Mr. Jon Haber
Senior Vice President
Fleishman Hillard
Suite 1000
1615 L Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036-5610

Dear Jon:

You were so kind to write and take note of my announcement.

I told the boss that this has been a great if challenging job, but it's one that I'll always be proud I held. I appreciate what you said and I hope you'll keep your eye out for me in the future to make sure I measure up.

Many thanks and best wishes.

Sincerely,

Mike McCurry
Press Secretary

Thanks!

Ms. June Hall
Apartment 1
590 South Kane Creek Boulevard
Moab, Utah 84532-2500

Dear Ms. Hall:

Thank you very much for your letter. Although I am the last to psychoanalyze the press (lest I lose my patience,) this son of South Carolina, who was taught similar rules about hospitality, thinks there's much to what you say.

I'll keep your analysis in mind. You have my best wishes.

Sincerely,

Washington, D.C. 20052

Dear Dr. Harding:

I can't thank you enough for helping me to entertain the masses today at the White House. Your briefing was incredibly insightful and will undoubtedly help to put next week's state visit in the appropriate context. You provided much more depth than I would have been able to provide alone and for that and much more, I am thankful.

You have my best wishes.

April 7 -

Chairman Kasich -

The attached story gives me great pause. I do not believe anyone having as much fun as you on your "back in the black" tour could be taken seriously as a presidential candidate, but as an avid baseball fan, your credentials are impressive.

A Bob Feller fan is a friend of mine. The enclosed ball was given to me - truth told - as payolla when Cleveland was making a good and legitimate bid for The 1992 Democratic National Convention. Aside from a few missing hotel rooms and Ron Brown's determination to go to his hometown, Cleveland would have been it.

I give you This ball from Feller in the hope that: 1) Cleveland hosts The 2000 GOP convention; 2) you are nominated and 3) Al Gore beats you fair and square. At least you'll have This ball as a memory!

Good luck, but not too much.

- Mike McWry

AM-IA--Kasich's Journey, Bjt,660
Kasich charting a different course

By MIKE GLOVER= Associated Press Writer=

VAN METER, Iowa (AP) Rep. John Kasich veered from the campaign trail, listening with admiration to tales from baseball legend Bob Feller.

"This is just so awesome," said Kasich, trying on shirts and caps and leaning at a brand-new signed autographed baseball. "I could run this place and be happy."

Winking at a reporter, Kasich chuckled, "I told you that if I ran I wouldn't be like all those other turkeys."

"Seriously, if I do this thing will you help me?" he asked Feller.

"Any way I can," said the Hall of Fame pitcher.

With that, Kasich plunged back into campaign mode, heading for the latest stop on his "back in black tour" where he's seeking to show youthful exuberance as he ponders a bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

The tour theme borrows heavily from rock music, and Kasich is already giving himself high marks.

"We're not exactly the greatest tour in the world, but we're a close second to the great Rolling Stones tour," said the Ohio Republican. Kasich is in the midst of a five-day swing through the state where precinct caucuses launch the presidential nominating season.

Kasich is little known in Iowa and faces long odds in seeking to run from the House, but he was impressing some.

"I think he's got that energetic forceful nature that some people have felt is lacking in some of the people running for president," said House Majority Leader Brent Siegrist, a Council Bluffs Republican. "That will be attractive to a lot of young, conservative Republicans."

In his effort, Kasich seeks to take credit for helping form a budget agreement with President Clinton that he said has the potential of keeping the economy humming and make voters forget some of the politically painful decisions that went into the balanced budget effort.

"There's a real cause for optimism," said Kasich. "I've done root canal for a lot of my life where I've forced people to make hard decisions."

Along the way, Kasich has jousting with his own party, fighting a highway construction measure he labels as pure political pork.

"We went to Washington to change the culture and habits of Washington," said Kasich. "This is a throwback."

Using an endless stream of sports analogies, Kasich says he'll keep Republican feet to the fire, if nothing else, with his stumping.

"I've been telling the guys we've got to get off the stool and get into the ring and start going at it again," said Kasich. "I don't want to just stay where we are. I want to do a heck of a lot more."

While Kasich hasn't made a decision about seeking the GOP nomination, he said he's encouraged by his early testing of the waters and that he set aside significant amounts of campaign time for important early states like Iowa.

"There aren't many cynics in Iowa, which is why I like the state so much," said Kasich.

While Kasich seeks to bring some youthful vigor to the race, he's careful to pay homage to traditional GOP issues.

"Balancing the budget is as old-fashioned an American value as you can find," said Kasich. "We have a real stake in not sliding out of the budget agreement, which is why I am so passionate in terms of defending it, even when I suspect that my own party might be getting a little weak-kneed about it."

Aides stepped in to end a rapid-fire exchange with reporters, gently suggesting it was time to move along.

"I was just starting to enjoy this," Kasich said. "I could go on for another hour."
