DAOs cannot expect that interviews with many persons with disabilities will proceed or be conducted in the same way as with applicants without disabilities. Each interview will be unique and each applicant's capabilities regarding the oath requirements will need to be assessed on a case-by-case basis. Although a disabled applicant need not understand every word of the oath, the DAO must be assured that an applicant has an understanding of the nature of the oath. An inquiry by a DAO might include, for example, an attempt to determine whether the applicant understands that he or she is becoming a United States citizen, is giving up his or her prior citizenship, and [CRT proposes to delete "personally and"] voluntarily agrees to this change of his or her status.

If the DAO concludes that an applicant does not understand the nature of the oath, that applicant cannot be naturalized under current statute and regulations. A denial of an application for naturalization based on the inability to understand the nature of the oath should be initially discussed with the DAOs supervisor, and the written denial must cite the failure to meet the statutory requirements of the Act at section 337. Offices are reminded of the extreme sensitivity of this issue with the public. As previously noted, the Service is seeking further legal guidance on the issue of the oath requirement, and any legal analysis or discoveries which might change this policy will be forwarded to all adjudicating field offices as quickly as possible.

Section 312 Disability Naturalization
Adjudications: Supplemental Policy
Guidance for Field Offices

DRAFT

All Regional Directors
All District Directors (except foreign)
All Officers-in-Charge (except foreign)
All Service Center Directors

Office of Examinations

This memorandum and accompanying attachments provide supplemental policy guidance on section 312 exceptions for persons with disabilities to all Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) field offices currently adjudicating applications for naturalization.

A 1994 technical amendment to the Immigration and Nationality Act extended an exception to disabled applicants regarding all the section 312 requirements. The attached final rule, to be published in the Federal Register on February 4, outlines the background history of the amendment, the efforts of INS to implement this new policy, and the new regulatory text.

Effective upon publication in the Federal Register, offices shall immediately institute the policy outlined in the final regulation and in this document. Previously distributed drafts of this document and the previously distributed field guidance, dated November 21, 1995, used as a basis for adjudicating section 312 disability exception requests shall no longer be used. In order to ensure consistency, individuals with pending cases shall be required to submit the new form N-648 Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions, and shall have the principles outlined in this document applied to their final adjudication. It is expected that the policy and guidelines outlined in the attachments will be followed consistently by all adjudications officers. In addition, offices should conduct community outreach and education on this regulation as discussed in the attached policy guidance.

Changes to 8 CFR §§ 312.1 and 312.2 reflect our efforts to make the regulation consistent with the amended statute. In particular:

- The wording of § 312.1(b)(3) has been changed, with new language on disability-based exceptions found on page 32 of the attached final rule. Offices should note that previous wording directly referencing blindness and deafness have been removed.
- The current §312.2(b) has been redesignated as paragraph (c) and a new paragraph has been added as paragraph (b)(1) to provide a disability-based exception to the civics requirements (page 33 of the attached rule).
- A new paragraph at 8 CFR 312.2(b)(2) has been added to explain the medical certification process for a disability exception.

The Service is committed to ensuring that the implementation of the procedures outlined in this document are followed. Since a primary mission of the INS is to provide service, applicants with a legitimate claim to the disability exception provisions should be facilitated through the adjudication process. At the same time, Service officers must also utilize credible approaches to deterring fraud and abuse that are applicable to all adjudications for benefits under the Act and must remember that what may seem like fraud may in reality be a lack of information about the naturalization process on the part of certain individuals with disabilities. Service officers must also continue to ensure that applicants who are granted section 312 exceptions continue to meet all other applicable eligibility requirements for naturalization.

Since many disability-related cases will be emotionally charged, all INS offices and adjudication officers are directed to use compassion, discretion, and sensitivity in adjudicating any request for a section 312 disability-based exception. The same level of discretion and sensitivity INS officers apply to orphan adoption cases should be replicated in all section 312 disability exception cases.

Many aspects of this regulatory revision are new and therefore we fully expect field offices to have many questions. We realize that all questions will not be answered within this document. However, we plan to distribute regular updated supplemental policy guidance memoranda for policy and procedural issues not answered by this document. Headquarters will also depend on all field offices to bring unique cases and situations to our attention in order that the experience may be shared with other offices.

Questions about the policy outlined in the attachment to this memorandum and in the Federal Register final rule may be directed to Staff Officer Craig Howie, HQ Naturalization Division. Questions regarding the new form, the new training module, or quality assurance compliance may be directed to Staff Officer Jody Marten, HQ Naturalization Division. Both officers may be reached on 202/514-5014.

§312 DISABILITY ADJUDICATIONS:
SUPPLEMENTAL FIELD POLICY GUIDANCE*I. Introduction

The Immigration and Naturalization Technical Corrections Act of 1994 amended section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act) to afford naturalization applicants with physical or developmental disabilities or mental impairments an exception to English language proficiency and United States history and government (civics) knowledge requirements. This amendment augmented the pre-existing exception that persons with disabilities were afforded regarding only the English proficiency requirements of section 312.

On November 21, 1995 the INS issued preliminary guidance to all naturalization adjudicating offices on the section 312 disability exceptions. On August 28, 1996, a proposed rule was published in the Federal Register, proposing to amend the Service regulations at part 312 to accommodate these new disability exceptions. During the Fall of 1996, the Service reviewed and digested the 228 comments that were submitted by the public pursuant to the proposed rule. The resulting final rule, scheduled to be published in the Federal Register on February 4, 1997, contains substantial changes to the provisions of the proposed rule and the preliminary guidance. In particular:

- Direct reference to the three disability categories in the regulatory language of 8 CFR 312 has been replaced with language complementing the disability terminology used by the Social Security Administration (SSA) in their regulations (i.e., "medically determinable physical or mental impairment or combination of impairments").
- Creation of a new public use form, N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions, to be used by any applicant requesting an exception to the section 312 requirements based on a disability. A copy of the form is included with this document. Offices are advised to accept photocopies of the N-648 until the form has been placed in full circulation following printing by the Government Printing Office (a process which could take more than six months).
- The elimination of the proposed use of the civil surgeons to make the disability determinations. In the place of the civil surgeons, the INS will allow only licensed medical doctors or licensed clinical psychologists to complete the N-648.

As noted in the accompanying documentation, these exceptions for persons with disabilities are not blanket exemptions from the requirements mandated by section 312. With accommodations or modifications, certain applicants with disabilities will be able to meet the section 312 requirements, just as they are accommodated today in many instances. To institute a policy of blanket exemptions would play into the stereotypical concept that persons with disabilities are not able to participate in mainstream activities. Such a policy would be contrary to the provisions of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 with which all federal government agencies must comply. Therefore, all adjudications for a section 312 exception based on a disability will be made on a case by case basis. It would be discriminatory to formulate policy which states that everyone with a particular disability is exempted from the section 312 requirements when some individuals with the disability could well take part in the testing requirements imposed by section 312 with reasonable accommodations or modifications.

All offices must note that the provisions contained within the documents in this package are effective immediately upon publication of the final rule in the Federal Register and must be followed without exception. Due to the substantial changes the Service has made to the provisions of the proposed rule, the public is being allowed a 60 day comment period on the final rule. This will not affect the authority or responsibility of all local offices to proceed with these adjudications immediately and without delay. Any changes that may result from further public comments will be issued in writing to all field office.

Service offices adjudicating naturalization applicants should make note of the changes to the regulatory language of 8 CFR part 312. Of particular concern to officers should be these changes:

- The wording of § 312.1(b)(3) has been changed, with new language on disability-based exceptions found on page 32 of the attached final rule. Offices should note that previous wording directly referencing blindness and deafness have been removed.
- The current §312.2(b) has been redesignated as paragraph (c) and a new paragraph has been added as paragraph (b)(1) to provide a disability-based exception to the civics requirements (page 33 of the attached rule).
- A new paragraph at 8 CFR 312.2(b)(2) has been added to explain the medical certification process for a disability exception and an explanation of the new form, N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions.

Adjudication officers receiving the special two-day training at HQ during the week of January 27, 1997, should be the officers initially adjudicating disability-based applications for section 312 exceptions. This corps of officers will be responsible for ensuring the complete dissemination of the information and policies contained in this document to additional adjudications officers within each naturalization adjudicating office and shall ensure that these officers are familiar with these policies prior to the adjudication of disability-related exception cases. These trained officers should also work closely with the district director or officer-in-charge to ensure that full information about this regulation is provided to information officers, congressional, and public affairs officers and others within their office who will be answering questions from the public.

Each office is responsible for conducting local community outreach to inform and educate organizations that assist immigrants, persons with disabilities, the elderly, and others to whom this regulation may apply. Representatives of medical and psychological organizations and government agencies such as SSA and Health and Human Services (HHS) should be included in this outreach. Each office should endeavor to educate members of the medical and immigrant assistance communities about the naturalization process and the requirements of this regulation as soon as possible following publication in the Federal Register. Such information dissemination will improve the ability of the assistance groups and medical professionals to accurately apply the disability-based exceptions in appropriate cases and will help deter abuse of the process.

All offices are reminded of the intense public scrutiny the INS will be placed under as this program moves forward. For many officers, this will be their first experience adjudicating cases involving applicants with disabilities. Officers are therefore reminded to always use discretion and compassion in making adjudications involving persons with disabilities. The same level of compassion and discretion that has in the past been applied to cases involving orphan adoptions is to be applied to any section 312 disability exception request.

II. Disability Definitions, Medical Professionals Authorized to Complete New Form N-648 & Adjudicating Currently Pending Cases

A. Disability Definitions

In the preliminary field guidance (issued in November, 1995) and the proposed rule, the Service offered exact definitions of the terms physical disability, developmental disability, and mental impairment designed to reflect the amendment Congress made to section 312 of the Act. Parts of the definitions were also based on the limited Congressional guidance, contained in the one committee report issued that related to the 1994 Technical Corrections Act.

As officers will note in reviewing the comments portion of the attached final rule, many commenters had concerns about the definitions we proposed. After reviewing the public comments, and after consultations with the SSA, the Service has chosen to drop the proposed definitions and rely on language that comports to the definitions used by the SSA in their regulations. As such, the wording of 8 CFR at part 312.1(b)(3) has been changed and at 312.2(b)(1) has been amended to refer to medically determinable physical or mental impairment(s), that already has or is expected to last at least 12 months. (See pages 32-33 of the attached final rule.) The phrase "medically determinable physical or mental impairments" encompasses the three disability categories noted in section 312 of the Act and refers to an impairment that has resulted from anatomical, physiological or psychological abnormalities. Using medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques, these abnormalities can be shown to so limit or impair the individual as to render him or her unable to learn and demonstrate the information required by section 312. In addition, language is included in the regulation that prevents individuals whose disability resulted from the illegal use of drugs from being granted these exceptions. This was a particular concern of Congress.

B. Medical Professionals Authorized to Complete New Form N-648

Initially, the Service proposed using the corps of authorized civil surgeons to perform the disability determinations for naturalization applicants requesting an exception to the section 312 requirements. After long discussions with SSA, HHS, and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the decision was made not to rely on the civil surgeons to perform this function. The CDC noted that the majority of civil surgeons have expertise centered around diagnosing communicable diseases, not in making complex disability determinations. Therefore, the Service is amending 8 CFR part 312.2

with the addition of a new paragraph (b)(2), which outlines the medical professionals authorized to make the disability determinations and complete the new public use form N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions (copy attached). A complete discussion of the rationale behind creating a new public use form is found in the Discussion of Comments section of the attached final rule.

