The Saxophone Club

In the Spring of 1992, a group of young Washington, D.C. professionals, excited by the energy and direction of Bill Clinton's run for the Presidency, searched for new ways to become involved in the Democratic Party and lend support. Teaming up with the campaign, they helped organize the "Run on the White House" which raised over $100,000 and received nationwide attention.

Building on this outpouring of energy, the Democratic National Committee (DNC) formed the Saxophone Club in July of 1992. By marshalling the creative and political potential of young people across the country, the Saxophone Club creates an outlet for political action and is an important part of the DNC's effort to empower and inspire young leaders throughout the country. Through briefings with issues experts and policy leaders, the Saxophone Club provides its members with the opportunity to become an integral part of the Democratic Party.

Member Benefits

In addition to the Presidential Reception, members of the Saxophone Club enjoy all of the following benefits for their donation:

- Issues Briefing

This annual event will bring together Saxophone Club members from around the country and offer them the opportunity to interact with leaders from Washington as well as to participate in issues briefings.

- Monthly Policy Briefings

Briefings are held monthly in Washington with issues experts and policy leaders. Briefings cover such topics as health care reform, welfare reform and economic policy.

- DNC Staff Contact

Saxophone Club members will have a DNC staff member assigned to them, ready to respond to requests for information.

- The Morning Briefing

Saxophone Club members receive daily faxes keeping them up-to-date on Democratic Party and Clinton Administration issues and activities.

DRAFT

BIOGRAPHY OF GILBERT F. CASELLAS

As an accomplished attorney with wide experience in management, Gilbert Casellas has spent his life building bridges between diverse communities. His background as an effective leader with a passionate commitment to justice makes him highly qualified to continue the Clinton Administration's dedication to promoting equality in the work force as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

From the military to the legal practice to community organizations, Casellas has successfully managed many different organizations. Currently General Counsel to the Air Force, Casellas manages a staff of 45 attorneys. He previously served as Personnel Partner and a member of the Management Committee at Montgomery, McCracken, Walker & Rhoads law firm in Philadelphia in 1992 and 1993. Casellas has also managed complex litigation and was appointed by Judge Norma Shapiro to act as the Receiver to represent plaintiffs in negotiation and settlement of attorneys' fees disputes in three Title VII suits.

A strong leader, Casellas quickly rose to the top of several organizations in which he was involved. At the age of 32 in 1984, Casellas became the National President of the Hispanic National Bar Association and in 1989 became the youngest and first minority President of the University Of Pennsylvania's Law Alumni Society.

In virtually all his activities, Casellas has worked tirelessly for the cause of equal opportunity and diversity. He has been very active in the American Bar Association (ABA), particularly in programs to increase opportunities for minorities in the legal profession and to assure access to legal services for all in need. Among his many cases, Casellas successfully represented a Puerto Rican female attorney in her gender and national origin discrimination suit against her employer.

Active in community issues from an early age, Casellas was co-founder and first executive director of Casa Boricua, a Puerto Rican student cultural center at Yale whose members tutored local Latino high school students and organized cultural activities including speakers and film series. Casellas continued his community service later as Treasurer of Borinquen Federal Credit Union in Philadelphia's Latino community. In 1986, the City of Philadelphia awarded him a Citation for Contributions to the City and the Puerto Rican/Latino Community, and in 1988 he was named Citizen of the Year during Philadelphia's Puerto Rican Week Festival.

Casellas has also been very active in the Philadelphia legal community. He served as Chair of the Young Lawyers' Section of the Philadelphia Bar Association (PBA), Vice Chair of the PBA, and Chair of the PBA Board of Governors. He served on the Board of Trustees of the Philadelphia Bar Foundation and a member of the Board of Directors of the Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia.

The son of a letter carrier and factory seamstress, Casellas was born and raised in Tampa, Florida and attended a segregated Catholic school established to educate African American and Latino children. Based on his academic achievement, a high school teacher (a Jesuit priest) encouraged Casellas to apply to Yale, where he was accepted and attended on financial aid scholarships and received a B.A. in Latin American Studies in 1974.

At Yale, Casellas was a co-founder of a Puerto Rican student organization called Despierta Boricua, taught courses at a local high school on the government of Puerto Rico, and co-taught a Yale College seminar on the history and politics of Puerto Rico. He also used an Urban Affairs internship from Chase Manhattan Bank to work for the then newly-founded Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund (PRLDEF) in New York.

Casellas entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1974 and became co-chair of the Latino Law Students Association. During the summer after his first year, he served as Student Director of the Government Policy Research Unit at the law school, which provided legislative policy research for state and local government officials. Casellas worked in the Philadelphia District Attorney's office during the summer after his second year in law school.

One of Casellas's law professors, Judge A. Leon Higginbotham, Jr., was so impressed by him that he sought out Casellas for a clerkship on the prestigious U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Casellas served for two years before returning to Montgomery, McCracken to practice in the area of federal and state litigation and appellate work.

Currently, Casellas serves as the Air Force representative to a military task force on sexual harassment responsible for reviewing the military services complaint system and recommending improvements, including the adoption of department-wide standards.

Casellas lives in Washington D.C. with his wife Ada Garcia Casellas and their daughter Marisa. He is 41 years old.

The Honorable [name]
U.S. Senate / U.S. House of Representatives
[address]

Dear Senator / Representative [name]:

The members of The National Uniformity Coalition wish to express their strong concern about the lack of national uniformity in the health care system reform proposals currently being considered by Senate and House Committees.

National uniformity is critical to health care system reform. The absence of a nationally uniform legislative framework is an obstacle to meaningful reform and an obstacle to Coalition members' support for health care system reform proposals.

Although the Committees considering health care reform legislation have generally attempted to develop more moderate and less bureaucratic alternatives to the Administration's bill, in several key respects proposals now on the table have a more adverse impact on individuals, providers and employers:

- First, by permitting states to enact their own single-payer systems, several proposals effectively repudiate the principle of national uniformity -- a large step backwards from real health care system reform.
- Second, by giving states direct control over whether and in what form to organize group purchasing, whether to regulate medical reimbursement, and so forth -- rather than making privately operated purchasing groups the cornerstone of market-based cost containment -- several proposals fragment the regulation of one of our biggest industries in interstate commerce.
- Third, by failing to ensure nationally uniform standards in all the areas where they are needed, the proposals impose on individuals, employers and health care providers significantly increased regulatory burdens by subjecting them to overlapping and inconsistent state-based rules that change arbitrarily by crossing a state line.

