MEMORANDUM

TO: Alexis Herman, OPL
FROM: Bob Seigny, DNC
RE: Events for the Disability Community
DATE: March 29, 1994

You asked for additional information on the two events for the disability community scheduled for May 2 that we previously discussed. Those events are: (1) a march over the Memorial Bridge to the Lincoln Memorial with a series of speeches planned at the Memorial; and (2) a proposed national disability teleconference on health care with the President or First Lady. Details on these events and relevant background information are set forth below:

1. Lincoln Memorial Event

General Outline: This event is designed to emphasize the importance of health care reform and long term care to people with disabilities and to help mobilize the grass roots in support of these goals. The President or First Lady would be asked to make a ten to fifteen minute speech on the impact/benefit of health care reform and long term care on people with disabilities. If we thought it would be useful, an opportunity to take select questions from the audience or meet with representatives from the grassroots of the community could be easily arranged.

Timing/Schedule: As currently planned, the march will begin at Arlington Cemetery and proceed across the Memorial Bridge at approximately 11:30 A.M. It is scheduled to arrive at the Lincoln Memorial at 12:40 P.M. Once the group arrives at the Lincoln Memorial there will be a series of speeches from approximately 1:00 P.M. until 2:00 P.M. The event organizers have provided a tentative schedule for the event (see attachment A) but have stated that they would make whatever adjustments are necessary to conform to the President's or the First Lady's schedule.

Sponsors/Participants: March is sponsored principally by three major groups:

- American Disabled for Attendant Programs Today (ADAPT), a national grassroots disability organization that will come to Washington to demonstrate in favor of health care reform and long term care. ADAPT was in Washington last summer for a march for attendant care services and met with HHS Secretary Schalala.
- National Council on Independent Living (NCIL), perhaps the preeminent national grass roots organization of and by people with disabilities with Independent Living Centers serving people with disabilities in virtually every major metropolitan area in the nation;
- National Rehabilitation Association (NRA), a national organization of persons working in rehabilitation and employment services for persons with disabilities.
- In addition, most national disabilities organizations have national offices and local chapters or affiliates that will be participating in support of this event. If the President were to agree to speak at the Lincoln Memorial the organizers of this event would seek additional sponsors from major disability organizations and other groupings including the Long Term Care Campaign, AARP, and the Health Care Reform Project.

Other Invited Guests: Event organizers have invited Senator Edward Kennedy, Senator Tom Harkin, Representative Major Owens, Representative Pat Schroeder, and Justin Dart to address the audience.

Crowd Size: As currently envisioned, without the President or First Lady, the march is expected to attract approximately 2,300 people. If the President or First Lady were to appear and sufficient advance notice of that fact was given (three to four weeks) crowd size could be substantially increased with cooperation from key organizations in the community. In addition, Justin Dart has offered to commit up to $10,000 to rent busses to bring people in from nearby communities. Other groups could also be expected to commit resources to bring people in to hear the President.

Media Coverage: March organizers have an excellent track record in attracting media coverage in Washington and have hired media person to work this event. Prime Time Live from ABC and HBO Cable have already committed to cover this event. They have also been very successful in the past in obtaining coverage on CNN. Event organizers have already contacted all local and national media and they will arrange for radio, TV and print media interviews in advance of the main group of arriving in Washington. They will work with invited speakers media people to maximize media coverage. In addition, event planners intend to videotape the entire event and distribute the video tape throughout the community in support of health care reform. Clearly, news that the President or First Lady would address this group would tremendously increase media coverage of the event.

*Positive Considerations: This will almost certainly be one of if not the largest disability event ever held even without the participation of the President or the First Lady. With their participation the event would clearly break all records for this community and would be an excellent vehicle for reaching via free media people with disabilities all across the nation. The audience will be composed of leaders and grassroots activists from the disability community from virtually every state and significant disability organization in the country including many people who would never otherwise have the opportunity to see or hear the President or the First Lady. Opportunities for media coverage will be very good. Event participants will spend the remainder of their time in Washington demonstrating in favor of health reform or lobbying members of Congress in support of health reform and long term care.

*Concerns: Even with a very large crowd by disability community standards (5,000 to 10,000 people) the crowd at the Lincoln Memorial may look small to TV cameras that may cover the event thus diminishing its potential impact. Weather is another imponderable for such a large outdoor event although the event is scheduled to occur rain or shine. Finally, with a crowd this size, it is certainly possible that there may be some people opposed to actions by the President. This is particularly the case if it is perceived that the President has consented or acquiesced to the elimination of long term care from the health care plan. Event organizers have, however, given their word that there will be no negative incidents. With this in mind, the organizers have already told Act Up that they will not be permitted to participate in either the march or the Lincoln Memorial event.

2. National Town Meeting for People with Disabilities

This event was apparently conceived of as either an alternative to or a supplement to the march and Lincoln Memorial event to attract the President or First Lady. The idea is again that it is critically important for the President or the First Lady to address the interests or concerns of people with disabilities to enable us to mobilize the grassroots of the community in support of the community. While few specific details on this proposal have been set, it appears that preliminary discussions were held between Pat Wright and Senator Kennedy's office and with Senator Harkin's staff. No commitments seem to have been made but there was apparently interest in the proposal. In addition, Justin Dart has reserved a large committee room in the Hart Senate Office Building on May 2 that was used for hearings on the American's with Disabilities Act.

