

FOIA MARKER

This is not a textual record. This is used as an administrative marker by the William J. Clinton Presidential Library Staff.

---

Collection/Record Group: Clinton Presidential Records

Subgroup/Office of Origin: Clerk's Office

Series/Staff Member: Bill Files

Subseries:

---

OA/ID Number: 15575

FolderID:

---

Folder Title:

S1757 Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996

Stack:

S

Row:

41

Section:

1

Shelf:

9

Position:

3

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

August 6, 1996

MR. PRESIDENT:

Attached for your signature is S. 1757, a bill to extend the authorization for appropriations of four programs under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act.

That Act authorizes four grant programs serving individuals with developmental disabilities. The grants, administered by HHS, support (i) State developmental disabilities councils; (ii) State protection and advocacy programs; (iii) university-affiliated research, education and training; and (iv) projects of national significance.

The current authorization for these programs expires at the end of FY 1996. S. 1757 would extend the authorization for such sums as may be necessary for these programs through FY 1999.

The bill passed both Houses by unanimous consent. It has received all necessary clearances. I recommend that you sign it.

Todd Stern

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20503
August 6, 1996

APPROVED

AUG - 6 1996

99 AUG 6 11 01 AM '96

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Enrolled Bill S. 1757 - Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996
Sponsors - Sen. Frist (R) TN and four others

Last Day for Action

August 13, 1996 - Tuesday

Purpose

Extends the authorization of appropriations for four programs under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act through Fiscal Year 1999.

Agency Recommendations

Office of Management and Budget	Approval (Signing statement attached)
Department of Health and Human Services (HHS)	Approval (Signing statement attached)
Department of Justice (DOJ) National Council on Disabilities (NCD)	Approval
	Approval (Informally)

Discussion

The Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act authorizes four grant programs that serve individuals with developmental disabilities. The grants, which are administered by HHS, support: (1) State developmental disabilities councils; (2) State protection and advocacy programs; (3) university-affiliated research, education, training, and information activities; and (4) projects of national significance.

The current authorization of appropriations for these programs expires at the end of FY 1996. S. 1757 would extend the authorizations of "such sums as may be necessary" for these programs through FY 1999. The enrolled bill is consistent with draft legislation proposed by the Administration.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join HHS and DOJ in recommending approval of S. 1757, which passed the House and Senate by unanimous consent.

Attached to this memorandum is an edited version of a draft signing statement prepared by HHS. It notes that the programs reauthorized by this bill have "made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families." The signing statement has been reviewed and approved by DOJ, NCD, and White House Office of Policy Development.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jacob J. Lew". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "L".

Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director

Enclosures

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996". This legislation would extend for three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the twenty-five years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20503
August 6, 1996

96 AUG 6 10 12 AM '96

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Enrolled Bill S. 1757 - Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996
Sponsors - Sen. Frist (R) TN and four others

Last Day for Action

August 13, 1996 - Tuesday

Purpose

Extends the authorization of appropriations for four programs under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act through Fiscal Year 1999.

Agency Recommendations

Office of Management and Budget	Approval (Signing statement attached)
Department of Health and Human Services (HHS)	Approval (Signing statement attached)
Department of Justice (DOJ)	Approval
National Council on Disabilities (NCD)	Approval (Informally)

Discussion

The Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act authorizes four grant programs that serve individuals with developmental disabilities. The grants, which are administered by HHS, support: (1) State developmental disabilities councils; (2) State protection and advocacy programs; (3) university-affiliated research, education, training, and information activities; and (4) projects of national significance.

The current authorization of appropriations for these programs expires at the end of FY 1996. S. 1757 would extend the authorizations of "such sums as may be necessary" for these programs through FY 1999. The enrolled bill is consistent with draft legislation proposed by the Administration.

Conclusion and Recommendations

We join HHS and DOJ in recommending approval of S. 1757, which passed the House and Senate by unanimous consent.

Attached to this memorandum is an edited version of a draft signing statement prepared by HHS. It notes that the programs reauthorized by this bill have "made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families." The signing statement has been reviewed and approved by DOJ, NCD, and White House Office of Policy Development.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jacob J. Lew". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "L".

Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director

Enclosures

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996". This legislation would extend for three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the twenty-five years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.

ORIGINAL

OK
to A. P. H.
for file

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be considered beyond the pale by the American people.

Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to be a full, contributing citizen. I am pleased to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have meant so much to Americans with disabilities.

William S. Clinton

THE WHITE HOUSE,

August 6, 1996.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be considered beyond the pale by ~~all~~ <sup>the</sup> Americans ~~the~~ <sup>people</sup>.

Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to be a full, contributing citizen. I am pleased to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have meant so much to Americans with disabilities.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

August 6, 1996.

per Todd Swan
6:50 p.m.

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

August 6, 1996

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be considered beyond the pale by ~~all~~ Americans. people

Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to be a full contributing citizen. I am pleased to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have meant so much to Americans with disabilities.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON

THE WHITE HOUSE,
August 6, 1996.

# #

08/06/96

NOTE TO TODD STERN'S OFFICE

FROM: OMB

THE ATTACHED LETTER SHOULD ACCOMPANY ENROLLED BILL
MEMORANDUM S. 1757

THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20201

AUG 9 1996

The Honorable Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director, Office of Management
and Budget
Washington, DC 20503

Dear Mr. Lew:

This is in response to your request for a report on S. 1757, an enrolled bill entitled the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996."

S. 1757 would authorize appropriations through fiscal year 1999 for four programs affecting individuals with developmental disabilities: State councils; State protection and advocacy programs; university-affiliated research, education, training, and information activities; and projects of national significance.

The Administration has proposed extending these four programs through fiscal year 1999. The programs support a range of activities to help ensure that individuals with developmental disabilities may participate in the design of, and have access to, culturally competent services, supports, assistance, and opportunities that promote independence, productivity, and integration into the community. We believe that these programs are operating effectively in partnership with State governments, local communities, and the private sector to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

The enrolled bill was passed by both Houses of Congress without opposition.

We therefore recommend that the President sign the enrolled bill.

Sincerely,

Donna E. Shalala

Statement on Signing the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and
Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996

DRAFT

Today I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996" extending the Act for three years. First enacted twenty-five years ago, this legislation has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities, their families and that of our Nation as a whole. By investing a relatively small amount of Federal funding in the development and operation of Developmental Disabilities Councils, Protection and Advocacy and University Affiliated Programs in each State through this legislation, we have seen that as a country we can truly accomplish a lot with a little.

When President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs and others first conceived of these kinds of programs, the primary emphasis was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to access the support they need to live typical lives of their own choosing and direction. The Developmental Disabilities program emphasizes fundamental system change, including legal advocacy and capacity building, at the state and local levels and continues to spur progress and opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key State and Federal legislation regarding educational access, barrier free design and employment, and helped to open doors which had been slammed shut for decades. While it was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to our community's schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth; today these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America, and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well.

U. S. Department of Justice

Office of Legislative Affairs

---

Office of the Assistant Attorney General

Washington, D.C. 20530

August 2, 1996

The Honorable Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director
Office of Management and Budget
Washington, D.C. 20503

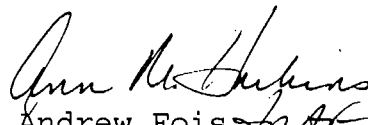

Dear Mr. Lew:

This is in response to your request for the written views and recommendation of the Department of Justice on S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996," which currently is before the President for signature. We support the measure and recommend that the President sign the bill.

S. 1757 extends certain authorizations under the Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act through fiscal year 1999. The underlying Act addresses the special concerns and needs of over 3 million Americans affected by developmental disabilities. Conditions such as cerebral palsy, mental retardation, epilepsy, and autism manifest themselves early in life, result in varying degrees of disability, and affect both individuals and families for many years. Serving these people effectively requires cooperation among the Federal government and States, local communities, and the private sector. The goals of the Act are to ensure that affected individuals and their families have access to appropriate services; that programs promote productivity, independence, and appropriate integration into the community; and that affected people and families have an opportunity to participate in program development and implementation. This bill simply extends the authorization of four effective programs that provide for research, training and education, and a variety of social and support services.

Thank you for the opportunity to present our views on S. 1757.

Sincerely,

Andrew Foiss AF
Assistant Attorney General

August 6, 1996

96 AUG 7 AID: 07

NOTE:

Attached is the original HHS letter on enrolled bill S. 1757. Thanks.

