Dear Steering Committee Members:

Next week, the House Judiciary Committee will mark-up legislation to repeal our 100,000 more police initiative and replace it with an undefined, ill-advised program. I am writing to you to express -- in no uncertain terms -- my strong opposition to this legislation.

Last year, we worked hand-in-hand to pass the toughest, smartest crime bill ever. It included "three strikes and you're out," 60 new death penalties, nearly $10 billion for more prison cells, a hard-fought ban on assault weapons, key support for federal law enforcement and targeted anti-gang crime prevention. These were all valuable crime fighting tools, and I remain strongly committed to them.

But the toughest and smartest provision of the crime bill -- what distinguished it from past federal crime bills and resonated with the American people -- was our program to put 100,000 more police on our streets and expand community policing. That's why, even as we cut the deficit, I made state and local law enforcement a top priority, and fought for nearly $1.5 billion for policing.

When we met for the first time last April, I committed to work with you and your members not to "break faith" with the American people in implementing the Crime Bill. To that end, my Administration has worked hard to implement the COPS program in simple, non-bureaucratic, non-political matter -- and to get the funds out to the front lines as soon as possible. Now I ask you also not to break faith, and to continue to work with us to implement the COPS initiative.

Certainly, there is plenty more that we can do in the fight against crime, and I am committed to work with you and other interested parties to do just that. But how can we have a New Covenant between our people and their government -- one that offers more opportunity in exchange for more responsibility -- if government is to back away from its key commitments to the American people. Make no mistake, I will not let the policing initiative we all worked so hard to pass be repealed.

Dear Chief Whetsel and Members of the IACP Executive Board:

Next week, the House Judiciary Committee will mark-up legislation to repeal our 100,000 more police initiative and replace it with an undefined, ill-advised program. I am writing to you to express -- in no uncertain terms -- my strong opposition to this legislation.

Last year, we worked hand-in-hand to pass the toughest, smartest crime bill ever. It included "three strikes and you're out," 60 new death penalties, nearly $10 billion for more prison cells, a hard-fought ban on assault weapons, key support for federal law enforcement and targeted anti-gang crime prevention. These were all valuable crime fighting tools, and I remain strongly committed to them.

But the toughest and smartest provision of the crime bill -- what distinguished it from past federal crime bills and resonated with the American people -- was our program to put 100,000 more police on our streets and expand community policing. That's why, even as we cut the deficit, I made state and local law enforcement a top priority, and fought for nearly $1.5 billion for policing.

When I spoke at the IACP convention this fall, I said that the Crime Bill represented a solemn trust between the American people and us, and that we needed to work every year over the next six years to keep that trust and make the Crime Bill work. That's why my Administration has worked hard to implement the COPS program in simple, non-bureaucratic, non-political matter -- and to get the funds out to the front lines as soon as possible. Now I ask you also to keep that trust, and to continue to work with us to implement the COPS initiative.

Certainly, there is plenty more that we can do in the fight against crime, and I am committed to work with you and other interested parties to do just that. But how can we have a New Covenant between our people and their government -- one that offers more opportunity in exchange for more responsibility -- if government is to back away from its key commitments to the American people. Make no mistake, I will not let the policing initiative we all worked so hard to pass be repealed.

Dear Bob:

Next week, the House Judiciary Committee will mark-up legislation to repeal our 100,000 more police initiative and replace it with an undefined, ill-advised program. I am writing to you to express -- in no uncertain terms -- my strong opposition to this legislation.

Last year, we worked hand-in-hand to pass the toughest, smartest crime bill ever. It included "three strikes and you're out," 60 new death penalties, nearly $10 billion for more prison cells, a hard-fought ban on assault weapons, key support for federal law enforcement and targeted anti-gang crime prevention. These were all valuable crime fighting tools, and I remain strongly committed to them.

As I see it, the Crime Bill represents a solemn trust between the American people and us, and we needed to work every year over the next six years to keep that trust and make the Crime Bill work. That's why my Administration has worked hard to implement the COPS program in simple, non-bureaucratic, non-political matter -- and to get the funds out to the front lines as soon as possible. I ask you also to keep that trust, and to continue to work with us to implement the COPS initiative.