The concept is that the audience would be composed of a representative group of people with disabilities (leaders and grassroots) from all over the country that had come to Washington for the Lincoln Memorial event or other disability events occurring around that time. The audience size could number several hundred in the room that has been reserved.

The format would probably be to have the President or First Lady give a brief introduction and overview of the health care and long term care and then allow questions and interaction from the studio audience and from persons at satellite down and up link locations across the country. If Senators Kennedy and Harkin were to participate in this event, they would presumably be given the opportunity to make brief opening statements and also respond to questions. Length of the event would probably be either an hour or an hour and a half.

Down link sites could be set up across the country to permit the principals to interact with a large national audience. Additionally, if the President or First Lady were to agree to appear, discussions would begin with C-Span and other TV networks to arrange for the broadest possible national airing of this event. Finally, the entire event would be videotaped for distribution in the disability community.

Positive Considerations: The event would have the possibility of reaching a very wide national audience in the disability community. The audience and the questions could be carefully screened so there would be very little likelihood of an embarrassing situation. The room could easily be packed with people so there would be no concerns that the event would look small relative to other events conducted for other constituency groups. Also, there would be no concerns about weather impairing the event. This event would allow the President or the First Lady to directly address and energize the "grassroots" and leadership of the disability community on this critically important issue. This would be an unprecedented event that would clearly indicate the President's interest in this community and that he shares their concerns on this and other important issues.

Concerns: Clearly, the consensus of the disability community is that it is vital to have an event with the President or the First Lady on the subject of health care regardless of where the ultimate location is or what forum is chosen. However, holding this town meeting event on the same day as the Lincoln Memorial event could be viewed as undercutting a large grass roots event and slighting some of those who traveled to Washington, at great cost and difficulty, to participate. If the decision is made to choose the televised national town meeting format over the Lincoln Memorial event, one solution to this problem could be to simply hold it on another date either shortly before or after the march or in the morning of the day on the day of the since timing would not be as critical for a teleconference.

March Participants:

The march participants will be comprised of four different groups;

1. American Disabled for Attendant Programs Today, (ADAPT) members who have come from twenty-eight states to advocate for health care issues related to disability such as personal assistance services.

ADAPT is a grassroots disability rights organization headquartered in Denver with approximately five thousand members in thirty-three states.

ADAPT anticipates having five hundred members attending the march.

2. National Council for Independent Living, (NCIL) members will be holding their annual convention in Bethesda, Maryland.

NCIL is an organization of four hundred Independent Living Center directors and staff who provide services and advocacy directors.

NCIL will have approximately eight hundred members attend the march.

3. The National Rehabilitation Association, (NRA) will be holding their annual convention in Washington D.C..

NRA has over five thousand members who are employed in rehabilitation and employment services for people with disability.

NRA will have approximately five hundred members attend the march.

4. The Local Disability Community at large are individuals with disabilities who live within one hundred and fifty miles of Washington D.C.. As was the case with the ADA March the local community turned out in large numbers.

The Local Disability Community will have approximately five hundred people attend the march.

It is clear that the Bridge to Freedom March will be the largest disability event ever.

STATE OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
AUSTIN, TEXAS 78711

ANN W. RICHARDS
GOVERNOR

March 24, 1994

The Honorable William Jefferson Clinton
The President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing in support of the provisions for home and community-based care, including attendant services, in your health reform bill.

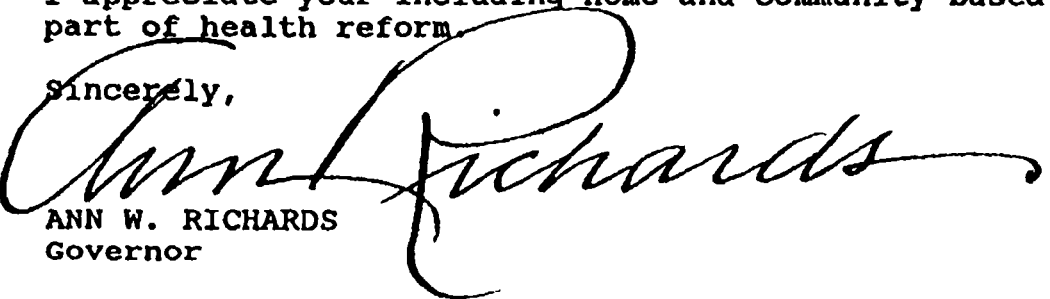

As you know, today's federal programs and health insurance policies have an institutional bias so people too often are forced into a hospital or nursing home to get the services they need. Living in an institution is usually more costly, and most people would choose to live in their own home rather than enter a hospital or nursing facility. They should have that choice.

In Texas, we are implementing a Medicaid waiver to allow people to receive community-based services rather than being forced into nursing facilities. But to make community-based services available to everyone, we need for them to be covered under the national health reform bill.

Representatives of the national ADAPT organization have requested a meeting with you in May. Members of the Texas chapter of ADAPT are committed and effective supporters of community services, and I believe they can have an impact on national health reform. I hope you can meet with their representatives.

I appreciate your including home and community-based care as a part of health reform.

Sincerely,

ANN W. RICHARDS
Governor

FREE OUR PEOPLE

MEDIA:

ADAPT over the past ten years has a long and successful history with the Washington print and visual media. ADAPT has built a local and national credibility with the media.

ADAPT is already in contact with the D.C. media in preparation for our arrival in May. Primetime from ABC and HBO Cable have both committed to follow the events surrounding ADAPT's presence in Washington. All the local and national media have been contacted once. We are now arranging for radio, TV, and Newspaper interviews prior to the main body of ADAPT arriving.

ADAPT will have one person assigned to media relations. Our media specialist has been dealing with the D.C. and national media for more than five years.

ADAPT's media specialist will begin daily contacting the D.C. media approximately two weeks prior to our arrival. At that time we will begin to publicize the May 2, 1994 March.

ADAPT will work with our invited speakers media liaison to insure the maximum media saturation.

PARTICIPANTS

ADAPT has invited Senator Kennedy, Representative Owens, Justin Dart and Representative Shroeder to speak to the disability community attending the march and events at the Lincoln Memorial on May 2, 1994.

At this time not all of our speakers have confirmed their appearance. If the President or the First Lady accept their invitation we will adjust the schedule to accommodate theirs. ADAPT will make any accommodations necessary to our program to permit the President or First Lady to address the crowd.

All speakers will be addressing Health Care Reform and its effects on people with disabilities.

MEMORANDUM FOR OPL STAFF

FROM: Debbie Fine

SUBJECT: Attached FYI

Attached is a summary of most of the OPL health care projects from April/May; it is based on a document compiled by Chris Lin. Most of the groups, with the exception of businesses, that were involved in the activities described have already received it. It is possible, however, that there are omissions, so if there are changes you want to suggest, please let me know. Otherwise, it might be worthwhile getting to some of the groups you work with to demonstrate the level of activity that has been generated.

Thanks.

APRIL/MAY RETROSPECTIVE

As the legislative debate on national health care reform intensifies, national organizations and business associations have brought thousands of their members into Washington D.C. to educate them and to mobilize them around health care reform. They have set up hundreds of meetings with their Representatives in Congress, and generated national and regional media in support of comprehensive health care reform that achieves universal coverage.

LEGISLATIVE CONFERENCES AND OTHER EVENTS

Following are legislative conferences, events at the White House and lobby days that either the President, the Vice President, the First Lady or the Second Lady addressed in April and May:

STATE OPINION LEADER DAYS

Many organizations helped identify supporters and leaders in Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kansas and California who came to the White House for a series of briefings on health care from the political, legislative and communications perspectives. Approximately fifty individuals came from each state, generating regional media and educating and activating people at the local level.

Dear 4~:

As a committed supporter of the Democratic National Committee and the Clinton/Gore administration, I know that you understand the core elements of health care reform which the President is seeking.

We are now entering the important committee mark up process. At this critical juncture it is important that those who support the President in his objectives speak out in as many ways as possible. I hope that you will consider contacting your Member of Congress to support the principles of reform, universal coverage to assure health security to all Americans, choice, insurance reform, enhanced Medicare coverage, and employer responsibility.

You can also help by writing a letter to the editor of your local newspaper, an op-ed piece, and/or appearing on TV and talk radio expressing your support for health security for all Americans and the President's principals. Sharing your views with your peers and employees is, of course, very important also.

In addition, I have enclosed some key pieces of information on the plan, and we would be pleased to send further information if that would be helpful.

I welcome your comments and suggestions, as well as your feedback concerning this important issue. Should you need to contact me please feel free to call me at (202) 863 8137. I would also find it helpful to receive a copy of any op-ed or letter to the editor, or other communication you may make at my fax number which is (202) 863 8140.

Thank you for your continuing support of the President and his administration.

Sincerely yours,

MEMORANDUM FOR GREG LAWLER, ALEXIS HERMAN, JERRY KLEPNER, AND MELANNE VERVEER

FROM: Mike Lux

SUBJECT: Ideas on a Doctors Strategy

In continuing to think about the need for an aggressive providers strategy, I have come back around to the conclusion that the need is really for a physicians -- specific strategy. The individual and institutional non-physician providers community, with the important exceptions of the for-profit hospitals and nursing homes, are not only supportive but actively engaged. Some examples:

- The American Nurses Association has been one of the most visible and aggressive pro-reform groups at the grassroots level.
- The Social Workers and Psychologists have hired field organizers and are effectively plugging into Health Care Reform Project efforts in targeted districts. Both are helping on the entire bill, not just the mental health provisions.
- The Home Care and Hospice people are contributing real money to the Health Care Reform Project, and are running television ads and doing field work through the "Healthright" organization.
- Catholic Hospitals are mounting an aggressive campaign on behalf of the employer mandate and the plan in general.
- AHA was the first group to sign on to the new employer mandate coalition. AHA has already spent $2,000,000 on pro-employer mandate television ads, and have even muted their criticism of medicare cuts.
- Pharmacists, as you know, have been extremely helpful in a variety of ways.

All of the above organizations except AHA and the Pharmacists are active members of HCRP, and by all accounts are fully cooperating with their coordinated field and media efforts. Given all of this, I feel satisfied that the non-physician provider community is by and large doing everything they can to help us on health reform.