Upon publication of the final rule, only licensed medical doctors or licensed clinical psychologists will be authorized to make a disability determination, utilizing the new form N-648. The term licensed medical doctor includes doctors who are specialists, such as board certified psychiatrists. In addition, any civil surgeon meeting these criteria will be able to make a disability determination, but based on the surgeon's expertise with a particular disability, not on the fact that he or she is a civil surgeon. These licensed medical professionals will be required to certify on the new form that their medical specialty, experience, and other qualifications permit them to make such a complex disability assessment. In addition, the medical doctor or licensed clinical psychologist must certify under penalty of perjury that his or her statements are true and correct. Service officers should note that medical professionals not authorized to complete the N-648 include nurse or homoeopathic practitioners, physician assistants, and medical center or nursing center administrators who are not licensed medical doctors with disability experience. As is the case with virtually all Service adjudications, the burden is on the applicant and the licensed medical professional to ensure that the N-648 is completed correctly and that the medical professional is authorized to make the certification.

District Adjudication Officers (DAOs) are reminded that it is the responsibility of the medical professional to make the medical determination. This responsibility is clearly delineated on form N-648 in questions three and six. Officers are not medical professionals, advocates, or social workers and should not place themselves in the position of attempting to second guess the medical evaluation of the qualified medical professional certifying a disability exception on the N-648. Nor should the officers place themselves in the position of being a medical professional and thereby denying the existence of a disability. However, DAOs should not hesitate to talk with the medical doctor or clinical psychologist, after consultation with the DAO's supervisor, if the officer has a question about the MD's or psychologist's type of certification or questions about the disability determination. This is particularly the case if the terminology is very general and does not explain how the particular medical condition prevents the applicants from learning the requirements of section 312 of the Act. For example, an N-648 noting the disability as only hypertension would need further explanation. The officer needs to know how or why hypertension prevents the applicant from learning the section 312 requirements. Procedures for obtaining a second medical opinion, where deemed necessary, are discussed below.

Beyond reviewing the N-648, officers may consult with officials of other federal or state agencies if the applicant has been declared disabled by another agency, and the DAO believes that such a consultation would assist with the disability determination process. DAOs also have the authority to request additional medical records on the applicant, but only in instances where there is a well founded belief that such documentation would allow the DAO to accurately adjudicate the request for a section 312 exception. (See Section III, Referrals for an Additional Medical Opinion.)

Such a request must be documented in the record, outlining the reasons for the request and the response of the medical professional holding said records. Officers should also take all necessary precautions to maintain the confidentiality of sensitive medical records.

All officers should familiarize themselves with the new form N-648 prior to adjudicating any disability-related case. The new language of 8 CFR 312.2 (b)(2) notes that the N-648 must be submitted as a supplement to the N-400 application when the N-400 is filed. (This will allow offices to pre-screen disability exception requests, to make any necessary modification in accessibility, or to consider the option of going on-site for the interview.) However, since the policy and form are new, offices for the foreseeable future should accept the N-648 if the applicant brings the form to the naturalization interview. Offices should accept legible photocopies of the form.

C. Adjudicating Currently Pending Cases

For offices that have cases pending related to a request for a disability exception, the final adjudication should be made based on the policy and guidelines noted in the final rule. In order to ensure consistency, all applicants with a currently pending request for an exception based on the preliminary guidance will be required to have the new form N-648 completed and submitted to the Service for review. Offices will need to mail applicants with pending requests for a disability exception, based on preliminary field guidance, an N-648 as soon as possible. This policy will avoid having two standards applied to the adjudication.

III. Requirements for Additional Evidence or Second Certification

In section 312.2(b)(2) of the final regulation, it is noted that the Service reserves the right to require an applicant to submit additional evidence supporting the N-648 or to submit a second N-648 from another authorized professional. Offices are instructed to use extreme restraint in exercising these options, and should only do so when doubts remain after the steps outlined below have been completed. DAOs should note that the burden is on the applicant to pay for any second certification, and should take this fact into consideration. Officers should always remember that they are responsible for determining the eligibility for naturalization, but not for making or rendering a medical determination.

Any officer who determines a second medical certification to be necessary must comply with the following procedures:

1. If questions exist regarding the disability or the actual completion of the N-648, the DAO should attempt to reach the medical professional for answers to the DAO's questions. If the officer's questions are answered by this contact, the referral will not be deemed necessary, and the adjudication of the naturalization case should continue.
2. If questions exist regarding the medical professional making the determination, the DAO should attempt to verify the license number noted on the N-648 by contacting the appropriate state medical or clinical psychologist licensing agency. An answer

- from this agency will provide evidence regarding the validity of the medical professional's license, or might expose the existence of a fraudulent practitioner. Evidence of fraud in this instance should be handled in the standard way the officer reports similar discoveries of document fraud. Documented evidence of an applicant knowingly using the services of a fraudulent medical source shall result in the exception and application for naturalization being denied.
3. If the applicant has been declared disabled by another state or federal government agency, the DAO should attempt to make contact with this agency to see if any information can be gained to clarify the questions the officer has about the certification.
 4. If, after consultation with the medical certification provider, it is determined that a production of supplemental records from the applicant's medical file would satisfy the concerns of the DAO, such records shall be requested and reviewed. If these documents resolve all outstanding questions, the adjudication of the case shall continue without a second referral. Officers must take all precautions to preserve the privacy and confidentiality of private medical documents.
 5. If any of these procedures fail to satisfy the DAO as to the accuracy of the determination or of the medical professional, the DAO shall consult with his or her supervisor and obtain authority to require the applicant to obtain a second disability certification.
 6. Upon approval, the applicant shall be given another N-648, with instructions to have the form completed by an authorized medical professional other than the professional that completed the first certification. Until definitive guidance can be issued regarding who should perform these referrals, offices should contact the local medical board or society for information and contact points on referrals. In particular, offices should not refer applicants to commercial medical referral services listed in telephone directories or to any specific medical provider.
 7. Supervisory consultation and approval must be obtained and noted in the record for all the steps and procedures outlined above.

An example of a situation where the DAO might feel compelled to require a second certification would be in a case where the medical evaluation, as noted on the N-648, is so vague that the officer cannot clearly discern what is the actual disability or combination of disabling impairments, how the impairments prevent the applicant from learning the section 312 information, and the efforts to obtain clarification from the medical profession making the certification fail. It is incumbent upon the DAO to keep an accurate account of these actions and contacts in the alien file. All offices should also establish a liaison with the local or state medical board or society. This liaison effort should help the office and officer when questions arise over particular medical professionals and the professional's certifications on the N-648.

As noted, HQ Naturalization and Field Operations are currently working on a standardized referral policy, and will notify field offices as soon as the policy is finalized.

IV. Accommodations & Modifications

All federal agencies are mandated to promote and adhere to policies that are non-discriminatory to persons with disabilities in the administration of all programs. The Rehabilitation Act of 1973 spells out these requirements. (The non-discriminatory provisions of the Rehab. Act served as the basis for the Americans with Disabilities Act, which bars discrimination against persons with disabilities in non-government areas.) All INS offices are required to adhere to the principles of the Rehabilitation Act.

The Rehabilitation Act requires the Service to make reasonable accommodations and modifications to program administration to accommodate the needs of persons with disabilities. All offices currently do make accommodations and modifications on a daily basis. For example, every time an office sends a DAO on-site to a nursing facility or hospital to interview or to administer the oath of allegiance, an accommodation and modification has been made.

Offices are reminded that making accommodations and modifications means that not all persons with disabilities will be exempted from the section 312 naturalization requirements. The final rule notes that only disabled persons whose disabilities are so severe that the person is rendered unable to participate in the testing procedures for naturalization will be granted an exception from the testing requirements. Certain individuals will be able to meet the requirements section 312 imposes, but with distinct modifications or accommodations. For example:

- Blind individuals may be supplied with materials in Braille, large print, or questioned orally, and perhaps in their native language, on section 312 civics questions.
- Hearing impaired persons may be given a written test on civics questions.
- A person with a learning disability might be given additional time to complete a written civics test.
- Persons with severe physical disabilities could respond to questions in a yes or no format, or through nodding their heads or blinking their eyes yes or no to particular questions.

This list is not all inclusive. Local offices should be creative in constructing additional accommodations and modifications to the testing procedures required by section 312. In many cases, offices currently have many modifications and accommodations already in use. Offices are encouraged to share these concepts with other offices and with their regional Examinations contact point. However, offices and DAOs should remember that disabled applicants attempting to gain an exception to the section 312 requirements are doing so because they view their particular disability as so impairing that they cannot meet the English and civics requirements.

Aside from the modifications that can be made to the actual test administration, offices must give consideration to modifications of the actual interview. As noted above, any time a DAO goes on-site to conduct a naturalization interview or to administer the oath of allegiance, a considerable modification has been made. Another modification that offices need to consider is allowing a disabled naturalization applicant's family member to accompany the applicant during the interview. For most adjudications, this suggestion is not practical. However, for many disabled applicants, the presence of a family member in the interview could have a distinct calming effect. DAOs must always remember that the naturalization interview can be a stressful experience for the non-disabled applicant. The stress factor of the interview for a person with disabilities could be even greater. Offices must be willing to make this particular accommodation and modification on a case by case basis. The family member, at the discretion of the Service, can in some instances assist the interview by acting as the approved English language interpreter for those applicants whose disability prevents them from fulfilling the English proficiency requirements of section 312.

DAOs are reminded again of the need for the utmost compassion discretion, and sensitivity in adjudicating cases where the applicant requests an exception to the section 312 requirements. Making acceptable accommodations or modifications to the testing and interview environment is our mandate under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

V. Oath of Allegiance

vs Interview

Why say? As offices are aware, Congress amended the Act at section 312 to provide persons with disabilities an exception to only the English and civics requirements. Therefore, many feel that while disabled applicants are being offered an exception to the requirements of section 312, we are in fact holding these same applicants to a double standard by requiring them to take the oath of allegiance required by section 337 of the Act. To hold these applicants to the requirements of section 337 requires them to have a limited knowledge of civics, some have stated. fe?

18. As stated in the introduction to the regulation, Congress did not address the oath requirement when it passed the section 312 amendment concerning disabilities. Any change in this policy, whether from newly discovered court precedent or statutory amendment, will be related to all field offices as quickly as possible. Until such a time, the oath is still required for all applicants.

As noted in section IV of this document, offices are required to make reasonable accommodations and modifications to programs in order to accommodate the needs of disabled persons. The Service currently fulfills many of these accommodations via the provisions of section 337.3 of 8 CFR. While these provisions do not allow or authorize the waiving of the oath, offices are encouraged to becoming more accommodating in granting requests for expedited administration of the oath. However, applicants must be reminded that the provision of 8 CFR 337.3 only apply to the administration of the oath. No one granted an expedited administration of the oath under 8 CFR 337.3 has been waived this requirement, only the statutory requirement that the applicant participate in a public ceremony. Offices currently operating under an order of exclusive jurisdiction should forge a liaison with the local judiciary to facilitate requests for special ceremonies or for the authority to administratively administer the oath in 8 CFR 337.3 cases.

While it is not the role of the DAO to make a technical medical determination as to the existence of a disability, it is the responsibility of the DAO to be satisfied that the disabled naturalization applicant understands the actions he or she is taking, and to some extent the actual provisions of the oath. The Service believes that many disabled applicants, while excepted from the civics knowledge requirements of section 312, will be able to have a limited understanding of the concepts of the oath, and therefore will be eligible to complete the naturalization process. For officers making these disability-based adjudications, this will most likely be the most difficult aspect of the adjudication.