Forging a consensus for reform that Coalition members can support requires modifications to pending proposals in at least the following key respects:

- First, the state option to form state-based single-payer systems must be eliminated.
- Second, there must be no state-run, mandatory, geographically exclusive health alliances (or state agencies performing the functions of alliances). Multiple voluntary privately-run alliances — all required to comply with the same fair conduct market rules — must be permitted.

State laws that govern how purchasing groups are organized and operated, that govern the health plans they contract with, or that govern employer-provided health care (whether through fully-insured plans or self-insured benefit plans), must be exclusively federal. State laws relating to these activities must be expressly preempted.

- Fourth, with respect to financing, states should not be able to tax health plans.

The National Uniformity Coalition is a group of _____ associations, organizations and individual companies representing both employers and health care providers. Coalition members support a market-based health care system built on both employer-and-consumer-driven group purchasing and organized health care delivery systems. They believe that to achieve this goal, standards that are applied to the organization and operation of the reformed health care system must necessarily be uniform nationally.

We strongly urge you to reconsider these elements, among others, of pending health care system reform proposals as they are taken up in Committee and considered on the House floor.

Sincerely,

Remarks to the White House Conference on Africa
Washington, D.C.
June 27, 1994

[Acknowledgements]

I want to thank all of you for coming here to participate in this unprecedented conference. I am proud to welcome you to a White House that shares your commitment to a future of growing prosperity and thriving democracy across the entire African continent.

Africa matters to the United States. It matters because of the great potential of its people, its traditions and its resources. It matters because of the historic ties that bind our two peoples. And it matters because the great global challenges of the future are reflected in Africa today.

Achieving sustainable development. Controlling population growth. Halting environmental decline. Stopping the spread of AIDS. Preempting ethnic tensions before they explode. Protecting human rights. Integrating the spiritual heritage of Islam with the demands of modern states. And promoting the growth of democracies. For Africans and Americans, these challenges are both conceptual and practical.

For decades -- whenever Africa happened onto America's radar screen -- we viewed it through the ideological prisms of the Cold War and the fight against apartheid. We cared more about how African governments voted in the United Nations than whether they gave their own people the right to vote. We supported leaders on the basis of anti-communist or anti-apartheid rhetoric, not because of actions. Too often we ignored the realities of Africa itself.

But the prisms of the past have been shattered. Today we live in a post-Cold War, post-apartheid world. Our guideposts have disappeared, and once-sharp lines have been blurred.

This new world has granted America a new freedom -- a freedom to see the nations of Africa for what they really are and to build new relations based on their needs and aspirations, as well as our own.

Some say that there is the world, and then there is Africa. I disagree. Africa poses its own set of demands. But our goals on the continent mirror the basic principles of our foreign policy elsewhere in the world: meeting new security challenges, advancing equitable market economies, and supporting democracy.

Africa illustrates a central security challenge of the post-Cold War era: not conflict among states, but conflicts within them.

The United States is currently supporting seven peacekeeping efforts in Africa, and I have issued new guidelines that will help us do this work more effectively. In Somalia alone, the efforts of American soldiers and relief agencies helped save hundreds of thousands of Somali lives. I have since dispatched special envoys to Somalia, the Sudan and Angola, and we are supporting the Organization of African Unity's attempts to find new ways to resolve conflicts.

The daily reports from Rwanda remind us of the tremendous obstacles we face. We have responded strongly, providing material, financial and statistical support for the U.N. peacekeeping mission, and more than $100 million in humanitarian relief to the victims of this tragedy. We have insisted that those responsible for the Rwandan genocide be brought to international justice.

Last week, we backed the French decision to protect Rwandans at risk. This action will end as soon as the U.N. is ready to deploy peacekeepers, and we will redouble our efforts to make this happen as soon as possible.

We cannot dismiss the explosion of hatred in Rwanda as an aberration. It represents only an extreme example of the tensions that can destroy generations, disrupt progress, delay democracy and drain the resources of so many nations around the world.

It points the way toward a new American policy based on the idea that we should help the nations of Africa identify and solve problems before they erupt. Reacting when crises strike is not enough. Our challenge is to examine and address the underlying causes.

We recognize that the level of outstanding debt is a major problem for Africa. The United States will continue its policy of writing off 50 percent or more of the debts of selected African nations that carry the heaviest burdens. And we are actively searching for new solutions to the debt problem.

Lightening this load will only go so far in helping African economies; the longterm goal must be sustainable development. The outlook here, as you know better than most, is grim, and the statistics are stark. Natural resources are disappearing. Population is exploding. And the gap between rich and poor grows ever wider.

To unravel this dilemma and reverse their decade-long economic slide, Africans must tackle a daunting set of challenges. They must control population growth. Provide basic health care. Improve agricultural yields. Protect forests and halt advancing deserts. Develop new water supplies. Make their people full partners in all these decisions. And the nations of Africa, as Professor Homer-Dixon has written, must move forward on all these fronts at once. Because there is no silver bullet, no magic cure.

When representatives from 170 nations meet at the Cairo population conference in September, they will approve a plan of action that attacks this tremendous task at its heart.

The plan will eventually bolster families, improve the social and economic status of women, and provide the kinds of family planning and health services that sustainable development requires. The United States is a proud partner in embracing this strategy, which will eventually raise living standards for people around the globe.

As Africans turn away from the failed social and economic prescriptions of the past, they are embracing new political freedoms. True, there are too many nations in Africa where tyranny drowns out opposition, human rights are trampled, and democracy struggles to find its roots. But as we meet here today, more than a dozen African nations are preparing for elections, opposition voices grow louder, and the lights of freedom shine brighter.

Above all its neighbors, South Africa has given the world cause to hope. In giving birth to a new democracy, President Mandela and the citizens of his nations, black and white, have offered a stern rebuke to those who predicted disaster at every turn. In setting out on the road to form a new society, they have given the people of Africa a beacon to follow. And in making history, they have restored our faith in the human heart.

The amazing changes in South Africa will echo for years -- in that nation, across the African continent and here in America. To help in their transition, we have already launched a three-year, $600 million trade, investment and development program. And the United States stands ready to support all the nations of Africa which reject the authoritarian path and instead follow the democratic road.

Our task now is to secure the resources to achieve our goals. This requires political will. Together, we must develop an American constituency for Africa and create the lasting links between our people and their peoples that will help drive the continent ahead.

But in the end, reality dictates that the progress of democracy and development in Africa lies in the hands of Africans themselves. True, we can offer support, but Africans must ultimately choose.

