1/ Excludes transfer of BATF to DOJ in 1995.

Background: Funding for the Department of Justice has increased from $2.5 Billion in 1980 to $10.1 Billion (total) enacted for 1994, an average annual rate of growth of about 10.5 percent. Most of this growth has been for Federal law enforcement and corrections programs, rather than assistance to State and local governments. In the future a growing prisons and corrections population is expected to add about $400 million annually to the costs of prisons and associated staff.

The level of crime , expecially violent crime, did not increase during this time period. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the level of violent crime in 1992 was not significantly greater than that in 1981. The rate of violent crimes per 1,000 persons actually fell, from 33.3 in 1980 to 32.1 in 1992.

FY 1995 Budget: The Department requested $11.3 billion in BA and $10.6 billion OL (discretionary), $1 billion BA and $0.4 billion OL above the planning ceiling, respectively. The PAD recommendation is $10.4 billion BA and $10.2 million OL. Included in the PAD recommended levels are several "place holders" that fund important initiatives in the absence of an enacted Crime Bill, but which might be freed up in the event of the creation of the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund and the related authorizations. These include funding 50,000 cops, at $650 million BA, $160 million OL, and an Asylum Reform and Naturalization Initiative at $140 million BA, $112 OL. The recommendations do not, however, provide funding for other activities expected to be authorized in the Crime Bill.

This budget represents a major departure from Justice budgets of recent years in that it focuses much more heavily on State and local law enforcement. The PAD Recommendation includes $1.1 BA in State and local assistance, which would move toward funding 50,000 cops in the absence of the crime bill, as well as fund a substantial increase in Juvenile Justice grant programs, a priority of the Attorney General. It also finances an Asylum Reform and Naturalization Initiative ($140 million in 1995), but it does not provide funding for boot camps or "drug courts", other Presidential priorities. These last two would, however, be funded if the Senate Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund becomes law.

The FTE Problem

The other major increase is for prisons, for which operational costs are largely driven by construction programs undertaken in 1990. We have a severe FTE problem in the Justice numbers, and it is largely prisons driven. We are recommending level FTE for the FBI, DEA, and U.S. Attorneys, but will experience policy driven growth in INS and a largely uncontrollable growth in prisons FTE. We have raised the possibility with Justice of contracting out prison operations to hold the FTE levels to a manageable level.

To make matters worse, both the crime bill (mandatory sentences, more Federal crimes, regional prisons) and the potential Immigration Reform initiative have outyear consequences for FTE levels that we have not yet factored into our numbers.

The Senate Crime Bill

The Senate crime bill would move the Federal Government much more dramatically in the direction of providing assistance to States and localities. It would authorize $4.9 billion in 1994 and $3.2 billion in 1995 for DOJ grants to States and localities. Among the largest 1995 increases are: 1) funding for 100,000 cops (not just 50,000) at a cost of $1.7 billion; 2) boot camps ($3.0 billion in 1994); 3) regional prisons to be operated by the Bureau of Prisons ($0.6 billion); 4) drug courts ($0.4 billion); and a variety of anti-violence programs. Essentially all of the programs are new (not previously authorized).

From 1994-1999 the Senate has authorized $23.3 billion in crime programs (estimates subject to change). To permit this sum to be spent, the Senate has created a "Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund," paid for by the NPR - proposed reduction of 252,000 Federal staff (using CBO scorekeeping). The savings estimates build over time, while the authorizations decrease over time. This is shown below:

($ billions)	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	Total
Senate Crime Bill Authorizations (to date)	6.2	4.5	5.1	4.5	3.2	0.1	23.3
Senate "Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund" Funding	0.7	2.4	4.3	6.3	8.5	--	22.3

Spending under the Trust Fund would be exempt from the Discretionary caps, and the caps would be reduced (dollar for dollar) for spending authorized from the Trust Fund (e.g., $2.3 billion in 1995). In a nutshell, it appears to be the intent of the Senate to increase "law and order" spending -- particularly grants to States and local governments -- at the expense of other non - DOJ discretionary spending. If the Senate version becomes law, the Administration has two basic options for handling crime reductions Trust Fund spending:

- (1) Treat the Trust Fund as an addition to the existing Justice discretionary ceilings, as anticipated by the Senate;
- (2) Treat only part of it as an addition to the existing Justice discretionary ceilings, and aggressively shift base Justice programs (to the extent permitted by law) into the eligible activities. The most obvious candidates for shifting resources are FBI, U.S. Attorneys, and perhaps INS.

The House anti-crime bills do not include the Trust Fund concept.

INS Initiatives

We propose three initiatives to expand and improve the Administration's immigration-related programs in FY1995. Under an amendment introduced yesterday to the Senate crime bill, all three may be eligible for funding from the proposed Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund, subject to appropriations. These include:

- 1) Comprehensive Asylum Reform and Naturalization. This is a stated Presidential priority. It is expected to cost $140 million in FY 1995. It would significantly increase the capability of INS asylum officers, immigration review judges, and Justice litigation attorneys to handle backlogged and new cases. It would also facilitate the naturalization process by funding grants to non-profit groups for such activities as providing English and civics classes to prepare aliens for the citizenship examinations.

2) Internal Immigration Law Enforcement. A FY 1995 cost of $140 million would be used to Justice's enforcement capabilities, deporting 20,000 more criminal aliens, increasing by 1,000 available detention spaces, and double the Departments employer sanctions, employer education, anti-discrimination, and document fraud programs.

3) Southwest Border Control. A FY 1995 cost of $100 million would increase the staff and equipment of the Border Patrol to step up its border control activities. It would also provide resources to INS Inspections and Detention programs to complement the increased Border Patrol activity.
