcement resources.

Half of the 100,000 New Officers Go to Small Cities and Rural Counties

- More than 50,000 of the 100,000 new community police officers will be assigned in cities and counties with populations of less than 150,000 residents.
- While urban areas may increase their police forces by 20%, some rural areas may request and be awarded as many as 50% more police officers.
- Each state will be eligible for a minimum of 500 new police officers (or equivalent-sized grants).

Special Funds to Combat Drug Trafficking in Rural Areas

- The problem of drug trafficking is no longer limited to large metropolitan areas and the Crime Bill Conference Report provides a comprehensive response to this crisis by:
 - * Authorizing $250 million for rural law enforcement agencies.
 - * Creating rural crime and drug enforcement task forces; and
 - * Providing specialized drug enforcement training for rural law enforcement officers.

Other Crime Bill Provisions Also Address Rural Crime

- The Crime Bill adds $1 billion in additional funding to the Byrne Program, which is so critical to rural states and their law enforcement.
- Domestic violence in rural areas is specifically targeted in the Bill Against Women provision, with separate funds set aside to combat violence and child abuse in rural areas.
- Most major prevention programs -- such as the Local Partnership Model Intensive Grant program -- include express language ensuring "funding" for rural areas.
- The Crime Bill's Juvenile Drug Trafficking and Gang Prevention contain specially targeted funds for grants to combat drug and gang activity in rural areas.

Crime Bill's Policy on Rural Crime Funding

- The Crime Bill includes directives stipulating that:
 - * The Attorney General should ensure that Crime Bill funds are distributed so that rural areas continue to receive compensation for their broad-based crime fighting initiatives;
 - * Rural communities should not receive less funding than in fiscal year 1994 for anti-crime initiatives; and
 - * To the maximum extent possible, funding for the Byrne Program should be maintained at its fiscal year 1994 level.

ISSUE BRIEFING: POLICE

Policing Provisions in the Crime Bill Conference Report

Monday, August 1, 1994

Today's issue briefing includes law enforcement provisions central to the President's anti-crime legislation (Tuesday's briefing will address punishment issues, and Wednesday's briefing will cover crime prevention programs). Providing communities with the resources to be able to hire more cops in the neighborhoods, the ability to select from a motivated group of law enforcement recruits, and the Federal laws which they need to provide them maximum backup and protection, together will allow us to catch and punish criminals and to prevent crime.

100,000 New Officers Engaged in Community Policing

- Putting 100,000 police officers onto America's streets, engaged in community policing, is at the heart of the President's overall anti-crime strategy. It demonstrates that crime fighting is about punishment and prevention.
- Community policing will put more officers on our streets who know their neighborhoods and know how to work with residents to reduce and control crime — patrolling neighborhoods, building partnerships based on trust with communities, and keeping our streets safer for law-abiding citizens.
- The plan will have an enormous impact, representing an almost twenty percent increase in the current number local police officers nationwide. The nearly $9 billion allocated for this program will enable the Administration to help every community in the country that needs and wants assistance to strengthen its police force to improve public safety.
- The plan protects small states by guaranteeing each state a significant minimum-level of community policing funding. It also benefits rural areas and cities of all sizes.
- There's no question that demand for more police officers is high and continues to rise all across the country. Thousands of Mayors and Police Chiefs have already applied for community policing grants under the Administration's Policing Hiring Supplement Program, and 250 communities received grants for 2023 new police officers. But the demand is so great that the Justice Department could not accommodate 9 out of 10 applications due to the Supplemental Program's limited funds of $150 million. Passing the Crime Bill can change that, because with nearly $9 billion for 100,000 new officers, every community that needs police can receive help.

- Under the community policing provision, jurisdictions will be able to request the amount of support for whatever number of additional police officers they actually need to control crime effectively -- some may need a 20% increase, some more, some less, depending upon their individual circumstances. The flexible approach is aimed at meeting the different crime control needs of individual jurisdictions.
- The plan's flexibility provides the Attorney General with sufficient authority to waive or modify requirements which might otherwise preclude participation by cities which have been hit hard by both crime and economic dislocation and are struggling financially.
- The key to the President's plan is flexibility: the 100,000 police program aims to deploy officers in a way that meets the specific needs of local communities.

Federal Law Enforcement

- The Clinton anti-crime strategy recognizes that although violent crime is handled primarily at the state and local level, the Federal Government must do more to assist those agencies in our national effort to reduce crime. That is why the Crime Bill includes additional funding for:
 - * Hiring more Federal Bureau of Investigation Agents to help investigate violent crime;
 - * Hiring more Border Patrol Agents to protect our borders;
 - * Hiring more Drug Enforcement Administration agents to curb drug trafficking on our streets; and
 - * Law enforcement components and functions of the Treasury Department to help meet increased law enforcement responsibilities.

Law Enforcement Scholarships

- The President has indicated time and again that he wants crime legislation which is both tough and smart. Provisions designed to make sure that we are smart about the way we fight crime include the development of a Police Corps and the funding of Law Enforcement Scholarships.
- We must do all that we can to have our law enforcement officials not only equipped with the weaponry and technology they need, but also with the education and skills which will maximize their ability to fight crime.