Africa is a continent of conflict, but also of tremendous potential and extraordinary peoples. For every Sudan, where division delays development, there is a Senegal, a Mali, a Namibia and a Botswana, quietly working to create a better life for its people. For every Rwanda, ripping itself apart, there is a Benin, a Malawi, an Eritrea, or an Ethiopia, drawing together as a society. And for every Angola, fractious and at war with itself, there is a Mozambique, reaching out for national reconciliation and looking forward to new elections.

And at this critical moment in Africa's history, we Americans must also choose. Will we see only the grim statistics of growing misery, decline and conflict, and succumb to a wave of "Afro-pessimism"? Or will we look beyond the numbers to the great peoples and nations that are making economic progress and moving toward democracy?

For those who have committed their professional lives to African development -- and those of us who must chart new policies in uncertain times -- there really is no choice. While we must acknowledge the tremendous difficulties that face the continent, and do our best to help the African peoples find their own solutions, we must never give way or give in. We must all believe in the future of Africa -- and match our beliefs with actions.

Thank you for coming here to share your ideas with us. I look forward to learning from your discussions. And I commend you for your passion and commitment.

RE: Academic Health Event on Monday, June 27

Told AMH

per MY's
req.

I wanted to alert you to the fact that OPL has taken over an event that is being scheduled for Monday, June 27, at 11:30 am with the President and Mrs. Clinton. Most of the legwork to date has been done by Walter Zelman, however, we have now taken ownership.

On Monday at 11:30 60-70 Academic Health Center Deans and Teaching Hospital CEOs will be presenting to the President a letter indicating their full support for universal coverage as the highest priority in the health care reform debate.

Although all the details are still being worked out, the event is likely to be in the East Room. This is the tentative format:

10:00 am	Academic Leaders Arrive for policy briefing with Ira Magaziner.
11:30 am	President and First Lady Arrive to meet and Greet.
11:50 am	Presentation of Statement of Support for Universal Coverage - Open to the Press - First Lady gives introductory statement, then William Peck, Dean of Washington University reads statement, then the President responds.
12:30 pm	Stake out with small group/individual press for others.

ACADEMIC HEALTH LEADERS UNIVERSAL COVERAGE EVENT

DATE: Monday, June 27, 1994
LOCATION: Blue Room
TIME: 11:30 am
FROM: Alexis Herman
Walter Zelman

I. PURPOSE

To receive a statement signed by 75 medical school deans and heads of teaching hospitals supporting universal coverage.

II. BACKGROUND

The purpose of this event is to send the message that these leaders of the academic health community believe that universal coverage is the most critical issue in the health reform debate, especially in the context of the future of academic medicine. All of the attendees are here because they have signed a statement (attached) stating their support for universal coverage.

As you recall from your discussions with medical school deans and teaching hospital CEOs, they have had concerns about the level of funding they will receive under reform. This event will not focus on this issue - everyone at the event understands that the focus is on universal coverage.

Although it is not our intent that this issue should be discussed at this event, you should be aware that some of the Congressional committees either have, or are considering, increasing the funds going to academic health centers. For example, Senate Labor and Human Resources significantly expanded funding and created a new pool for medical schools. The Senate Finance Committee will likely increase funding and is also considering adding this new pool.

Academic Health Centers (AHC) leaders remain concerned about: the surety of the all payer pool and the level of funding; whether or not the new pool will be maintained; whether or not health plans will be mandated to contract with them for various services; and the proposed allocations for post-graduate training.

Also on stage will be eight other academic leaders who have helped to organize this effort.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY MEDICAL SCHOOL DEANS AND HEADS OF ACADEMIC HEALTH CENTERS

The best health care in the world can be found here in America. But our health care system is in need of reform. Millions of Americans are without health insurance coverage and health care costs continue to increase in excess of inflation. In the absence of reform current trends will lead to further deterioration in quality of and access to health care for many Americans.

As leaders of American medical schools and teaching hospitals, we believe that all Americans should have access to high quality health care, and we applaud the efforts of the President and many in Congress to achieve reform, including universal coverage.

Our institutions are committed to enhancing the quality of health care by attracting and educating an outstanding medical work force for the future and by conducting pathbreaking biomedical and clinical research. Also part of our institutional mission is the provision of care to the medically indigent and to those without insurance. As a result we see, first hand, the dire medical and social consequences of people having no, or insufficient insurance: they have less access to needed medical care; they fail to obtain needed preventive services; they are more likely to delay going to the doctor; and they are more likely to come to our emergency units already beset with severe medical problems that might have been avoided or treated with far less expense or risk.

Until quite recently, institutions like ours served the uninsured in part by passing the costs of that care onto the insured. But in today's more competitive marketplace this is no longer possible. As a result, the burdens of "uncompensated care" are falling squarely on those who provide it, threatening the educational, research and care missions of our academic health centers, so vital to the future quality of care for all our citizens.

We believe universal coverage is not just an issue of equity; it is important to the health and security of all patients and to the general public.

The Administration's reform proposal -- while some may not agree with all its elements -- appropriately identifies universal coverage as the highest priority.

It is also critical that reform preserve the many strengths of American health care, and include a responsible financing mechanism that will ensure needed health security for all.

A new health system must also preserve the high quality of American health care and emphasize choice so that consumers can choose quality care. We must work toward a system that provides appropriate benefits and ready access to primary and preventive care. The system must encourage medical research and the best possible education for health care professionals.

Organizations and individuals will have differences with various proposals. But the last thing our country needs is an end result in which everyone's efforts to protect their own interests result in an overall failure to secure the public's interest.

We urge other concerned Americans, of all political persuasions and parties, to join us in this historic challenge to guarantee health care coverage to the entire nation.

SPECIAL ALERT!

Leadership Retreat Family

June 19, 1994

Homegoing for Reverend Tom Skinner

On Friday June 17, 1994, Tom Skinner, our friend and my dear husband of 13 years, suffered a massive cerebral hemorrhage and was admitted into Norfolk General Hospital where he was undergoing treatment for acute lymphatic leukemia. On Friday afternoon at 2:59p.m., in the presence of his daughter Lauren and myself, Tom died and went home to be with the Lord.

On Thursday June 23, 1994, there will be a Tribute To Youth In Memory Of Tom Skinner from 6 - 9p.m. and viewing with the Skinner family at Metropolitan Baptist Church at 1225 R Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. (202) 483-1540. On Friday, June 24, 1994, a Homegoing Celebration will be held at 12:00p.m. at Metropolitan Baptist Church.