As noted in the previous section of this document, family members may assist the DAO in understanding the responses of certain disabled applicants. However, prior to the start of the interview, the DAO should attempt to clarify and understand from the family member any physical motions or signals that might be used as an answer to a question asked during the interview.

DAOs cannot expect that interviews with many persons with disabilities will proceed or be conducted in the same way as with applicants without disabilities. Each interview will be unique and each applicant's capabilities regarding the oath requirements will need to be assessed on a case by case basis. However, the DAO conducting the interview with a disabled applicant must be assured that the core qualifications specified by the oath are in some form understood by the applicant. These core qualifications are that the applicant:

- Understands that he or she is becoming a United States citizen.
- Understands that he or she is renouncing his or her allegiance to their prior nation of citizenship.
- Personally and voluntarily agrees to this change in his or her status.

The DAO must be assured that the disabled applicant has some conceptual level of understanding of these core qualifications, but not necessarily every exact word of the oath.

Applicants who cannot satisfy the DAO of an understanding of these aforementioned qualifications, whether disabled and entitled to an exception to the section 312 requirements or non-disabled, cannot be naturalized under the current structure of the Act. A denial of an application for naturalization based on the inability to understand the concepts of the oath should be initially discussed with the DAOs supervisor, and the written denial must cite the failure to meet the statutory requirements of the Act at section 337. Offices are reminded of the extreme sensitivity of this issue with the public. As previously noted, any legal analysis or discoveries which might change this policy will be forwarded to all adjudicating field offices as quickly as possible.

Offices should note that the Service is seeking further legal guidance on the issue of the oath requirement. Offices should not deny any disability-related case, based on the applicant's inability to take the oath, until this further legal guidance is provided to all field offices.

VI. Denials & Appeals

In the discussion of comments of the final rule, many commenters suggested that the Service

establish a special appeal procedure for applicants with disabilities in the event their applications for naturalization are denied. The Service determined that the current procedure for appealing a naturalization denial, as specified in the Act in section 336, is adequate and should not be altered. This decision is based on the fact that the acceptance or denial of an N-648 is not a separate adjudication, but a part of the overall N-400 adjudicative process.

As is specified in 8 CFR 336.2, any applicant whose application for naturalization is denied may submit additional independent evidence, including medical evidence, prior to the reconsideration hearing. This hearing should be conducted by a SAO. Offices are reminded that in the vast majority of cases involving disability-related denials, the denial will be based on the fact that the individual cannot meet one or more of the statutory requirements of naturalization, not the fact that the Service does or does not believe that a disability exists which prevents the applicant from fulfilling the requirements of section 312. }

Offices should note that the Service has requested additional public comments on alternative appeal procedures for applicants with disabilities. Field offices will be notified of any change in the current appeal procedures. However, any such change will necessitate a separate regulatory change to the provision of 8 CFR 336, which would require an initial proposed rule and digest of public comments.

VII. Training, Quality Control & Quality Assurance

The need for supplemental training for DAOs responsible for adjudicating disability-related naturalization cases cannot be over emphasized. Adjudicators who receive the special disability training the week of January 27, 1997, are designated to be the DAO in his or her office to adjudicate disability exception cases for the first 60 days after the publication of the final rule in the Federal Register. These DAOs are also to share the concepts and materials gained at this session with fellow officers in their respective district. Service HQ is currently working to formulate a training module which will be part of all basic training given to entry level adjudicators. In addition, local offices should reinforce to all DAOs the responsibility each officer has in complying with the non-discriminatory provisions of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Quality Control and Assurance must also play a prominent role in these adjudications. As noted in the Commissioner's memorandum of November 29, 1996 (Naturalization Quality Procedures), each office adjudicating applications for naturalization must ensure that quality assurance controls are in place at each step of the adjudicative process. In that these adjudications will be the first large-scale dealings some offices may have with applicants with disabilities, public scrutiny will be placed upon local offices. We must ensure that these applications are adjudicated fairly and correctly. Following the procedures previously outlined in this document will meet many quality control goals.

In compliance with the November 29, 1996 Quality Procedures Memorandum, supervisory review is necessary for cases with "applicants with complex cases involving other statutory eligibility determinations." It should be noted that with disability exception cases, supervisors must review and approve all adjudicating officers' requests for a second medical certification, in addition to conducting a review of the case after the adjudicating officer has made a final decision on the entire application. Since not all supervisors have been made available for disability regulation training at HQ, but must still review these cases, it is requested that supervisors receive briefing from the officers with primary training at HQ by February 4, 1997 in order to ensure that any routine adjudication processes are not disrupted.

Offices have been advised that for the first 60 days after implementation of the disability regulation, officers who received training on the regulation at HQ must be solely responsible for the adjudication of these cases and the training of the other officers within their respective district. For the next 60-day period, these same officers are responsible for review of all disability cases. Currently, the disability cases are included as part of the File Review Attestation worksheet under both the "Checklist after Interview" section, and the "Continued Cases" section. On the N-400 Processing worksheet, the adjudicating officer checks "other eligibility requirements met" and the supervisor notes the officer correctly adjudicated a case where the issue was an "applicant with complex statutory eligibility issues." There is space in both sections for further comment. We are reviewing whether to expand the processing worksheet to allow for more detailed coverage of an N-400 application with an attached N-648, or whether the comments section is sufficient for more explanation.

As noted previously in this document, SAOs must specifically review disability cases to ensure proper processing and compliance by both the applicant and the adjudicating officer. Additional guidance concerning a mandatory tracking log for these disability-related cases may be found in the attached documentation.

The Service is investigating the use of a private organization, via contract, to assist with quality control by means of random samplings and reviews. We are giving the public an additional opportunity to comment on this concept, and will communicate with all field offices any decision made to implement such a policy. Offices must cooperate with any effort undertaken by HQ to ensure quality in this particular adjudicative process.

Legal Immigrants and SSI Benefits

Purpose?

Beginning the week of February 3, 1997, the Social Security Administration (SSA) will mail out notices to legal immigrants who may no longer be eligible to receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits under the Title IV, Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-193). The SSA mailing will include a one-page INS fact sheet entitled "How To Become A United States Citizen," which explains the eligibility requirements and application process for becoming a naturalized citizen.

When will non-citizens lose their SSI benefits?

Under the provisions of P.L. 104-193, no legal immigrants will lose SSI benefits because of their immigration status before August 22, 1997. Further information regarding eligibility can be obtained from local SSA offices.

How many legal aliens could potentially lose federal benefits?

more recent Adm #s - SSA + US DA?
The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that approximately 500,000 aliens currently receiving SSI benefits and 1 million aliens currently receiving food stamps could lose their eligibility for these benefits under Title IV, P.L. 104-193. The number of aliens who could lose Temporary Assistance for Needy Family (TANF), Medicaid, or Title XX Social Services under the new law depends on state eligibility decisions.

Who will make eligibility decisions?

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Social Security Administration must recertify eligibility of persons currently receiving food stamps and SSI by August 22, 1997. Prior to that date, the SSA will notify those aliens who have not naturalized or who do not fall in one of the exempted categories of aliens if they will lose their benefits.

Can legal immigrants naturalize and continue to receive SSI benefits?

Yes. Legal immigrants who either naturalize or derive U.S. citizenship through their parents' naturalization before August 22, 1997 continue to receive SSI benefits. Once legal immigrants become U.S. citizens, they shall remain eligible for the benefits detailed above.

How long does it take to naturalize?

On average, the process takes approximately six months from filing of an application for naturalization to taking the citizenship oath. The processing time may increase if the number of applications increases significantly.

Who is eligible to naturalize?

Individuals who are lawful permanent residents, are at least 18 years old, and have lived in the United States for five years, or who are married to and have resided with a U.S. citizen for three years are eligible to apply for naturalization. (Applications may be submitted three months before the residency requirement is met.) Applicants must also have lived for more than three months in the jurisdiction of the local INS office where they apply and must be of good moral character.

Special exceptions are made for members of the active duty military, spouses of citizens working for selected businesses overseas, and orphans.

Where can additional information be obtained?

The general public should call the SSA at 1-800-772-1213 for additional information regarding eligibility and benefits. For further information about naturalization, the general public should contact their local INS district office.

Revised 10/10/96

OATH REQUIREMENT

Although the proposed regulations are in response to the Technical Corrections Act of 1994, INA §312 (8 USC §1423), the provisions of that Act relating to persons with disabilities cannot be achieved without consideration of the oath requirement and appropriate rules with respect to that requirement.

A statutory construction that avoids inconsistency with the intent of Congress is preferred so long as it does not do violence to the plain words of the statute. United States v. Raynor, 302 U.S. 540, 547 (1938). See, e.g., In re Contreras, 100 F. Supp. 419, 420 (S.D. Cal. 1951). In adopting the §312 disability waiver, Congress sought the removal of barriers in the naturalization process, H.R. Rep. No. 387, Hse. Comm. on Jud. (1993) at 3-4, not the placement of more obstacles to citizenship for people it recognized may lack the cognitive ability to take the typical naturalization tests. Id. at 4.¹

The oath requirement should therefore be read consistently with the liberalization purpose of the 1994 amendments and within the full context of INA §337 (8 USC §1448) and §504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (including the Justice Department's 504 regulations at 28 CFR Pt. 39). Whole act interpretation of amended statutes dictates that the test waiver and oath provisions be construed harmoniously, see Blair v. City of Chicago, 201 U.S. 400 (1906), and in a manner that avoids an absurd result. See, Public Citizen v. U.S. Dept. of Justice, 491 U.S. 440 (1989). Congress' intent was to waive the competency test completely, not to move it elsewhere in the naturalization process.²

INA §337 provides the structure for regulations which take into account the reasonable modification of the oath requirement. Subsection (a) provides for the taking of an oath in a public ceremony. But subsection (c) recognizes that there are circumstances under which the oath may either be "expedited" based on "special circumstances" which includes serious illness, permanent disability, and developmental disability. The subsection further recognizes that "[i]f an expedited judicial oath administration ceremony is impracticable, the court shall refer such individual to the Attorney General who may provide for immediate administrative naturalization." (emphasis added). It is significant that the underlined words refer to administrative naturalization rather than taking of the oath before a representative of the Attorney General, the language used in subsection (a).

² The Constitutional attachment requirement was also meant to be flexibly applied. "By the very generality of the terms employed [in the attachment requirement] it is evident that Congress intended an elastic test" Schneiderman v. United States, 320 U.S. 118, 139 (1943).

Since the INA recognizes "administrative naturalization" as an alternative to an oath in special circumstances, §504 and the accompanying regulations require that the Service issue regulations to facilitate the naturalization of the very persons Congress intended to assist in adopting the 1994 amendments.³

Current practices not only fail to take into account the agency's 504 obligations, but actually impose additional burdens on persons with disabilities not found in the statute. Ultimately, the oath is "designed to cast off all foreign allegiance and to undertake undivided loyalty to the United States." Gordon, Mailman & Yale-Loehr, 4 Immigration L. & Proc. §96.08[1] (1995).⁴ There is nothing in the statute, caselaw or commentary which definitively suggests that the articulation of the text of the oath or an expression of intent to take the oath is essential. Rather, if it can be determined by third party attestation that the would-be citizen renounces allegiance to her country of present citizenship and will be loyal to the laws and Constitution of the US (and bear arms or perform alternative service--where legally required), this attestation should be accepted in lieu of an explicit statement from the applicant.

