THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

May 26, 1998

Dear Mr. President:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

I have been following closely the continuing efforts of Ecuador and Peru to reach a prompt and definitive settlement of your border dispute. The United States will continue to work with the leaders of the other guarantor nations to promote a final agreement in the near future.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

Fabián Alarcón Rivera
Interim President of the Republic of Ecuador

Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with your Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

On a personal note, let me also take this opportunity to thank you for the figurine and the compact disk. It was thoughtful of you to share these mementos with me.

Sincerely,

Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with your Foreign Minister and others in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

As you know, we have recently concluded the second Summit of the Americas in Santiago, Chile. I was sorry not to see you at the Summit, but you were ably represented by Foreign Minister Odlum. In Santiago, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty.

I particularly appreciated your support for the hemispheric initiative on education. An educated citizenry is the basis upon which we will strengthen all our other institutions. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with your Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

As you know, we have recently concluded the second Summit of the Americas in Santiago, Chile. I was sorry not to see you at the Summit, but you were ably represented by Minister of Trade Humphreys. In Santiago, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with her counterparts in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

Dear Eduardo:

I want to express again my deep appreciation for your gracious hospitality during our productive State Visit. Thank you very much for the special medallions, as well as the wine, the chess set, and the other fine gifts. Hillary and I are grateful for your generosity and will cherish these reminders of our visit. We had a wonderful time getting to know you and Martita better and experiencing first hand the beauty of your country and the warmth of its people. The bonds of friendship between our two countries across the entire range of our relations are stronger than ever. I am confident we have created the foundation for a close partnership into the 21st century, and I assure you that Chile will find the United States a reliable partner in our growing bilateral relationship.

I also want to say how full of admiration I am for your leadership of the second Summit of the Americas, where we significantly advanced the process of hemispheric integration. Your contribution will remain central over the next several years, as we work together with Canada to turn the words of Santiago into deeds.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with your Foreign Minister and others in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Dear Ernesto:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millennium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

In the area of free trade, as in that of counternarcotics, the U.S.-Mexico partnership has provided a stimulus for hemispheric action. I am thus pleased that we will both be attending the upcoming United Nations Special Session on the World Drug Problem, which you have done so much to promote.

On a personal note, thank you very much for the books. It was thoughtful of you to share these mementos with me.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Dear Mr. President:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

I have been following closely the continuing efforts of Ecuador and Peru to reach a prompt and definitive settlement of your border dispute. The United States will continue to work with the leaders of the other guarantor nations to promote a final agreement in the near future.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Fabián Alarcón Rivera

Dear Fernando Henrique:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

I look forward to continuing our discussions during your forthcoming trip to the United States. Brazil's leadership, and our partnership, offer strong support for the peaceful, prosperous and democratic hemisphere we are striving to build.

Sincerely,

Dear Eduardo:

I want to express again my deep appreciation for your gracious hospitality during our productive State Visit. Thank you very much for the special medallions, as well as the wine, the chess set, and the other fine gifts. Hillary and I are grateful for your generosity and will cherish these reminders of our visit. We had a wonderful time getting to know you and Martita better and experiencing first hand the beauty of your country and the warmth of its people. The bonds of friendship between our two countries across the entire range of our relations are stronger than ever. I am confident we have created the foundation for a close partnership into the 21st century, and I assure you that Chile will find the United States a reliable partner in our growing bilateral relationship.

I also want to say how full of admiration I am for your leadership of the second Summit of the Americas, where we significantly advanced the process of hemispheric integration. Your contribution will remain central over the next several years, as we work together under Canadian leadership to turn the words of Santiago into deeds.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with your Foreign Minister and others in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

May 26, 1998

Dear Mr. President:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

It was good to continue the conversation we had in March at the White House. The meeting with President Figueres and the other leaders of Central America last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with Costa Rica's Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Miguel Angel Rodríguez
President of the Republic of Costa Rica

Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Given Uruguay's record of reform of education and health care, I look forward to working with you closely on two important goals of the Summit Action Plan: to ensure universal access to and the completion of quality primary education for 100 percent of our children and access to secondary schooling for at least 75 percent of young people by 2010; and second, by the year 2002, to eradicate measles and reduce the incidence of pneumonia, meningitis, rubella and mumps.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

In the area of free trade, as in that of counternarcotics, the U.S.-Mexico partnership has provided a stimulus for hemispheric action. I am thus pleased that we will both be attending the upcoming United Nations Special Session on the World Drug Problem, which you have done so much to promote.