- By providing college scholarship funds for individuals committed to joining police departments after graduation, we can develop well-educated police officers who have focused for years on training for that job.
- The Police Corps will develop a new group of well-educated police officers available annually for recruitment to police departments across the country.
- The Crime Bill would also fund Law Enforcement Scholarships to provide educational opportunities for in-service officers seeking to improve their skills and abilities.

Firearms

- Just as the "choice" between prevention and punishment is a false one, the argument about whether to regulate guns or punish those who misuse them is an oversimplification of an enormous problem. Gun violence is growing 2 1/2 times as fast as violent crime not involving guns. Unfortunately, our young people are those most likely to be victims of gun crimes. And over the last five years, 415 law enforcement officers were feloniously killed, 91% of them with a gun -- 73% of which were handguns. We must crack down on gun violence.
- The Brady Bill is now law, with all 50 states conducting background checks. Now, the Crime Bill would fund grants for the improvement of state criminal history records, so that the national instant check system can become a reality. And, the bill would expand the categories of persons prohibited from obtaining a firearm to those convicted of domestic abuse and those under restraining orders stemming from domestic abuse situations.
- Legislation to ban semiautomatic assault weapons is not about controlling guns; it's about controlling crime.
 - * Semiautomatic assault weapons are the weapons of choice for drug dealers, gangs, and terrorists. While they represent only one percent of privately-owned firearms in this country, assault weapons account for eight percent of the firearms traced to crime -- a disproportionately high number which has been rising in recent years.
 - * And every year, these weapons kill police officers -- men and women who put their lives on the line everyday to keep our communities safe. They are the ones who are out-gunned by the firepower that street criminals now wield with assault weapons.

- * Every major law enforcement organization in America supports a ban on assault weapons. We cannot ask police officers to risk their lives in the fight against crime -- and then deny them the help they need.
- * The legislative ban will prohibit weapons designed for military combat, but specifically safeguard hunters' rights by explicitly exempting over 650 hunting and recreational guns. Moreover, not all semiautomatic firearms are covered by the ban; only semiautomatic assault weapons -- weapons designed for the battlefields of war -- are prohibited.
- With gun violence most severe among our young people, new steps must be taken to keep guns out of the hands of children. That is why the Conference Report includes the Youth Handgun Safety Act prohibiting those under 18 do not have access to guns except in limited, carefully defined circumstances, involving parental authority and legitimate usage.

THE CRIME BILL CONFERENCE REPORT

Congress has moved one important step closer to passing comprehensive legislation that will help make our neighborhoods, our homes and our families safer from crime. The Crime Bill contains the central elements of President Clinton's balanced anti-crime strategy -- more policing, more punishment, and more prevention. As the President said, it is "the toughest, largest, smartest Federal attack on crime in the history of our country."

MORE POLICE

100,000 More Police

The legislation will put 100,000 new police officers on the streets, walking the beat, working with citizens to prevent and solve crimes. Through "community policing" we can combine an increased police presence with the development of partnerships with communities -- to create safer neighborhoods.

The plan to put 100,000 police officers onto America's streets represents an almost 20% increase in the number of police officers nationwide. Half of the 100,000 new police will go to large cities and counties (over 150,000 persons); the balance will go to smaller cities and rural areas.

Law Enforcement Scholarships

The Crime Bill will improve the training of current and future police officers, and help recruit more officers to work with their communities. The Police Corps, similar to the ROTC program, will provide funds to individuals who are committed to joining police departments after graduation; another program provides scholarships to men and women already serving as police officers.

Assault Weapons

The Bill makes our police officers safer on the street by banning 19 listed weapons, copycats, and other clearly-defined semi-automatic guns, that are weapons of choice of drug dealers, gang members, and mass murderers. The Bill expressly protects over 600 other weapons from being regulated.

Kids and Guns

This provision makes it illegal for kids to carry handguns, except with parental authority.

Federal Agents

The bill funds hundreds of additional Federal law enforcement agents, at the FBI, DEA, and BATF.

Border Patrol

While strengthening immigration laws, the Crime Bill will also provide the resources necessary to enforce them. These measures include funding for an additional 1,000 Border Patrol agents, and funding for reforms to speed alien deportation.

MORE PUNISHMENT

Three Strikes and You're Out	The President's "Three Strikes and You're Out" life imprisonment provision will keep off the streets those career violent offenders who do the most harm to society.
Death Penalty	The Crime Bill will reinstate the Federal death penalty for the most heinous of crimes, such as killing a Federal law enforcement officer.
Prisons	States will receive $9 billion to help keep violent criminals and criminal aliens behind bars. Measures include a prison grant program which will help states lock up violent offenders quickly and efficiently as well as encourage them to improve their criminal justice systems by adopting "truth in sentencing" provisions. $1.8 billion of this funding will reimburse states that incarcerate criminal aliens.
Truth in Sentencing	A total of $6.5 billion in prison funding has some "truth in sentencing" requirements, with 40% of the funds set aside for the states that meet the most rigorous standards for jailing violent offenders for their full sentences (such as insuring that second offenders serve 85% of the time sentenced).
Drug Courts	Drug Court programs will support intensive court supervision of drug dependent defendants to provide the carrot-and-stick approach that can help them beat their addiction.
Youth Crime and Violent Young Offenders	The Crime Bill includes smart incarceration programs and tough alternative approaches, such as boot camps that provide the discipline and training necessary to deter young people from embarking on a life of crime, and discretionary authority to prosecute hardened young criminals, 13-years-old and above, as adults for serious violent offenses. The Bill also funds secure detention facilities for violent juvenile offenders.
Rural Crime	Special provisions will combat rural crime, by putting more police officers in rural areas, and by specifically targeting funds to reduce drug trafficking, gang and domestic violence in rural communities.
Safety Valve	While insuring that violent offenders serve longer terms, the Bill also sensibly insures that non-violent drug offenders do not tie up prison cells that could be used for more dangerous criminals.