Certainly, there is plenty more that we can do in the fight against crime, and I am committed to work with you and other interested parties to do just that. But how can we have a New Covenant between our people and their government -- one that offers more opportunity in exchange for more responsibility -- if government is to back away from its key commitments to the American people. Make no mistake, I will not let the policing initiative we all worked so hard to pass be repealed.

MEMORANDUM FOR MIKE McCURRY, MARK GEARAN, RAHM EMANUEL

cc: Evelyn Lieberman

FROM: Media Affairs

DATE: February 8, 1995

SUBJECT: Local press coverage for the FAST COPS event 2\8

Local press coverage at the FAST COPS event today was overwhelming. There was great interest from local press, news services and television bureaus. There was also a television crew from Missouri, who came to DC especially for the grant announcement. Obtaining target lists from Justice was helpful.

Satellite

A total of nine satellite television interviews were conducted after the COPS grant announcement with Attorney General Reno. Anchors asked friendly questions about the COPS programs. Stations seemed impressed with the magnitude of the grants. Three interviews were live.

Please see the attached satellite memo.

Local Television, TV News Services

Television stations interviewed law enforcement officials from the following states:

Louisiana	New York
Tennessee	Florida
Texas	Oregon
Utah	Pennsylvania
Missouri

Local Print

The following print press interviewed law enforcement officials from across the country. The list below is not all inclusive.

The Baton Rouge Advocate (Louisiana)
Kansas City Star (Missouri)
Columbus Dispatch (Ohio)
Cox News (Ohio)
Hearst Newspapers (Ohio)
Thompson Newspapers (Ohio)
Milwaukee Journal (Wisconsin)
Wisconsin State Journal (Wisconsin)
Minneapolis Star Tribune (Minnesota)
St. Paul Pioneer Press (Minnesota)
St. Louis Dispatch (Missouri)
States News (Montana)
Gannett (Montana)
Knight Ridder (Mississippi)
Gazette Newspapers (Gaithersburg)

Radio

More than twenty radio interviews were conducted following the third round of Community Policing Grants event. Talk show hosts and news anchors asked the following questions: Why is it important to give rural areas more officers? How many officers is a given area receiving? Will giving one or two more officers to a given city have an impact on crime deterrence?

Please see the attached radio memo.

MEMORANDUM FOR RAHM EMANUEL AND JONATHAN PRINCE

FROM: RON KLAIN

SUBJECT: COPS AHEAD/TOP COP ANNOUNCEMENT

Here is an update for the event to announce the Director of the COPS program, as well as the award of 4,600 new police to 600+ large cities (population 50,000 or more) under the COPS AHEAD program.

EVENT FORMAT

We propose the following agenda for the event:

(1) Attorney General opens, and delivers a strong defense of the COPS program and the Crime Bill; she introduces

(2) Mayor Victor Ashe (R) of Nashville, who speaks next, about how much this program means to him; he introduces

(3) A Police Chief, who speaks next to introduce Chief Brann;

(4) Chief Brann is then sworn in by the Attorney General, with the President looking on;

(5) Chief Brann then speaks about his new role and the importance of the COPS program; he introduces

(6) The President, who talks about the COPS program and the awards being made.

I will send over a draft of the Attorney General's remarks on Thursday; further coordination of the remarks should be with Bert Brandenberg.

EVENT RESPONSIBILITY

As you know, I will not be here on Monday. The following is a list of responsibilities for the event:

- Overall Responsibility/Program: Gail Hoffman and Kent Markus
- Congressional invitations: Leah Gurowitz

- Chief Brann's Role/Remarks: Bert Brandenberg and Erik Reid
- General Press Strategy: Bert Brandenberg
- Satellite Tours: Caroline Adelman
- Relations with Local Officials: Gail Hoffman
- Relations with Police Groups: Gail Hoffman
- Attorney General Remarks: Bert Brandenberg

I hope that this is helpful as this event gets pulled together over the next few days.

