The City of Brasilia

The decision to place the capital city of Brazil in the Central Plateau was made in 1891. In 1946, a commission was formed and determined that the best location for the city was a 50,000sq.km area called the Cruls Quadrilatero. Construction began in 1956 by urban planner Lucio Costa and architect Oscar Niemeyer who built the city in the shape of an airplane. Because only one architect designed the city, the buildings are all similar in appearance. The "Russian" style of the buildings is due to the fact that the architect was a Communist. The residential areas of Brasilia are the "wings" of the plane, and the public and government buildings as well as the palaces make up the body of the plane. Brasilia was dedicated in 1960.

Excursions

All travel times quoted are from the Llao-Llao hotel

All boat travel times are by catamaran, the times can be reduced by about 20% if a yacht is taken

Bosque de los Arrayanes

Travel Time: 40 minutes by boat

Walking time: 15-45 minutes

The Quetihue Peninsula is located in the neighboring province of Neuquen on the Nahuel Huapi lake. At the end of the peninsula you will find the only intact forest of Arrayanes (myrtle) trees in the world. These trees can be found elsewhere, but this is the only place where one will find a full forest. It provokes an impressive eeriness that so impressed Walt Disney in the 1940's that he sent his artists to sketch the forest which was then used as the backdrop in the movie "Bambi." The forest contains a walking path that can be walked quickly in 15 minutes.

El Messidor

Travel time: 50 minutes by boat, 10 minutes by helicopter, 1 hour 20 minutes by car

El Messidor is the official mansion of the governor of Neuquen which is located in the small town of Villa La Angostura. It is a rustic yet elegant structure that was designed by Ezequiel Bustillo, the same architect who designed the Llao-Llao hotel. This building has hosted many foreign dignitaries, but is most famous for being the place where Isabel Peron was kept under house arrest. The mansion is a wonderful place to take tea and relax while gazing at an impressive view of Nahuel Huapi lake.

Estancia "La Primavera" ("The Springtime" ranch)

Travel time: 2 hours by car, 20 minutes by helicopter

La Primavera is a 10,000+ acre ranch owned by Ted Turner of CNN although it is technically a part of the Argentine National park system. It is located on Traful lake in the province of Neuquen. The ranch contains the Limay river, which is excellent for trout fishing, and also some of the best groomed horse trails in the area. The horse trails vary from one to three hours and include easy to moderate difficulty. The ranch is surrounded by beautiful mountain ranges which, in addition to the beauty it brings to the terrain, make the area around the main house extremely well-enclosed and safe.

Walking trails

Llao-Llao trail

Walking time: 40 minutes (brisk pace), if one walks to and from the trail it will take 1 hour 30 minutes

The trails surrounding Llao-Llao hotel are quite beautiful. To access the starting point, one can hike the approximately two blocks to the entrance or take a vehicle. The trail is considered very easy. The trail winds through a beautiful forest, including a small grouping of myrtle trees and opens out to several lookout points on the Mascaradi lake. The entire trail takes one hour at a leisurely pace, and leads back to the same road where one starts, but farther from the Llao-Llao. A car can be waiting to return the person to the hotel.

Cerro Otto

Travel time: 30 minutes by car, 10 by helicopter plus 20 minute cable car ride

Walking time: from 45 minutes to 1 1/2 hours

Cerro ("mountain top") Otto is located 30 minutes by car towards the city of Bariloche. The mountain top is accessed by a cable car system which affords a spectacular view of the area. The summit offers a rotating restaurant with excellent pastries and several options for recreational activities, including hiking, mountain biking, and cross-country skiing in the winter. The various trails are easy and lead to the back side of the mountain where one can view the Gutierrez lake located to the south

Puerto Blest

Travel time: 35 minutes by boat, 10 by helicopter

Walking time: Frias lake - 25 minutes

Cascada los Cantaros (waterfall) - 1 hour

Puerto Blest is located at the western corner of Nahuel Huapi lake. From this point one has two options: 1) walk to Frias lake or 2) climb the stairs to the Los Cantaros waterfall and Ortiz lake (both are in opposite directions).

1) The walk to Frias lake is along a dirt road which passes the oldest tree in the hemisphere. The most impressive part of this journey is the comparison that one can make between the deep, dark blue Nahuel Huapi lake and the milky green Frias lake. The color of the water is caused by large copper deposits. Once at Frias lake, one has the opportunity to view wild condors that nest in the cliffs above the lake. A short excursion by boat can be made from this point. Argentine immigration officials are located at the far end of the lake and control the entrance into Chile.

2) The climb to the waterfall has a higher level of difficulty along wooden steps. The climb includes several stops at a beautiful waterfall and leads to a view of Ortiz lake, which is incredibly tranquil and untouched. The walk down the stairs is quite easy

Shopping

Villa La Angostura

Travel time: 50 minutes by boat, 15 by helicopter

Villa La Angostura is located in the neighboring province of Neuquen and contains several quaint shops in a three block downtown area. One can purchase candles, jams, smoked meats and cheeses, and various handicrafts.

Ahumadero (smokehouse) Weiss

Travel time: 20 minutes by car

The Weiss family smokehouse specializes in smoked deer, wild boar, salmon and trout. They also have excellent smoked cheeses and some jams and chocolates.

Ceramica Bariloche

Travel time: 40 minutes by car

The Ceramica Bariloche factory produces beautiful brightly painted and highly detailed ceramics that are reminiscent of an eastern European style. They make everything from clocks to candlesticks.

Burton Ceramics

Travel time: 35 minutes by car

The Burton ceramic factory is located outside of the city of Bariloche and produces two styles of ceramics - a natural stoneware finish and several metallic finishes. They also make a variety of products.

Chocolates

Travel time: varies, but most factories are in Bariloche

Bariloche is famous for its hand-made chocolates. There are dozens of factories in the downtown area of Bariloche and many will give guided tours when asked. There are many favorites, but the one heard expressed most often seems to be the "Mamushka" chocolates.