MORE PREVENTION

Ounce of Prevention

Prevention programs in the Crime Bill will help steer young people away from crime and drugs and, as the President often says, "give them something to say 'yes'" to. The Ounce of Prevention Council and programs will help effectively coordinate and integrate the delivery of the Federal Government's new youth development and youth oriented crime prevention initiatives.

Y.E.S.

The President's Youth Employment Skills program, "Y.E.S.," will provide young people with job training and work opportunities in hard-hit, high-crime areas.

Community Schools

The Community Schools Program will give grants to community groups to keep schools open after hours and on weekends, so kids will have a place to go and stay out of trouble.

Violence Against Women

The Violence Against Women Act will increase Federal resources available to combat sexual and domestic violence, through education programs, law enforcement training and a national domestic violence hotline. The bill will also mandate higher penalties for perpetrators of gender-motivated crimes and strengthen victims' rights.

Local Partnership Act

The Local Partnership Act will provide grants to thousands of American cities to fund health and educational crime prevention programs.

Model Intensive Grants

The Model Intensive Grant Program will fund comprehensive crime prevention programs in chronic, high-intensity crime areas.

Gangs Prevention

The Gang Resistance Education and Training program ("G.R.E.A.T."), already a proven success, will help kids fight the allure of gang membership. Also, a Midnight Sports Program will prevent youth violence by getting kids off the streets and teaching them sportsmanship, teamwork and conflict resolution.

Police Partnerships

The Police Partnerships for Children program will encourage police officers to make a difference in young lives by becoming involved with children and family services agencies that deal with at-risk children.

PAYING FOR THE CRIME BILL ... AND THE NEED FOR ACTION

By reinventing government and focusing our priorities, we will make the money necessary to achieve these goals -- without increasing the deficit or raising new taxes. With the savings realized by the elimination of more than 250,000 Federal Government jobs, the Crime Bill will set up a $30 billion Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund to pay for the comprehensive police, punishment and prevention programs authorized in the anti-crime legislation.

- On Thursday, President Clinton, Attorney General Reno, Secretary Bentsen, Drug Director Brown -- and hundreds of police officers from around the country -- held a rally at the Department of Justice to celebrate the completion of the Crime Bill Conference Report and to urge the House and Senate to swiftly pass the comprehensive anti-crime legislation.
- The President said:

"Let's not forget that the bill is not a law. It has been voted out of a conference committee. The House must vote a rule to permit it to come to the vote. Then the House and Senate must pass it.

"It is urgent that we send the message out of this meeting that not only the law enforcement community, but the American people want a 20 percent increase in the police forces in this country, 100,000 police, that you want the tougher punishment, that you want the capacity for imprisonment, that you want the prevention funds, that you want the assault weapons ban, that you want the ban on teenagers owning guns, that you want the protection for women against violence, that you want the schools to be safer -- that you believe the Crime Bill makes sense because it deals with the problem in a human, intelligent, and firm way. And it gives us a chance to come together again as a people.

"Let's go pass the bill!"

CRIME BILL CONFEREES REACH HOME STRETCH

- House and Senate conferees made substantial progress yesterday in their efforts to reconcile the House and Senate versions of the Crime Bill, and they are meeting again today in anticipation of finalizing the comprehensive anti-crime legislation.
- Yesterday, the conferees formally adopted many of the measures that are central to the President's tough and sensible approach to combatting the crime and violence that plague our communities -- an approach that strikes a balance between more police, swift and certain punishment, and effective prevention.
- The Senate conferees approved President Clinton's plan to put 100,000 new community police officers on America's streets, and House conferees made progress toward its adoption. The program, which is at the heart of the President's overall anti-crime strategy, will have an enormous impact, representing an almost twenty percent increase in the current number of local police officers nationwide.
- The Senate conferees also voted to include in the Conference Report a ban on semi-automatic assault weapons -- weapons of destruction which are increasingly used by drug dealers, gangs and terrorists to out-gun and kill police officers. The House conferees will consider this critical provision today.
- Final action on the Conference Report should be achieved later week, and in the coming days the full House and Senate will have the opportunity to pass balanced and effective anti-crime legislation.

TALKING POINTS ON PAWNBROKERS PROVISION

Explanation

- The amendment repeals an ATF regulation that ruled that retrieving one's own gun from a pawn shop should be treated like a new purchase of a gun, instead of being treated like picking up one's own gun after having it repaired.
- The amendment simply says that, given that there is no sale, purchase, or transfer of a pawned gun, the Brady Law does not apply to such a transaction.
- The amendment does not impact on purchases of guns from pawn shops; such purchases will still be covered by the Brady Law.