CRIME GRANTS LIST
USA TODAY=

President Clinton on Wednesday announces $200 million in grants to help more than 300 police departments hire beat-patrol police officers. The grants are the first phase in $8.8 billion authorized by the recently enacted crime bill, which will ultimately add police officers in 15,000 localities.

This list shows each locality, its federal grant and the expected number of additional police officers. Cities must chip in 25 percent of the funds in the first year, and more as the plan progresses.

These communities were chosen from 2,450 that had applied for, but failed to receive, shares of $150 million in grants last year. About 250 departments received grants last year.

CLINTON TO ANNOUNCE
GRANTS FOR MORE POLICE
Eds: With CRIMESIDE and CRIMELIST
By SAM VINCENT MEDDIS=
USA TODAY=
WASHINGTON Nearly 400 communities Wednesday will be awarded $200 million in grants the first installment on President Clinton's promise to put 100,000 police officers on the streets.

The money, authorized under the new crime bill, will put more than 2,700 additional officers in uniform in those communities, officials say.

The grants part of $8.8 billion over the next six years will be used in community policing programs that put more local police on neighborhood foot patrols.

``Fantastic we're hurting for manpower at this point,'' says Waukegan, Ill., Deputy Chief of Police Scott Burleson, whose 133-officer department is set to receive 10 more.

Some other grants:

Little Rock, Ark., 40 officers.
Polk County, Fla., 28 officers.
Boise, Idaho, five officers.
Lewiston, Maine, three officers.
Long Beach, Calif., 20 officers.

Clinton will make the announcement on the South Lawn of the White House, surrounded by more than 300 police chiefs and mayors.

Critics call the announcement raw politics. ``It's smoke and mirrors by the administration,'' says Jim Fotis of the Law Enforcement Alliance of America, a police/victims group that opposed including the plan in the crime bill.

With crime leading the list of public concerns, the grants will likely reap political rewards.

``Every member of Congress right now would love to hold a press conference with a big check in hand, those blown-up kind,'' says Paul McNulty, a Justice Department official in the Bush administration.

BC-GA- Georgia Briefs,780

ATLANTA (AP) A total of $5.5 million to hire 90 police officers is the first funds to come to the state under the Violent Crime Control Act signed last month by President Clinton.

The Community Oriented Policing Program (COPS,) considered the cornerstone of the bill, provides funds to hire and train new officers, or to rehire those who are laid off.

DeKalb County is to receive $1.08 million to hire 17 more officers. The city of Smyrna gets almost $445,000 to hire seven.

But some communities are leery of crime bill grants, which require matching funds and lapse after three years.

Cobb County Commission Chairman Bill Byrne says the county hasn't decided whether to accept its $544,000 grant. Marietta City Manager said he is not sure the City Council will take its $446,000 allotment.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) Army Secretary Togo West Jr., Sen. Sam Nunn and Reps. Don Johnson and Cynthia McKinney were on hand for the signing of a new agreement to to build the Discovery Center museum in Port Royal on Riverwalk.

The Discovery Center will be a hands-on math and science museum for children and is the cornerstone to Fort Gordon's plans for a national network of educational programs. It is scheduled for a spring 1996 opening.

The Army first agreed to a partnership with the National Science Center Foundation to build the Discovery Center in 1984. It was originally planned for 100 acres adjacent to Fort Gordon, at a cost of $35.5 million, but fund-raising problems stalled the project.

West and Foundation Chairman Harry Gray shaved millions off the Discovery Center price Tuesday when they signed the memorandum of understanding, putting the proposed museum in Port Royal at a cost of $16.2 million.

HARTWELL, Ga. (AP) Bob Cordell, a former Hart County sheriff's deputy, has been elected sheriff to replace former Sheriff Larry Sanders, who was toppled by a sexual battery scandal.

Unofficial returns Tuesday gave Cordell, 37, a self-employed building contractor, 70 percent of the votes with 3,432.

Former Hart County Sheriff Kenneth Vaughn, now the Elbert County jail administrator, received 1,399 votes in the runoff to seize 29 percent of the vote.

Cordell will take over the department from Jack Gurley, the former county commissioner appointed acting sheriff this summer.