The problem, as it has been for many months, is with physicians. For many reasons -- among them, the pressure the AMA is able to bring to bear since most members of supportive doctor organizations are also members of the AMA; the fact that most doctors are relatively conservative and Republican; the fact that these are still some real areas of substantive disagreement between us and all of the major physician groups -- we have never been able to get allied doctor organizations organized into a truly effective fighting force. And it is not as if there has not been a concerted administration-wide effort to do so, including:

- The Koop forums
- A large investment of Hillary Rodham Clinton's time
- A massive investment of Ira Magaziner's time
- A large investment of my time
- A large investment of Melanne Verveer's time
- For a while, two staff people (Lynn and Simone) devoted to servicing their needs
- More physician briefings (by far) than for any other constituency
- The Health Providers Review Group
- Careful attention to their concerns by Greg in the bill drafting process
- Our outside coalitions (NHCC, HCRP) have worked closely with all the friendly physician groups
- The recruitment and training of over eighty provider surrogates who are out giving speeches around the country

Where do we go from here? I would offer the following ideas, not in hopes of "solving" this problem but in hopes of making it better:

1. Greg Lawler's idea (from several weeks ago) to get House and Senate leadership to designate a staffer to be the doctors' point person on the hill was a good idea, and I think we should follow up and make that happen. Given that we cannot give lobbying instructions, or help the groups much on legislative details, I think it is very important that we have someone on the hill we can work with to do those things with the allied doctor groups.
2. I think our physician briefings have been helpful, and if HHS is able to staff them, I think we should keep doing them at least once a month. If they can be combined with media affairs plugging in people for local media feeds, and having someone -- besides administration officials encouraging them to go lobby the hill, they can be very useful events.
3. As Alexis Herman has pointed out, the opinion leader briefings are tailor-made for personal, targeted outreach, and it is easy for us to invite a lot of physicians for these events.
4. I think it would be very helpful for HHS to have weekly contact with each supportive physicians group to make sure they are plugged in to our activities and to also make sure their political needs are being met.
5. HCRP has nine provider groups among their member organizations. I think it makes sense to ask them to put some staff time into increasing the coordination of provider activity.

TO: Harold Ickes, Greg Lawler, Ira Magaziner, Melanne
Verveer, Alexis Herman
From: Walter Zelman
RE: Meeting of Academic Health Center (AHC) leaders, June 27
Date: Monday, June 20

JUN 20 1964

BACKGROUND

Working with several AHC leaders I have been able to negotiate a strong, pro-universal coverage statement. It is not all we would like, but it is very positive. Invitations have now gone out to about 75 deans and heads of AHC's, inviting them to a meeting in Washington at which this statement, signed by the individuals in attendance, will be released. (See attached statement).

The key to the statement, and to the unity around it, was the decision to avoid the issue of AHC funding. The statement is about universal coverage and why that goal is critical.

PLANS FOR THE MEETING

Attendees have been promised an opportunity to discuss issues relevant to AHCs, as well as other reform issues.

They expect to have a meeting of about two hours and then to hold a press event at which the statement is released. Only those prepared to sign the statement will attend the meeting. Spokespersons will be chosen. We can have a large say in who they are.

I am planning on holding most of the meeting in the OEGB. But the White House itself would add great stature to the event.

WHO IS ATTENDING

I am hopeful that upwards of 30 individuals will attend, all representing medical schools or AHCs. The individual leaders who signed the invitation represent teaching hospitals or medical schools at: Harvard, Columbia, Johns Hopkins and Washington University in St. Louis.

Leaders of schools and centers from key districts have been invited. Among others planning to attend is the dean from the University of Oklahoma Medical School.

Everything possible is being done to secure adequate representation from inner city and rural centers.

The head of the American Association of Medical Colleges is also attending.

THE PROGRAM

I have discussed the program with Greg and will finalize plans within the next few days. Depending on the final list of attendees, high ranking administration officials, as well as some key Members of Congress will be asked to participate.

The program will include: a discussion of AHC issues; a discussion of other reform issues; and an overview of the current legislative situation.

PUBLICIZING THE EVENT

The usual efforts --press conference, satellite feeds, talk radio shows, etc.-- will be made. However, I believe we should consider some other opportunities.

- A meeting on the Hill with key leaders.
- Visits of small groups of leaders to editorial boards and bureaus in the D.C. area.
- A McNeil-Lehrer (M/L) appearance: the Dean of the Columbia Medical School says M/L is interested in doing a show Monday night on the meeting.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTICIPATION

Depending on the response --which should be known by tomorrow or Wednesday at the latest-- I would urge that the President appear with the leaders when they issue their statement.

Without question, the probability of Presidential participation will increase the turnout at the event. Obviously, it will also increase the coverage.

The sooner a decision is made on this the better. Participation by 50-75 individuals is possible.

The President would only be required to participate in the public event, although a photo-op just prior to the event would have enormous appeal.

STATEMENT TO BE ISSUED BY MEDICAL SCHOOL DEANS
AND HEADS OF ACADEMIC HEALTH CENTERS

The best health care in the world can be found here in America. But our health care system is in need of reform. Millions of Americans are without health insurance coverage and health care costs continue to increase in excess of inflation. In the absence of reform current trends will lead to further deterioration in quality of and access to health care for many Americans.

As leaders of American medical schools and teaching hospitals, we believe that all Americans should have access to high quality health care, and we applaud the efforts of the President and many in Congress to achieve reform, including universal coverage.

Our institutions are committed to enhancing the quality of health care by attracting and educating an outstanding medical work force for the future and by conducting pathbreaking biomedical and clinical research. Also part of our institutional mission is the provision of care to the medically indigent and to those without insurance. As a result we see, first hand, the dire medical and social consequences of people having no, or insufficient insurance: they have less access to needed medical care; they fail to obtain needed preventive services; they are more likely to delay going to the doctor; and they are more likely to come to our emergency units already beset with severe medical problems that might have been avoided or treated with far less expense or risk.

Until quite recently, institutions like ours served the uninsured by passing the costs of that care onto the insured. But in today's more competitive marketplace this is no longer possible. As a result, the burdens of "uncompensated care" are falling squarely on those who provide it, threatening the educational, research and care missions of our academic health centers, so vital to the future quality of care for all our citizens.

We believe universal coverage is not just an issue of equity; it is important to the health and security of all patients and to the general public.

The Administration's reform proposal -- while no one will agree with all its elements -- appropriately identifies universal coverage as the highest priority.

It is also critical that reform preserve the many strengths of American health care, and include a responsible financing mechanism that will ensure needed health security for all.

A new health system must also preserve the high quality of American health care and emphasize choice so that consumers can choose quality care. We must work toward a system that provides appropriate benefits and ready access to primary and preventive care. The system must encourage medical research and the best possible education for health care professionals.

Organizations and individuals will have differences with various proposals. But the last thing our country needs is an end result in which everyone's efforts to protect their own interests result in an overall failure to secure the public's interest.

We urge other concerned Americans, of all political persuasions and parties, to join us in this historic challenge to guarantee health care coverage to the entire nation.

MEMORANDUM FOR DISTRIBUTION

FROM: Mike Lux, Laura Quinn, Debbie Fine

SUBJECT: "Constituency Days"

APR 21 1994

As you are all aware, the Office of Public Liaison has started coordinating the constituency day program. We thought it would be helpful to summarize the various responsibilities and deadlines for everyone involved.

As you probably know, the program was designed to generate regional media, to educate key activists about our health bill, and to offer an alternative focus as the legislative process moves into a confusing and volatile phase. Many of the days complement groups' independent plans for visits to Congressional representatives. And although we have not asked them to do so, many groups who did not have independent plans to do so are setting up meetings for their members on the hill while they are in town.

The program continues for approximately one month, at times more intensely than others. It will require constant coordination amongst Public Liaison, Media Affairs and the War Room, as well as the Political Department and the DNC.

STAFF LEAD

The staff lead, as indicated on the attached calendar, will be responsible for the following:

1. The staff lead will determine which supportive organizations are appropriate for participation on the designated day. He/she will contact each group to let them know the confirmed or tentative date, and obtain a list of 15-20 media markets where each group has concentrated membership and a member with a compelling story. (Attached is a list of the media markets from which to choose.) Debbie should get this list of media markets by Friday (4/21) at 12PM. Note: they do not need specific people -- just the markets -- by April 21.
2. The market lists from all of the groups will be cross-referenced in the War Room to avoid duplication. By close of business on Friday, Debbie will return a list of the markets to the staff lead, who will communicate to each group which members/markets should be secured. The hope is that we will have fifteen members with compelling stories from which to choose, eight of which we hope to actually feed for regional tv.

3. The staff lead will collect summaries of each of the fifteen stories from the appropriate groups and give them to Debbie five days prior to the briefing day, who will give them to Media Affairs, the DNC or LIPA. Attached are examples of what the Alzheimer's Association and the labor unions used.

Note: These individuals should have compelling stories that people can relate to emotionally, and viewers and readers can identify with in local markets.

The staff lead will also need to make sure that each person suggested for media is an articulate spokesperson who is supportive of the administration's approach to health care reform (part of the criteria for participating at all is support.) Each organization must be aware that we cannot guarantee that we will have media interviews for them to do. Most likely we will not confirm interviews until the morning of the briefing. Even when local press show initial interest, they may cancel at the last minute because of other local stories.

4. The staff lead should make sure that the groups indicate all attendees who are appropriate for interviews, beyond those suggested for satellite. These names should be given to Flo.

5. The staff lead is responsible for building the invitation list and making sure that all invitees know where to go and when. (In addition to the dates of birth and social security numbers, city and state should be collected.) You should be in touch with Danny Wexler to ensure that you are communicating the correct room, time and speaker information to all invitees as well. As you know, details are always subject to change. Jeff Shulman should get the complete invitee list two days in advance of the event.

6. The staff lead should follow-up with Jeff Shulman to ensure that the appropriate materials are ready, reproduced and available for distribution. (Generally we are planning to hand out the message packet, a health security card with the five points on the back, and in some cases talking points specific to the constituency.)

7. The staff lead is responsible for coordinating preparation of the principal's briefing paper, which should be checked by Flo.

8. If the satellite feeds are occurring at LIPA or the DNC, it is important that the staff lead or somebody designated by the staff lead accompany those doing regional media to these outside studios to make sure everything goes smoothly. It is very costly if people who are signed up to do media do not show.

MEDIA AFFAIRS

As you know, generating regional media in the targeted media markets is one of the primary reasons we are doing these constituency days. We will work closely with Media Affairs to try to maximize this activity. In order to lighten the load a little, we will also be doing satellite feeds from the Labor Institute of Public Affairs (LIPA) and the DNC for some of the days, and Families USA will help pitch for some of the days.

For the eight to ten doing satellite feeds, we will have a page of talking points prepared and someone (Laura, Mike, Arnold Bennett, Debbie or the staff contact) to talk through the message.

Flo will be responsible for communicating with White House Media Affairs overall, coordinating all press interviews with the exception of the satellite feeds. Debbie will be responsible for communicating with Media Affairs and the outside studios about the ten satellite feeds, and print and radio ads for them. (Those designated for satellite feeds should not go to stake-outs for interviews.)

OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES

- Danny Wexler is responsible for the schedule and speakers for the briefings.
- Greg Lawler and Simone Rueschemeyer are responsible for following up on scheduling requests for principals.
- Mike Lux is responsible for coordinating the overall constituency days program.

Here in Washington, we are quickly approaching the critical legislative phase of the health care reform debate. This week several labor unions have brought thousands of their members from all over the country to Washington for legislative conferences and health care forums, including CWA, Building and Construction Trades and AFSCME. On Monday the President addressed CWA and IBEW at the Ameritech Corporation in Milwaukee with a satellite downlink to the CWA conference, yesterday the First Lady addressed 4000 members of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, and today she is addressing 600 members of CWA. Tomorrow 200 union members from TCU, UAW, Steelworkers, CWA, NEA, AFSCME and Building and Construction Trades will come to the White House for a series of briefings with the First Lady and other senior White House officials on health care reform. Throughout the week the union members will be meeting with their Members of Congress to tell the stories of their personal battles with today's health care system. Even union members who have health insurance are never secure today -- if they move, or get sick, or lose their job. They are all here to make a plea to Congress to do the right thing on health care reform for the millions of workers and other Americans who are always at risk.

_____ Market: Buffalo, NY

Reta Biondo

(CWA)

CWA member Reta Biondo's sister and brother-in-law worked all their lives in a plant that recently closed down. They have each had a series of jobs since then, however because of last-hired first-fired regulations, they have not stayed in any of them long enough to become insured. The sister is 62 and her husband is 59. They both have health problems, but can not afford to get the medical attention they need since they have no insurance.

_____ Market: Pittsburgh, PA

John Demko
Velle Venon, PA
412-929-2659

(Steelworkers)

John Demko lost his family's health insurance when he was laid off from his job at Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel's Moneessen, PA plant after working there for 14 years. When his wife, Linda, became ill and was diagnosed to be needing a live transplant, Demko was told he would need $208,000 for Linda to qualify for the transplant list at a Pittsburgh hospital. After a desperate search, Demko succeeded in obtaining Medicare coverage and Linda was placed on the transplant list. She dies of pneumonia before a liver was available. Her age was 38.

_____ Duane Roberts
Johnstown, PA
814-535-3793

(Steelworkers)

Duane Roberts lost his job at Bethlehem Steel Cop in Johnstown, PA in August, 1992, when Bethlehem shut down its works there. A year later he lost the medical coverage for himself, his wife and two children. Roberts has psoriasis, a skin disorder, for which he is undergoing a seven-week course of treatments, costing $144 per week. Robert's daughter, who is disabled, has obtained coverage through the Social Security Administration. His 14-year-old son recently suffered a possible broken finger, for which the family has no coverage.

Here in Washington, we are quickly approaching the critical legislative debate on the reform of our nation's health care system. This week the Alzheimer's Association has brought over 500 people from 45 states for their Public Policy Forum. Today the First Lady made remarks to the group, and tomorrow they will be meeting with their Members of Congress to tell the stories of their personal battles as the caregivers and family of people with Alzheimer's. They are here to make a plea to Congress to do the right thing with health care reform for the four million people with Alzheimer's and their friends and families.

MADISON, WI

Mary Anderson

In 1975, Mary's in-laws came to visit with her, her husband and two children aged 4 and 12 for two weeks that turned into 15 years! Unknown to Mary and her family at the time of the visit, her mother-in-law, Goldie, suffered from Alzheimer's and her father-in-law had not had an unbroken night of sleep in a year. Goldie lived with her family for 14 years, during a time when there was little of nothing available in family caregiver supports. Even today, Mary will quickly point out, most who need home and community care go unserved.