Talking Points

- Chairman Brooks is willing to support the Crime Bill -- and let us have our ban on assault weapons, without any compromise -- if he prevails on the pawn shops issue.
- Under this scenario, Treasury will get its federal firearms licensing reforms as part of the Crime Bill.
- This isn't a question of "trading:" Brooks can probably line-up the votes to beat us anyway. He just does not want a big dispute over this, and if we are helpful in lining up Schumer on this, Brooks will not use his power to deny us the Crime Bill or the assault weapon ban.
- Schumer will only support Brooks on this if ATF gives him cover. Thus, we need to get Schumer some sort of letter that allows him to go along with Brooks, and get this done.
- Couldn't you all write a letter that says: "In the context of a comprehensive crime bill that does so much to make our streets safer, bans assault weapons, and tightens federal firearms licensing, we have no objection to a legislative change that clarifies Congress' view that bailments should not be treated like purchases under the Brady Law."
- You can accept this as Congress clarifying its intent in passing Brady -- bailments are a hard case as to whether they should or should not be covered, if Congress wants to make it clear that they are not, you did not object.

CRIME BILL CONFERENCE MOVES TOWARD CONCLUSION

- This afternoon, House and Senate conferees will resume meetings to reconcile the House and Senate versions of the Crime Bill -- to give final approval to the Administration's comprehensive anti-crime legislation. The Crime Bill is a tough, effective and sensible approach that will keep our neighborhoods, our homes and our families and friends safe from criminal activity.
- President Clinton's anti-crime strategy offers America a balance between more law enforcement, certain and appropriately severe punishment, and strenuous efforts to keep young people from travelling down the criminal path.
- The President's plan has already gained broad, bipartisan support from elected officials, law enforcement officers, and ordinary American citizens. The conferees should include in the final Crime Bill these measures of police, punishment and prevention:

100,000 Cops

Nearly $9 billion to put 100,000 new police officers on America's streets, in communities of all sizes -- an almost twenty percent increase in the current number local police officers patrolling our neighborhoods, responding to community concerns, and getting violent criminals off of our streets and away from our young people;

Three Strikes, You're Out

A "Three Strikes, You're Out" measure aimed at career offenders who repeatedly terrorize our citizens;

Prisons

A grant program to help states put and keep violent criminals behind bars for a long time by giving them resources to create much needed prison space and by encouraging them to adopt "truth in sentencing" reforms;

Drug Courts

Drug Courts for those substance-addicted offenders who can, through mandatory court-supervised treatment, lead productive lives;

Assault Weapons

A ban on semiautomatic assault weapons -- the weapons of choice for drug dealers, gangs, and terrorists who use these weapons of destruction to out-gun and kill police officers;

Prevention

A balanced crime prevention agenda which steers young people away from criminal activity by giving them "something to say 'yes'" to, such as the President's Youth Employment and Skills ("YES") program, which targets job training and job creation efforts for youth and young adults in high crime, economically distressed neighborhoods, and the Midnight Sports League, which gives young people a safe, healthy place to go in the evenings.

Crime Bill Talking Points

Daily Talking Points on Anti-Crime Legislation

Wednesday, July 20, 1994

PASS THE CRIME BILL FOR AMERICA'S CHILDREN

- Across the country, tragic stories abound of crimes committed by and against young people — in our schools, on the streets and in children's own homes. The Department of Justice issued a study this week showing an alarming increase in violent crimes that claim juveniles as victims.
- In 1992, one of every 13 juveniles was a victim of violent crime, compared to one of every 72 adults. These kids, aged 12 through 17 were raped, robbed or assaulted five times as frequently as adults 35 and older — and at a rate 23 percent higher than five years earlier.
- Attorney General Janet Reno called these statistics disturbing and said "they are compelling proof that we must get the Crime Bill to President Clinton's desk. One out of thirteen young people is a victim of violent crime. For America's children and for America's future, we need the Crime Bill."
- Yesterday, President Clinton reminded us of children behind the statistics: Polly Klaas, who was murdered by a career criminal who kidnapped her from her home in Petaluma, California; and nine-year-old James Darby of New Orleans, who was gunned down nine days after sending a letter to the President pleading, "I think somebody might kill me, and I'm asking you nicely to do something about it." The President said, "The names of Polly Klaas and James Darby and all the others we're going to lose if we don't act — it's time to put all our differences aside, to work out the problems we have to work out and pass that crime bill."
- The Crime Bill would help combat violence against children, with provisions including:
 - * Putting 100,000 new community police officers on the streets, working with citizens to prevent and solve crimes;
 - * A "Three Strikes and You're Out" life imprisonment provision aimed at career offenders who do the most harm to society;
 - * Grants for victims' services, aggressive prosecutions and the establishment of a national domestic violence hotline;
 - * Discretionary authority to prosecute hardened young criminals, 13-years-old and above, as adults for serious violent offenses; and
 - * Measures to keep guns out of the hands of kids, such as the Youth Handgun Safety Act, which bans the possession of firearms by minors except in limited circumstances.
- We can also steer young people away from crime and gangs by giving them "something to say yes to": after-school programs, summer youth activities, and employment, sports and recreation opportunities. We can bring community groups, law enforcement officials and struggling young Americans together in an effort to direct kids off the dangerous streets and away from a life of crime.

