ANNEX B

APPEALS

POLICY

This annex establishes common appeals procedures for the denial or revocation of access to sensitive compartmented information (SCI) by entities of the Intelligence Community after adjudication pursuant to the provisions of DCID 1/14. This annex is promulgated pursuant to Executive Order 12333, Executive Order 12356, and Section 102 of the National Security Act of 1947. For the purposes of this annex, all references to DCID 1/14 include the basic document and all of its annexes. Any individual who has been considered for initial or continued access to SCI pursuant to the provisions of DCID 1/14 shall, to the extent provided below, be afforded an opportunity to appeal the denial or revocation of such access. This annex supersedes any and all other practices and procedures for the appeal of the denial or revocation of SCI access. This annex will not be construed to require the disclosure of classified information or information concerning intelligence sources and methods, nor will it be construed to afford an opportunity to appeal before the actual denial or revocation of SCI access. In addition, the provisions of DCID 1/14, or any other document or provision of law, will not be construed to create a property interest of any kind in the access of any individual to SCI. Further, since the denial or revocation of access to SCI cannot by the terms of DCID 1/14 render an individual ineligible for access to other classified information solely for that reason, the denial or revocation of SCI access pursuant to the provisions of DCID 1/14 will not be construed to create a liberty interest of any kind.

APPLICABILITY

This annex applies to all United States Government civilian and military personnel, as well as any other individuals, including contractors and employees of contractors, who are considered for initial or continued access to SCI. This annex does not apply to decisions regarding employment and will not be construed to affect or impair Public Law 88-290 or the authority of any entity to effect applicant or personnel actions pursuant to Public Law 88-290, Public Law 86-36, or other applicable law.

SCI ACCESS DETERMINATION AUTHORITY

Adjudications for access to SCI will be made in accordance with DCID 1/14 by a Determination Authority designated by the Senior Official of the Intelligence Community (SOIC) of each entity. Access to SCI shall be denied or revoked whenever it is determined that a person does not meet the security standards provided for in DCID 1/14.

PROCEDURES

1. Individuals will be:

- notified of the denial or revocation of SCI access; notified that they may request to be provided the reasons for such denial or revocation; and afforded an opportunity to appeal.

unless such actions would reveal a covert source, or reveal or verify a particular US Government affiliation with industry that is classified pursuant to Executive Order 12356 and is not otherwise protectable; and in other circumstances where the SOIC determines in writing that an appeal cannot be offered consistent with the national security.

2. Any individual who is given notification and afforded an opportunity to appeal pursuant to paragraph 1 of this annex may, within 45 days of the date on which such individual is notified of the reasons for denial or revocation of SCl access, submit a written appeal of that denial or revocation to the Determination Authority. The written material submitted for consideration may include any information the individual believes will assist the Determination Authority in reviewing the case.
3. After a further review of the case in the light of the written appeal, the individual will be notified of the decision of the Determination Authority.
4. If the Determination Authority reaffirms a denial or revocation of access, the individual may, within 30 days of the date on which such individual is notified of the Determination Authority's reaffirmation, request a final review of the case. In that event, the SOIC or his or her designee, will personally review the case and exercise his or her discretion pursuant to the provisions of DCID 1/14, and will inform the individual of his or her decision, which action will be final and unreviewable.

ANNEX C

STANDARDS FOR SCI SECURITY AWARENESS
PROGRAMS IN THE US INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY

Consistent with controls and procedures set forth in DCID 1/19 and its supplement, DCI Security Policy Manual for SCI Control Systems, standards are hereby established for the SCI security education programs designed to enhance the security awareness of the US Government civilian and military personnel and private contractors working in the US Intelligence Community. Compliance with these standards is required for all departments/agencies within the Intelligence Community. Existing security awareness programs will be modified to conform with these standards. Departments/agencies will establish a documented program to ensure that training has been presented to all personnel.

All individuals nominated for or holding SCI access approval will be notified initially and annually thereafter of their responsibility to report to their cognizant security officers any outside employment or activities (described in DCID 1/14, Annex A) that could conflict with their duty to protect classified information from unauthorized disclosure. Any other outside employment or activities that could create real or apparent conflicts with their responsibility to protect classified information also must be reported. Individuals granted SCI access approvals will be advised:

- Who they may consult to determine if particular outside employment or activity might be of security concern.
- Of the need to exercise security caution in their activities as members of professional, commercial, scholarly, or advocacy organizations that publish or discuss information on intelligence, defense, or foreign affairs.
- Of their continuing obligation to submit for review any planned articles, books, speeches, or public statements that contain or purport to contain SCI or information relating to or derived from SCI, as specified by the nondisclosure agreements that are a prerequisite for access to SCI.