MEMORANDUM FOR ALEXIS HERMAN, OREG LAWLER AND LAURA QUINN

FROM: Mike Lux

SUBJECT: Constituency Days

After talking with Bob Boorstin about what would be the most important constituencies we could ask to the White House from a message perspective, looking at the calendar to see what groups are already in town for lobby days, and factoring which organizations are with us and have the resources to pull off a decent lobby day, I have come up with the following highly tentative proposed calendar:

Date	Constituency	Notes
Tuesday, April 19th	Religious Leaders
Wednesday, April 20th	Nurses
Thursday, April 21st	Labor
Friday, April 22nd
Monday, April 25th	Doctors	AAFP has a small meeting in town; need to talk to other doc groups.
Tuesday, April 26th	African American groups
Wednesday, April 27th	Seniors	NCOA already in town with 2,000 people; need to contact other groups.
Thursday, April 28th	Small Business Coalition	Need to give them as much lead time as is possible.
Friday, April 29th	Hospitals	CHA Trustees are already in town; need to talk to other groups.
Monday, May 2nd	Disabilities/Disease Groups	Already in town.
Tuesday, May 3rd	Teachers/ Children's Advocates	AFT is already in town; would have to get NBA and CDF.

As has been discussed, the basic formula would be to:

- (a) bring them to the White House for a morning briefing and short meeting with either the POTUS, First Lady, or Vice President;
- (b) do media feeds with them to their home areas; and
- (c) make sure we leave time on their schedules so that they can make visits to the hill if they so choose (even though we cannot legally ask them to lobby.)

I want to underscore that this calendar could easily change; The Office of Public Liaison will be meeting on Wednesday to discuss how realistic it is.

MEMORANDUM FOR DISTRIBUTION

FROM: Mike Lux, Laura Quinn, Debbie Fine

SUBJECT: Constituency Days

APR 21 1994

As you are all aware, the Office of Public Liaison has started coordinating the constituency day program. We thought it would be helpful to summarize the various responsibilities and deadlines for everyone involved.

As you probably know, the program was designed to generate regional media, to educate key activists about our health bill, and to offer an alternative focus as the legislative process moves into a confusing and volatile phase. Many of the days complement groups' independent plans for visits to Congressional representatives. And although we have not asked them to do so, many groups who did not have independent plans to do so are setting up meetings for their members on the hill while they are in town.

The program continues for approximately one month, at times more intensely than others. It will require constant coordination amongst Public Liaison, Media Affairs and the War Room, as well as the Political Department and the DNC.

STAFF LEAD

The staff lead, as indicated on the attached calendar, will be responsible for the following:

1. The staff lead will determine which supportive organizations are appropriate for participation on the designated day. He/she will contact each group to let them know the confirmed or tentative date, and obtain a list of 15-20 media markets where each group has concentrated membership and a member with a compelling story. (Attached is a list of the media markets from which to choose.) Debbie should get this list of media markets by Friday (4/21) at 12PM. Note: they do not need specific people -- just the markets -- by April 21.
2. The market lists from all of the groups will be cross-referenced in the War Room to avoid duplication. By close of business on Friday, Debbie will return a list of the markets to the staff lead, who will communicate to each group which members/markets should be secured. The hope is that we will have fifteen members with compelling stories from which to choose, eight of which we hope to actually feed for regional tv.

3. The staff lead will collect summaries of each of the fifteen stories from the appropriate groups and give them to Debbie five days prior to the briefing day, who will give them to Media Affairs, the DNC or LIPA. Attached is are examples of what the Alzheimer's Association and the labor unions used.

Note: These individuals should have compelling stories that people can relate to emotionally, and viewers and readers can identify with in local markets.

The staff lead will also need to make sure that each person suggested for media is an articulate spokesperson who is supportive of the administration's approach to health care reform (part of the criteria for participating at all is support.) Each organization must be aware that we cannot guarantee that we will have media interviews for them to do. Most likely we will not confirm interviews until the morning of the briefing. Even when local press show initial interest, they may cancel at the last minute because of other local stories.

4. The staff lead should make sure that the groups indicate all attendees who are appropriate for interviews, beyond those suggested for satellite. These names should be given to Flo.

5. The staff lead is responsible for building the invitation list and making sure that all invitees know where to go and when. (In addition to the dates of birth and social security numbers, city and state should be collected.) You should be in touch with Danny Wexler to ensure that you are communicating the correct room, time and speaker information to all invitees as well. As you know, details are always subject to change. Jeff Shulman should get the complete invitee list two days in advance of the event.

6. The staff lead should follow-up with Jeff Shulman to ensure that the appropriate materials are ready, reproduced and available for distribution. (Generally we are planning to hand out the message packet, a health security card with the five points on the back, and in some cases talking points specific to the constituency.)

7. The staff lead is responsible for coordinating preparation of the principal's briefing paper, which should be checked by Flo.

8. If the satellite feeds are occurring at LIPA or the DNC, it is important that the staff lead or somebody designated by the staff lead accompany those doing regional media to these outside studios to make sure everything goes smoothly. It is very costly if people who are signed up to do media do not show.

MEDIA AFFAIRS

As you know, generating regional media in the targeted media markets is one of the primary reasons we are doing these constituency days. We will work closely with Media Affairs to try to maximize this activity. In order to lighten the load a little, we will also be doing satellite feeds from the Labor Institute of Public Affairs (LIPA) and the DNC for some of the days, and Families USA will help pitch for some of the days.

For the eight to ten doing satellite feeds, we will have a page of talking points prepared and someone (Laura, Mike, Arnold Bennett, Debbie or the staff contact) to talk through the message.