³ An agency of the Justice Department may not utilize "criteria or methods of administration the purpose or effect of which would . . . (ii) Defeat or substantially impair accomplishment of the objectives of a program or activity with respect to handicapped persons." 28 CFR Pt. 39.130 (b)(3). INS must therefore adopt procedures which are necessary to allow persons to become citizens notwithstanding a disability which may interfere with the conventional taking of an oath.

SECTION 504 REQUIRES REASONABLE ACCOMMODATIONS OR MODIFICATIONS

As a federal agency, the INS is bound by § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, to provide modifications to enable persons with disabilities to benefit from its programs, including naturalization. Reasonable modifications may include, without limitation, wheelchair-accessible test sites, sign language interpreters, Braille material -- as well as modifications in the naturalization test format or test administration procedures. The principle of reasonable modification also is applicable to the administration of the oath of allegiance.

The accommodation or modification for applicants with developmental disabilities could include a facilitator for someone who is unable to express a willingness to take the oath (e.g., someone who knows a developmentally disabled person well and can assist that person in communication with others and with comprehension of a complex situation). See e.g., Technical Assistance Manual to Title II of the ADA, II-3.6100, Illus. 2 at p. 14 (Dept. of Justice 1993).

Similarly, if the Service were to determine that the applicant does not understand the "purpose and responsibilities of the naturalization procedures," 8 C.F.R. Pt. 316.12(a), an applicant's family members or professional contacts (social workers, teachers, or guardians) could attest through sworn statements that the applicant is unable to fully understand the oath, but would nonetheless be able to abide by it. An alternative accommodation would be for the applicant's family to establish a temporary or limited conservatorship, with the conservator attesting to the applicant's obligations set forth in the oath.

Modifications such as these could be accomplished by the INS without undue administrative burden or fundamental alteration of the naturalization process. See, 28 C.F.R. Pt. 39.150(a). Moreover, reasonable accommodation is necessary to ensure that applicants are able to participate in the naturalization process and enjoy the benefits and privileges that flow from citizenship.

Exceptions to the Educational Requirements for Naturalization for Certain Applicants

AGENCY: Immigration and Naturalization Service, Justice.

ACTION: Interim rule with request for comments.

SUMMARY: This interim rule amends the Immigration and Naturalization Service (the Service) regulations relating to the educational requirements for naturalization of eligible applicants under section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), as amended by the Technical Corrections Act of 1994. This amendment provides an exception from the requirements of demonstrating an understanding of the English language, including an ability to read, write, and speak words in ordinary usage, and of demonstrating a knowledge and understanding of the fundamentals of the history, and of the principles and form of government of the United States, for certain applicants who are unable to comply with both requirements because they possess a "physical or developmental disability" or a "mental impairment." The interim rule establishes an administrative process whereby the Service will adjudicate requests for these exceptions while providing the public with an opportunity to comment on portions of the adjudicative process which the Service is altering in response to public comments from the previously published proposed rule.

DATES: This Interim rule is effective [Insert date of publication in the Federal Register]. Written comments must be submitted on or before [insert date 60 days from the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER].

ADDRESSES: Please submit written comments in triplicate to the Director, Policy Directives and Instructions Branch, Immigration and Naturalization Service, 425 1 Street, NW, Room 5307, Washington, DC 20536. To ensure proper handling, please reference INS number 1702-96 on your correspondence. Comments are available for public inspection at the above address by calling (202) 514-3048 to arrange an appointment.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

On October 25, 1994, Congress enacted the Immigration and Naturalization Technical Corrections Act of 1994. Section 108(a)(4) of the Technical Corrections Act amended section 312 of the Act to provide an exception to the United States history and government ("civics") requirements for persons with "physical or developmental disabilities" or "mental impairments" applying to become naturalized United States citizens. This exception complemented an existing exception for persons with disabilities with regard to the English language requirements for naturalization. Enactment of this amendment marked the first time Congress authorized an exception from the civics requirements for any individual applying to naturalize.

The Technical Corrections Act did not specifically define the terms developmental disability, mental impairment, or physical disability. Congress did, however, provide limited guidance for defining these terms in the Report of the House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary, H. Rpt. 103-387, dated November 20, 1993. Based in part on the language of this report, the Service provided preliminary guidance to field offices on November 21, 1995, defining the three categories of disabilities and requiring disabled persons seeking an exception from the section 312 requirements to obtain an attestation verifying the existence of the disability from a designated civil surgeon.

On August 28, 1996, the Service published a proposed rule at 61 FR 44227-44230 proposing to amend 8 CFR part 312 to provide for exceptions from the section 312 requirements for persons with physical or developmental disabilities or mental impairments. In the preamble to the proposed rule, the Service noted that these exceptions were not blanket waivers or exemptions for persons with disabilities. Creation of blanket waivers would be contrary to the requirements of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, which provides for equal (with modifications/accommodations) but not special treatment for disabled persons in the administration of Justice Department programs. The proposed rule provided that an exception would only be granted to those individuals with disabilities who, because of the nature of their disability, could not demonstrate the required understanding of the English language and knowledge of United States civics, even with reasonable modifications or accommodations.

The Service proposed that all disability eligibility determinations be based on medical evidence in the form of individual, one-page assessments by civil surgeons or qualified individuals or entities designated by the Attorney General, attesting to the existence of the applicant's disability. As is the case with virtually all Service adjudications for benefits, it was noted that it is the responsibility of the disabled person applying for naturalization to provide the documentation necessary to substantiate the claim for a disability-based exception.

The Service noted that it would comply with section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 by providing reasonable modifications and/or accommodations to its testing procedures for applicants with disabilities. In addition, the Service noted that an applicant would be deemed unable to participate in the testing procedures only in those situations where there are no reasonable modifications that would enable the applicant to participate.

After the Service completed digesting the comments received from the public and after meeting with other federal benefit-granting agencies with extensive experience in administering disability related programs, it became clear that considerable changes would be made to the proposed rule. As such, the Service is implementing the policies contained in this rule on an interim basis and is seeking additional comments from the public addressing our changes prior to finalizing the rule.

Discussion of Comments

The Service received 228 comments from a variety of sources, including federal and state governmental agencies, disability rights and advocacy organizations, and private individuals. While the Service has identified 11 specific comment areas that warrant discussion, the majority of comments address three specific areas relating to the proposed rule, in particular, the definitions of the disabilities proposed by the Service at §§ 312.1(b)(3)(i) and 312.2(b)(1)(i), the use of the civil surgeons as the medical professionals making the disability determinations at § 312.2(b)(2), and the other statutory requirements for naturalization. The Service also notes that of the 228 comments, 46 were in the form of two separate "form memoranda" which the Service speculates were circulated among commenters. Some commenters attached these memoranda to a cover letter, while others placed the form memorandum onto their own letterhead. An additional 12 form letters, all from the same social services agency yet signed by various staff, were also received.

The Service appreciates the overall in-depth comments that were received, especially from other federal agencies and various disability advocacy organizations. All these comments have assisted the Service in understanding matters of concern to the disabled community, a constituent group that until now the Service has only interacted with on a limited basis. The following is a summarized discussion of the comments, opening with an issue statement, followed by a summary of the public comments, and concluding with the Service response. The discussions are listed in order according to the volume of comments received for each topic.

Definitions of the Disabilities

Issue. Should the Service change the definitions noted in the proposed rule to comport with existing federal statutes and regulations? The Service proposed to amend §§ 312.1(b)(3)(i) and 312.2(b)(1)(i) of 8 CFR with definitions of physical disability, developmental disability, and mental impairment based upon the language of the legislative history as noted in H.R. No. 103-387. These definitions included provisions which excluded disabilities that were temporary in nature, that were not the result of a physical or organic disorder, or that had resulted from an individual's illegal use of drugs. H.R. No. 103-387 did not clarify whether the Congress was referring to the abuse of illegal drugs or legal drugs. Each definition included language which specified that the disability must render the individual unable to fulfill either the requirements for English proficiency or to participate in the civics testing procedures even with reasonable modifications.

Summary of public comments. The disability definitions received 138 comments, the largest number of specifically referenced comments. The majority of commenters noted that while it was appreciated that the Service was attempting to follow the intent of Congress, as based on the limited legislative history, it was the obligation of the Service to use definitions already in existence and that comport with existing federal statutes. In particular, 62 comments directly referenced the position that the Service is required to use existing definitions that comport with other federal statutes, such as definitions found in the Americans With Disabilities Act and the Developmental Disability Act of 1978. These commenters also expressed particular concern over the proposed definition of developmental disability. They noted how there is disagreement within the medical community as to whether certain disabilities, such as mental retardation, are indeed developmental in nature as opposed to being a mental impairment.

As noted previously, the Service, in following the legislative history, excluded disabilities in the proposed definitions that were acquired (to exclude persons whose disability was the result of the illegal use of drugs) or disabilities non-organic or temporary in nature. Of the comments addressing the definitions, 39 specifically admonished the Service to revisit this decision. According to these commenters, by adopting the definitions as listed in the proposed rule, the Service would be excluding a large number of disabled naturalization applicants. For example, individuals suffering from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder or individuals whose disability resulted from an accident would not be covered by the definitions as proposed by the Service, in that both these disabilities are acquired. An additional 18 commenters noted that the definitions proposed by the Service were too narrowly drawn. They repeated the argument that by enacting such narrowly drawn definitions the Service would potentially exclude large numbers of disabled individuals who might qualify for these Congressionally mandated exceptions.

Eight commenters noted that the Service had not included specific references to particular disabilities in the proposed rule. It was therefore suggested that the Service modify its definitions to include particular disabilities such as mental retardation and deafness and particular diseases such as Alzheimers to the language of the final rule. One commentator noted that the seriously ill should be considered physically disabled for the purposes of gaining an exception to the section 312 requirements.

Ten separate commenters noted that the proposed language of the disability definitions would not take into consideration persons with combination disabilities. It was cited that while an individual with combination disabilities might not meet the criteria for an exception in a single category, the individual's combination of disabilities might prevent them from being able to meet the requirements of section 312, even with reasonable modifications. An example given noted that an individual with mild dementia who also suffers from hearing loss or blindness may not be able to learn the required English and civics information. Taken singularly, these disabilities might not automatically warrant an exception for the individual. However when combined, the commenters agreed on the likelihood of the individual being unable to satisfy the requirements of section 312 increase, and thus may warrant the granting of an exception.

Response. The Service has devoted considerable time in evaluating the comments addressing the disability definitions, and has consulted with other federal agencies whose experience in developing and implementing disability-related benefit programs is much more extensive than that of the Service (notably the Department of Health and Human Services and the Social Security Administration). The Service has also revisited the exact language of the Act at section 312 as well as the legislative history.

As noted, the Service has consulted with the Social Security Administration (SSA) since the publication of the proposed rule in order to gain a better understanding of disability related programs in general. While the criteria upon which the SSA renders an individual disabled for an SSA financial benefit (the focus being on an individual's inability to support themselves financially) is wholly different from the Service adjudication process for an Immigration and Nationality Act benefit, the Service finds no compelling reason why the definitions upon which these adjudications are based should not be standard between the two agencies.

Therefore, the Service is modifying the proposed rule with regard to the definitions of the disabilities as found at § 312.1(b)(3)(i) and § 312.2(b)(1)(i). The Service is electing to use language that for the most part comports with the regulatory language utilized by the SSA. In the revised language, the three categories of disabilities as noted in the Act are not specifically mentioned but are referenced as medically determinable physical or mental impairment(s), thereby using accepted medical and regulatory language already enacted and found within the SSA regulations.