We request that in lieu of flowers that donations be made to the Tom Skinner Associates Learning Center, P. O. Box 90560, Washington, D.C. 20090. The Learning Center has for the past nine years been dedicated to producing a new generation of leaders from among poor youth, who are morally and technically excellent.

We will all miss Tom terribly. Yet, his life, work and legacy can best be honored by those who commit their lives to God and to reconciliation with one another, as Tom lived to do throughout his life.

I want to personally thank each member of the Leadership Retreat Family for your continued prayers and support.

*With warmest regards,
Barbara J. Skinner*

For Your Information: African American Leadership Retreat XVIII will be held as planned for August 11-14, 1994 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Hilton Head, South Carolina.

REQUEST FOR PHONE CALL

Rev. Tom Skinner was the first black preacher to be identified with the evangelical and conservative religious movements. He was the cultural bridge with people of many faith. Former chaplain of The Washington Redskins. Married to Barbara Skinner, who was the first Administrative Assistant to Congressman Ron Dellums when he first came to Congress and then she went on to become the first Director of the Congressional Black Caucus serving the longest time.

Tom continued to devote himself. He was active with the ministries and working with the youth around the country. He counseled many black athletes with any name recognition in this country and had an active youth following. Currently, he had been holding private Black-Jewish dialogue on the Farrakahn situation. He was also a good friend of Dick Coe and Chaplain of the Senate Dick Halverson, who put on the National Prayer Breakfast. Tom was also known to Phil and Linda Lader. I have worked closely with him for the last 20 years in a number of youth programs to black and white dialogue on economic employment initiatives in the black community.

Attached is one of the many books that Tom started writing 20 years ago to help bridge racial barriers. Most recently he and Barbara had hoped to build Skinner Farms into a mini-Aspen Institute. At the Farms, there would be discussions on many issues including Rwanda.

His funeral will be attended by a number of prominent African Americans and church leadership both black and white from around the country.

Either Rev. Billy Graham or Rev. Gardner Taylor will deliver the eulogy.

It is recommended that you place a phone call to Barbara Skinner at h/ 410 867 1076 or o/ 301 261 9800.

Talking points:

On Friday, June 17, 1994, Tom Skinner and Barbara's husband for 13 years, suffered a massive cerebral hemorrhage and passed on that afternoon. He was diagnosed two months ago and was under-going treatment for acute lymphatic leukemia. He was 51 years old.

Tom was committed to service but especially his work covered African American youth and his interest to raise up a new generation of leaders and his dreams for Skinner Farms to serve as a treatment center for young kids.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

June 25, 1994

SPEECH TO CONFERENCE ON AFRICA

DATE: June 27, 1994
LOCATION: Room 450 OEOP
TIME: 3:15-3:45 p.m.

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE
ALEXIS HERMAN

I. PURPOSE

To express your commitment to America's continued engagement in Africa; to outline American policy toward the continent in the post-Cold War/post-apartheid era.

II. BACKGROUND

On June 26 and 27, 1994, the White House will host a two-day conference drawing together some of America's leading experts on Africa to discuss U.S. relations with the continent. The conference will involve about 150 experts from the Administration, Congress, academia, business, labor, media, human rights groups and other private organizations. Working groups will discuss the key challenges facing Africa and American foreign policy, including promoting sustainable development, addressing internal conflicts, supporting the process of democratization, addressing Africa's global dimensions, encouraging bilateral trade and investment ties and developing an American constituency for Africa. The complete draft schedule is attached at Tab A.

The conference seeks to raise the visibility of Africa, give participants the opportunity to exchange views on a wide range of issues and generate some good ideas to address key African problems. We have received tremendous public response: from an original guest list of 80 people, we have had to swell the participation to the 150 now scheduled to attend, and we continue to turn people away. Nelson Mandela has sent a message warmly welcoming the conference. Among the prominent participants will be Jesse Jackson, Ben Chavis, OAU head Salim Salim, Mayor Dinkins, Kurt Schmoke, Andy Young and the Vice President.

Regrettably, we did not consult early enough with the Congressional Black Caucus and some members were under the impression that this was to be a policy-making forum and were concerned that they were not adequately consulted during the planning stages of the conference. There were also concerns that the CBC was invited to participate in the conference late in the process. Now that the CBC understands the nature of the conference, much of their concern has been allayed, although we expect only one or two CBC members to participate. You should also be aware that some human rights groups may use the conference to criticize us for not having taken a more active role in Rwanda.

cc: Vice President

You are scheduled to address the Conference Monday afternoon and then greet guests. The Vice President will introduce you. Other Administration officials scheduled to speak include Alexis Herman, Secretary Christopher, Brian Atwood and myself. Your proposed remarks will be forwarded separately.

RE: African Americans Constituency List

Today, June 21, I received a list of names that you want invited to the African American constituency day reception on Alexis' behalf. Due to the extreme formality we have instructed the Social Office in handling additions, etc. (particularly since we have submitted exactly 250 names and agreed to submit new names (by state) to correspond with those unable to attend). At this time, it is best to submit these names to Ann Stock via memo from Alexis. Also, no administration or staff names have been submitted yet.

MEMORANDUM FOR JOAN BAGGETT, ALEXIS HERMAN AND HAROLD ICKES

FROM: Joe Velasquez

SUBJECT: African American Day

I'm concerned that our discussions about who to invite to African American Day focus on "early supporters." We need to balance this interest with the imperative of the '94 elections.

The polls show the African American voter's support for the President is lower than expected from this base Democratic constituency. We need not be concerned about losing African Americans to the Republicans, but we do need to be concerned about motivation to get out and vote.

Without a doubt, we should not forget our early supporters. But our priority has to be the '94 elections.

We should:

1. Concentrate on those cities that are key to gubernatorial, Senate and House races this fall. Attached is a list of our suggestions based upon size of the African American community in targeted areas.
2. Work with the governor or senator's campaign staff to identify who should be invited from their respective states. We should give them credit for the invitation to the White House event. Bill Lynch, for example, could quickly give us the top thirty African American leaders in New York State that would help the Governor.
3. Create a strategy to invite early supporters from non-targeted states like Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas for some time in early '95, or even a special Christmas party.

This strategy not only helps us for '94, but also reinforces our base for '96.

Dear Ben:

As I indicated several weeks ago, the Rwandan crisis could produce some very undesirable controversies, above and beyond the immeasurable human tragedy that is already taking place.

It is imperative that the White House Conference on Africa not become a hostage to this terrible catastrophe. In fact, the issues surrounding Rwanda's "ethnic cleansing" and the implications for the rest of Africa should be an important part of the conference agenda.