The security awareness requirements set forth herein are divided into three phases. Phase 1 concerns the initial indoctrination of individuals, which is normally administered before access to SCI. Phase 2 concerns the continuing security awareness program required to maintain an increased security awareness throughout the period of access. Phase 3 sets forth the final guidelines and instructions when access to SCI is terminated.

1. Initial Indoctrination—As soon as practicable after being approved for access to SCI, personnel will receive an initial security indoctrination that will include:

- a. The need for and purpose of SCI, and the adverse effect on the national security that could result from unauthorized disclosure.
- b. The intelligence mission of the department/agency to include the reasons why intelligence information is sensitive.
- c. The administrative, personnel, physical, and other procedural security requirements of the department/agency and those requirements peculiar to specific duty assignments.
- d. Individual classification management responsibilities as set forth in appropriate directives and regulations to include classification/declassification guidelines and marking requirements.

- e. The definitions and criminal penalties for espionage, including harboring or concealing persons; gathering, transmitting, or losing defense information; gathering or delivering defense information to aid foreign governments; photographing and sketching defense installations; unauthorized disclosure of classified information (Title 18, U.S.C., Sections 793 through 795, 797, and 798), the Internal Security Act of 1950 (Title 50, U.S.C., Section 783), the Intelligence Identities Protection Act of 1982 (Title 50, U.S.C., Sections 421 through 426) and, when appropriate, the Atomic Energy Act (Sections 224 through 227).
 - f. The administrative sanctions for violation of or disregard for security procedures.
 - g. A review of the techniques employed by foreign intelligence organizations in attempting to obtain national security information.
 - h. Individual security responsibilities including:
 - (1) The prohibition against discussing SCI in a nonsecure area, over a nonsecure telephone, or in any other manner that permits access by unauthorized persons.
 - (2) The need to determine, before disseminating SCI, that the prospective recipient has the proper security access approval, that the SCI is needed in order to perform official duties, and that the recipient can properly protect the information.
 - (3) Administrative reporting requirements such as foreign travel, contacts with foreign nationals, attempts by unauthorized persons to obtain national security information, physical security deficiencies, and loss or possible compromise of SCI material.
 - (4) Obligation to report to proper authorities any information which could reflect on the trustworthiness of an individual who has access to SCI, such as:
 - (a) Willful violation of security regulations.
 - (b) Unexplained affluence or excessive indebtedness.
 - (c) Serious unlawful acts.
 - (d) Apparent mental or emotional problems.
 - (e) Coercion or harassment attempts.
 - (f) Blackmail attempts.
 - (5) Identification of the elements in the department/agency to which matters of security interest are to be referred.
2. Periodic Awareness Enhancement—Each department/agency will establish a continuing security awareness program that will provide for frequent exposure of personnel to security awareness material. Implementation of a continuing program may include live briefings, audio-visual presentations (e.g., video tapes, films, and slide/tape programs), printed material (e.g., posters, memorandums, pamphlets, fliers), or a combination thereof. It is essential that current information and materials be utilized. Programs should be designed to meet the particular needs of the department/agency.
- a. The basic elements for this program will include, but are not limited to, the following:
 - (1) The foreign intelligence threat.
 - (2) The technical threat.
 - (3) Administrative, personnel, physical, and procedural security.
 - (4) Individual classification management responsibility.