Six candidates mounted campaigns after Sanders pleaded no contest to five of eight charges against him and announced his retirement in August. Indicted by a grand jury June 21 for allegedly touching the breasts of female co-workers, Sanders was suspended in July by Gov. Zell Miller.

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) Sumter County commissioners have agreed reluctantly to enact building codes for flooded structures in order to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program.

Commissioners first decided against adopting building codes for rebuilding flood-damaged property. But they were informed by Federal Emergency Management Agency officials that if they didn't adopt building codes to meet federal standards, the county and its residents in flood hazard areas would not be eligible for any form of flood insurance, flood-related federal grants, loans or assistance in the future.

Despite public opposition, the commission unanimously decided Tuesday to adopt building codes.

``Let it be known that we don't have any choice,'' Commissioner J.A. Davis Jr. said.

Commission Chairman Wade Halstead said more than 50 roads and several hundred homes were damaged in the July flood, causing an estimated $4 million in damage.

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) Southwest Albany residents filled the chambers of the City Commission to complain of problems anticipated from the temporary housing of flood victims in their area.

Calling themselves ``de facto'' flood victims, more than 100 representatives of the Country Club Estates area said Tuesday night that they didn't mind the new neighbors but only for 18 months. And they want a 9-foot fence installed between their houses and mobile home parks put up by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

``It's not true that we don't want these people in our area. We just don't want the crime in our area,'' said Benny Williams, vice chairman of the area's Neighborhood Watch Association.

City Manager Roy Lane said the Federal Emergency Management Agency has already planned to place a 6-foot fence in the requested area.

Albany Police Chief Jack Lumpkin said the Police Department will receive grants from FEMA to help pay for increased protection in temporary housing areas.

sustained effort to bring the Arab-Israeli conflict to an end within the coming year."

USA Today's Lee Michael Katz reported that, "When President Clinton goes to the Jordanian-Israel desert next week to witness a long-awaited peace treaty between the two nations, diplomatic eyes will be looking northward toward Syria."

A USA Today editorial said the pact "sends a strong signal to extremists that the pursuit of peace will continue despite their deadly histrionics. Jordan's settlement of its long-running feud with Israel puts renewed pressure on Syria to do likewise." The editorial added that the President's decision to be on hand when the accord is signed "should help that cause." (USA Today)

CRIME -- ABC World News Tonight led with Peter Jennings's report that the President was in New Mexico at a police chiefs conference to "talk about this year's number one issue -- is the government doing enough about crime?" ABC's Brit Hume reported that while the event was non-partisan, the President took issue with the Republican "Contract with America" which the President said would "gut" the crime bill. ABC showed a clip of the President telling the police chiefs that, "No matter how much economic progress we make, there will be a gnawing feeling that not everything is right" until Americans feel safe in their homes. Hume said the President geared some of his comments to parents, and not at the need for government involvement in the issue. ABC showed a clip of the President referring to the five-year-old Chicago boy dropped out a window after he refused to steal candy: "who did these kids look up to?" Hume concluded that many of the President's top political advisers think that the speech showed the President at his best. (ABC)

CBS's Connie Chung reported that the President "took credit for the crime bill." CBS's Rita Braver reported that New Mexico has a tight Senate race, "but the trip was not a presidential rescue mission." Braver said that many Democratic candidates are keeping their distance from the President, and Sen. Bingaman (D-NM) was barely seen with the President. (CBS) Braver reported that the new White House strategy is to convince the American people that the Republicans would "retreat" to the policies of the 1980s. (CBS) Braver concluded that if all else fails, Administration officials hope that recent economic and foreign policy successes will win voters over, but, Braver said, "this may not be enough." (CBS)

In a follow-up, ABC's Jennings reported that if one listened campaign rhetoric, this year's candidates are the greatest crimefighters ever. In Florida, Tennessee, Texas and California, candidates are using crime as their central campaign issue. (ABC) ABC's Jackie Judd reported that Pennsylvania's Democratic Lt. Governor, Mark Singel, is being attacked with Willie Horton-like political ads.