Current U.S. policy as reported in today's New York Times may have satisfied some of the concerns reflected in the enclosed Congressional Black Caucus letter to the President. Please pass the contents of this letter on to Alexis. Thank you.

TO TARA

June 20 1994

TO: NANCY SODERBERG

FROM: ERNEST WILSON

SUBJECT: Lessons about the White House Africa Conference: More and Better Engagement

The Administration got high praise for its initiatives and outreach on South Africa; it is getting some sharp criticism for its White House Africa Conference. The successes of one and the short-comings of the other illustrate why we need to have regular, serious and coordinated engagement efforts on foreign policy.

To continue getting more applause and fewer complaints on these issues, Tara and I need to get your go-ahead to continue holding regular meetings of the small interagency groups described in our June 3 memo to you.

The applause we got from Members and other significant political figures reflected our successful efforts to work closely with the Hill and constituency groups, and to keep the process as open as possible.

The criticism from some Members of Congress (in the CBC) and others about our handling of the White House Conference stems in part from their feeling that they were insufficiently consulted in its preparation. They also complain about our policy toward Rwanda (and Haiti).

Whether the complaints are true or not, the perception of a problem does exist among a constituency that is important politically for the White House.

This is precisely the kind of situation that Tara Sonenshine and I are trying to fix through our informal interagency group on public engagement on international issues. these kinds of problems and propose concrete solutions in our June 3 memo to Nancy.

Where NSC, OPL and other White House offices work cooperatively with State and other agencies to do good public engagement, we get praise. Where we don't, we get pot shots.

Getting our group in place will greatly improve our ability to prevent the kind of criticism the White House conference has attracted, and to generate the praise we got on our South Africa program.

The Honorable William J. Clinton
President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We write to again urge you to insure that the United States takes all possible supportive actions to stop the killings in Rwanda. As you will recall, the Congressional Black Caucus sent you a letter on May 4th requesting that your Administration "take aggressive leadership in the UN Security Council to back the Secretary General's recommendation and to pledge additional funds appropriate for this purpose."

Much to our dismay, events continue to unfold which contradict that objective. In reaching this conclusion, we have taken great care to consult with a number of international relief organizations and highly respected entities in the United States which are monitoring developments on the continent of Africa -- ranging from OXFAM in the United Kingdom to Human Rights Watch in the United States. In both public venues and in major press interviews, American officials have sent alarming and mixed signals. We cite the following as examples:

1. The United States Ambassador to the United Nations has demeaned the Secretary General and jeopardized the future peace keeping capability of the United Nations in statements on a nationally broadcast edition of the MacNeil Lehrer Report in which she stated cavalierly that calling on the United Nations is tantamount to dialing 911 and getting a busy signal or no answer at all. Ambassador Madeleine Albright went further to say that the Secretary General had no plan to address this grievous situation and we should send him back.

Mr. President, to the contrary, the Secretary General has issued a comprehensive plan in writing several times, and his report of May 13, 1994 spelled out in detail a proposed revised expanded mission for the UNAMIR II, all of which the U.S. Ambassador has failed to acknowledge.

2. Global reactions are equally distressing. On May 18, 1994 OXFAM/UK stated "US Government's insistence that there is further discussion in the Security Council before the second phase of troops are dispatched could seriously undermine the UN operation and result in many more deaths." In a June 10, 1994 New York Times article OXFAM was again quoted as saying "during the past months of slaughter, the United States has been the key player in halting action on Rwanda, creating a series of excuses and inventing problems that do not exist. Its previous insistence on only deploying troops on the borders and its demand troops are deployed in phases has been nothing but a fig leaf hiding what is in effect a callous disregard for the lives of thousands of Rwandans."

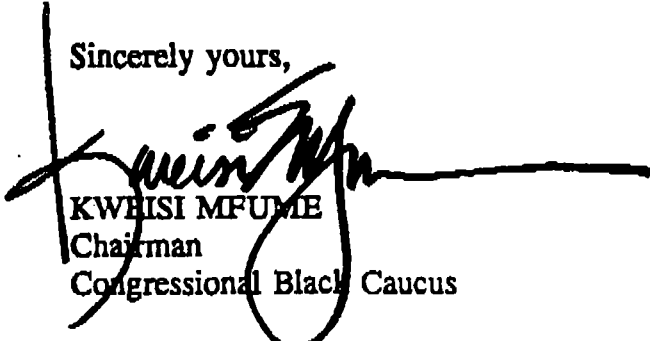

3. While both U.S. Ambassador to the UN Human Rights Commission, Geraldine Ferraro and the former Assistant Secretary of State for Africa, Herman Cohen have formally termed the Rwanda slaughters as "genocide". Human Rights Watch has questioned the wisdom of ranking Clinton Administration operatives in their instructions to the State Department and other officials to refrain from defining these massacres as genocide.

Mr. President, we are further concerned with the failure to implement the May 17, 1994 United States decision to provide fifty armored personnel carriers to the expanded UNAMIR force. Surely our State and Defense Department representatives could have accomplished this in a matter of days, and yet as of the writing of this letter the equipment is not in place.

We are also concerned that the counsel which you receive on matters involving Africa does not reflect a deep understanding of the economic, political, and social nuances which are so intrinsic to the development of sound foreign policy or a sensitivity to the position of African Americans in the treatment of these issues.

Lastly, we think it is important to note, that given the range of concerns which the Congressional Black Caucus has raised regarding U.S. policy toward Africa with you and other Administration officials, no consultation of any kind was made as a White House Conference on Africa was being strategized and planned. Given our Members history in carrying the United States-African portfolio in the Congress, such failure has great irony. At this point, those Members of the Caucus who have been invited have elected to decline participation and instead encourage that energies be expended in attempts to save the children and church leadership in Rwanda, who are the latest targets of the relentless violence, and ending the continuing crises in Haiti.

Dear Mr. President:

We urge you again to insure that the United States takes all possible supportive actions to stop the killings in Rwanda.

As you will recall the Congressional Black Caucus sent you a letter on May 4th requesting that your Administration "take aggressive leadership in the UN Security Council to back the Secretary General's recommendations and to pledge additional funds appropriate for this purpose."