WORKING WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT TO COMBAT CRIME

- Attorney General Janet Reno met yesterday in Richmond, Virginia with representatives of the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE) to discuss a shared anti-crime strategy of tougher punishment, more police, and effective prevention. She stressed the need for real cooperation among community leaders, elected officials, federal, state and local law enforcement officers, and ordinary citizens.
- Earlier in the day, the Attorney General, Congressman Bobby Scott and other community leaders toured Richmond's Gilpin Court housing project, a community where such a partnership is succeeding in the fight against crime. A police substation and cops on the beat have cut the crime rate since their introduction to the complex six years ago.
- The Crime Bill will substantially increase the ranks and the capabilities of police officers across the nation. The Attorney General discussed provisions that will help law enforcement work with the community to solve and prevent crimes, including:
 - * Nearly $9 billion to put 100,000 more police officers on America's streets, ensuring that every community that needs police can receive assistance;
 - * A "Three Strikes and You're Out" life imprisonment provision, aimed at career criminals who do the most harm to society;
 - * A ban on assault weapons -- the weapons of choice for drug dealers, gangs, and terrorists who use these weapons of destruction to out-gun and kill police officers;
 - * Law Enforcement Scholarships and the Police Corps program to provide police departments with a diverse pool of officers who have the education and skills necessary to maximize their ability to fight crime; and
 - * Grants for computerized automation and other technological improvements in law enforcement, as well as for an expansion of training programs for state and local law enforcement officers.

100,000 NEW COPS ON THE BEAT WILL MAKE A DIFFERENCE

- As Attorney General Janet Reno said during a press conference this morning, putting 100,000 police officers onto America's streets, engaged in community policing, is at the heart of the President's overall anti-crime strategy. It demonstrates that crime fighting is about punishment and prevention -- and the plan will have an enormous impact.
- The Attorney General explained that an additional 100,000 cops represents a nearly twenty percent increase in the current 504,000 local police officers nationwide. The almost $9 billion requested by the President for this program will enable the Administration to help every community in the country that needs and wants assistance to strengthen its police force to improve public safety.
- Under the President's plan, jurisdictions will be able to request the amount of support for whatever number of additional police officers they actually need to control crime effectively -- some may need a 20% increase, some more, some less, depending upon their individual circumstances. The President's plan, therefore, is a flexible approach aimed at meeting the different crime control needs of individual jurisdictions.
- The plan protects small states by guaranteeing each state a significant minimum-level of community policing funding. It also benefits rural areas and cities of all sizes. For example, a 20% increase would mean for:
 - * Cities like Provo, Utah; Paducah, Kentucky; Florence, South Carolina; and Bay City, Michigan, which now each have about 70 police officers, an additional 15 or more officers each.
 - * Medium to large cities, like St. Louis, Missouri; Atlanta, Georgia; Columbus, Ohio; and Las Vegas, Nevada, which now each have about 1,500 police officers, an increase of approximately 300 police officers each.
 - * Our nation's largest cities, more than 1,000 new police officers. Philadelphia might gain an additional 1,200 officers; Los Angeles, 1,600; and Chicago, more than 2,400.
- Thousands of Mayors and Police Chiefs have already applied for community policing grants under the Administration's Policing Hiring Supplement Program, and 250 communities received grants for 2023 new police officers. But the demand is so great that the Justice Department could not accommodate 9 out of 10 applications due to the Supplemental Program's limited funds of $150 million. Passing the Crime Bill can change that -- every community that needs police can receive help.
- As the conference is working to resolve a number of tough issues, it is important to remember the critical elements of the bill about which everyone agrees. The deployment of 100,000 new community police officers will impact crime and life in our neighborhoods for many years to come.

Talking Points on RJA for July 13, 1994

* These may be inappropriate after today. ****

- The Administration supports the use of the death penalty for heinous crimes, and we oppose any form of racial discrimination in its application.
- The Crime Bill now in conference contains many elements critical to combatting and preventing crime in America. We cannot allow this debate to jeopardize passage of vital anti-crime programs.

PUNISHMENT: SENDING A MESSAGE TO CRIMINALS

All the good work done by the law enforcement community is lost if we don't punish those who devastate our neighborhoods. With strict sentences for violent criminals and prisons to put them in, all Americans will be safer.

Criminal Sentencing

- Americans are fed up with the fact that even when violent criminals are caught, they are all too often returned to the streets to victimize again. Tougher and smarter sentencing procedures are needed to make sure that those who deserve to be in prison, don't get out before they should -- and that sentences are appropriate for the crime committed.
- A small number of violent, repeat offenders, commit a great deal of the crime in this country. We must end the revolving door and lock up those offenders for good. The Administration's "Three Strikes and You're Out" proposal sends a strong message that those who repeatedly commit serious violent crimes against others will be punished severely.
 - * Our proposal imposes life imprisonment on a person who commits a serious violent felony under Federal law, after having been previously convicted of two or more serious violent felonies (under either Federal or State law). The proposal is aimed at those offenders who fail to get the message and change their conduct even after repeated convictions for violent offenses. Individuals with such criminal histories should be put away for good.
 - * The proposal is both tough and smart: It targets those truly dangerous offenders in our society without sweeping so broadly as to include persons convicted of crimes that, although serious enough to warrant significant sentences, should not result in mandatory life imprisonment; our proposal limits its coverage to "serious violent felonies," such as murder, rape, sexual abuse, kidnapping, and using a gun in drug crimes.
- We support mandatory minimum sentences for violent and gun offenders, as they provide the certainty of punishment which society rightfully expects for those who commit serious crimes.
 - * This important tool should be used in a targeted, judicious manner to make sure that these sentences apply only to those who deserve such stiff sentences.