Modifications have been made to SSA's suggested language in order to maintain the Congressional intent that individuals whose disabilities are the result of the illegal use of drugs not be eligible for an exception to the section 312 requirements.

Also included in the regulatory language are provisions to recognize combination impairments, as suggested by commentators and in keeping with the standards used by the SSA. However, the Service has elected not to include specific references to particular disabilities within the regulatory text found in §§ 312.1(b)(3) and 312.2(b)(1). The Service believes that inclusion of particular named disabilities could have the possible effect of limiting the scope of the proposed exceptions. In other words, some disabled applicants, not seeing their particular disability noted in the text of 8 CFR part 312 might not believe they are covered by the potential exception and thus might not attempt to gain an exception even though they might be fully eligible.

By adopting these changes, the Service is addressing the public's concern regarding the proposed regulation's consistency with existing federal regulations and statutes. We are also ensuring that the particular concerns that Congress elected to include in the legislative record are observed, while acknowledging that adopting a broad definition of disability is mandated by the Act. However, the burden will still be on the applicant, via the medical certification, to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Service how the disability prevents the applicant from learning the information required by section 312 of the Act. The Service believes that it is possible to create a humane process without creating a blanket exception policy within the regulatory language and within the administration of this program. As previously noted, creation of a blanket exception would have the tacit effect of perpetuating the stereotype that persons with disabilities are unable to participate fully in mainstream activities and would thus be contrary to the provisions of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Disability Determinations: Use of the Civil Surgeons and Creation of a Form

Issue. Should disabled applicants be required to be examined by a civil surgeon in order to obtain a disability certification? In the proposed rule at 8 CFR 312.2(b)(2), the Service noted that disabled applicants desiring a disability exception to the requirements of English proficiency and civics must submit medical certification attesting to the presence of the disability and executed by a designated civil surgeon or qualified individuals or entities designated by the Attorney General. The Service did not define the terms qualified individuals or entities, but did specifically request public comments on the requirements of the medical certification process and in particular on the circumstances under which the Service should consider the use of qualified individuals or entities other than civil surgeons.

Summary of public comments. The public responded with 125 comments directly addressing this aspect of the proposed rule. The majority of commenters had concerns over the use of civil surgeons. It was noted by 101 commenters, including HHS (the controlling federal agency for civil surgeons), that the majority of civil surgeons are in general family practice and thus not experienced in making complex disability determinations. In addition, it was noted that civil surgeons currently base the majority of their examinations for the Service on matters relating to the admissibility of immigrating aliens and communicable diseases. This diagnosis of communicable diseases does not relate to the disability determination process, according to these commenters.

Many commenters, acknowledging the Service's need to maintain integrity in the medical determination process, noted that it would be imposing a great burden on the disabled applicant to limit the attestation process to only civil surgeons and the unknown "qualified individuals or entities." Forty-seven commenters therefore directly requested the Service to allow disabled applicants to use the medical services of the person's attending physician, medical specialist, or clinical case worker rather than mandating an examination by a civil surgeon. Several of these commenters also noted that the Service must consider the stress potentially placed upon the mentally impaired if forced to undergo an examination by someone other than their own physician.

In addition to the above noted reasons offered for not limiting the medical certification process to the civil surgeons, 25 commenters stated that the pool of civil surgeons was too small to adequately serve all disabled applicants who might attempt to avail themselves of the disability exceptions. The small pool of civil surgeons could potentially result in disabled applicants having to wait months for appointments.

It was noted by 10 commenters that the cost of going to a civil surgeon could be prohibitive for many persons with disabilities on fixed incomes or public assistance, especially if the civil surgeon is required to consult with medical professionals who specialize in disabilities prior to issuing a certification. Commenters noted that the Service should take this factor into consideration prior to finalizing any policy that would require the predominant use of civil surgeons in the disability determination process. Six commenters noted that the Service should be obliged to provide disabled applicants with lists of bilingual physicians qualified to render the necessary disability certification, and one commentator requested that the Service compose lists of specialists, such as psychiatrists and clinical case workers, that disabled applicants could use in locating a medical professional qualified to make the disability certification.

Three commenters requested the Service to abandon the proposed certification process altogether and adopt a procedure similar to that currently utilized by the SSA in making disability determinations. Another commentator stated that the certification process should be changed, and suggested that disability determination authority be given to the district director in every local Service office. According to this writer, this policy would dissuade a large number of individuals who view the section 312 disability exceptions as a means of avoiding the English language statutory requirement.

Response. In determining a final policy for the disability determination process, the Service acknowledges that it must be responsive to the needs of the applicant base, especially the needs of persons with disabilities. However, it is also the obligation of the Service to balance these needs with the necessity of maintaining integrity in the disability determination process. Only one commenter addressed the fact that the Service will be faced with instances of fraud in the administration of this program and that the Service must be ever-vigilant when non-disabled applicants attempt to present themselves to the Service as disabled and therefore eligible for a disability exception. Having a structured process for the determination of a disability is critical to the Service's obligation to maintain an adjudicative process with integrity.

The Service has concluded that the public is justified in its concern over the near exclusive dependence on the civil surgeons in the disability determination process. Therefore, the Service is proposing to eliminate all references to the use of the civil surgeons in the determination process. (However, any civil surgeon meeting the criteria outlined below will be able to make a disability determination, but based on the surgeon's expertise with a particular disability, not on the fact that he or she is a civil surgeon.)

In the interim, the Service is proposing that only licensed medical doctors and medical doctors with specialities, such as board certified psychiatrists and licensed clinical psychologists who are experienced in diagnosing disabilities, make the determinations that will be used by the Service. This policy will address the concerns of the public regarding the use of civil surgeons, the perception that the available pool of civil surgeons is too small to meet the needs of the disabled community, and the possible high cost of medical visits to several doctors in order to verify the existence of a disability. This determination process will be in effect for an interim period of time as the Service investigates other possible methods for having disabled applicants gain a disability certification from professionals within the medical community.

The selective list of licensed health care providers eligible to render a disability determination is critical to the Service obligation that fraud not corrupt this program or the adjudicative process. Further safeguards can be found in the proposal of the Service to require the medical professional making the disability determination to (1) sign a statement that he or she has answered all the questions in a complete and truthful manner and agrees, with the applicant, to the release of all medical records relating to the applicant that may be requested by the Service, and (2) an attestation stating that any knowingly false or misleading statements may subject the medical professional to possible criminal prosecution for perjury pursuant to Title 18, United States Code, Section 1546. Section 1546 provides in part:

...Whoever knowingly makes under oath, or as permitted under penalty of perjury under Section 1746 of Title 28, United States Code, knowingly subscribes as true, any false statement with respect to a material fact in any application, affidavit, or other document required by the immigration laws or regulations prescribed thereunder, or knowingly presents any such application, affidavit, or other document containing any such false statement - shall be fined in accordance with this title or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

In addition to the criminal penalties of Title 18 noted above, the applicant and licensed health care provider are subject to the civil penalties under section 274C of the Act, Penalties for Document Fraud, 8 U.S.C. 1324c.

The Service has many concerns over the preservation of integrity during the interim process, but cannot expect the public to wait for the implementation of a possible alternative determination process. In particular, the Service has concerns over the use of attending physicians as the source of the disability determinations. Other federal agencies have advised the Service that their experience with accepting documentation from attending physicians has been negative. On occasion, attending physicians may be more willing to attest to conditions as disabilities which may not in fact be entirely debilitating. For these reasons, the Service has elected to reserve the right to request additional medical records relating to the applicant's disability if the Service has reason to question the disability determination or certification.

The Service is also reserving the right to refer the applicant to another authorized licensed health care provider for a supplemental disability determination. This option will be invoked when the Service has credible doubts about the veracity of a medical certification that has been presented by an applicant. The public, and the disability advocacy community in particular, must acknowledge that the Service will be faced with cases where non-disabled individuals, fully capable of meeting the functional English and United States civics requirements of section 312, will attempt to gain a disability exception. The Service must be free to use reasonable means to prevent fraud in the disability determination process and to ensure that the integrity of United States citizenship is preserved.

The Service notes that it is not the responsibility of this agency to provide disabled applicants with lists of bilingual medical professionals, nor is it the responsibility of the Service to provide lists of licensed health care providers qualified to perform the disability determinations. The burden is on the applicant to provide the documentation deemed necessary for the Service to make a determination as to the qualifications of the applicant for any benefit requested under the Act.

The public must also note that the naturalization program is financed entirely by the fees paid by the naturalization applicant. No Congressionally appropriated funds are dedicated to the naturalization adjudicative process. The creation of any alternative determination process would need to be financed either by the user fees paid by applicants or by other as yet unidentified non-fee sources of funding. The Service desires to learn the public viewpoint on various alternative disability determination processes.

In its proposed rule, the Service specifically requested public comments on the requirements for the medical certification. Only two commenters made specific suggestions that the Service would better serve the public as well as its own interests by creating a new public use form. Initially, the Service proposed that the medical professional making the certification issue a one-page document, attesting to the origin, nature, and extent of the applicant's condition as it relates to the disability exception. The certification was specified to be only one page in an attempt to keep applicants from submitting entire medical histories that the Service has no experience with or capacity to archive.

The Service has determined that the creation of a new public use form will be a benefit to both the Service and the public. In particular, creation of a form will take the burden off both the applicant and the licensed medical professionals with regard to information dissemination. The form's instructions will include complete explanations of the disability categories and define which licensed health care providers can execute the certification. A new form will allow the licensed medical professionals to state simply, via reference to the instructional guidelines, how the applicant's disability prevents the applicant from learning the information needed to fulfill the requirements of section 312 of the Act. The form will also allow the licensed medical professionals an opportunity to comment on how a particular modification or accommodation may allow the applicant to take part in the testing process.

As previously noted, the Service also believes that a form will ensure the integrity of the disability determination process (a vital concern of the Service) by requiring the licensed medical professionals to sign and declare that the examination and certification is accurate under penalty of perjury. Lastly, the new form will also allow for the submission of additional background medical documentation, upon request of the Service, which may reduce the likelihood of fraud.

The Service is now working with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to obtain an emergency approval for a new public use form for this certification process. As soon as the approval is granted, copies of this new Form, N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions, will be distributed to local Service offices, the two Service form centers and to as many voluntary and organizations serving the disabled community as possible.

Other Naturalization Requirements

Issue. Must disabled naturalization applicants meet the other requirements for naturalization, including the ability to take an oath of renunciation and allegiance? In order for an applicant for naturalization to be approved, the Service must be satisfied that the applicant has met the requirements as stipulated in the Act. The 1994 Technical Corrections Act amended the Act regarding the requirements found in section 312, but did not amend the requirements found in section 316 (Requirements as to Residence, Good Moral Character, Attachment to the Principles of the Constitution, and Favorable Disposition to the United States). Neither did it amend section 337 (Oath of Renunciation and Allegiance). Therefore, the Service did not address any of the other requirements for naturalization in the proposed rule.

Summary of Public Comments. While the Service did not address the other requirements for naturalization, 92 commentators did make direct references to these requirements. The vast majority of these writers (89 of the 92) stated that it was incumbent upon the Service to waive the other naturalization requirements for the disabled applicant, in particular the oath of allegiance. Commentators stated that the intent of Congress was to relieve the disabled from requirements they could not be expected to meet, to remove barriers in the naturalization process for the disabled applicant, and not to create an additional test whereby disabled applicants would in effect be tested on their ability or capacity to take the oath.