- (5) Criminal penalties and administrative sanctions.
- (6) Individual security responsibilities.
- (7) A review of other appropriate department/agency requirements.
- b. Special security briefings/debriefings are required to supplement the existing security awareness programs in the following situations:
 - (1) When an individual is designated as a courier.
 - (2) When an individual travels, officially or unofficially, to or through countries listed in the annex to DCID 1/20, Countries In Which Visits, Travel, and Assignments Are Considered To Be Hazardous.
 - (3) When an individual has, or anticipates, contact with representatives of countries listed in the annex to DCID 1/20, Countries and Areas in Which Visits, Travel, and Assignments Are Considered To Be Hazardous.
 - (4) When any other situation arises for which a special briefing/debriefing is required by the department/agency.
- 3. Debriefing—When a department/agency has determined that access to SCI is no longer required, final instructions and guidelines will be provided to the individual. As a minimum these will include:
 - a. A requirement that the individual read appropriate sections of Titles 18 and 50, U.S.C., and that the intent and criminal sanctions of these laws relative to espionage and unauthorized disclosure be clarified.
 - b. The continuing obligation, under the prepublication and other provisions of the nondisclosure agreement for SCI, never to divulge; publish; or reveal by writing, word, conduct, or otherwise, to any unauthorized persons any SCI, without the written consent of appropriate department/agency officials.
 - c. An acknowledgement that the individual will report without delay to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or the department/agency, any attempt by an unauthorized person to solicit national security information.
 - d. A declaration that the individual no longer possesses any documents or material containing SCI.
 - e. A reminder of the risks associated with foreign travel and certain hazardous activities as defined in DCI Directive 1/20, Countries and Areas in Which Visits, Travel, and Assignments Are Considered To Be Hazardous, and department/agency reporting requirements as applicable.

ANNEX D
QUALITY CONTROL GUIDELINES FOR THE
SINGLE SCOPE BACKGROUND INVESTIGATION

GUIDELINES

In accordance with the requirements of DCI Directive 1/14 and National Security Directive 63, this document sets out guidelines to maintain quality standards for the Single Scope Background Investigation (SSBI). These guidelines assume the adjudicator's perspective because the adjudicator is the ultimate customer for the SSBI. The guidelines are divided into:

- Definition of Quality
- Conduct of the Interview
- Collection Requirements (Coverage)
- Quality Control Activities

DEFINITION OF QUALITY

A quality investigation is a thorough and comprehensive collection of favorable and unfavorable information from a variety of sources, past and present, that may include employment(s), reference(s), neighborhood(s), credit, police, and the subject. A quality investigative report should provide an adjudicator with a complete set of variables from which she/he can carefully weigh "the whole person" in determining a person's fitness for access to classified information.

The investigation may include record sources and interviews with the subject of the investigation, supervisors, coworkers, social acquaintances, and neighbors.

CONDUCT OF THE INTERVIEW

The quality of the investigation depends on the investigator's ability to elicit information from a source knowledgeable about the subject. This is basic to the conduct of any interview. The investigator should plan and execute each interview so as to obtain the maximum amount of information from a source. Available sources should be selected from each area of coverage to ensure that pertinent information about the subject's entire background is developed.

The investigator should conduct the interview in person and find a suitable location that protects privacy.

Telephonic interviews are strongly discouraged; however, occasionally circumstances may dictate that the interviews be conducted by telephone. If a telephonic interview is necessary, the report should always state why the interview was not conducted in person.

The investigator should initially advise the source of the reason/purpose for the investigation and should attempt to establish a degree of confidence in the source(s) that will promote a high level of rapport and cooperation.

The investigator should also advise the source about the Privacy Act of 1974, before completing the interview, since the source needs to understand that the subject of the investigation has the right to review information provided by a source and has the right to know a source's identity, unless the source requests confidentiality.

COLLECTION REQUIREMENTS (COVERAGE)

FOR ALL SOURCES

Investigators should establish the source's duration and nature of association with the subject, thereby establishing the knowledgability of the source. The investigator should always secure the source's full name and any other appropriate identifying data, particularly in the case of a source with a common name. All derogatory or noteworthy information concerning the subject of the investigation that is provided by a source should be fully explored in the interview, including elicitation of the names of any corroborating sources or record information that will substantiate any derogatory testimony provided by the source. For all sources, the report should indicate what issue areas were covered and whether the information provided was favorable or unfavorable.

FOR REFERENCES AND NEIGHBORS

Depending on the source's degree of association, investigators should ask each reference or neighbor relevant information regarding the subject's:

- Family, citizenship, education, employment, residence history, and military service.
- Reputation, character, honesty, trustworthiness, integrity, discretion, reliability, and temperament.
- Financial stability, organizational affiliations, and whether there is a history of mental, emotional, or physical health problems.

- Whether the subject exhibits a pattern of excessive use of alcohol or has ever used illegal drugs or abused prescription drugs.
- Activities which indicate a lack of discretion or demonstrates poor judgment, a character flaw, or a personality disorder.
- Participation in criminal activity or an altercation with law enforcement agencies.
- Travels abroad for business or pleasure and degree of contact with foreign nationals.
- Unquestioned loyalty to the United States.