- * It is also important that there be a "safety valve" which permits very limited sentencing flexibility in the case of non-violent, low-level, first time offenders. Such individuals must be punished, but the taxpayers should not be asked to house them for the long, mandatory minimum sentences reserved for the most serious threats to society.
- We support certain "truth in sentencing" proposals whereby the Federal Government would encourage states to make criminals serve the time to which they are sentenced. And clearly, states which get tough with violent predators and make them serve their real sentences are going to need to build more prisons. We want to support states with laws which honestly reflect the prison terms those committing violent crimes in their states will serve by favoring them when it comes time to give out Federal grant money for incarcerating violent offenders.
- Those who ruthlessly kill others must be treated as severely as they have treated their victims.
- * We support the expansion of the death penalty to certain appropriate crimes not currently covered by the Federal death penalty, like the killing of a state or local law enforcement official assisting in a Federal investigation.
- * We also favor the adoption of procedures which will enable Federal prosecutors to seek the death penalty for a wide range of crimes that have lacked death penalty eligibility because of missing procedural requirements -- and will insure that this penalty is used fairly, justly, and in appropriate cases only.

Prisons

- We must work to lock up the largest number of violent offenders and criminal aliens, as quickly as possible, at the lowest possible cost.
- The Administration is committed to helping states that are struggling to keep violent criminals and criminal aliens from being released prematurely because of overcrowding. While the Federal Government builds enough prisons and detention facilities to insure that Federal inmates are not released early for lack of space, many states are forced to release criminals routinely due to space limitations.
- States must also contend with severely shrinking resources. There are currently over 15,000 state prison beds which cannot be filled because states lack the necessary operating capital. The safety of our citizens depends upon states being able to keep violent criminals behind bars to do their time.

- The best way to lock up violent offenders quickly and efficiently, and to make our streets safer, is by providing assistance to state correctional and detention systems at a level of approximately $6.5 billion. Such funding, when made available to the states on a discretionary basis, will allow states to build and operate appropriate facilities for housing serious drug and violent offenders -- including boot camps, prisons, jails, and community detention facilities.

Punishment for Young Offenders

- All too often, young offenders learn that the consequence for committing a crime is to be put on probation. That's it. In other circumstances, young non-violent offenders are thrown in with our most hardened criminals where they learn the "right way" to commit crimes.
- By providing alternative sanctions to probation or hard-core, long-term incarceration, we can teach young offenders that there is a certainty of punishment at the initial stages of a criminal career. That lesson learned might nip a new criminal career in the bud. Some alternative sanctions include: shock incarceration, electronic monitoring, weekend incarceration, home incarceration, restitution programs, vocational programs, community service, intensive supervised probation and other innovative and non-traditional options which ensure swift and certain punishment.
- "Boot Camps" are one such alternative which provide penal authorities with a viable sentencing solution for young offenders. Frequently called "shock incarceration" programs, boot camps place young offenders in a program similar to a military basic training program that instills discipline, routine, and respect for authority. They also provide exposure to relevant educational and vocational training, drug treatment, and general counseling services to develop more positive and law-abiding values and become better prepared to secure legitimate future employment.
- Typically, boot camps target offenders who otherwise would have been sentenced to prison for at least one year. To date, 28 state prison systems are operating 43 boot camp programs with more states planning to follow. While they have their critics, the early data suggests that boot camps are better than prison in terms of recidivism and cost.
- We support lowering the age at which violent offenders can be tried as adults in Federal court, so that young people who don't act like children, won't necessarily be treated like children.

PROTECTING THE RIGHTS OF CRIME VICTIMS

- Today, Attorney General Janet Reno met with Victim-Witness Coordinators from U.S. Attorneys Offices across the nation, gathered in Arlington, Virginia to discuss how the Crime Bill will improve the protection of crime victims' rights.
- The Crime Bill encourages states to offer victims the right to be heard in sentencing -- so that victims of violent crime will have the same right afforded offenders in sentencing and parole hearings.
- Victims would gain greatly expanded restitution rights and increased access to victim counseling and other assistance. The Administration-supported Chairman's Mark provides such assistance: victims of sexual assault will be able to recover lost income, and the cost of child care, transportation and other expenses related to the investigation and prosecution of sexual assault offenses.
- Victims of domestic violence and sexual abuse are further protected under Administration-supported Crime Bill provisions that include:
 - * Creation of a Federal remedy for interstate domestic abuse and a requirement that protective orders issued in one state be recognized and enforced in other states;
 - * Extension of the Victim Shield Law and other prohibitions against the introduction of evidence used to show provocation or invitation by a victim of sexual assault; and
 - * Coverage of the cost of HIV testing and counseling for victims of serious sexual assault.
- The Crime Bill would extend the Crime Victims' Fund, doubling the fee criminals must pay to cover victims' expenses.

