MEETING WITH LANE KIRKLAND AND TOM DONAHUE OF THE AFL-CIO

TO: Leon Panetta
DATE: July 27, 1994
LOCATION: West Wing Office
TIME: 2:00 p.m.
FROM: Joan Baggett and Joe Velasquez

I. PURPOSE

You called this meeting as a courtesy to the leaders of the AFL-CIO to let them know we value their support. They are the first major constituency group you have met with since becoming Chief of Staff.

II. BACKGROUND

You should reiterate our desire to continue working closely with the unions of the AFL-CIO, and thank Kirkland and Donahue for the support they have demonstrated -- particularly on health care.

The national leadership of the AFL-CIO has moved beyond NAFTA. The rank and file may still be alienated, however, and the striker replacement loss has aggravated their anger. Recent polling by Stan Greenberg shows the President is losing union member support.

Several issues of concern to organized labor may come up in this meeting, though health care will probably be the main topic of discussion. OSHA reform is taking on greater importance to the unions. We support their position. On the maritime bill, we support the revitalization of the industry. On Davis-Bacon, we support the union position on raising the threshold. For your information, Kirkland takes a particular interest in foreign affairs.

Kirkland, Donahue and other union leaders are actively working to demonstrate to their members that the President worked hard to pass S.55.

MEMORANDUM
July 27, 1994

TO: Joe Velasquez
FROM: David St. John
RE: Kirkland's accomplishments

Enclosed is a long biography of Lane, one that includes his appointments to presidential commissions, his directorships and his previous awards.

Regarding his efforts to promote democracy throughout the world, you could say that Lane Kirkland has led the AFL-CIO's program of assistance and support to democratic trade union movements in dozens of countries where dictators have sought to suppress basic freedoms.

1. Lane Kirkland was an early supporter of Lech Walesa and the Solidarnosc movement in Poland. After the Poland's communist dictatorship declared martial law, outlawed Solidarnosc and ordered the arrest of its leaders, the AFL-CIO, under Kirkland's direction, provided Solidarnosc with financial and material support that helped sustain the underground movement throughout the 1980s and until the collapse of the communist government.
2. Under Kirkland's leadership and direction, the AFL-CIO provided support to democratic workers' movements in other Central and Eastern European nations. Those movements, in turn, were critical to the advance of democracy throughout the region at the end of the 1980s.
3. Under Kirkland, the AFL-CIO has provided money and materiel to the developing free trade union movement in the former Soviet states during the transition from communism to democracy.
4. The AFL-CIO continues to provide support to free and democratic trade union movements in Eastern and Central Europe and the former Soviet states in order to help these organizations flourish and to enable them to fully represent the aspirations of working people in these new democracies. After decades of suffering under communist dictatorships, those workers now often find themselves under assault from free market ideologues and "shock therapists," whose prescriptions bring new forms of misery to these people.

5. A quote from Lane Kirkland: "In the newly-emerging democracies, the task is to rebuild civil society from the ashes of regimes that murdered society, and then to sustain it by creating the institutions that make life tolerable to ordinary citizens. That restoration is not achieved merely by democratic elections or the doctrines of economic theorists, shock treatments and the tender mercies of the free market.

It is achieved by building strong and free institutions that represent the aspirations of people and defend their interests. And trade unions are foremost among them. As statesmen and opinion makers ponder the course ahead and frame their policies, they should ask themselves these threshold questions: What prospect motivated those workers whose sacrifice of their lives is memorialized on the wall of that shipyard in Gdansk? What aspirations moved those young workers whose bodies are still being exhumed from unmarked graves in a cemetery on the outskirts of Budapest? Should not their visions now weigh heavily in the scales of decision? Have these true authors of the democratic revolution not earned the right to say to the finance ministers of this world, now ascendent, as was said by an embattled King of France centuries ago:

'Go and hang yourself, brave Crillon. We fought and won at Arc, and you were not there.'

Finally, I would remind you that amid the turmoil of national conflict -- at a time when divisions emerge between people -- trade unions are among the few of these institutions that organize and unify people across all ethnic and religious lines. That's a role we take very seriously at the AFL-CIO. And that's why we are resolved to continue our broad program of support for our brothers and sisters who are on the front lines of the struggle to incorporate strong and free trade unions into the democratic societies they have advanced thus far with their courage and daring."

6. The AFL-CIO, under Kirkland, has also helped the South African trade union federations COSATU and NACTU in their struggle for democracy and against apartheid. The federation provided support for the Chilean free trade union movement in its successful struggle for democracy in that country.
7. The AFL-CIO is also currently assisting Chinese activists who are waging a courageous struggle against brutal government oppression in an effort to create a free trade union movement in the People's Republic of China and to give Chinese workers a voice they can call their own.
8. The AFL-CIO is assisting the struggle for basic human and trade union rights in Vietnam, Burma, Malaysia and Indonesia.

LANE KIRKLAND
President, AFL-CIO

Lane Kirkland was elected president of the AFL-CIO on November 19, 1979. He had served for ten years as secretary-treasurer, the labor federation's second-highest office.

[002] Kirkland was born on [REDACTED] (b)(6) He graduated in 1942 from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in King's Point, Long Island, and served throughout World War II as a deck officer aboard merchant vessels carrying ammunition and other war materials to both Atlantic and Pacific combat zones.

Licensed as a master mariner near the end of the war, Kirkland entered the U.S. Navy's Hydrographic Office in Washington, D.C., as a nautical scientist while studying at night at Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, from which he received a Bachelor of Science degree in 1948.

Shortly afterward, Kirkland joined the research staff of the AFL. Over a ten-year period in the AFL and AFL-CIO, he handled a wide range of assignments.

He joined the International Union of Operating Engineers as director of research and education in 1958, and two years later returned to the AFL-CIO as executive assistant to President Meany, a post he held until his election as secretary-treasurer in 1969. He was elected president without opposition at the 1979 convention, and he has been re-elected at each biennial convention since that time.

Kirkland is a member of the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots; president, Trade Union Advisory Committee, OECD; and vice president, International Confederation of Free Trade Unions. He serves or has served on the following presidential commissions and advisory bodies:

- U.S. Delegation, International Labor Organization Conference, Geneva, since 1958
- Blue Ribbon Defense Panel, 1969-1970
- Commission on CIA Activities Within the United States, 1975
- Commission on Foundations and Private Philanthropy, 1969-1970
- General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament, 1974-1981
- National Commission on Productivity, 1971-1974
- Presidential Commission on Financial Structure and Regulation, 1970-1972
- President's Maritime Advisory Committee, 1964-1966
- President's Missile Sites Labor Commission (alternate), 1961-1967
- Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries
- Committee on Selection of Federal Judicial Officers
- National Commission on Social Security Reform
- Commission on Security and Economic Assistance
- National Bipartisan Commission on Central America
- Board for International Broadcasting
- National Economic Commission
- Polish-American Enterprise Fund
- Citizens Democracy Corps
- National Endowment for Democracy

He is a director of the following non-governmental organizations:

- American Arbitration Association
- African-American Labor Center
- Asian-American Free Labor Institute
- American Institute for Free Labor Development
- Free Trade Union Institute
- Human Resources Development Institute

He has received numerous awards for public service, including:

- Nine Honorary Degrees
- Presidential Citizens Medal
- Department of Defense Distinguished Public Service Medal