Writers stated that while Congress did not directly address the issue of the other requirements for naturalization, it was the obligation of the Service to comply with Congressional intent and waive the oath requirement. These commentators stated that by not waiving the oath, the Service would place the disabled applicant in a situation of being exempt from the civics requirements of section 312, but required to have a working knowledge of civics in order to take and understand the oath of allegiance. Writers further stated that this situation of exempting certain requirements but holding the disabled applicant to other requirements would be a violation of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Department of Justice regulations. These regulations prohibit the government from utilizing "criteria or methods of administration the purpose or effect of which would... (ii) Defeat or substantially impair accomplishment of the objectives of a program or activity with respect to handicapped persons." (28 CFR sec. 39.130 (b)(3))

These writers noted it was not only the obligation of the Service to follow Congressional intent, but that the Service has the authority to waive the oath requirement for any applicant under the Service authority to naturalize applicants via the administrative naturalization process. This administrative naturalization authority was given to the Service by Congress as part of the Immigration Act of 1990. Twenty of these writers also suggested that the Service consider the alternative idea of allowing a family member, legal guardian, or court appointed trustee to stand in for the disabled applicant during the administration of the oath. This would in effect create an oath by proxy procedure, available to the disabled applicant when the disability prevents the applicant from understanding the language of the oath.

Two writers stated that the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and companion disability-related statutes were enacted to ensure fairness to disabled persons with regard to employment and physical accessibility. Therefore, they do not relate to the naturalization process. These commentators stated that the other naturalization requirements, in particular the oath, are mandatory and should not be waived for any applicant, disabled or not. One additional writer suggested that the Service seek clarification from Congress on the issue of disabled applicants unable to meet all the requirements for naturalization.

Response. The Service did not address the issue of the oath in the proposed rule since Congress did not amend section 337 of the Act in the 1994 Technical Amendment Act. However, the Service realizes the concern that exists within the disability community as to this naturalization requirement.

The Service already makes reasonable accommodations in cases where individuals are unable, by reason of a disability, to take the oath of allegiance in the customary way prescribed in section 337 of the Act. For example, it is the common practice of all Service offices to conduct naturalization interviews and to administer the oath of allegiance outside of the local Service office in instances where the applicant is either home bound or confined to a medical facility.

Such accommodations remain available for disabled individuals who signal their willingness to become United States citizens and to give up citizenship in other countries. Whether further accommodations or waivers of the oath requirement are possible within the existing statutory framework present difficult legal issues, which the Service will address through further guidance or regulations as soon as possible.

Acceptance of Disability Certifications from Other Government Agencies

Issue. Should the Service accept disability certifications issued by other government agencies? In the proposed rule at § 312.2(t)(2), the Service noted that it may consult with other federal agencies in determining whether an individual previously determined to be disabled by another federal agency has a disability as defined in the proposed rule language. This consultation could be used in lieu of the Service-required medical certification.

Summary of public comments. Thirty-eight commenters stated that the Service should be obligated to accept a certification of a disability from a federal or state governmental agency in lieu of having the disabled naturalization applicant seek an additional medical certification.

Response. The Service has consulted with other federal agencies regarding this matter. It was pointed out to the Service that with most agencies, the determination of a disability leads to either a financial or medical benefit. The SSA noted that the criteria they review prior to granting an individual a disability benefit (in particular, can the person work and thus support themselves financially) is entirely different than the requirements that all applicants applying for naturalization must meet. In addition, a disability which might render an individual eligible for a financial or medical benefit from another federal or state agency may not in all cases render the same individual unable to learn the information required by section 312 of the Act.

After careful review, the Service has determined that it will not accept certifications from other government or state agencies as absolute evidence of a disability warranting an exception to the requirements of section 312. However, and as noted in the proposed rule, the Service reserves the right to consult with other federal agencies on cases where an applicant has been declared disabled. The Service notes that the unquestioned acceptance of another agency's disability determination would equate to a blanket waiver of the section 312 requirements for anyone with a disability that has been so recognized by another agency. Such a blanket waiver, based on stereotypical speculation that persons with disabilities are unable to participate in mainstream activities, is contrary to the provisions of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Appeal Language

Issue. Should a special appeal procedure be created for disabled naturalization applicants?

Summary of public comments. Twenty-six commenters noted that in the proposed rule, the Service failed to include any references to an appeal procedure for a disabled naturalization applicant who is denied naturalization based on the Service not accepting a medical certificate attesting to a disability. Six of these commenters stated that since Service officers were not medical professionals, they should be obliged to accept a medical certificate. These same commenters additionally stated that any applicant's certificate that might be denied be afforded an immediate appeal to the local Service district director. Three commenters suggested that the Service be required to obtain independent medical evidence prior to denying any naturalization case, based on questions about the disability certification. Twelve commenters stated that the Service should be obligated to establish a separate appeal process for disabled applicants, also repeating the request that the appeal be forwarded immediately to the local Service district director.

Response. All applicants seeking to naturalize, including disabled applicants, may avail themselves of the hearing procedure already in place in the event the naturalization application is denied. Applicants may request a hearing on a denial under the provision of section 336 of the Act. The regulations governing these hearings are found at § 336.2. The review hearing will be with other than the officer who conducted the original examination and who is classified at a grade level equal to or higher than the grade of the original examining officer. Applicants may submit additional independent evidence as may be deemed relevant to the applicant's eligibility for naturalization. If the denial is sustained, the applicant may seek de novo reconsideration in federal court. With the additional training Service adjudication officers will receive regarding disabilities and the disability-based exception to the requirements of section 312, the Service is of the opinion that in the interim, the current hearing procedure for a denied naturalization application is sufficient.

In the interest of making an accommodation, the Service is considering a modification to the current hearing procedure. The procedure under consideration contemplates using the current hearing process augmented with an independent medical opinion issued on the disability finding. This opinion could be issued by a medical professional that the applicant has been referred to by the Service, especially in instances where the Service officer questions the medical certification. An augmented hearing process would need to be financed through the user fees paid by the applicant or by other as yet unidentified non-fee sources of funding. As noted previously, the naturalization program is entirely funded by user fees, with no additional funding appropriated by the Congress. The Service welcomes additional public comments on this idea. However, such a procedure would necessitate a separate regulatory amendment to 8 CFR 336.2.

Reasonable Modifications/Accommodations, Special Training, and Quality Control

Issue. Should examples of reasonable modifications and accommodations to the naturalization testing procedure be included in the language of the regulation? Noted in the preamble to the proposed rule were statements that pursuant to section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Service would make reasonable modifications and accommodations to its testing procedures to enable naturalization applicants with disabilities participation in the process.

Summary of public comments. Twenty-two commenters raised specific references to the modifications and accommodations. In particular, commenters felt that the Service should include in the text of the final rule examples of the modifications or accommodations which might be afforded the disabled applicant during the testing and interview process. Writers stressed that appropriate modifications depend upon the applicant's individual needs. One commenter stated that it would be more efficient for the Service to interview persons with disabilities off-site rather than modifying each officer's work station in each Service office for complete disability access.

Response. The Service is in full compliance with its obligations under section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and provides accommodations and modifications to the testing procedures when required. The Service currently makes regular accommodations and modifications for disabled applicants for the full range of its services.

However, the Service has reservations about including language within the text of the regulation detailing specific accommodations or modifications. It is the opinion of the Service that the appropriate place for such language is in the accompanying field policy guidance and instructions that will be distributed to all Service offices upon publication of the interim and final rules. Service offices are routinely reminded of the obligations section 504 places on all governmental agencies regarding accommodating persons with disabilities. The Service notes that it is current Service policy to conduct off-site testing, interviews, and where authorized, off-site swearing-in ceremonies in appropriate situations.

Four commenters suggested that the Service create special training directed at Service officers in all local Service offices. This training would remind officer staff of their responsibilities under section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and offer staff examples of exact modifications and accommodation to the testing procedures. An example might be the officer taking into account the special testing needs of naturalization applicants with learning impairments. The Service agrees with this suggestion and will initiate special training for local district office adjudication officers. Program staff at Service Headquarters are currently working with the SSA on the creation of this training module and plan to provide this special training as close to the publication of this interim rule as possible. The Service asks the public for suggested training methods which may be of value to the adjudication officers responsible for hearing those cases where the applicant is requesting a disability-based exception to the requirements of section 312.

In addition to the special training efforts that will be undertaken, the Service is committed to ensuring that substantial quality control mechanisms are followed regarding these disability-related naturalization adjudications. Currently, all Service offices responsible for processing naturalization cases must comply with mandatory quality control procedures. These procedures include regular supervisory review of every stage of the naturalization process, from clerical data entry and final decisions, to regular Form N-400 random samplings. These quality control procedures are not optional instructions that Service offices are encouraged to follow. These procedures are mandatory for every office. The Service is committed to ensuring that all naturalization cases are handled properly, administratively processed correctly, and adjudicated fairly.

The Service will supplement these current quality control procedures with additional procedures particularly directed at cases where applicants have requested an exception from the requirements of section 312. These procedures will include the previously referenced special training efforts for local Service adjudicators as well as supplemental random samplings of cases where the applicant has a disability and has requested an exception. The Service is currently investigating the possibility of entering into a contract with a private entity to perform these random samplings. Such an arrangement would ensure an unprecedented level of objectivity in reviewing disability-related cases. It would also allow the Service to gain independent medical viewpoints on these disability adjudications as well as opinions on medical certifications which may have been questioned by the local Service officer. The Service requests public comments on additional quality control methods which may assist the Service in ensuring that its disability related adjudications are fair and accurate.

Exemption of all §312 Requirements for the Elderly

Issue. Should the Service grant a total exemption to the elderly for the requirements of section 312 of the Act?

Summary of public comments. While the proposed rule did not address the issue of applicants over the age of 65 being exempted from all requirements of section 312, 16 commenters urged the Service to adopt such a policy. Writers based their requests on the assumption that applicants over the age of 65 are inherently unable to learn a new language or information on United States civics due to their advanced age. Therefore, commenters suggested a new policy whereby elderly applicants would have the naturalization requirements found under section 312 waived. One additional writer asked that the Service waive the English requirements for any legal immigrant attempting to naturalize.

Response. Section 312 of the Act offers no blanket exemption to applicants over the age of 65 with respect to the English proficiency requirements. Congress has afforded naturalization applicants over the age of 50 with 20 of years permanent residence and applicants over the age of 55 with 15 years of permanent residence an exemption from the English language requirements. Congress has not, however, expanded these exemptions to other groups. Congress has also granted "special consideration" to applicants over the age of 65 with 20 years permanent residence regarding the civics knowledge requirements. (The Service will address the section 312 "special consideration" provisions in the overall regulatory revision of section 312.)

The Service cannot create a new exemption category to the Act. Only the Congress has the authority to amend the Act. As such, the Service cannot act on this particular suggestion.

Treating the Disabled with Compassion and Discretion

Issue and summary of public comments. The need for compassion and discretion in adjudicating disability naturalization cases. In the Service's preliminary guidance to field offices regarding section 312 disability naturalization cases, dated November 21, 1995, offices were reminded to use compassion and discretion in their dealings with disabled applicants. Fifteen commenters noted that this language was missing from the proposed rule and requested the Service to include said language in the text of the final rule.

Response. The Service understands the desire of the disabled advocacy community to have this language included in the final rule. However, the Service feels that such language is more appropriate for inclusion in the supplemental policy guidance that will be distributed to field offices upon publication of this rule. The special training previously mentioned that the Service will require for adjudication officers will also stress the need for compassion and discretion in dealings with all applicants for benefits under the Act.

A Single Test and Single Determination

Issue and summary of public comments. Should the Service use a single test and single determination process? Seven commenters noted that the proposed rule implies that there are two separate tests, due to the structure of the regulation which addresses English proficiency at § 312.1 and knowledge of United States civics at § 312.2. The Service was therefore urged to adopt a single test format. These commenters also suggest that the Service only require one determination for the medical certification process.

Response. The Service notes that while the current structure of the regulation features two distinct parts regarding English proficiency and knowledge of United States civics, current procedures do, in effect, offer applicants a single test. During the mandatory naturalization interview, the applicant's verbal English proficiency is determined by the spoken interaction between the adjudication officer and the applicant. Most civics testing is also done orally, which provides the adjudication officer with additional evidence of the applicant's English proficiency. The public should also note that in the Request for Comments contained in the proposed rule, the Service emphasized that the entire regulatory structure of section 312 was under review. Commenters' suggestions about combining the requirements of §§ 312.1 and 312.2 into one consolidated section shall be considered during the redrafting of 8 CFR part 312.

With regard to the request for a single determination of the disability, the Service will require each applicant requesting an exception to the requirements found at section 312 to submit a single medical certification. The certification should note the existence of the disability, the recommendation of the medical professional that the applicant be exempted from the requirements of section 312, and any modifications the licensed health care provider might recommend if the test were administered to the applicant. This certification must address, however, both the English proficiency and United States civics knowledge requirement and the applicant's inability to meet either one or both of the requirements. This is necessary since both requirements must be met in order for the individual to be naturalized, absent a waiver.

Expedited Processing for the Disabled

Issue and summary of public comments. Should persons with disabilities be afforded expedited processing of their naturalization applications? Four commenters addressed the issue of expedited processing of naturalization applications for persons with disabilities. Three writers stated it was the obligation of the Service to expedite these naturalization cases, in that the applicant's status with other government agencies regarding eligibility for social service benefits could be affected by the applicant's not being a United States citizen. One of these commenters suggested that the Service institute a 30-day processing window for disabled applicants, to ensure that the Service could grant the applicant any reasonable modification necessary to possibly take part in the normal testing procedure. One writer noted that the disabled should not be granted expedited processing in that such an accommodation would be inconsistent with current Service policy.

Response. The policy of the Service, found in the Operating Instructions at §103.2(q), is to process all applications in chronological order by date of receipt. This procedure ensures fairness and equity for all applicants. The Service shall continue to observe this procedure with regard to naturalization applications from persons with disabilities. The public should note, however, that any applicant able to show evidence of an emergent circumstance may request an exception to this policy from the local district director. It is within the discretion of the district director to either grant or deny a request for expedited processing of any Service adjudication.

Miscellaneous Comments

Ten commenters implored the Service to take into consideration their particular personal circumstances surrounding disability naturalization cases currently or about to be submitted to the Service. While the Service has empathy for these writers, the proposed rule for which comments were solicited addressed procedural issues, not particular cases. The Service is confident that each of these individual cases will be adjudicated equitably when presented to an adjudications officer for review.

One writer expressed dismay that the Service was considering an exception to the section 312 requirements for certain disabled aliens attempting to naturalize. This writer stated that disabled aliens should be required to return to their native countries and that the United States should focus its attention on assisting native-born disabled citizens. The Service would note that the 1994 Technical Corrections Act mandates this change to the Services' regulations. The Service is obligated to follow the direction of the Congress when Congress so amends the Act.

One commenter suggested that the Service embark upon a media campaign in order to notify disabled persons about the provisions of this legislative change. The writer speculated that there is no method in existence by which the Service can notify the disabled community of this possible exception. Based on the number of comments received from various disabled rights advocacy groups, the Service is of the opinion that the vast majority of individuals who might benefit from this exception will have a means of being informed about the provisions of the exceptions. The Service would also note that it is working with the SSA on informational materials for all alien SSA beneficiaries who may wish to apply for naturalization.

One writer noted that the current application for naturalization, Form N-400, should be amended to include references to the disability related exceptions. The Service recognizes this problem and notes that the N-400 is currently under revision. Any revision will include information regarding the disability exceptions to the section 312 requirements and will be submitted to OMB in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act.

Another commenter requested that the Service be flexible in adjudicating naturalization applicants from disabled persons. The Service has every intention of being flexible in these adjudications to the extent allowable under the law. The special training effort that will be instituted should assist the Service in meeting the goals of being flexible and fair in the adjudication of these naturalization applications.

Request for comments

The Service is seeking public comments regarding this interim rule. In particular, the Service is seeking comments regarding the modifications made to the proposed rule, published at 61 FR 44227. It should again be noted that the Service is engaged in an additional revision of 8 CFR part 312. That additional revision will be issued as a proposed rule, also with a request for public comments.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, in accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 605 (b)), has reviewed this regulation and, by approving it, certifies that the rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. This rule has been drafted in a way to minimize the economic impact that it has on small business while meeting its intended objectives.

Executive Order 12866

This rule is considered by the Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service, to be a "significant regulatory action" under Executive Order 12866, section 3(f), Regulatory Planning and Review. Under Executive Order 12866, section 6(a)(3)(B)-(D), this proposed rule has been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for review. This rule is mandated by the 1994 Technical Corrections Act in order to afford certain disabled naturalization applicants an exemption from the educational requirements outlined in section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Authority: 8 U.S.C. 1103, 1423, 1443, 1447, 1448.

4. In § 312.1, paragraph (b)(3) is revised to read as follows:

§ 312.1 Literacy requirements.

* * * * *

(b) * * *

- (3) The requirements of paragraph (a) of this section shall not apply to any person who is unable, because of a medically determinable physical or mental impairment or combination of impairments which has lasted or is expected to last at least 12 months, to demonstrate an understanding of the English language as noted in paragraph (a) of this section. The loss of any cognitive abilities based on the direct effects of the illegal use of drugs will not be considered in determining whether a person is unable to demonstrate an understanding of the English language. For purposes of this paragraph, the term medically determinable means an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which can be shown by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques to have resulted in functioning so impaired as to render an individual unable to demonstrate an understanding of the English language as required by this section, or that renders the individual unable to fulfill the requirements for English proficiency, even with reasonable modifications to the methods of determining English proficiency as outlined in paragraph (c) of this section.

5. Section 312.2 is amended by:

- a. Revising the last sentence of paragraph (a);
- b. Redesignating paragraph (b) as paragraph (c) and by
- c. Adding a new paragraph (b), to read as follows:

§ 312.2 Knowledge of history and government of the United States.

(a) * * * A person who is exempt from the literacy requirement under § 312.1(b)(1) and (2) must still satisfy this requirement.

(b) Exceptions. (1) The requirements of paragraph (a) of this section shall not apply to any person who is unable to demonstrate a knowledge and understanding of the fundamentals of the history, and of the principles and form of government of the United States because of a medically determinable physical or mental impairment, that already has or is expected to last at least 12 months. The loss of any cognitive skills based on the direct effects of the illegal use of drugs will not be considered in determining whether an individual may be exempted. For the purposes of this paragraph, the term medically determinable means an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which can be shown by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques to have resulted in functioning so impaired as to render an individual to be unable to demonstrate the knowledge required by this section or that renders the individual unable to participate in the testing procedures for naturalization, even with reasonable modifications.

(2) Medical certification. All persons applying for naturalization and seeking an exemption from the requirements of § 312.1(a) and paragraph (a) of this section based on the disability exceptions must submit Form N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions, to be completed by a licensed medical doctor, a medical doctor with a speciality (such as a board certified psychiatrist), or a licensed clinical psychologist. These medical professionals shall be experienced in diagnosing those with physical or mental medically determinable impairments and shall be able to attest to the origin, nature, and extent of the medical condition as it relates to the disability exceptions noted under § 312.1(b)(3) and paragraph (b)(1) of this section. In addition, the medical professionals making the disability determination must sign a statement on the Form N-648 that they have answered all the questions in a complete and truthful manner, that they (and the applicant) agree to the release of all medical records relating to the applicant that may be requested by the Service, and that they attest that any knowingly false or misleading statements may subject the medical professional to the penalties for perjury pursuant to Title 18, United States Code, Section 1546 and to civil penalties under section 274C of the Act. The Service also reserves the right to refer the applicant to another authorized medical source for a supplemental disability determination. This option shall be invoked when the Service has credible doubts about the veracity of a medical certification that has been presented by the applicant. An affidavit or attestation by the applicant, his or her relatives, or guardian on his or her medical condition is not a sufficient medical attestation for purposes of satisfying this requirement.

PART 499--NATIONALITY FORMS

6. The authority citation for par 499 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 8 U.S.C. 1103; 8 CFR part 2.

this aspect of the proposed rule. The majority of commenters had concerns over the use of civil surgeons. It was noted by 101 commenters, including HHS (the controlling federal agency for civil surgeons), that the majority of civil surgeons are in general family practice and thus not experienced in making complex disability determinations. In addition, it was noted that civil surgeons currently base the majority of their examinations for the Service on matters relating to the admissibility of immigrating aliens and communicable diseases. This diagnosis of communicable diseases does not relate to the disability determination process, according to these commenters.

Many commenters, acknowledging the Service's need to maintain integrity in the medical determination process, noted that it would be imposing a great burden on the disabled applicant to limit the attestation process to only civil surgeons and the unknown "qualified individuals or entities." Forty-seven commenters therefore directly requested the Service to allow disabled applicants to use the medical services of the person's attending physician, medical specialist, or clinical case worker rather than mandating an examination by a civil surgeon. Several of these commenters also noted that the Service must consider the stress potentially placed on persons with mental impairments if forced to undergo an examination by someone other than their own physician.

In addition to the above noted reasons offered for not limiting the medical certification process to the civil surgeons, 25 commenters stated that the pool of civil surgeons was too small to adequately serve all disabled applicants who might attempt to avail themselves of the disability exceptions. The small pool of civil surgeons could potentially result in disabled applicants having to wait months for appointments.

It was noted by 10 commenters that the cost of going to a civil surgeon could be prohibitive for many persons with disabilities on fixed incomes or public assistance, especially if the civil surgeon

emergency approval for a new public use form for this certification process. As soon as the approval is granted, copies of this new Form, N-548, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions, will be distributed to local Service offices, the two Service form centers and to as many voluntary and organizations serving the disabled community as possible.

Other Naturalization Requirements

Issue. Must disabled naturalization applicants meet the other requirements for naturalization, including the ability to take an oath of renunciation and allegiance? In order for an applicant for naturalization to be approved, the Service must be satisfied that the applicant has met the requirements as stipulated in the Act. The 1994 Technical Corrections Act amended the Act regarding the requirements found in section 312, but did not amend the requirements found in section 316 (Requirements as to Residence, Good Moral Character, Attachment to the Principles of the Constitution, and Favorable Disposition to the United States). Neither did it amend section 337 (Oath of Renunciation and Allegiance). Therefore, the Service did not address any of the other requirements for naturalization in the proposed rule.

Summary of Public Comments. While the Service did not address the other requirements for naturalization, 92 commentators did make direct references to these requirements. The vast majority of these writers (89 of the 92) stated that it was incumbent upon the Service to waive the other naturalization requirements for applicants with disabilities, in particular the oath of allegiance. Commentators stated that the intent of Congress was to relieve the disabled from requirements they could not be expected to meet, to remove barriers in the naturalization process for the disabled applicant, and not to create an additional test whereby disabled applicants would in effect be tested on their ability or capacity to take the oath.

Subject: INS Section 312 Regulation

The Civil Rights Division does not object to the publication of the Immigration and Naturalization Service's interim rule implementing the 1994 amendments to section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

However, we are concerned that the INS is proposing to accept certifications of eligibility for section 312 waivers only from licensed physicians or clinical psychologists. Under earlier drafts of this interim rule, the INS would have accepted eligibility determinations from a wider range of licensed professionals. The current language is unnecessarily restrictive and is likely to place unnecessary burdens on some applicants with disabilities. This concern should not be a bar to the publication of this document as an interim rule, but the INS should reconsider this position before the publication of a final rule.

We also recommend that the INS make two editorial changes before publication. On page 10, in line 14, delete "the mentally impaired" and substitute "people with mental impairments." On page 16, in line 19, delete "the disabled" and substitute "applicants with disabilities."

MEMORANDUM

TO: Erskine Bowles, Chief of Staff
THE WHITE HOUSE

RE: Citizenship For Immigrants w/ Disabilities

DATE: January 13, 1997

Thank you for meeting with me and other members of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights on January 9. Attached is a copy of the memo that DREDF sent to Rahm Emanuel.

I need to emphasize that the Administration's response must be a "tolling" or "grace period" which allows the continued payment of SSI and other federal public benefits to affected legal immigrants with disabilities until their citizenship applications are approved by INS.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rahm Emanuel, THE WHITE HOUSE

FROM: Patrisha Wright, Stephen Rosenbaum
DISABILITY RIGHTS EDUCATION & DEFENSE FUND

RE: Citizenship For Immigrants w/ Disabilities

DATE: January 10, 1997

This memo follows yesterday's meeting between the White House Chief of Staff and the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

Immigrants ("lawful permanent residents") who have lived in the U.S. for more than five years and are not "excludable" (e.g., for violating laws, evading the draft, failing to pay taxes, trafficking in narcotics, defrauding the INS) are eligible for citizenship or "naturalization." Applicants must pass tests in English literacy and in knowledge of American history and government; submit fingerprints and photos; and complete a personal INS interview which tracks the written application itself (personal data, marital and family status, employment history, organizational memberships, etc.).

In October 1994, Congress adopted technical amendments waiving the English literacy and civics tests for applicants unable to comply "because of physical or developmental disability or mental impairment..." 8 U.S.C. § 1423(b)(1). More than two years after passage of the amendments, the INS has yet to adopt final rules implementing the statute. Local immigration officers, relying on a 2-page internal memorandum and individual discretion, have not applied the 1994 statute consistently and have made it virtually impossible until the last few months to get a waiver. Moreover, once having granted a waiver, these officers have held up applications when they are not satisfied the would-be citizen has the capacity or willingness to take the oath of allegiance. In effect, naturalization involves 3 components: English/civics tests, interview and the "oath requirement."

This stonewalling means long-term legal immigrants who lack a sufficient work history and are not veterans will be cut off such federal benefits as SSI and Medicaid within a matter of months under the Personal Responsibility Act -- unless their citizenship applications can be approved by an already backlogged INS. The immigration service estimates there are 300,000 applicants nationwide who might seek a disability waiver.

The INS did not publish proposed regulations to implement the waiver until August 1996, following the filing of a class action lawsuit by Disability Rights Education & Defense Fund, Asian Law Caucus and others. Chow v. Meissner, No. C-96 2422 SI (N. Dist. Calif.). An interim rule is pending at OMB and is expected to be published by next month, notwithstanding the Government's litigation posture that the statute is not subject to notice-and-comment rulemaking.

INS and DoJ have refused to seriously discuss settlement until the Court rules on their pending motion to dismiss the lawsuit on the ground that plaintiffs have not suffered any harm because none of their applications had actually been denied -- only delayed. This motion was argued October 31, along with plaintiffs' motions for nationwide class certification and a preliminary injunction to insure compliance with the spirit of §504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the technical amendments to the immigration act. Rather than talk compromise with plaintiffs' counsel, INS has punished witnesses whose affidavits have been submitted in support of the pending motions. These witnesses -- who are neither parties to the litigation nor counsel -- have been subjected to petty harassment by senior agency officials, which interferes with their ability to serve their clients and to freely give testimony.¹

The Government attorneys have also stated that they will not "make policy" in the context of settlement, even if the ad hoc and ambiguous policy they now defend is at odds with both the Attorney General and INS Commissioner's intensive campaign to promote citizenship and the Administration's articulated desire to soften the harsh effects of welfare reform. The victims of this policy are lawful immigrants who are disabled or elderly.

Even if the impending interim rule establishes a streamlined and uniform process for documenting a disability and determining who qualifies for a waiver, it is not expected to resolve an equally fundamental problem: Processing applicants with severe developmental disabilities, including interview questions about their capacity or willingness to take the oath. This would mean providing reasonable accommodations for the full range of disabilities and impairments or modification of the application and interview/examination process and reconciling the oath requirement with the liberalized purpose of Congress' waiver statute.

¹ One attorney affiant was advised by the Los Angeles INS District Deputy Director, on the very afternoon of a court hearing on the pending motions, that she could no longer attend meetings of the Los Angeles Naturalization Advisory Committee. Similarly, the Chicago Acting INS District Director informed the Illinois immigrant and refugee coalition's citizenship task force that he would not attend the December meeting of that body if task force member affiants from the Polish American Association, Travelers and Immigrants Aid and World Relief were also present.

LEGAL BACKGROUND

1. The Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended prescribes the requirements for naturalization. 8 U.S.C. §§ 1401 et seq. Among other things, applicants are required to pass an English language test and an American history and government examination. 8 U.S.C. § 1423. Prior to becoming citizens, applicants must take an oath of allegiance and renunciation in a public or expedited ceremony. 8 U.S.C. § 1448.

2. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, 29 U.S.C. § 794 is applied to the Department of Justice. It provides, in pertinent part, that:

No otherwise qualified individual with a disability in the United States, as defined in [29 U.S.C. § 706(8)], shall, solely by reason of her or his disability, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity . . . conducted by any Executive agency."

3. The Immigration and Nationality Technical Corrections Act of 1994 (§ 108(d)), 8 U.S.C. § 1423(b)(1) In 1994, creates a waiver of the tests for applicants with disabilities such that the English language and history and government requirements "shall not apply to any person who is unable because of physical or developmental disability or mental impairment to comply therewith." In adopting the Technical Corrections Act, Congress sought "to promote the acquisition of U.S. citizenship by relaxing or eliminating certain burdensome and unreasonable testing and residency requirements." Hse. Comm'ee on the Judiciary, Hse. Rep. No. 103-387 at 3-4.

4. The INS Associate Commissioner issues an intra-agency memorandum on November 21, 1995 to INS District Directors and other field directors and officers providing "preliminary guidance" on the agency's interpretation of the waiver. The guidance memo states that it was the intent of Congress to grant a "general waiver" of the testing requirements, but that applicants must still meet all other requirements of naturalization. The memo instructs adjudications officers to apply the waiver on a case-by-case basis.

5. The INS Commissioner and Attorney General are sued for not implementing the disability waiver. Chow v. Meissner, No. C-96 2422 SI (N. Dist. Calif.)

6. INS publishes a proposed rule on August 28, 1996 which focuses on the requirements for medical certifications and the professionals who should be designated to make the certifications. It makes broad, non-specific references to reasonable accommodations for applicants and is silent with regard to the oath of allegiance. 61 Fed. Reg. 44,222.

SECTION 504 REQUIRES REASONABLE ACCOMMODATIONS OR MODIFICATIONS

As a federal agency, the INS is bound by § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, to provide modifications to enable persons with disabilities to benefit from its programs, including naturalization. Reasonable modifications may include, without limitation, wheelchair-accessible test sites, sign language interpreters, Braille material -- as well as modifications in the naturalization test format or test administration procedures. The principle of reasonable modification also is applicable to the administration of the oath of allegiance.

The accommodation or modification for applicants with developmental disabilities could include a facilitator for someone who is unable to express a willingness to take the oath (e.g., someone who knows a developmentally disabled person well and can assist that person in communication with others and with comprehension of a complex situation). See e.g., Technical Assistance Manual to Title II of the ADA, II-3.6100, Illus. 2 at p. 14 (Dept. of Justice 1993).

Similarly, if the Service were to determine that the applicant does not understand the "purpose and responsibilities of the naturalization procedures," 8 C.F.R. Pt. 316.12(a), an applicant's family members or professional contacts (social workers, teachers, or guardians) could attest through sworn statements that the applicant is unable to fully understand the oath, but would nonetheless be able to abide by it. An alternative accommodation would be for the applicant's family to establish a temporary or limited conservatorship, with the conservator attesting to the applicant's obligations set forth in the oath.

Modifications such as these could be accomplished by the INS without undue administrative burden or fundamental alteration of the naturalization process. See, 28 C.F.R. Pt. 39.150(a). Moreover, reasonable accommodation is necessary to ensure that applicants are able to participate in the naturalization process and enjoy the benefits and privileges that flow from citizenship.

PLAINTIFF PROFILES

M.C. immigrated from Hong Kong in 1969 and worked as a janitor. She is 85 years old and has been diagnosed with multi-infra dementia. M.C. applied for naturalization in April 1994 and almost one year later was scheduled for an INS interview, which she attended with her daughter. After showing the INS officer a letter from M.C.'s doctor and requesting a disability waiver, the daughter was told the waiver did not exist and was not allowed to accompany her mother into the interview room. M.C. was informed that she failed her interview because she could not communicate in English. In December 1995, however, M.C. received a written denial stating that she failed to satisfy the knowledge of history and government requirement. M.C. appealed the denial in January 1996 and appeared for a hearing in February 1996. She again requested a disability waiver and was told that the waiver did not exist and that she needed to satisfy the English literacy requirements. INS denied her appeal on the ground that she had failed to satisfy the English literacy requirements. M.C. was not aware that there was a procedure to reopen her case and was told that her appeal was the final step in her naturalization application. After she joined the lawsuit, M.C. received a letter stating her file would be reopened for reconsideration and that she would be requested to appear at another interview.

British national L.K.L. has mental retardation. She failed her first citizenship interview in October 1995 and was told by INS officers to return for an interview in February 1996. Between interviews, she received private tutoring to help her pass the tests. At the end of her second interview, L.K.L. came into the waiting room in tears. Her sister-in-law claims INS officers told her, "it looked like L-- K--'s whole family was trying to force her to become a citizen." L.K.L. was told not to contact INS in any way, but to await instructions on how to proceed. Her application was approved shortly after she and other plaintiffs filed suit.

M.H.C. of South Korea appeared for her May 1996 interview. Her caseworker had written to INS when she applied a year earlier describing her mental disability. She also presented a letter from her Stanford University neurologist. INS officers told M.H.C. she needed to return after two months with a letter from one of the agency's designated doctors. When her attorney asked to see this requirement in writing, he was told the "internal memo" could not be released. She was approved after the suit was filed.

M. R-B. of Mexico went to her INS interview in January 1996 and was told to return with a doctor's letter. No one advised her the letter had to be from a doctor on the INS' designated list. M. R.-B. provided a letter in March 1996 from a state agency physician stating that she had mental retardation and a seizure disorder, but has not been interviewed again.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

8 CFR § 237.1(a)

I hereby declare, on oath, that I absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, of whom or which I have heretofore been a subject or citizen; that I will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States of America against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I will bear arms on behalf of the United States when required by the law; that I will perform noncombatant service in the Armed Forces of the United States when required by the law; that I will perform work of national importance under civilian direction when required by the law; and that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; so help me God.