If a subject has had access to classified information and a source is in a position to know, the investigator should ask whether the subject properly handles classified information or has ever had a security violation. Finally, the investigator should ask if the source can recommend the subject for a position of trust and responsibility with the US Government or, in the case of a contractor, can the subject be trusted with classified information. The investigator should conclude the interview by asking the source to provide names of additional references.

FOLLOWUP QUESTIONS

If a source provides noteworthy or derogatory information to questions in any of the above areas of consideration, the investigator should ask followup questions as necessary to elicit all available information. The investigator should report as fully as possible:

- The nature, extent, and seriousness of the conduct.
- The motivation for and the circumstances surrounding the conduct.
- The frequency and recency of the conduct.
- The subject's age and maturity at the time of the conduct.
- Whether the conduct was voluntary or whether there was pressure, coercion, or exploitation leading to the conduct.
- Whether the subject has been rehabilitated or has exhibited other pertinent behavioral changes since the conduct.

If the subject has ended the questionable conduct, the investigator should attempt to determine the motivation for positive change. The investigator should also attempt to establish whether there may be personal animosity or bias towards the subject on the part of the source(s). The investigator should supply any available documentary evidence relating to the conduct in addition to the report of the source.

FOR EMPLOYMENT REFERENCES

The investigator should identify and interview the best source(s) available. These employment references should include, but are not limited to, the subject's immediate supervisor, coworker(s), and other persons with frequent professional contact. Where appropriate, the investigator should pursue the same line of inquiry as with references and neighbors. In particular, the investigator should inquire regarding:

- Whether the subject is willing to abide by company policies and regulations.
- Whether the subject appropriately safeguards the employer's proprietary/sensitive information.
- Whether the subject is financially stable.
- Whether the subject has a history of substance abuse, to include alcohol, and/or prescription drugs.
- Whether the subject has been involved in any criminal activity.
- Whether the subject is reliable and eligible for re-hire.

The investigator should provide any available documentary evidence to support the report of the source(s).

FOR SUBJECT INTERVIEW

The subject is the best source of information about himself/herself. Hence, the investigator should explore with the subject the same line of inquiry she/he pursues with a reference, neighborhood, and employment source(s). The investigator should obtain the subject's version of the details surrounding all issues arising either in the course of the interview or in other parts of the investigation that have been completed by the time of the subject interview and report them completely. The investigator should inquire:

- What happened.
- Where, when, and how it happened.
- Who else was involved.

Of particular value to the adjudicator is evidence that the subject is being contradictory or dissembling. If the subject claims to have ended the conduct, the investigator should attempt to determine the motivation for positive change. The investigator should report only the facts.

QUALITY CONTROL ACTIVITIES

Quality control activities are designed to ensure adjudicators that a high quality investigation and report has been provided to them. The following management tools for investigative agencies are included but not limited to ensure quality investigations.

CASE REVIEW

Case review consists of some sort of supervisory review of the investigative requirements and the investigation to ensure that all coverages have been met using the best available sources. Depending on the agency, the investigative review may be conducted by the investigator's supervisor or by a quality assurance or assessment team.

RIDE-ALONG PROGRAM

In ride-along programs, supervisors and/or senior agents accompany the investigator, observing the investigator's performance, focusing on whether the investigator:

- Uses proper/acceptable investigative techniques.
- Explores all relevant issues.
- Possesses a demeanor that reflects positively on the investigative agency.

SOURCE RECONTACT

The supervisory element may select from a sample of an investigator's cases and contact some or all of the sources. The source is queried regarding the investigator's professionalism, line of questioning, adherence to established policies and procedures, and thoroughness. Both written and telephonic recontact are acceptable.

These recommended monitoring activities ensure adequate training of investigators, acceptable supervisory oversight, and proper professionalism while conducting the investigation. They also ensure that the standards of investigative coverage are satisfactorily met.

MEMORANDUM FOR ASSISTANTS TO THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JODIE R. TORKELSON
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

SUBJECT: Security Clearances

You are responsible for identifying the level of security clearance, if any, required for your staff members to perform their official duties within the Executive Office of the President. In the past, all staff who had blue passes were routinely granted Top Secret (TS) clearances. In compliance with the President's Executive Order, we are limiting the number of individuals with a clearance to those whose duties require it. In order to achieve this, we must examine each position on a case by case basis.