The Washington Post's Tom Kenworthy reported that, "President Clinton, searching for an issue that will win support for Democrats, promoted the administration's crime bill...and attracted a receptive audience and even a few Democratic candidates to share his podium." USA Today's Judy Keen reported that, "President Clinton used a speech attacking Republican opposition to the crime bill as a pulpit to turn preacher and decry crimes committed by children."

The New York Times' Michael Wines reported that, "President Clinton flew west on Monday to give a speech to police chiefs about crime. But by its end, he had instead spun an angry sermon on the nation's duty to a generation of children whose hearts, he said, were being 'turned to stone' by violence and neglect....But hardly anyone seemed displeased by the digression, which showcased Clinton in the role he knows best: a preacher, orating with undisguised passion on an issue that engages him."

The Los Angeles Times' David Lauter reported that, "President Clinton decried youth violence Monday, reminding a convention of police officers of a recent Chicago tragedy in which two boys, 10 and 11, murdered a 5-year-old who had refused to steal."

"Clinton's remarks were generally well received by his audience." (LAT)

IRAQ -- The Washington Post's Julia Preston reported that, "Iraq thwarted Security Council expectations...by failing to recognize the sovereignty of Kuwait, while the United States and Russia continued to clash over U.N. sanctions policy on Baghdad." The Los Angeles Times' Stanley Meisler reported that U.S. Ambassador Madeleine Albright and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev "exchanged bristling barbs Monday...that laid bare the deep divisions at the United Nations over lifting sanctions on Iraq."

The New York Times' Elaine Sciolino reported that, "In an unusual public clash reminiscent of cold-war debates," Kozyrev came to the Security Council "to win sympathy for Saddam Hussein but was roundly rebuffed by the United States." USA Today's Lee Michael Katz reported that, "Despite U.S. concerns about Russia cozying up to Saddam Hussein, Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Russian counterpart Andrei Kozyrev declared a 'common purpose' on Iraq. And then the words evaporated."

During a special Security Council meeting with Kozyrev and Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz, Aziz's "only allusion to recognition of Kuwait was that it is 'under consideration.'" (WP) During the debate, French Ambassador Jean-Bertrand Merimee supported the Russian position, British Ambassador David Hannay supported the U.S. position, and "almost all" ambassadors insisted that Iraq must recognize Kuwait in accordance with the Iraqi constitution. (LAT) In a speech made several hours after a meeting with Secretary Christopher, Kozyrev criticized the U.S. for a "hasty...inadequate and misguided" reaction to his undertaking with Iraq. (WP)

Gannett News' Kirk Spitzer reported that, "More than a week after President Clinton announced that 36,000 U.S. ground troops had been ordered to the Persian Gulf, barely 4,000 fresh combat troops have set foot here." (USA Today) The Los Angeles Times' Art Pine reported that, "The Clinton administration has prepared contingency plans for protecting Kuwait that call for using minimal U.S. force to deter or repel an Iraqi invasion but stop

MEMORANDUM FOR LEON PANETTA

FROM: RAHM EMANUEL
BRUCE REED
RON KLAIN
JONATHAN PRINCE

SUBJECT: Crime Planning

As the President has directed, we have prepared a framework for the next phase of the President's participation in the fight against crime and violence. It is designed to demonstrate 4 things:

Crime and violence continues to have the President's complete attention;

The Crime Bill is working; and

The President is building on it with additional measures that are also

Firmly rooted in the values of the American people.

ONGOING

First Three strikes prosecution. DOJ has established an alert system to notify us as soon as a U.S. Attorney is ready to go with the first three-strikes prosecution. The Attorney General will make some sort of public statement, either through her press conference or otherwise.

First Assault Weapons Ban prosecution. We have a similar notification system for the first prosecution of illegal sale or possession of one of the 19 assault weapons. This probably merits a statement by the President as well as the AG.

Surprise visit to Police Station. During some trip in the near future, the President should make an unscheduled visit to a police station or community policing headquarters -- similar to the trip to the fire station he took with Mayor Giuliani.

POLICE AND IMPLEMENTATION ROLLOUT

✓Top Cop. Rose Garden announcement of the 100,000 cops program

administrator. The chief cop should be prepared to demonstrate convincingly how he is going to get these cops on the street as soon as possible -- the equivalent of the Schwartzkopf this is exactly how we're going to win the Gulf war briefings. First week of October.