BIPARTISAN SUPPORT FOR THE CRIME BILL

- Today in New York City, Attorney General Janet Reno was joined by Republicans and Democrats supporting swift passage of the Crime Bill. The Attorney General -- along with Governor Mario Cuomo, House Crime Subcommittee Chairman Charles Schumer, Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, Police Commissioner William Bratton, District Attorney Robert Morgenthau, U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White, and U.S. Representatives Benjamin Gilman and Carolyn Maloney -- discussed the impact that the bill will make on crime fighting in New York and cities across the country, and they praised the efforts of a New York City policeman committed to improving his community.
- The Attorney General presented Officer Scott Kimmins with a plaque commending for his successful efforts combatting narcotics and crime at the Kenmore Hotel in Manhattan. Officer Kimmins proves that community policing can and does work: by forming a partnership with concerned citizens within his beat, Officer Kimmins was able to fight rampant criminal activity.
- The Crime Bill will enable the hiring of many more cops like Officer Kimmins -- dedicated to working with communities to prevent and solve crimes. Nearly $9 billion is earmarked to add 100,000 new police officers to America's streets -- that's a twenty percent increase in the number of cops patrolling neighborhoods, responding to community concerns, and getting criminals off of the streets.
- Adding 100,000 more officers to the nation's police forces will impact cities large and small. For example a 20% increase in:
 - a city like New York with a police force of 30,000 could add as many as 6,000 officers;
 - a mid-size city like Salt Lake City, Utah which currently employs 353 officers, could hire up to 70 new cops;
 - a small city like Smyrna, Georgia with a total police force of 78 could receive 15 more officers under the program.

CARRYING THE ADMINISTRATION'S ANTI-CRIME MESSAGE TO AMERICA: ATTORNEY GENERAL RENO TRAVELS THE COUNTRY IN SUPPORT OF THE CRIME BILL

- Carrying a message of less crime and violence through more cops, tough measures and real hope for America's youth, Attorney General Janet Reno takes to the road today to build support for the Administration's Crime Bill. Traveling coast-to-coast and visiting communities in several states, the Attorney General's trip is part of a national dialogue with the American people about how we can reclaim our neighborhoods, parks, streets, and schools from crime and violence.
- The Attorney General begins her trip with a stop today in Columbus, Ohio, where she will join local residents, community leaders, law enforcement officers and elected officials in a show of support for swift passage of the Crime Bill.
- Later this week and early next week, Attorney General Reno will travel to Texas, Louisiana, California, New York, and Virginia, and will participate in events emphasizing the President's three-pronged approach to fighting crime -- police, punishment and prevention.
- The trip gives the Attorney General an opportunity to leave the Beltway and interact with citizens who are dealing day-to-day with the problem of crime, and to hear first-hand why localities around the country need prompt, immediate and certain action on the Crime Bill.

HELPING AMERICANS TO LIVE "FREE FROM FEAR": THE CLINTON ADMINISTRATION'S ANTI-CRIME STRATEGY

- As the problem of crime continues to occupy our national attention, a consensus is emerging about how best to keep our neighborhoods, our homes and our families and friends safe from criminal activity. That consensus recognizes that old single-minded approaches aimed at suppressing crime won't work.
- What America needs is an anti-crime strategy that strikes a balance between more law enforcement, certain and appropriately severe punishment, and strenuous efforts to keep young people from travelling down the criminal path.
- President Clinton's anti-crime legislation now before Congress offers America just such a strategy. Comprised of three key components -- police, punishment, and prevention -- the President's Crime Bill is a tough, effective, and sensible approach to reducing crime in America.

Protecting Our Communities: 100,000 Additional Police Officers on America's Streets.

- Putting 100,000 police officers onto America's streets is at the heart of the President's overall anti-crime strategy. The plan represents a twenty percent increase in the current number local police officers nationwide. The nearly $9 billion requested by the President for this program will enable the Administration to help every community in the country that needs and wants assistance to strengthen its police force to improve public safety.
- The Republican Crime Conference Report Alternative, on the other hand, offers less money for community policing. That means fewer police officers catching criminals, fewer patrolling neighborhoods, fewer building partnerships based on trust with communities, and fewer keeping our streets safe.

Protecting Our Law Enforcement Officers Against Police-Killing Assault Weapons.

- The Clinton Administration anti-crime strategy includes a ban on semiautomatic assault weapons -- the guns of choice for drug dealers, gangs, and terrorists -- which kill law enforcement officers out-gunned by the firepower such weapons produce. It's a measure that law enforcement officials around the nation overwhelmingly support.
- But don't look for a ban on assault weapons in the Republican Alternative. It has NO ban, even though the assault weapons ban has previously passed both the House and the Senate.

Swift and Certain Punishment for Violent Crimes.