Please review the attached list of individuals on your staff and annotate it by placing a TS (TOP SECRET), S (SECRET), or N (NONE) beside each name, to indicate the level of security clearance each person needs to perform his/her duties. You should make the determination for each individual based on the level of information that the individual will need in the course of doing his/her job. You should NOT routinely authorize a clearance to every staff member on the off chance that it may be needed at some time in the future. While much of the information we handle is very sensitive for a variety of reasons, very little of it is classified for national security reasons, which requires a clearance. Should you need to change a clearance on short notice, contact the EOP Security Office. They can grant a clearance very quickly should the need arise.

Please return the annotated list to the EOP Security Office, Room 4026, New Executive Office Building no later than Friday, December 20, 1996. Once they receive your list, they will contact employees whose clearances are being changed. These employees will receive the following statement:

"As a result of a change in policy governing the issuance of clearances, it has been administratively determined that the duties of your position do not routinely require access to classified information [above the level of _____]. This determination has nothing to do with your suitability or trustworthiness, but rather is motivated by a Presidential order directing a review of and a reduction in the number of clearances issued."

If you have any questions about this process or about the clearances of persons currently on your staff, call the EOP Security Office at x5-6206.

Reminder: Processing a security clearance alone does not convey the right to have access to classified material. In each instance, the employee must also have both the proper clearance and a need to know the particular information.

COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

RE: REVIEW OF SECURITY CLEARANCE PROCESS

DATE: MAY 29, 1996

Please be advised that the White House Personnel Security Office, in compliance with Executive Order #12968 ("Access To Classified Information"), will be reviewing staff's needs for access to classified material. As you are aware, a critical aspect to safeguarding classified materials is limiting the number of individuals with access to such materials.

The Personnel Security Office will be meeting with each department to determine which current staff require access to classified materials. For future clearances, we will use the attached form and make it part of the permanent personnel security file.

TO: Kumiki S. Gibson
FROM: Christopher D. Cerf
Office of the Counsel
SUBJECT: Security Clearances

Both for policy reasons and to comply with a new Executive Order, we are in the process of centralizing WH procedures for the issuance of Secret and Top Secret security clearances. We have now completed the process for every office except the OVP.

Under preexisting procedures, WHO and OPD staff with blue passes were deemed to have the equivalent of a TS clearance. Under the new procedures, we have "decoupled" the pass and the clearance. To accomplish this, the head of each office was asked to identify which staff members in fact required a clearance. Security personnel then met with each such individual, briefed them on issues related to the protection of national security information, and asked them to sign the standard non-disclosure form.

As in many things, the OVP was a trendsetter on this issue. Like several other EOP components, OVP had already decoupled passes from clearances, identified a relatively small number of individuals who needed clearances, briefed them, and had them sign the non-disclosure form.

Accordingly, I am informed that the process for including OVP in the newly centralized system will be very simple. OVP has already provided a list of the individuals who currently have a clearance. Although, security personnel will need to meet with them for a short briefing, they already have non-disclosure forms on file. Such forms, and the clearances they reflect, will be "credited" without any additional review of paperwork.

I hope this answers your questions. If not, please feel free to contact me or Craig Livingstone (6-5210).

MEMORANDUM FOR OVP STAFF

FROM: RON KLAIN RKC
CHIEF OF STAFF

SUBJECT: Personnel Security Procedures

The attached paper describes the personnel security procedures for the Office of the Vice President. Each department head should review these procedures carefully and make sure that each member of his or her staff is briefed. Security is everyone's business. I take this matter seriously and I expect all members of the staff to do the same.

The OVP Personnel Security Officer, Joanne Hilty, and OVP Administrator, Mary Margaret Overbey, are responsible for guiding implementation of the procedures. Questions should be addressed to them.

PERSONNEL SECURITY PROCEDURES

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT

The OVP Security Officer is responsible for developing and implementing a personnel security program for the Office of the Vice President under the direction of the Vice President's National Security Advisor and Deputy National Security Advisor. The program includes developing personnel security clearance procedures; making a determination and providing individual access to classified material, as appropriate; handling and storing classified documents; and managing the overall program.

The following procedures implement the Personnel Security Program in the Office of the Vice President:

PERSONNEL SECURITY CLEARANCE PROCEDURES

(1) All new employees to the OVP are required by OVP's Administrator to complete a "Blue Sheet," which initiates the personnel action at the White House. The "Blue Sheet" is signed by the new employee and the Administrator. After signatures, the new employee handcarries the original to Room 290 and gives it to the OVP Security Officer. (A copy of the "Blue Sheet" should be retained in the personnel files of the new employee by the OVP Administrator; the original is delivered to the Office of Management and Administration by OVP's Security Officer.)