On a personal note, thank you very much for the books. It was thoughtful of you to share these mementos with me.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance Against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. ✓

I particularly appreciated your support for the hemispheric initiative on education. An educated citizenry is the basis upon which we will strengthen all our other institutions. With the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, the United States has been an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration. Let me assure you that we will continue to be so in the future.

Our meeting last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with your Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon ✓ which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

The Right Honorable
Manuel Esquivel
Prime Minister of Belize

As the leaders of the democratic nations of the Hemisphere gather for the Summit of the Americas here in Santiago, Hillary and I are delighted to welcome you to the U.S. artistic presentations taking place in this exciting celebration of American cultures -- EXPOCUMBRE.

Ever committed to the promotion of free expression through the arts, the United States was pleased to accept the invitation of the Government of Chile to participate in this cultural festival. And we are proud and honored this week to share with the people of Chile and the Americas one of our most precious national resources, our extraordinarily creative artists.

Sam Gilliam's unique art has adorned many of the great museums of the world, including those in his home town of Washington, D.C. During the EXPOCUMBRE his work is floating splendidly and majestically above the grand nave of the Centro Cultural Estacion Mapocho, one of Santiago's finest architectural landmarks.

Legendary jazz pianist Herbie Hancock is also gracing this festival, along with a fine group of talented young musicians from the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz. I hope that you will be moved as much as I by the exhilaration of my country's music, and by the spirit of change and innovation that jazz celebrates.

As we as a Hemisphere focus our sight on the challenges and thrills of the new millenium, we look to the creative arts both to remind us of the richness of our traditions and to inspire us to seek new horizons in the future. I am pleased to join the people of Chile and of all the Americas as you participate in the Summit of the Americas through a panoply of cultural expressions at EXPOCUMBRE.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. Glyn T. Davies
Executive Secretary
National Security Council

FROM: Rick A. Ruth Ruth
Deputy Chief of Staff

SUBJECT: Request for Presidential Message at the Cultural Festival for the Summit of the Americas

Ambassador Guerra and USIS Santiago request a message from the President for the United States' participation at the Cultural Festival for the Summit of the Americas April 18 and 19 in Santiago, Chile. This cultural festival will feature art, dance, music and cultural exhibits from each of the 34 nations attending the Summit. The U.S. participation will consist of two programs: an art exhibit by noted Washington, D.C., artist Sam Gilliam, and a free public jazz concert by students of the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz at the New England Conservatory of Music, headlined by Herbie Hancock. The President's message will be featured in a printed program to be distributed at both U.S. events.

A draft message, which has been approved by the Ambassador, is attached. Please return the signed original to USIA, Room 827, by February 20 for transmission to Santiago (lead time allows for printing of programs).

This message has been cleared by the Department of State.

Presidential Message at the Cultural Festival for the Summit of Americas

As the leaders of the democratic nations of the Hemisphere gather in Santiago for the Second Summit of the Americas, Hillary and I are delighted to welcome you to the U.S. artistic presentations taking place in this exciting celebration of American cultures -- EXPOCUMBRE.

Ever committed to the promotion of free expression through the arts, the United States was pleased to accept the invitation of the Government of Chile to participate in this cultural festival. Legendary jazz pianist Herbie Hancock is also gracing this festival, along with a fine group of talented young musicians from the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz. I hope that you will be moved as much as I by the exhilaration of my country's ~~own distinct~~ ~~classical~~ music, and by the spirit of change and innovation that jazz celebrates.

As we as a Hemisphere focus our sight on the challenges and thrills of the new millennium, we look to the creative arts both to remind us of the richness of our traditions and to inspire us to seek new horizons in the future.