Much to our dismay, exactly the opposite has occurred. These are the facts as we view the issue, and as confirmed by reputable organizations like OXFAM/UK and Human Rights Watch in the United States:

1. The United States Ambassador to the United Nations has undercut the Secretary General and the future peace keeping capability of the United Nations by making public statements to the effect that calling on the United Nations is like calling 911 and getting a busy signal or the phone is not answered and that the Secretary General did not have a plan and we had to send him back. To the contrary the Secretary General issued a comprehensive plan in writing several times, and his report of May 13, 1994 spelled out in detail a proposed revised expanded mission for the UNAMIR II all of which the U. Its previous insistence on only deploying troops on the borders and its demand troops are deployed in phases has been nothing but a fig leaf hiding what is in effect a callous disregard for the lives of thousands of Rwandans." We know you are familiar with the credibility of OXFAM which was formed by a group of Oxford professors.

3. We have read that UN Ambassador Geraldine Ferraro in her capacity as our representative to the UN Human Rights Commission meeting in Geneva has called what is going on in Rwanda as "Genocide" and Herman Cohen, a highly respected former Assistant Secretary of State for Africa declared that the killings there must be called genocide and another holocaust may just have slipped by hardly noticed by your Administration. Human Rights Watch has questioned the wisdom of instructions to State and other officials to not define the slaughter taking place in Rwanda as genocide.

Mr. President, we are very concerned with the implementation of the May 17, 1994 United States decision to provide fifty armored personnel carriers to the expanded UNAMIR force. Surely our State and Defense Department Officials could have accomplished this in a matter of days, and yet as of the writing of this letter the equipment is not in place.

We are also concerned that you have surrounded yourself with advisors in both the National Security Council and the United Nations that have little knowledge of Africa, and sensitivity to the feelings of African Americans in the treatment of these issues.

It is further ironic that a White House Conference on Africa is being proposed at a time when the Administration is performing in such a regrettable manner. To many of our constituents it appears to be another public relations move to sooth the feelings of African American leadership, when in fact we would rather your staff spend its time saving the children and church leadership in Rwanda who are the latest targets of the genocide.

DRAFT

MEMORANDUM TO THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ALEXIS HERMAN

SUBJECT: THE AFRICA CONFERENCE: IMPROVING OUR FOREIGN POLICY
POLITICAL OUTREACH

We have fixed the problem with the Africa Conference. It will proceed as scheduled this Sunday and Monday with Congressional Black Caucus support.

However, I am concerned that we unless we fix some of the organizational snags that led to the problems in the first place, we will continue to make trouble for ourselves in the upcoming elections.

We are getting hit in the sensitive areas where foreign policy and domestic politics meet. We risk bad press and bad domestic political fallout in the 1994 (and 1996) campaigns if this continues. Without careful attention, we risk damaging ourselves on domestic constituencies if our foreign policy glitches spill into our domestic initiatives.

I spoke with the CBC leadership about our Conference and while they support the idea of an African conference, they were not happy with the way that this Conference was planned. Mfume and Payne believe they were locked out of the process and only informed of the details at the last minute, without adequate input or consultation from interested Members.

While there was a slip up on communications between the White House and the CBC, I assured them that we have corrected the situation and we look forward to working closely with them on our Africa policy. (In brief, the NSC staff did not consult with the CBC members).

Beyond this Conference: Two Things That Need to be Fixed

The Conference/CBC situation stems from two basic problems that undercut our good work on foreign policy and on domestic politics. One is internal to the Administration, the other beyond.

o we need to reach out more consistently and more regularly to more groups and constituencies interested in international issues (businessmen, white ethnics, African Americans, voluntary groups, etc.) We need to demonstrate to them that we are looking after America's national interest and paying attention to their particular concerns.

o to reach out successfully we first need to shift some of our internal procedures. There is already a fair amount of cooperation among the five key offices in the White House that should be regularly involved in these issues: NSC, OPL, Leg, political and communications. We have worked well together on a number of key initiatives. However, on foreign policy outreach issues our mutual involvement has sometimes been haphazard.

What is badly needed is agreement in the White House that the non-foreign policy offices need to work more closely with the foreign policy side from very early on in the process, not just at the last minute when the 'political' people are brought in to 'sell' a policy.

Obviously, the NSC must lead. They know the technical issues. But OPL and others need a regular ongoing process of outreach and public engagement with constituency groups.

As a start, we could begin a series of regular monthly meetings on a topic of the month, and invite Members from the Hill, key leaders and important constituency groups to attend briefings at the OEOB.

The bottom line is for you, Mr. President, to instruct our offices to do more effective coordination and to launch a serious effort at foreign policy outreach.

RE: ERNEST WILSON AND PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

I understand that you and Nancy have encouraged Ernie Wilson to remain involved in public engagement activities. I would strongly endorse your decision to keep Ernie involved.

Ernie has worked closely with me and my staff on several White House initiatives, especially the three events we did on South Africa that both of us attended (in the Roosevelt Room, Indian Treaty Room and the large South Lawn event.) Ernie and I have also worked together on the White House Conference, although not as much as on South Africa.

I briefly dropped by the small group meeting that he and Tara held recently with staff from other international agencies. I believe that with OPL participation, this effort can be a useful device to do more and better coordinated public liaison and press on international affairs. I hope this group will continue and I want to be as supportive as I can.

Like you, I have encouraged Ernie to continue to help us at the White House while he is at USIA. He seems to work well with your staff and mine. He knows the community of people interested in international affairs, and knows their concerns. He is discreet. If he concentrates on foreign affairs groups as Tara does the press, I believe their joint public engagement effort will be very successful.

To recognize his effort and to ensure he does remain engaged I am prepared to give him a title like 'special advisor'. If you are willing, he could serve as special advisor to both of us (unpaid, of course), so he could continue his access to the White House as he works with Tara on the White House interagency group.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Senator Jeffords:

Thank you for agreeing to participate in a Congressional panel on June 27 at the White House meeting on Africa and U.S. policy toward Africa.

The conference is an important opportunity for leaders who care deeply about Africa and about America's relations with the continent. It will offer us a unique occasion to share ideas on such fundamental concerns as sustainable development, internal conflicts, democracy, human rights, Africa's socio-economic and political problems, and trade and investment ties. I hope that one result of the conference will be to strengthen the constituency for engagement with Africa.

Again, I appreciate your interest in the important issues affecting Africa and the United States. I look forward to seeing you on June 27.

Sincerely,

The Honorable James M. Jeffords

HEALTH CARE - RHODE ISLAND STATE OPINION LEADERSHIP BRIEFING

Roosevelt Room, White House

3:00 - 3:30 pm; Tuesday, June 28, 1994

EVENT

You will make remarks and take questions at the end of this briefing. Ira Magaziner, Christine Heenan and Chris Jennings are the other three speakers who will brief the 35 participants from the state of Rhode Island about the provisions, benefits and importance of the President's Health Care Security Act. This group consists of business and labor leaders, DNC supporters, doctors, nurses, educators, seniors, social workers and other community activists. These are all individuals who are supportive of universal coverage.