Flo will be responsible for communicating with White House Media Affairs overall, coordinating all press interviews with the exception of the satellite feeds. Debbie will be responsible for communicating with Media Affairs and the outside studios about the ten satellite feeds, and print and radio ads for them. (Those designated for satellite feeds should not go to stake-outs for interviews.)

OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES

- Danny Wexler is responsible for the schedule and speakers for the briefings.
- Greg Lawler and Simone Rueschemeyer are responsible for following up on scheduling requests for principals.
- Mike Lux is responsible for coordinating the overall constituency days program.

Here in Washington, we are quickly approaching the critical legislative phase of the health care reform debate. This week several labor unions have brought thousands of their members from all over the country to Washington for legislative conferences and health care forums, including CWA, Building and Construction Trades and AFSCME. On Monday the President addressed CWA and IBEW at the Ameritech Corporation in Milwaukee with a satellite downlink to the CWA conference, yesterday the First Lady addressed 4000 members of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, and today she is addressing 600 members of CWA. Tomorrow 200 union members from TCU, UAW, Steelworkers, CWA, NEA, AFSCME and Building and Construction Trades will come to the White House for a series of briefings with the First Lady and other senior White House officials on health care reform. Throughout the week the union members will be meeting with their Members of Congress to tell the stories of their personal battles with today's health care system. Even union members who have health insurance are never secure today -- if they move, or get sick, or lose their job. They are all here to make a plea to Congress to do the right thing on health care reform for the millions of workers and other Americans who are always at risk.

Market: Buffalo, NY

Reta Biondo

(CWA)

CWA member Reta Biondo's sister and brother-in-law worked all their lives in a plant that recently closed down. They have each had a series of jobs since then, however because of last-hired first-fired regulations, they have not stayed in any of them long enough to become insured. The sister is 62 and her husband is 59. They both have health problems, but can not afford to get the medical attention they need since they have no insurance.

Market: Pittsburgh, PA

John Demko
Velle Venon, PA
412-929-2659

(Steelworkers)

John Demko lost his family's health insurance when he was laid off from his job at Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel's Moneessen, PA plant after working there for 14 years. When his wife, Linda, became ill and was diagnosed to be needing a live transplant, Demko was told he would need $208,000 for Linda to qualify for the transplant list at a Pittsburgh hospital. After a desperate search, Demko succeeded in obtaining Medicare coverage and Linda was placed on the transplant list. She dies of pneumonia before a liver was available. Her age was 38.

Duane Roberts
Johnstown, PA
814-535-3793

(Steelworkers)

Duane Roberts lost his job at Bethlehem Steel Cop in Johnstown, PA in August, 1992, when Bethlehem shut down its works there. A year later he lost the medical coverage for himself, his wife and two children. Roberts has psoriasis, a skin disorder, for which he is undergoing a seven-week course of treatments, costing $144 per week. Robert's daughter, who is disabled, has obtained coverage through the Social Security Administration. His 14-year-old son recently suffered a possible broken finger, for which the family has no coverage.

Here in Washington, we are quickly approaching the critical legislative debate on the reform of our nation's health care system. This week the Alzheimer's Association has brought over 500 people from 45 states for their Public Policy Forum. Today the First Lady made remarks to the group, and tomorrow they will be meeting with their Members of Congress to tell the stories of their personal battles as the caregivers and family of people with Alzheimer's. They are here to make a plea to Congress to do the right thing with health care reform for the four million people with Alzheimer's and their friends and families.

MADISON, WI

Mary Anderson

In 1975, Mary's in-laws came to visit with her, her husband and two children aged 4 and 12 for two weeks that turned into 15 years! Unknown to Mary and her family at the time of the visit, her mother-in-law, Goldie, suffered from Alzheimer's and her father-in-law had not had an unbroken night of sleep in a year. Goldie lived with her family for 14 years, during a time when there was little of nothing available in family caregiver supports. Even today, Mary will quickly point out, most who need home and community care go unserved.

Re: Organizational Follow Up

As we discussed, here are suggestions for follow up to the people who have come to the White House from around the country for health care.

1. Meetings (or phone calls) with D.C. based organizations which sent people for constituency days/events to outline follow up plan/packet and get their ideas for additional events locally and nationally. If there is a particular constituency angle, these should be promoted in follow up.

2. Letter: 4 Pieces

 Cover letter from a recognized White House leader (Harold?) thanking them for their participation at the White House and encouraging their continued involvement to bring the message to others in their field, in the media to the public, and to their member of Congress. (What is legal framework?). (Can we mention our surrogate speakers program and try to recruit them?).

 List of Local Contacts for Health Care Reform Project

 Sample of what they can produce tailored to their group (eg. letter to customers, clients, co-workers; or sample op.ed./letter to editor; video).

 Response form: what they are doing to promote health care reform, what they recommend and what their concerns are.

(If the group did not get the 5 talking points at the briefing or if there are updates, new Q and A etc., this could be included as another piece OR included in the cover letter).

3. Phone Follow Up to Key state/constituency leaders. DNC can pursue this. Also, we can give the names of the people who came in for the briefing to the HCRP staff person in the local area.

4. Future Briefings: If there are new groups brought in, can we hold a 2 part session? After a White House briefing, can Congressional leaders meet with them in another location for political conversation and action plan? Why should this be treated differently from NAFTA or Budget mobilization?