✓First Awards. Almost immediately afterward, the Top Cop should be back in the Rose Garden with the President announcing grant awards to 300 cities who applied for funds last year. First week of October.

✓PHS Heroes. As demonstrated by the story Senator Sarbanes told the President, police officers we have put on the street are already making a difference. We should bring a number of "PHS Heroes," from targeted districts as much as possible, to the White House to recognize their achievements and to demonstrate the effectiveness of our community policing program. Second week of October.

✓Police Chiefs. The International Association of Chiefs of Police is meeting in New Mexico -- over 7,000 police chiefs in one place. This is an enormous opportunity for the President to demonstrate his continued public involvement on this issue. Keep in mind that these people are among the most important local validators to be found. Mid October.

✓Cabinet Swearing-in. Sometime in October, the President, Vice President, and Cabinet Members should fan out to swear in PHS officers around the country. We need to pick a date far enough in the future to allow Justice to find enough communities, again, targeted as much as possible, to hold swearings-in for that date -- and then we need to stick to the date. October.

JUVENILE GUN BAN

Policy hs/LEG Accom?

Endorse Feinstein-Dorgan Zero Tolerance Amendment. This provision would require the expulsion of students who bring guns to school. Bruce is currently completing the vetting of the amendment and determining how long are window on this lasts. Late September, early October.

IMMIGRATION

✓Incarceration Grants. About 90% of the money in the Crime Bill to help states incarcerate illegal aliens goes to five states. The President and Vice President should each go to a different state on the same day and present the governor or other appropriate official with a check. CA - Feinstein; TX - Richards; FL - Chiles; New Jersey - Lautenberg; New York - Cuomo. Mid to late October.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

Appointment of Advisory Task Force. The Attorney General will appoint an implementation task force in mid-October, and follow that appointment with a briefing room appearance. Mid October

Implementation plan. The task force should have an implementation plan ready soon after appointment; this should be provided exclusively to a major news outlet. Late October

KLAAS-SPOSATO

~~Domestic Security Council.~~ Advisory Appointment. Marc Klaas and Steve Sposato should be appointed to some sort of presidential advisory council on crime and violence. They are tremendously effective spokesmen for the victims of crime -- as well as powerful examples of the effect people can have when they get involved in the fight against crime. Perhaps this announcement could take place during the President's California trip. October.

FORUMS

First Forum. The President and Vice President have indicated they want the first forum to be held before the end of October. We are convening a group early next week to develop a recommendation. Before October 31.

(?) America's Most Wanted. America's Most Wanted has a standing invitation to host a town meeting with the President. This would be particularly good after we have some tangible results (like a 3Xs prosecution) to speak of. Mid November.

Second Forum. Not a major city, but somewhere that demonstrates the pervasiveness of the problem -- and the broad scope of our attention to it. (e.g. Rochester, NY) Late November, early December.

Klaas Forum. Marc Klaas has invited the President to a forum in California. February, 1995.

VALUES

White Church. Sometime during the holiday season, the President should deliver a major speech focusing on community, responsibility, and family at a suburban, middle-class church. This would also be a good time for the President to talk about domestic violence. Early to mid December.

TV Violence. We need to determine an appropriate mechanism for the President to reiterate the need for cultural outlets to provide positive role models.

OUTSTANDING

Racial Justice. We must determine the appropriate time to issue the President's directive to the Attorney General and the corresponding policy statement.

MEMORANDUM FOR LEON PANETTA

FROM: RAHM EMANUEL
RON KLAIN
JONATHAN PRINCE

SUBJECT: Crime Planning

As the President has directed, we have prepared a framework for the next phase of the President's participation in the fight against crime and violence. It is designed to demonstrate 4 things:

Crime and violence continues to have the President's complete attention;

The Crime Bill is working; and

The President is building on it with additional measures that are also

Firmly rooted in the values of the American people.