YOUR ROLE AND CONTRIBUTION

Because this group represents influential leaders from Rhode Island, recommended by supportive organizations (labor, seniors, businesses, hospitals, and providers); it is important to re-emphasize the importance their role is in delivering the President's message to Capitol Hill and stress the critical time line we are faced with in passing a universal health care bill this session. These people are newsmakers: they are opinion makers in their communities; have relationships with Members of Congress; and have been actively participating in the health care reform campaign. In addition, we targeted not only those who are politically important in Rhode Island, but also those who are close to and are willing to carry the message to Senator Chafee.

LOGISTICS

- When you arrive outside of the Roosevelt Room, Alexis Herman will announce you into the room. (enter through the the door closest to your office)
- You can either speak from the chair in front of the group or you may stand.
- You will make remarks and take questions.
- You will greet participants and depart.

PROGRAM NOTES

- This is the sixth state opinion leaders briefing on the President's health care initiative. The First Lady has participated in briefings for the states of Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kansas, California and Oklahoma. We have scheduled briefings for Oregon and North Dakota for Wednesday and Thursday of this week.
- As we have done with opinion leader briefings on other issues (economic plan, NAFTA and crime), we have invited health care reform supporters from targeted communities for in-depth briefings on the issue -- Ira Magaziner; message -- Christine Heenan; and a congressional update -- Chris Jennings.
- Our goal is for these individuals to leave here prepared to contact their Member of Congress, actively support health care organizational activities in their state, and serve as advocates in their communities on behalf of the Clinton health plan. It is to our understanding that while these leaders are in Washington, they will be meeting with Senator Chafee on Capitol Hill.
- The briefing is closed to the press. There will be a stakeout following the briefing. In the past, we have been successful in generating local regional media back home about their meeting at the White House.

ATTACHMENTS

- Agenda
- Talking Points
- List of Participants

RHODE ISLANDERS KNOW 91% IS NO SOLUTION

- Some in Washington say universal coverage is a worthy goal, but not one worth any heavy lifting. They say 91% is close enough -- that it solves most of the problem. Well, Rhode Island has 91% coverage today -- and those of you in this room know that's no solution at all.
- More than 90,000 Rhode Islanders have no coverage at all, and thousands more are just one job change, one move, one pink slip away from losing their insurance. Nearly one in three of your tax dollars goes to pay for Medicaid -- which covers only 8% of the population.
- And one in six Rhode Islanders with insurance pays all or most of the premiums themselves -- costs that can run as high as $12,000 for a family just for health care.
- That's got to end -- working Rhode Islanders deserve the security of knowing their health care will always be there.

Why Is Universal Coverage So Important?

- If we don't achieve universal coverage, we fail the hard working middle-class.
- Partial solutions will protect the wealthy and help the poor, but stick it to the middle-class. These half-measures and quick fixes would leave every American at risk of losing their insurance. And at least 24 million Americans who work for a living would have no coverage at all. (CBO analysis, 5/94, p. 20)
- More than half of uninsured Rhode Islanders are middle class working people.

Without Universal Coverage....

- Rhode Island will continue to lose $60 million in uncompensated care each year.
- Rhode Island tax-payers will pay $107 million more to finance Medicaid, the health program for the poor and the elderly.
- Nearly 350,000 Rhode Islanders will still risk being denied health insurance or forced to pay higher rates due to pre-existing conditions.
- 8,000 Rhode Islanders will continue to lose their health insurance each month.

Q: What does the Administration think of Senator Chafee's plan?

A: There is a great deal of activity in the Senate Finance Committee right now, and that's very encouraging. I'd like to think we're seeing good-faith efforts to craft a plan that can answer the concerns of some members, but at the same time meet the President's bottomline goal of universal coverage. Senator Chafee has repeatedly said he's for health care reform, and he's for universal coverage. His knowledge and experience has placed him at the center of activity in the Finance Committee. He has been a critical to the negotiations. But if in the end his plan does not contain universal coverage, it won't be a plan we can support.

Q: But does his plan achieve universal coverage? If not, isn't it close enough?

A: The President has said time and time again that his bottom line is guaranteed private insurance for every American. The Finance Committee is still working on this -- the proposal that came out last week moves us in the right direction, but there's work yet to be done. Our bottom line hasn't changed.

Why? Because without universal coverage it's the middle class that gets hardest hit. We think health reform has to be about helping middle class working people, not leaving them out in the cold.

Q: What will the Administration accept as universal coverage? 91% 95%

A: We don't think it's useful to get into a numbers game. Universal means universal - it means guaranteed private insurance for every American.

Q: What should we be doing to make sure Senator Chafee gets the message on universal coverage?

A: Well, the White House isn't allowed to suggest that outside groups lobby the Congress. The best I can say is that what makes democracy work is when individual citizens rise up and tell their elected leaders what they need, what policies will help make their lives better. That's why I'm so heartened you're here in Washington today.

MEMORANDUM

TO: President Clinton

FROM: Carol Willis

DATE: June 27, 1994

RE: Briefing Notes for African American Constituents Reception

The African Americans selected for this gathering include 250 of your oldest, strongest and most loyal supporters. This is by no means an exhaustive account of the total number of African American early supporters. We will continue to include other early supporters in future events as they arise.

These supporters are a diverse group of individuals from a wide range of social, economical, and political disciplines that include streetworkers, ministers, elected officials, financial contributors and what we call business card crowds (people whom we have collected business cards from across the country). They have weathered the storm through such controversies as Gennifer Flowers, Sister Souljah, the Marijuana incident, Draft Dodging, Lani Guinier etc. Some supporters go back to the early 1980's. These are the people who hung tough with you when others were turning their backs.

It is important to point out that some of these supporters have felt pushed aside and put upon since you have taken office. Although my office has continued to maintain contact with these African Americans, staff size and budget constraints has hindered us. Ideally, the Arkansas model should be applied.

Still further, they are upset that a lot of the appointees in the administration were not your supporters. The perception is that many of them were influenced by whites more than African Americans.

I will prepare a monthly report on the concerns of these African American supporters if you think it will be helpful.

Social events at the White House are fine and good, but substantive items are what will get you re-elected.

RADICAL RIGHT

You should ask for their support against attacks from the radical right such as Jerry Fallwell, Rush Limbaugh and Pat Robertson.

POLICIES

Healthcare Reform, Crime, Welfare Reform, and Haiti are issues of importance to this group. Bishop Talbot recently sent you a letter requesting military intervention in Haiti.