Dianne Wells, LRD

THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20201

AUG 6 1996

The Honorable Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director, Office of Management
and Budget
Washington, DC 20503

Dear Mr. Lew:

This is in response to your request for a report on S. 1757, an enrolled bill entitled the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996."

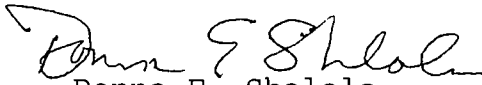

S. 1757 would authorize appropriations through fiscal year 1999 for four programs affecting individuals with developmental disabilities: State councils; State protection and advocacy programs; university-affiliated research, education, training, and information activities; and projects of national significance.

The Administration has proposed extending these four programs through fiscal year 1999. The programs support a range of activities to help ensure that individuals with developmental disabilities may participate in the design of, and have access to, culturally competent services, supports, assistance, and opportunities that promote independence, productivity, and integration into the community. We believe that these programs are operating effectively in partnership with State governments, local communities, and the private sector to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

The enrolled bill was passed by both Houses of Congress without opposition.

We therefore recommend that the President sign the enrolled bill.

Sincerely,

Donna E. Shalala

Statement on Signing the
Developmental Disabilities Assistance and
Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996

DRAFT

Today I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996" extending the Act for three years. First enacted twenty-five years ago, this legislation has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities, their families and that of our Nation as a whole. By investing a relatively small amount of Federal funding in the development and operation of Developmental Disabilities Councils, Protection and Advocacy and University Affiliated Programs in each State through this legislation, we have seen that as a country we can truly accomplish a lot with a little.

When President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs and others first conceived of these kinds of programs, the primary emphasis was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to access the support they need to live typical lives of their own choosing and direction. The Developmental Disabilities program emphasizes fundamental system change, including legal advocacy and capacity building, at the state and local levels and continues to spur progress and opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key State and Federal legislation regarding educational access, barrier free design and employment, and helped to open doors which had been slammed shut for decades. While it was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to our community's schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth; today these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America, and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for ~~individuals~~<sup>people</sup> with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be ~~unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and~~ considered ~~political persuasion.~~ beyond the pale by all Americans.

this way?
~~In this way,~~ Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine ~~both~~ what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to contribute ~~to be a full, first class United States citizen, as well.~~ I am pleased proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have ~~assisted them in their efforts.~~ *want so much to America

w/ disabilities.*

THE WHITE HOUSE,

OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGETROUTE SLIP

TO: Tim Saunders

FROM: Janet Forsgren

DATE: 8/5/96

---

REMARKS

Attached is an advance copy of the signing statement on S. 1757, Developmental Disabilities Amendments. We plan to forward the final draft signing statement, along with the enrolled bill memorandum, to Todd Stern tomorrow (Tuesday) morning.

ADVANCE FROM OMB
8-5-96 (7:12P)

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996".<sup>3</sup> This legislation would extend for ~~three~~ years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the ~~twenty-five~~<sup>25</sup> years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth.

Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.

music vises

from See to...

5/27

?!
what way?

THE WHITE HOUSE,

all page numbers top & centered.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996". This legislation would extend for three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the twenty-five years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

ADVANCE FROM OMB
8-5-96 (7:12p)

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Do & Hold
per Bill 8/5/96
7:55 pm
of

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996". This legislation would extend for <sup>3</sup>three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

✓ During the <sup>25</sup>twenty-five years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

7 When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in <sup>Particularly? Specifically</sup> family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

7
Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996"<sup>3</sup>. This legislation would extend for three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the <sup>25</sup>~~twenty-five~~ years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. <sup>Particularly? Specifically</sup> The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE CLERK
TRACKING SHEET FOR PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

TITLE: S. 1757 - Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996

TYPE DOCUMENT:

PROCLAMATION	LETTER(S)
EXECUTIVE ORDER	MESSAGE TO THE CONGRESS/SENATE
MEMORANDUM	STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT
DECISION MEMORANDUM	SIGNING STATEMENT
DETERMINATION (numbered)	TREATY/CONVENTION/AGREEMENT, etc.

OTHER: _____

RECEIVED: (Advance: 8/15/96 Time: 7:12 a.m. (p.m.)
In final: 1/96 Time: _____ a.m./p.m.

SENT TO CORRESPONDENCE FOR TYPING IN FINAL:

(Advance: 8/15/96 Time: 7:25 a.m. (p.m.) HOLD
In final: 1/96 Time: _____ a.m./p.m.

TO TODD STERN'S OFFICE:

(For staffing: _____ Time: _____ a.m./p.m.)
In final: 8/16/96 Time: 6:45 a.m. (p.m.)

*INFO, INCLUDING STENCIL AND DISC, TO PRESS OFFICE:

Date: 8/16/96 Time: 7 a.m. (p.m.)
POSTED: 1/96 Time: _____ a.m./p.m.

NOTIFICATIONS:

_____ (Person/time)	NSC, when appropriate -- Desk Officer; W.H. Situation Room -- x6-9425.
_____ (Person/time)	*NSC documents -- call NSC Ex.Sec. for OK for W.H. Press Releases -- x6-9461.
_____ (Person/time)	Janet Foregren OMB x 5-3925 (Other)
_____ (Person/time)	_____ (Other)
_____ (Person/time)	_____ (Other)

OTHER INFORMATION:

8-5-96
8 7:50 p Copy of OMB draft to
Todd S. per his request. W.H.C.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

August 6, 1996

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be considered beyond the pale by the American people.

Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to be a full, contributing citizen. I am pleased to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have meant so much to Americans with disabilities.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON

THE WHITE HOUSE,
August 6, 1996.

# #

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

August 6, 1996

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996." This legislation would extend for 3 years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the 25 years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, particularly in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design, and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for people with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but would be considered beyond the pale by the American people.

Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine what it means to have a disability in America and what it means to be a full, contributing citizen. I am pleased to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have meant so much to Americans with disabilities.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON

THE WHITE HOUSE,
August 6, 1996.

# #

8-7-96

H<sub>2</sub>-

Can these be sent to RM?/Clerk?

c,

—

WHITE HOUSE STAFFING MEMORANDUM

DATE: Aug. 5 96 ACTION/CONCURRENCE/COMMENT DUE BY: Aug. 6 noon

SUBJECT: Developmental Disabilities Bill HR 1757
Signing Statement

	ACTION	FYI		ACTION	FYI
VICE PRESIDENT	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	McCURRY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
PANETTA	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	McGINTY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
McLARTY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	NASH	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
ICKES	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	QUINN	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
LIEBERMAN	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	RASCO	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
LEW	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	REED	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
BAER	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	SOSNIK	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
CURRY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	STEPHANOPOULOS	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
EMANUEL	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	STIGLITZ	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
GIBBONS	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	STRETT	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
HALE	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	TYSON	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
HERMAN	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	HAWLEY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
HIGGINS	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	WILLIAMS	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
HILLEY	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Fortuna	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
KLAIN	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Poiry	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
LAKE	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	Waldman	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
LINDSEY	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	_____	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

REMARKS: _____

RESPONSE: _____

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today, I am pleased to sign into law S. 1757, the "Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act Amendments of 1996". This legislation would extend for three years the authorization of appropriations under the Act.

During the twenty-five years since its enactment, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act has made a crucial difference in the lives and futures of Americans with developmental disabilities and their families. Through this Act, Federal funds support the development and operation of developmental disabilities councils, protection and advocacy activities, university-affiliated programs, and projects of national significance. This crucial investment has provided the structure to assist people with developmental disabilities to reach their maximum potential.

When first conceived by President Kennedy, Dr. Elizabeth Boggs, and others, the primary emphasis of developmental disabilities programs was on access to institutional facilities. Today, the focus is on helping people to obtain the support they need to make choices about how to live, including in family or community settings. The developmental disabilities programs emphasize fundamental system change, including legal services and advocacy and capacity building at the State and local levels. They also continue to spur progress and create opportunities in the everyday lives of children and adults with developmental and other significant disabilities in ways unimaginable a generation ago.

Beginning in the mid-seventies, individuals with disabilities and their families began to work for, and gain passage of, key Federal and State legislation regarding educational access, barrier-free design and employment. The resulting legislation has helped to open doors that had been slammed shut for decades. It was once common for individuals with disabilities to be denied access to community schools, swimming pools, banks, restaurants, and even to the voting booth. Today, these actions are not only illegal, but unconscionable to Americans of every race, region, and political persuasion.

In this way, Americans with disabilities are helping to redefine both what it means to have a disability in America and to be a full, first class United States citizen as well. I am proud to support continuation of the developmental disabilities programs that have assisted them in their efforts.