ONGOING

First Three strikes prosecution. DOJ has established an alert system to notify us as soon as a U.S. Attorney is ready to go with the first three-strikes prosecution. The Attorney General will make some sort of public statement, either through her press conference or otherwise.

First Assault Weapons Ban prosecution. We have a similar notification system for the first prosecution of illegal sale or possession of one of the 19 assault weapons. This probably merits a statement by the President as well as the AG.

Surprise visit to Police Station. During some trip in the near future, the President should make an unscheduled visit to a police station or community policing headquarters -- similar to the trip to the fire station he took with Mayor Giuliani.

POLICE AND IMPLEMENTATION ROLLOUT

Top Cop. Rose Garden announcement of the 100,000 cops program

administrator. The chief cop should be prepared to demonstrate convincingly how he is going to get these cops on the street as soon as possible -- the equivalent of the Schwartzkopf this is exactly how we're going to win the Gulf war briefings. First week of October.

First Awards. Almost immediately afterward, the Top Cop should be back in the Rose Garden with the President announcing grant awards to 300 cities who applied for funds last year. First week of October.

PHS Heroes. As demonstrated by the story Senator Sarbanes told the President, police officers we have put on the street are already making a difference. We should bring a number of "PHS Heroes," from targeted districts as much as possible, to the White House to recognize their achievements and to demonstrate the effectiveness of our community policing program. Second week of October.

Police Chiefs. The International Association of Chiefs of Police is meeting in New Mexico -- over 7,000 police chiefs in one place. This is an enormous opportunity for the President to demonstrate his continued public involvement on this issue. Keep in mind that these people are among the most important local validators to be found. Mid October.

Cabinet Swearing-in. Sometime in October, the President, Vice President, and Cabinet Members should fan out to swear in PHS officers around the country. We need to pick a date far enough in the future to allow Justice to find enough communities, again, targeted as much as possible, to hold swearings-in for that date -- and then we need to stick to the date. October.

JUVENILE GUN BAN

Endorse Feinstein-Dorgan Zero Tolerance Amendment. This provision would require the expulsion of students who bring guns to school. Bruce is currently completing the vetting of the amendment and determining how long are window on this lasts. Late September, early October.

IMMIGRATION

Incarceration Grants. About 90% of the money in the Crime Bill to help states incarcerate illegal aliens goes to five states. The President and Vice President should each go to a different state on the same day and present the governor or other appropriate official with a check. CA - Feinstein; TX - Richards; FL - Chiles; New Jersey - Lautenberg; New York - Cuomo. Mid to late October.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

Appointment of Advisory Task Force. The Attorney General will appoint an implementation task force in mid-October, and follow that appointment with a briefing room appearance. Mid October

Implementation plan. The task force should have an implementation plan ready soon after appointment; this should be provided exclusively to a major news outlet. Late October

KLAAS-SPOSATO

Domestic Security Council. Marc Klaas and Steve Sposato should be appointed to some sort of presidential advisory council on crime and violence. They are tremendously effective spokesmen for the victims of crime -- as well as powerful examples of the effect people can have when they get involved in the fight against crime. Perhaps this announcement could take place during the President's California trip. October.

FORUMS

First Forum. The President and Vice President have indicated they want the first forum to be held before the end of October. We are convening a group early next week to develop a recommendation. Before October 31.

America's Most Wanted. America's Most Wanted has a standing invitation to host a town meeting with the President. This would be particularly good after we have some tangible results (like a 3Xs prosecution) to speak of. Mid November.

Second Forum. Not a major city, but somewhere that demonstrates the pervasiveness of the problem -- and the broad scope of our attention to it. (e.g. Rochester, NY) Late November, early December.

Klaas Forum. Marc Klaas has invited the President to a forum in California. February, 1995.

VALUES

White Church. Sometime during the holiday season, the President should deliver a major speech focusing on community, responsibility, and family at a suburban, middle-class church. This would also be a good time for the President to talk about domestic violence. Early to mid December.

TV Violence. We need to determine an appropriate mechanism for the President to reiterate the need for cultural outlets to provide positive role models.

OUTSTANDING

Racial Justice. We must determine the appropriate time to issue the President's directive to the Attorney General and the corresponding policy statement.