(2) The OVP Personnel Security Officer provides a Standard Form 86, Questionnaire for National Security Positions, to the individual for completion. The completed, but unsigned, SF-86 must be returned to the OVP Security Officer within one week. The form is reviewed for completeness, appropriate copies made and the individual signs all copies. The OVP Security Officer prepares a memorandum to the Executive Office of the President (EOP) Security Office and handcarries the SF-86 and transmittal memorandum to that office to begin the investigation process.

(3) FBI background investigations take approximately 3 months, on an average, to complete. The OVP Security Officer tracks the progress of the investigation through the EOP Security Office. When FBI investigations are completed, they are forwarded to the EOP Security Office for adjudication. After favorable adjudication, the EOP Security Office informs the OVP Security Officer via memorandum that the individual's FBI/DIS investigation has been completed (providing date) and favorably adjudicated.

(4) The OVP Security Officer discusses with the individual and his/her supervisor the official duties of the position. If the supervisor advises that the individual requires a security clearance, a recommendation is made by the OVP Security Officer to the OVP National Security Advisor and Chief of Staff that issuance of a security clearance be approved and at what level. Upon approval, a written request is made to the EOP Security Office by the OVP Security Officer to grant the appropriate level of clearance.

(5) The EOP Security Office grants a security clearance to an OVP staff member when authorized in writing by the OVP Security Officer. An appropriate security briefing is provided and a Classified Information Nondisclosure Agreement (SF-312, Attachment 1) is signed by the newly cleared individual and retained in the EOP Security Office. A copy of the SF-312 is forwarded to the OVP Security Officer and retained in the individual's OVP personnel security file.

(6) The OVP Security Officer provides the newly cleared individual with the Office of the Vice President Security Program Directive, reviewing with the individual those procedures pertinent to his/her official duties.

(7) Individuals requiring access to Sensitive Compartmented Information (SCI) are processed in accordance with guidelines established by the White House Counsel's office, National Security Council and the Central Intelligence Agency. No individuals in OVP are granted an SCI clearance without the approval of the Vice President's National Security Advisor and Chief of Staff. The requirement for this clearance will be determined as explained in (4) above. If required, a written request is made to the EOP Security Office by the OVP Security Officer to grant the appropriate SCI clearance.

(8) The EOP Security Office debriefs departing personnel and reminds them of their continuing responsibility to protect classified information to which they had access during the performance of their official duties. After debriefing, individuals sign the Security Debriefing Acknowledgement section of the SF-312 acknowledging his/her responsibilities and compliance with provisions of the Espionage Act, Title 18, United States Code (Attachment 2).

HANDLING AND STORING CLASSIFIED MATERIAL

(1) Each member of the staff who has custody or possession of classified information is responsible for providing the required degree of protection from unauthorized disclosure at all times.

(2) Classified information and material will only be disclosed to an individual after it has been determined that the individual possesses the required clearance and has a valid "need to know." Persons releasing the information shall be responsible in every case for determining the recipient's eligibility for access.

(3) Classified material will be stored only in accordance with the provisions of ISOO Directive Number 1, Subpart D, paragraph 2001.43 (Attachment 3). The filing of unclassified material in security containers is prohibited except where the unclassified material is an integral part of a file which contains classified material. If extenuating circumstances necessitate the use of a security container for storing only unclassified materials, the container will be marked with a sign stating "THIS CONTAINER IS NOT USED TO STORE CLASSIFIED MATERIAL" or "DO NOT STORE CLASSIFIED MATERIAL IN THIS CONTAINER."

(4) All classified documents to be destroyed should be brought to Room 290 for appropriate disposition.

BADGES

(1) The type of badge required by an individual is determined by the access needed to perform his/her official duties. Determination is made by the OVP Administrator and OVP Security Officer.

(2) Temporary badges are issued to individuals when all personnel security paperwork is submitted to the OVP Security Officer for appropriate processing.

(3) After favorable adjudication of an FBI/DIS investigation and attendance at appropriate security briefings, the individual is issued a permanent badge. Notification is made by the EOP Security Office to OVP's Security Officer who in turn informs the individual.
