THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. President:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

I have been following closely the continuing efforts of Ecuador and Peru to reach a prompt and definitive settlement of your border dispute. The United States will continue to work with the leaders of the other guarantor nations to promote a final agreement in the near future.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Fabián Alarcón Rivera
President of the Republic of Ecuador
Quito

Our meeting last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with your Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

As you know, we have recently concluded the second Summit of the Americas in Santiago, Chile. I was sorry not to see you at the Summit, but you were ably represented by Foreign Minister Odlum. In Santiago, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children, and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

The meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with your Foreign Minister and others in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership, and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago. Canadian leadership, and our partnership, offer sure support for achieving these goals.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children, and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with her counterparts in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership, and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

The Right Honorable
Dr. Denzil L. Douglas
Prime Minister of the Federation of St. Kitts and Nevis

Dear Eduardo:

I want to express again my deep appreciation for your gracious hospitality during our productive state visit. Hillary and I had a wonderful time getting to know you and Martita better and experiencing first hand the beauty of your country and the warmth of its people. The bonds of friendship between our two countries across the entire range of our relations are stronger than ever. I am confident we have created the foundation for a close partnership into the 21st century.

I also want to say how full of admiration I am for your leadership of the second Summit of the Americas, where we significantly advanced the process of hemispheric integration. Your contribution will remain central over the next several years, as we work together under Canadian leadership to turn the words of Santiago into deeds. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. I assure you that Chile will find the United States a reliable partner in the achievement of these hemispheric goals, as in our growing bilateral relationship.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked, and for which Chile provides an admired model, will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. President-Elect:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children, and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

It was good to continue the conversation we had in March at the White House. The meeting with President Figueres and the other leaders of Central America last May in San José made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation, and I am pleased that Madeleine Albright, Janet Reno, and Charlene Barshefsky have been able to follow up on our discussions with Costa Rica's Ministers. Our cooperation will continue to provide an important stimulus to progress across the hemisphere on trade, justice, the environment, and other concerns.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Miguel Angel Rodríguez

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

Given Uruguay's record of reform of education and health care, I look forward to working with you closely on two important goals of the Summit Action Plan: to ensure universal access to and the completion of quality primary education for 100 percent of our children and access to secondary schooling for at least 75 percent of young people by 2010; and second, by the year 2002, to eradicate measles and reduce the incidence of pneumonia, meningitis, rubella and mumps.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Dr. Julio Maria Sanguinetti
President of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay
Montevideo

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. President:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children, and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

Our meeting last May in Bridgetown made a significant contribution to hemispheric cooperation. I am pleased that Madeleine Albright has been able to follow up on our discussions with your Foreign Minister and others in the region. We should sustain these efforts to build our Caribbean partnership, and contribute to the broader hemispheric process of integration in the coming years.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Jules Wijdenbosch
President of the Republic of Suriname
Paramaribo

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Ernesto:

It was a great pleasure to see you in Santiago for the second Summit of the Americas. There, we reaffirmed the goal set in Miami three years ago: a prosperous and peaceful hemisphere, united by a commitment to political and economic freedom.

When we gather again in Canada at the start of a new millenium, we will want to have turned the words of Santiago into deeds; to have made concrete progress toward a Free Trade Area of the Americas; created a Hemispheric Alliance against Drugs; established a Judicial Studies Center for the Americas; and, more broadly, to have expanded educational opportunity for all our children, and lifted increasing numbers of our citizens out of poverty. Let me assure you that the United States will continue to be an active partner in the work of hemispheric integration, as we have been, with the invaluable contribution of my Special Envoy Mack McLarty, on the path from Miami to Santiago.

In the area of free trade, as in that of counternarcotics, the U.S.-Mexico partnership has provided a model and a stimulus for hemispheric action. I am pleased that we will be attending next month's United Nations Special Session on Narcotics Trafficking together and hope that we will have an opportunity to see each other again then.

Free peoples and free markets have become the touchstone of hemispheric integration. The second generation of reforms upon which we are now embarked will help ensure the irreversibility of this hemisphere's progress, and demonstrate that democracy delivers for all our people.

Sincerely,

His Excellency
Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de León
President of the United Mexican States
Mexico, D.F.