ARKANSAS

African American Arkansans are feeling left out and abandoned. All is not well at home. Conrad Patillo's appointment as U.S. Marshall has been the only major black appointment in Arkansas. (NOTE: Most people don't count Willis, Nash, Slater, Shackelford, etc. in the appointment process.)

SPECIAL STROKES

BISHOP FORD, BISHOP WALKER (CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST) - You saw them last year when you spoke at the COGIC conference in Memphis, TN (The speech you gave here has been called one of your best ever). Bishop Ford just recently celebrated his 80th Birthday and 60th anniversary with the COGIC.

DR. CHARLES ADAMS (The Progressive National Baptist Convention) -

BISHOP BROOKINS (African Methodist Episcopal) - Although he has had some recent problems within the AME church, he is still a major player in the political realm. FYI - He has been instrumental in helping me organize economic development workshops across the country involving senior administration officials and community leaders.

BISHOP JAMES (African Methodist Episcopal) - He is the new Presiding Bishop of the District in this area (Brookins former district). I pushed hard to get James here so there would be strong loyal Clinton supporter for the AME church in this area.

DR. T.J. JEMISON (National Baptist Convention, USA) - Jemison is the out going President of the NBC, USA. His convention is coming up in September and he has sent requests for you to attend.

REV. W.C. TINS (Magnolia, AR) - His wife Ellona was recently killed in a car accident.

ALYCE FLAKES (Little Rock, AR) - Her father recently died.

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS MEMBERS

Sanford Bishop

William Jefferson (Strong early supporter)

Floyd Flake (Strong early supporter)

Sheila Jackson-Lee (Strong early supporter) - She beat Craig Washington in the Democratic Primary. She has Republican opposition, so we need to put strong support behind her.

Chaka Fattah - He beat Lucien Blackwell in the Democratic Primary. He will be a strong supporter next year in Congress.

ADDITIONAL NOTE

Most of these supporters have been participating in a full day of activities. The DNC held a briefing and luncheon earlier at the Mayflower hotel. Stan Greenberg provided a polling analysis, Joan Baggett gave a political briefing and Chairman Wilhelm gave the address at the luncheon.

Upon further reflection, it is clear that both personnel and structural issues related to this office must be addressed immediately.

The attached memorandum makes the following two recommendations: 1) Change the name of the office to the White House Office of AIDS Policy, and 2) Create two assistant director positions (named by the President) - an Assistant Director for Intergovernmental Affairs and an Assistant Director for Community Affairs.

Re: Office of the National AIDS Policy Coordinator

It is widely recognized that there are both personnel and structural problems related to the Office of the National AIDS Policy Coordinator. In order to 1) improve the coordination of federal AIDS policy, 2) fulfill the President's promise to the American people during the 1992 campaign, and 3) address deep concerns within the AIDS communities regarding the President's commitment to the AIDS epidemic, both issues must be addressed.

The purpose of this memorandum is to outline an organizational structure to meet those objectives. The structure described below is based on the general concepts developed by the AIDS communities during the Presidential transition and contained in two documents - An AIDS Agenda for the Clinton Administration and the 103rd Congress and the Federal HIV/AIDS Agenda '93. Furthermore, it is designed to implement the general functions articulated in earlier memorandum.

Name - The Office of the National AIDS Policy Coordinator should be eliminated. The newly formed office should be called something along the lines of White House Office of AIDS Policy. The Office should be headed by a Director - reporting to the Carol Rasco.

Structure - The functional activities of the Office are both internal and external. Therefore, the relatively small staff (8-10) should be structured along functional lines. The Director should have two direct reports - an Assistant Director for Intergovernmental Affairs and an Assistant Director for Community Affairs.

Assistant Director for Intergovernmental Affairs - Assist the Director in meeting internal responsibilities. Responsibility for all internal (White House and interagency) policy issues. Staff would have responsibility for specific issue areas (care, research, prevention, housing, discrimination). Duties would include: working with the White House Office of Congressional Affairs, working with an AIDS coordinator designated in each department, monitoring the work of all departments and agencies with regard to AIDS policy issues, assisting in intra-departmental AIDS budget development, advocating for departmental AIDS budgets at OMB.

Assistant Director for Community Affairs - Assist the Director in meeting external responsibilities. Responsible for all external relations (with primary responsibility focusing on staffing the Presidential HIV/AIDS Advisory Council). Liaison with the AIDS communities with particular emphasis on community based service providers. However, in order to 1) meet the mission of the Presidential HIV/AIDS Advisory Council and, 2) assure that the Council plays a productive role in advising the President on AIDS policy, it is extremely important that appropriate staff support is provided. Without the necessary staff support and policy guidance this Council (and individual members) may not be able to fully meet its mission of providing coherent and thoughtful advice and could quickly become yet another problem area for the White House.

REMARKS TO THE SMALL BUSINESS HEALTH CARE EVENT

DATE: June 30, 1994
LOCATION: South Lawn
TIME: 10:00 a.m.
FROM: Alexis Herman
Caren Wilcox
Marilyn DiGiacobbe

I. PURPOSE

To begin the Congressional recess with visible, enthusiastic small business support for health care reform, by inviting Members of Congress and the small businesses they have identified. To acknowledge the exponential growth of the Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform. The message is small business support for universal coverage and employer responsibility.

II. BACKGROUND

This is an event which combines two important demonstrations of small business support for real health care reform, including universal coverage and employer responsibility.

Butler Derrick (D-SC), the Chief Deputy Majority Whip, requested members of the Democratic caucus to identify small businesses in their districts which support health care reform. Ninety-seven members of Congress did so. The names of over 300 small businesses from 35 states in all regions of the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia were provided to us by the Whip's office.

In attendance from their lists will be 255 small businesses and approximately 51 members of Congress are expected.

In addition, the Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform, which began only 8 weeks ago, has added 9 more associations since June 20 for a total of 29 associations today. They are now larger than the 610,000 claimed by the NFIB. They represent 626,000 businesses and over 5.6 million employees in the United States. Other associations are expected to be added in the future. (You met with them during a photo opportunity on June 20.)

The coalition was formed by the National Association of Chain Drugs (Ron Zeigler, President) and the National Association of Retail Druggists (Charles West, Executive Vice President).

A member of the Coalition, Brian McCarthy, will speak about their rapid growth and current status as a national association. You met Mr. McCarthy at the small business "heroes" roundtable event in Room 450 OEOB on March 22.

The associations in the coalition and the number of businesses they represent include:
