- II. Memo to the President re: LA Convention Host Committee Dinner*
 - a. Dinner guest list*
- III. California Political Affairs Memo to the President*

MEMORANDUM

To: Mrs. Clinton

Fr: Howard, Cathie, Finney and Karen

Re: The Tonight Show

Tomorrow, you are scheduled to appear on the Tonight Show with host Jay Leno. Mavis, Jay's wife, has been active in speaking out against the Taliban in Afghanistan. His wife and others have met with the President, and you have talked about this topic at human rights events, saluting the work of Jay's wife and others. (She is not a contributor.)

You will arrive at 4:15 at NBC studio and proceed to the dressing room where you will sit for hair and make-up touchups. Before the show, Jay and his producer Dave Berg will visit you in the dressing room and go over the questions with you. They are extremely interested in making you comfortable and making sure the show goes well so if you think a joke or question won't work, they won't use it.

A key part of your segment will be the Hil-walking video you have taped. The tape will be edited in their studios tomorrow and, if you would like, they will show you the segment so you can see what you are setting up.

The show starts at around 5pm with Jay's monologue and comedy material. Toward the end of the monologues, Jay will tell the audience that you will be on the show later. Following the commercial break, Jay will do his Jay-walking schtick - he will be asking people about politicians and political parties. Generally, what they find is that people know far more about pop culture than they know about history and politics.

After another commercial break, Jay will introduce you and you will walk on stage left. Jay will walk over to greet you and walk with you to the desk. He will sit at the desk and you will sit in the chair to his immediate right. You will be on the program for two segments, which will run 12-14 minutes total, including the Hil-walking.

At the end of your appearance, Jay will say that he knows you have to go because you are working on your important speech for the convention, you and he will stand up and Jay will escort you out the way you came in.

After you leave, the guests who follow you on the show are Maria Bello, an actress in the new movie Coyote Ugly and musical guest Victoria Williams, a Jazz/Folk singer.

You should note that Karenna Gore-Schiff and Kristin Gore will be on the show Monday, and Tipper will appear on Wednesday.

2000 SENATE RACE

Feinstein Holds Big Lead Over Campbell

According to a Research 2000 poll conducted July 17-19, Senator Dianne Feinstein (D) holds a 57% to 34% lead over Rep. Tom Campbell (R) amongst decided voters in the race for U.S. Senate. Feinstein's lead is strongest among women, where she leads 65% to 24%. Campbell has come under attack for his poor Congressional voting record. Campbell has missed 53% of the 428 floor votes in the House since January -- the worst voting attendance record of any member in Congress. In contrast, Feinstein has missed only one out of 218 Senate votes this year.

As expected, Feinstein far outdistanced her Republican rival in the March 7th open primary vote, besting Campbell 51%-23%. Feinstein easily won her first race for U.S. Senate in 1992, but barely survived an enormously costly race in 1994 against former Rep. Michael Huffington (R). Both Feinstein and Campbell are pro choice and pull from the same political base of moderates and independent voters. Campbell was successful at earning a fair amount of media coverage during the recent Republican convention portraying himself as a moderate Republican who is willing to buck the conservative Republican platform on issues such as abortion rights. Many believe Campbell is running against Feinstein simply to gain name recognition and position himself to run in 2004 against Senator Barbara Boxer (D).

2000 CONGRESSIONAL RACES

In an election year in which control of the U.S. House of Representatives is at stake, California is home to more competitive races than any other state. At least eight of the state's 52 congressional races are close. Three seats held by Republicans are toss-ups. Some analysts believe that in California, Democrats could gain half of the six seats they need to take back control of the House. A California Field Poll taken between June 9 and June 18 found 47% of voters backed Democrats in local congressional races to 35% who favor Republicans and 18% who have no opinion. In four of the races discussed below – CA-15, CA-27, CA-36, and CA-49 – from February 7-June 21, new Democratic voter registration exceeded the number of new Republican voters. Looking down the road, based on preliminary census returns, California can expect to get at least one extra Congressional District and possibly two seats.

13th House District: Rep. Elton Gallegly (R), 8th term

According to the most recent FEC report, attorney Michael Case (D) has raised a total of $413,100 and has $261,204 cash on hand, compared to Rep. Elton Gallegly who has raised $777,327 this cycle and has $1,040,872 cash on hand. Case owes $62,000 and Gallegly owes $12,764. Gallegly has not faced serious opposition for several elections, but Case is emerging as a serious threat.

15th House District, Open Seat

A Public Opinion Strategies (R) poll conducted June 14-15 for State Assemblyman Jim Cunneen (R) in his race against Assemblyman Mike Honda (D) found 36% in support of Cunneen to Honda's 32%, and 32% undecided. However, a DCCC poll conducted June 9-13 on behalf of Honda (D), found contradictory results: in a general election match-up Honda leads Cunneen 40%-33% with a third party candidate at 9% and 18% undecided.

In the March primary, Honda defeated Cunneen 39%-33%, garnering 10,000 more votes than Cunneen. Both candidates are pro-choice and are moderates on most social issues including gay/lesbian rights and guns. The most recent federal campaign reports showed Honda with $201,000 cash on hand to Cunneen's $405,000. The race is considered a toss up.

20th House District: Cal Dooley (D), 4th term

In this Democratic-leaning district in California's Central Valley, Republicans are targeting Rep. Cal Dooley (D). Republicans recruited a popular Latino TV news anchor Rich Rodriguez (R), sent him to candidate school, paid for a poll and imported his staff. In the March blanket primary, Dooley earned 52.2% of the vote to Rodriguez's (R) 45.3%. In April, the Republican National Committee ran 30-second television spots in English and Spanish aimed at Latinos.

Recent FEC reports show Rodriguez with $230,000 cash on hand to Dooley's $659,851. Recently, Rodriguez's campaign had help from visits by three Republican members of Congress. The National Republican Congressional Committee is considering whether to use a recent court decision as an excuse to proceed against FEC warnings and exceed spending limits for the race which would mean substantially more money for Rodriguez. Dooley has sent a letter to Rodriguez asking him not to violate campaign finance laws and try to buy the election, but Rodriguez is ignoring it. A sign of the increasing bitterness in this campaign is both sides have said that complaints have or will be filed with the Federal Elections Committee. Dooley has been accused of accepting an illegal $10,000 contribution and charges that his opponent has accepted more than one dozen illegal donations.

22nd House District: Lois Capps (D), 3rd term

On Wednesday, House Speaker J. Dennis Hastert stumped in Santa Barbara for congressional candidate and former Santa Barbara County supervisor Mike Stoker (R) in his race against Rep. Lois Capps (D). A Wilson Research Strategies (R) poll conducted May 31 found that of the 45% of people who have formed an opinion of Capps and her opponent, Stoker leads 51% to 43%. However, the same poll found amongst all voters Capps, leads Stoker 45%-37%, with 17% undecided. Capps easily outdistanced Stoker in the March 7 open primary 55%-38%. Stoker had a primary challenger while Capps did not, but Capps captured a good amount of Republican votes, suggesting that her base is secure. Both candidates are pro-choice. At the end of June, Capps reported $ 765,853 cash on hand to Stoker's $187,744 . Following her vote granting PNTR status to China, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters revoked its endorsement of Capps. This race leans Democratic.

27th House District: James Rogan (R), 2nd term

On Tuesday, Rep. James Rogan (R) launched an ad portraying himself as a backer of school reform. The Rogan ad is in response to ads started last month and financed by the California Democratic Party that attack Rogan on his vote against hiring 100,000 new teachers for local schools. Both the American Federation of Teachers and the National Education Association have endorsed Rogan's challenger, State Senator Adam Schiff (D). In the March 7 open primary, Schiff proved he will be a strong challenger to Rep. James Rogan (R), garnering 49% of the vote to Rogan's 47%.

An internal poll conducted in July by the Feldman Group, Inc. for the Schiff campaign found 42% said they would support Schiff to Rogan's 38%, with 15% undecided.

According to the most recent FEC reports, Rogan, who has already raised more than any congressional candidate in the country, has already spent $3.5 million. Rogan and Schiff now have virtually identical cash-on-hand, with Rogan having $1.2 million and Schiff $1.1 million. On July 20, the AFL-CIO began running a week-long $13,000 ad campaign on local channels attacking Rogan's record on the issue of prescription drugs for seniors. On June 27, YOU attended a fundraiser for Schiff in Washington, D.C. that raised $250,000. While the 27th district has traditionally leaned Democratic, the race is considered a toss up.

36th House District: Stephen Kuykendall (R), 1st term

The race between incumbent Rep. Steven Kuykendall (R) and former Rep. Jane Harman (D), who is trying to regain her former seat, is considered a toss-up, in part because Kuykendall was one of four victors in 1998 to win with less than 50% of the vote.

Both candidates have brought big-name sponsors into the district. On June 1, Senator John McCain (R-AZ) appeared at a fundraiser for Kuykendall, which netted $70,000 and he promised to return this fall. On April 29, Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala stumped with Harman.

Harman cruised to the Democratic nomination, but fell short in an open primary matchup against Kuykendall 40%-42%. Harman, after spending only $30,000 to Kuykendall's $200,000. As of June 30, Harman reported her campaign had raised $1,205,085 to Kuykendall's $1,136,284. Harman also reported $1,205,085 cash on hand to Kuykendall's $1,136,000.

38th House District: Steve Horn (R), 4th term

According to the June 30 FEC report, Gerrie Schipske (D) has $105,564 cash in hand and has raised $274,191, thus exceeding her goal of $100,000 and $200,000 respectively, granting the necessary credibility she needed in her race against Rep. Steve Horn (R). Horn, however, has $387,858 cash on hand. Schipske is a nurse practitioner and an open lesbian. This race is currently on the DCCC watch list.

49th House District: Brian Bilbray (R), 3rd term

In the 49th district State Assemblywoman Susan Davis (D) is taking on three-term incumbent Rep. Brian Bilbray (R). Although Bilbray has twice won this seat with less than 50% of the vote, the race still leans Republican. Davis previously reported raising an estimated $511,000 through the end of 1999, which was nearly double the pre-election year receipts of any challenger who won a House seat in the 1998 cycle. In the March 7th open primary, Davis earned 46% of the popular vote to Bilbray's 50%, despite Bilbray's spending approximately $200,000 on TV commercials and direct mail. At the end of March, Davis reported $559,000 cash on hand to Bilbray's $605,000.

On June 1, U.S. Senator John McCain (R-AZ) appeared at a fundraiser for Bilbray that netted $100,000. Through June 30 FEC reports show that Bilbray has $909,307 cash on hand to Davis' $829,495. On June 22, YOU attended a fundraiser in San Diego on behalf of the Davis campaign that raised $150,000.

On July 12, ABC Channel 10 released a poll on the race showing the race is a dead heat: Davis 44%, Bilbray 44%, undecided 11%.

HOT ISSUES

Energy woes top state Legislative agenda

On Monday, state legislators returned from their summer break to find a new problem to the topping the state legislative agenda: an energy crisis. Threats of blackouts and the doubling of electricity bills are being widely predicted in the media. Four years ago the Legislature decided to deregulate the state's huge electric service system. With skyrocketing rates and a shortage of power plants to meet the demands of a booming economy, lawmakers must grapple with how to remedy the situation before the November election. San Diego, the first place in the nation to get market-rate has been hardest hit by the increases, with the average electric bill climbing to over $120 per month. Last week, Gov. Gray Davis (D) ordered all state agencies to speed up consideration of new power plants. Senator Dianne Feinstein (D) has called for federal emergency action to broaden wholesale power price caps.

Waters, Conyers attack Davis on Racial Profiling

On Monday, Reps. Maxine Waters (D) and John Conyers (D) vowed to attack Gov. Gray Davis' (D) racial profiling stance during the Democratic National Convention. Waters and Conyers issued a statement saying that Davis' veto last year of a measure aimed at discouraging the practice and his support this year of what critics call a weak bill, threaten efforts to eradicate racial profiling in the seven states that have strong laws. The statement came prior to Tuesday's demonstration at the state capitol by several civil rights groups there to protest the current bill pending in the Legislature. The bill fails to require law enforcement officers collect data on the race of drivers stopped and searched by police.

Los Angeles City Council OKs Settlement in Rampart Case

On Tuesday, the Los Angeles City Council agreed Tuesday to pay $580,000 to a man who served eight months in jail after he was allegedly framed by two former police officers in the biggest settlement to date from the unfolding Rampart Police Division scandal. The council voted unanimously to settle the case with Miguel Hernandez, who says two officers planted a gun on him. The case is expected to be one of many related lawsuits settled in the coming months. City Attorney James Hahn (D) estimates the total liability resulting from police misconduct in Rampart cases could exceed $125 million. In April, the city council agreed to pay $231,000 to Ismael Jimenez, and 18th Street gang member who allegedly was beaten in the Rampart station by an officer who was subsequently fired over the incident. There are more than 60 cases and 59 claims still pending against the city related to alleged police misconduct in the Rampart division.

Governor Davis Nominates Retired Judge to Fill Insurance Post

On July 31, Governor Gray Davis (D) nominated retired Judge Harry Low (D) to be the state's next insurance commissioner and announced that Low's first priority will be to review Northridge earthquake claims. Low replaces Insurance Commissioner Chuck Quackenbush (R), who resigned on June 28 rather than face mounting evidence that he abused his post by using millions in insurance industry settlement dollars to enhance his political career. Quackenbush is now under investigation criminal wrongdoing by a task force made up of federal, state and local prosecutors. Davis said he picked Low to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Chuck Quackenbush (R) because he believes that Low will restore credibility to an agency tarnished by scandal. If his nomination is confirmed by both houses of the Legislature, Low will become the highest-ranking Asian American in California government. Low has said that he would consider running for the office in 2002 when the current term ends, but he also promised that he would not take political contributions while he holds the post.

Candidates for L.A. Mayor Have Already Raised $6 Million

On July 31, the five major candidates running for mayor of Los Angeles in April 2001 filed campaign finance reports that show their combined campaign contributions have exceeded $6 million. While businessman Steve Soboroff (R) remains the most successful fundraiser with over $2 million raised so far, and $1.28 million cash on hand compared to $1.45 million that City

Attorney James Hahn (D) has on hand. Hahn has raised a total of $1.6 million of which a million was raised since the beginning of this year. Antonio Villaraigosa (D) has also built significant fundraising momentum this year, out-raising Soboroff in the first half of this year, pulling in over $1.2 million, $600,000 of which he has raised since he relinquished his post as speaker of the California Assembly on April 15. Councilman Joel Wachs (I), who could become the first openly gay mayor of a city as large as Los Angeles, has raised $860,000, 10% of which was raised from the gay community. Rep. Xavier Becerra (D) raised $587,851 and has a cash balance of $556,000, in addition to more than $360,000 in his congressional campaign account. The City of Los Angeles limits campaign spending to $1,000 for individuals and political action committees and caps spending at $2.2 million overall. Candidates can also qualify for $667,000 in matching funds from the city. Mayor Richard Riordan (R) is serving in his second term and is prevented by city law from seeking a third term.

A Los Angeles Times poll conducted from March 29 through April 5 found none of the candidates have made much of an impression, and most registered voters confess they have no opinions about the bulk of the field.

Governor Davis on Pace Towards Fundraising Record

On July 31, Governor Gray Davis (D) reported that he has raised nearly $21.4 million for his reelection campaign since taking office in January 1999, which is four times more than his predecessor, former Governor Pete Wilson (R), raised in his first 18 months in office. Davis has raised $8.1 million so far this year, putting him on pace to beat the record setting $13.2 million he raised last year. Some have criticized Davis' fundraising, using to call for limits on campaign contributions, but Davis' supporters note that during his 1998 campaign for governor, his primary and general election opponents spent a combined $60 million. The campaign report also showed that Davis donated $110,000 to nine Democratic candidates in key state legislative races. The second highest fund-raiser in the state is Senate President Pro Tem John Burton (D), who raised $2.3 million this year for the two campaign committees he controls, and Assembly Speaker Robert Hertzberg (D) has raised nearly $1.4 million so far this year. Burton and Hertzberg have the primary responsibility for raising money for the November state legislative races. Attorney General Bill Lockyer (D) reported $2.4 million in the bank. State Treasurer Phil Angelides (D) has $440,000 cash on hand, and Controller Kathleen Connell (D), who cannot seek reelection in 2002 due to term limits, reported $1.4 million in her treasury.

Governor Davis Asks Stations to Pull Pro-voucher Ad

On July 27, Governor Gray Davis (D) wrote to every television station in the state, asking them to refrain from airing an ad promoting Proposition 38, a school voucher initiative on the November 7 ballot. Davis said the ad unfairly suggests that he favors the proposition when in fact he strongly opposes it and is appearing in ads that oppose 38. Proposition 38 seeks to give parents a $4,000 publicly financed voucher to send one child to private school. The ad in question shows a clip from Davis' State of the State address to the Legislature last January, in which the governor criticizes public schools and promises action to fix them. Proposition 38 is sponsored by Silicon Valley venture capitalist Tim Draper. According to a Field Poll taken in June and released on June 28, 39% of voters were in favor of vouchers and 39% were opposed, with 22% undecided. The California Teachers' Association and other public-education advocates hope to raise about $20 million in opposition to Prop. 38. Both sides of the initiative are already airing television and radio ads throughout the state.

Supporters of School Bond Initiative Make an Early, Aggressive Start on Fundraising

According to campaign finance reports filed July 31, Proposition 39, the initiative on the November ballot to lower the voting threshold for local school construction bonds, has made an early and aggressive fund-raising start, bringing in more than $7.7 million since March. Of those funds, $6 million was loaned by Silicon Valley entrepreneur John Doerr, his wife, his firm, or associates in his firm. Another venture capitalist, Reed Hastings, chief executive officer of Netflix.com, loaned $1 million and said he would probably donate more. While Proposition 39 is very similar to Proposition 26, an initiative that voters rejected in March, 39 makes it easier to pass school bond initiatives by lowering the voting threshold to 55% instead of 2/3rd whereas Proposition 26 would have lowered it to a simple majority. Governor Gray Davis (D), the campaign chair, has been fundraising and plans to continue help bring in money. The campaign in favor of Proposition 39 began airing radio advertisements last month and plans to begin airing television commercials.

Los Angeles Officials Must Decide Whether to Accept Justice Department Plan

Federal authorities have finished presenting their reform plan for the scandal-plagued Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) after weeks of private meetings with city officials. City officials must now decide whether to adopt the proposed reforms or face a lawsuit claiming the LAPD has engaged in a pattern or practice of misconduct. Under the plan, LAPD would have to reform several major aspects of its own management, oversight, and discipline. The plan is controversial because it may prove costly to the city, and it would shift some power over LAPD decisions to the federal government.

Davis Signs $95 Billion State Budget, Includes Funds for Mental Health and Housing

On June 30, Governor Gray Davis (D) signed the largest budget in California history, a $95 billion spending plan for the fiscal year that provides a $2,000 increase in starting teacher salaries, $400 million to expand the state's Healthy Families program to benefit low-income children, and $319 million to help the elderly stay in their homes and to improve nursing home and at-home care. The budget also features $3.2 billion in tax cuts over the next two fiscal years.

Contribution Limits Initiative Set for Fall Ballot

On July 7, Governor Gray Davis (D) signed a campaign finance reform bill that overwhelmingly passed in the state Senate and the Assembly but was criticized by a variety of good-government lobbies for being weak. The legislation is subject to voter ratification as Proposition 34 on the November ballot. If approved, Proposition 34 would create voluntary limits; i.e. gubernatorial races would have a $16 million voluntary cap, starting in 2006. Prop. 34 would also limit an individual's contribution to $3,000 to a legislative candidate, $5,000 to a statewide candidate, and $20,000 to a gubernatorial candidate. In contrast, voter-approved Proposition 208 of 1996, which has been stymied by legal challenges, would restrict spending to $1,000 for all statewide races. Major political parties, unions, and several conservative groups filed suit in 1997, claiming Prop. 208 discriminates against certain candidates and restricts political speech. On July 11, the same federal judge who ruled Proposition 208 unconstitutional began hearing arguments in a second trial and scheduled final arguments until after the November election outcome on Prop. 34. California is one of only six states without limits on political donations.

California Voters Approve of President's Performance

According to a Field Poll taken June 9-13, 62% of California voters approve of the President's job performance and 29% disapprove. Another poll, conducted by the Los Angeles Times June 8-13, found that 55% of California's voters approve, and 41% disapprove.

Californians Favor a Moratorium on the Death Penalty

According to a Field Poll conducted June 9-18, 73% of Californians are in favor of Governor Gray Davis (D) halting executions until a study of its fairness has been carried out, compared to 17% who oppose a moratorium, and 10% who had no opinion. However, 63% of Californians remain in favor of the death penalty, compared to 30% who oppose it, and 7% with no opinion.

Davis' Approval Rating is High

According to a Field Poll released on June 23, 61% of Californians approve Governor Gray Davis' (D) job performance and 21% disapprove. These high marks come despite the fact that nearly half of Californians, including 43% of Democrats, believe that he makes decisions based on what is politically popular instead of his beliefs.

CONVENTION 2000

Four Arrested in Dramatic Los Angeles Demonstration

On Monday, two women scaled the 15-story downtown Figueroa Hotel and tried to unfurl a giant banner across from the Staples Center denouncing corporate dominance at the Democratic National Convention. The 1,500 square foot banner, modeled after the U.S. flag, had corporate logos in place of stars. Action Resource Center, Adbusters, Amazon Watch, Rainforest Action Network and Ruckus Society organized the protest. The two climbers and two others were arrested.

Los Angeles Allows Protests Closer to the Staples Center

On July 28, city officials, convention officials and lawyers representing demonstrators agreed to a proposal by the City of Los Angeles outlining boundaries for demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention. Under pressure from a federal judge and convention organizers, city officials reluctantly agreed to make sidewalks, streets, and a parking lot bordering Staples Center available for protesters. The agreement forces the city to rework its permit processes for parades and public displays, to keep Pershing Square open for demonstrations, and to build a stage for protesters outside the convention venue. The agreement comes in the wake of a federal court ruling that the large security area originally planned by Los Angeles officials for the Convention was overly broad and a violation of protesters' First Amendment rights.

Million Dollar Donation Bails out Convention Committee

On Tuesday, billionaire investor Ron Burkle made good on a long-standing $1 million pledge so the Democratic National Convention Host Committee could pay bills, including $869,000 for production services, that it might not have been able to pay otherwise. The Los Angeles Host Committee is contractually obligated to raise $35.3 million, of which $18 million must be in cash. The committee has raised $48 million—more than any convention committee in history. Public funding of the Convention totals only $7 million, less than one third of what Philadelphia's Republican Convention has received, and $2 million of the City of Los Angeles contribution will not be available until after the Convention.

Rep. Waters urges more minority contracts for Convention

On July 15, Rep. Maxine Waters (D) and several black business owners met with Democratic National Convention Chief Executive Officer Lydia Camarillo, demanding to know why the committee has not hired more minority-owned businesses. Those meeting with Camarillo said that only $3 million of the $13 million being spent on convention construction and related contracts were awarded to minority or women contractors. Camarillo said that 45% of convention-related contracts have been awarded to minority and women-owned businesses, and she noted that $3 million in contract money was deposited into three separate minority-owned banks last spring.

LAPD Warning Business Owners about Possible Convention Trouble

During a presentation on July 26, the Los Angeles police warned downtown businesses to prepare for the worst during the Democratic National Convention. Using videotape of the violent protests during the World Trade Organization meeting in Seattle to make their point, the police urged business owners to consider boarding up glass walls and windows, hiring additional security and stocking up on emergency provisions such as flashlights, food and water. At the request of businesses and property owners, eight police officers have been meeting with downtown workers over the last month to answer questions and give advice. Some estimate as many as 50,000 protesters will converge on Los Angeles, police say it's difficult to know how many will come or what they will do once they arrive. A coalition of activists has been trying to convince the public that nonviolent demonstrations, marches and acts of civil disobedience are planned and that fears about violence are overblown. However, officials said they have already found signs that anarchists from a national organization based in Oregon are in Los Angeles. Within the past few weeks, police have arrested a handful of people, all from Oregon, for taking pictures of downtown buildings from rooftops and other unusual places.

Labor Won't Join Protests at LA Convention

On Monday, Staples Center President Tim Liewecke signed a labor peace agreement with Miguel Contreras, Secretary-Treasurer of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO and representatives from a dozen unions with workers in the Center. While signing the agreement, Contreras said it would not stop local unions from participating in demonstrations. Contreras also stated that while national labor leaders have pledged not to have any massive disruptions of the convention, he believes many would come out and join various demonstrations saying, "I'm sure they want to show their support to co-workers." With about 8,000 members, the labor federation in Los Angeles is among the largest and fastest growing in the nation and has played an important role in electing Governor Gray Davis (D) and many state legislators. Organized labor also accounted for most of the estimated 45,000 protesters at the protests in Seattle. An estimated one-third of the convention delegates have ties to labor.

Democratic Donor's Labor Feud Potential Problem

Jonathan Tisch, a major contributor to the Vice President's campaign, is being vilified for opposing recent union efforts in Santa Monica, setting up a potentially embarrassing confrontation between labor and big money during the Democratic Convention. Tisch, the New York-based CEO of Loews Hotels, has been lampooned by puppeteers and found guilty in a mock trial by union protesters outside his Santa Monica hotel. The hotel is in a bitter fight with the Hotel and Employees and Restaurant Employees union, which is seeking to organize about 300 housekeepers and other service workers. Last week, activists were further incensed when financial statements revealed the hotel was the single largest contributor in an effort to stop a labor-backed living wage ordinance in Santa Monica. The situation is particularly difficult for members and donor friends of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee who are assigned rooms at the Loews during the convention. A DCCC spokesman said if the dispute is not resolved soon, the group will find other arrangements.

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Art Torres is Chairman of the California Democratic Committee. He served California as a State Senator from 1982-1994 and as a State Assemblyman from 1974-1982. During his 20-year tenure in the California State House, he was honored as Legislator of the Year by the California Organization of Police and Sheriffs and by the California School Boards Association. The state Democratic convention was held in San Jose February 11-13.