- The Administration supports measures that swiftly punish violent criminals, particularly repeat violent offenders. To keep those who would prey upon our communities off of the streets, the Administration-backed Chairman's Mark includes:

- A "Three Strikes and You're Out" life imprisonment provision aimed at career offenders who do the most harm to society;
- * Reinstatement of the Federal death penalty for the most heinous of crimes, such as killing a Federal law enforcement officer;
- * A state prison grant program which will help states lock up violent offenders more quickly and efficiently as well as encourage them to improve their criminal justice systems by adopting reasonable "truth in sentencing" provisions;
- Boot camps that provide the discipline and training necessary to deter young people from embarking on a life of crime; and
- * Discretionary authority to prosecute hardened young criminals, 13-years-old and above, as adults for serious violent offenses.

Prevention Programs That Work

- An essential ingredient of the President's plan is crime prevention. Old approaches to fighting crime offered the American people a false choice between punishment or prevention. This Administration, however, takes a different view. While more police and swift and certain punishment are critical to our fight against violence and crime, we must also create sensible and effective prevention programs that offer the country long-term solutions which help break the criminal cycle — programs that increase youth employment, recreational and educational opportunities.
- Some of the key prevention programs in the Administration's Crime Bill include:
 - * The President's Youth Employment Skills program "Y.E.S.", contained in the House Crime Bill, which will provide young people with job training and opportunities in hard-hit, high-crime areas;
 - * The Gang Resistance Education and Training program ("G.R.E.A.T."), already a proven success, which helps kids fight the allure of gang membership through education;
 - * The Midnight Sports Program which will provide grants to programs designed to prevent youth violence by teaching sportsmanship, teamwork and conflict resolution; and
 - * Programs to place Boys and Girls Clubs in public housing projects — which are all too often located in high-crime areas — where they can provide young people with a meaningful alternative to gangs, drugs, crime and violence.
- The Republican Alternative, by contrast, allocates less for crime prevention — much less. The Republican Alternative gives up on young people, giving them no hope and few opportunities to turn away from the criminal path.

DOING LESS TO CATCH CRIMINALS, DOING LESS TO PREVENT CRIME:
THE REPUBLICAN CRIME CONFERENCE REPORT ALTERNATIVE

- Retreating from the challenge of providing a balanced Crime Bill for the American people, Republican Senators today unveiled an anti-crime alternative that falls far short of President Clinton's proposal for a comprehensive anti-crime plan.
- Compared to the Administration-backed Chairmen's Mark, the Republican Alternative does less to catch criminals, less to restore hope to young lives and prevent crime, less to make our streets, parks, schools and homes safer. Among its most glaring shortcomings:
 - * LESS money for community policing. That means fewer officers catching criminals, fewer patrolling neighborhoods, fewer building partnerships based on trust with communities, and fewer keeping our streets safe;
 - * LESS funding for a combined Byrne Grant/Alien Incarceration program -- almost $1 billion less than the Chairmen's Mark allocates for these two programs. States like California, Texas and Florida will especially feel a dramatic cut in funding;
 - * NO ban on police-killing assault weapons -- a ban which law enforcement officials across the nation overwhelmingly support and which previously passed both the House and Senate. Ironically, even though Republican Senators previously voted for a Crime Bill which contained a ban on semiautomatic assault weapons, they now present a Republican alternative which drops this provision;
 - * LESS allocated for crime prevention -- much less. The Republican Alternative gives up on young people, giving them no hope and few opportunities to turn away from the criminal path;
 - * LESS to combat violence against women, a critical crime problem in our country;
 - * LESS to keep our borders secure and prevent illegal immigration;
 - * NO provision for Drug Courts, which help turn drug-addicted offenders around before they commit more serious crimes;
 - * NO funding for the bipartisan-sponsored Police Corps, providing college scholarships to young people who want to serve as police officers; and
 - * NO Local Partnership Act, which was overwhelmingly backed by the House of Representatives just a few days ago.
- No matter how you look at it, the Republican Alternative does less to reduce crime in America. It fails to meet the challenge of bold, comprehensive action to fight crime.

REDUCING DRUG-RELATED CRIME AND VIOLENCE THROUGH THE CRIME BILL

- Drug-related crime and violence is spreading in our cities, towns, schools, and neighborhoods. We must act decisively to reclaim our communities from the tragedy that drug trafficking brings.
- President Clinton's anti-crime strategy recognizes the link between drug use and criminal activity. That's why the Administration's Crime Bill contains effective anti-drug programs.
- Various Administration-supported proposals in the Crime Bill offer drug-dependent criminal offenders an opportunity to beat their addiction and turn away from the criminal path. They include:
 - * Drug Court programs to intensively supervise and treat drug offenders and get them turned around before they commit more serious crimes. Such programs include the integrated administration of drug testing, substance abuse treatment, potential prosecution or incarceration for non-compliance with program requirements, and related programmatic and aftercare services;
 - * Drug testing of Federal offenders on post-conviction release;
 - * Expanded drug treatment for Federal prisoners and increased support for state correctional drug treatment programs; and
 - * Proven and extensive drug prevention and crime prevention programs, such as those that will be administered through the Ounce of Prevention Council, that target young people and give them something to say "yes" to.
- The Crime Bill also includes Administration-backed provisions which will assist law enforcement in their efforts at fighting drug trafficking, including:
 - * Additional funding to hire more Drug Enforcement Administration agents to curb drug trafficking on our streets;
 - * $250 million targeted for rural law enforcement grants to reduce drug trafficking in rural areas; and
 - * Increased penalties for drug trafficking in or near schools and public housing.
