Re: 1996 Delegate Selection

Enclosed are two UNOFFICIAL DRAFTS of the 1996 Delegate Selection Calendar. Version 1 reflects changes that are very likely to occur, where legislation has recently passed or is pending. Version 2 reflects further changes that are currently and actively being discussed. The calendar will continue to change over the next year and a half as states finalize their plans. We will update the material regularly.

Calendar Version 1 illustrates the movement of California, New York, and Ohio. Incidentally, these are three of the ten most delegate rich states, accounting for approximately 21% of the pledged delegates and 17% of the total delegates.

The movement of just these three states means that during the 1996 primary season, by March 26, 75.25% of all the delegates will have been certified or chosen; this number includes 71.4% of the pledged delegates.

In addition, as illustrated in Version 2, several states are debating moving up. These include Wisconsin (with 2.33% of the pledged), New Jersey (with 2.9%) and Pennsylvania (with 4.8%). If these three do move into March, approx. 83% of all the delegates and 81.5% of the pledged will have been chosen by the 26th.

There are any number of consequences, both intended and not, that could result. I will note just a few.

1. Incumbent Protection: For our incumbents, this should mean that playful challenges are dispensed with very early in the process, thus allowing the President to spend much of the primary season in the Presidential mode.

2. Republican Scenarios: For the Republicans, this may mean an accelerated winnowing process and an early nominee. That would mean less blood letting - and more time for them to move into general election conversation. This scenario is even more likely if California Republicans continue their winner-take-all-process. (There is an initiative being considered in California to end the winner take all Republican primary.)

If Democratic Party history is any guide, our experiences in '88 and '92 indicate that there was a nominee apparent after about 60% of the delegates were chosen. This took place after the NY primary, scheduled in April in both cases, and was confirmed after Pennsylvania held its primary later in April.

With the current schedule, 60% plus occurs on Mar. 19, with California's additional almost 10% determined the next week.

OR

It could mean that after March no Republican candidate has locked up the nomination, few delegates are yet to be picked and they've got all sorts of problems: a brokered convention, a busy spring of deal making, sundry Republican special interest groups flexing their muscles, etc.

But, as we say in the business, "on the other hand", it could mean that the Republicans get a great deal of attention all the way through their nominating convention and/or that a strong consensus candidate emerges and/or that the press and public focus on their horse race dwarfs democratic events and administration initiatives.

3. Earlier Start-up: The campaign season including trips, organizers, rhetoric, fund raising and spending will begin even earlier. Less money may be spent because of the shortened time frame.

4. Candidate Advantages: Candidates with more money, better organization, and higher name ID have an initial advantage and more staying power; the second tier candidate who bounces out of Iowa/NH doing "better than expected" (and gets the network coverage) may also be advantaged.

5. Long Term Considerations: For the process in the long term, this acceleration of the winnowing process is threatening to become a "rush to judgement." Candidates will not have the opportunity to grow and polish their message. The public will not have the opportunity to get to know them. The media scrutiny and serious questions may not get asked. During his "15 minutes of fame" a charismatic candidate may sweep the delegates.

6. Some additional calendar notes:

a) Rust belt primary: A midwest consolidation is in the works with Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, and maybe Pennsylvania and Wisconsin scheduled for Mar. 19th. If that occurs, 19.82% of the pledged delegates will be chosen on that day.

b) California Options: California currently has moved their primary to March 26. If New York and others do move to earlier dates in March, California may move their primary date up again, perhaps to Jr. Tuesday. The occasion of the selection of their almost 10% of the pledged delegates is a major event whenever it occurs.

c) Expanded Jr. Tuesday: The first Tuesday in March is the date the window opens officially for the Primary season. Only Iowa, New Hampshire, and Maine are grandfathered in before that date (though South Dakota has received exemptions due to Republican control of their legislative process). 1992 was the first year this date became available with seven states and American Samoa taking advantage of the opportunity. Almost 10% of the pledged delegates were chosen. For the 1996 calendar, with New York definitely moving, almost 18% of the pledged delegates will be determined on Jr. Tuesday; if NJ also advances the percent becomes 20.8%; and if California moves again, Jr. Tuesday will be bigger than Super Tuesday with 30.7% of the pledged delegates chosen on that one day.

8. More calendar numbers: If the expanded Jr. Tuesday becomes reality, combining the totals of the first and second Tuesdays in March yields 59.8% of the pledged delegates -- close to that magic 60%. This would occur on March 12th, and without the midwest rust belt event on March 19. When we add the delegates chosen on the 19th, (assuming a California move to Jr. Tuesday) 79.6% of the pledged will have been selected.

9. Changes in Unpledged Delegate Categories and related percentages: The DNC Rules and By Laws Committee is proposing three changes related to this group, sometimes known as "Super Delegates."

a) Four fifths (4/5) of the Democratic members of the House and the Senate were awarded unpledged delegate status for 1992. At the same time, all DNC members and Democratic governors were certified. The committee is proposing a change that will provide all Democratic members of the House and Senate with unpledged status. The rationales behind this change include the desire not to exclude any Members, to permit them all to participate in the platform and nominating process, and to ease the burden of Senate and House leadership in having to make these choices. Further, it will encourage all Members to be part of the Party, support and campaign for the ticket, and continue to build a close working relationship between the administration and the Congress.

b) The President and Vice President would be granted unpledged status. This would be consistent with the current rules which allow former Democratic Presidents and Vice Presidents this opportunity, and may be of interest for 2000 as well as 1996.

c) Former Chairs of the Democratic National Committee would be added to this category (currently an additional 8 persons).

If these changes are supported by the full DNC at its meeting this March, pledged delegates will account for 80% of the convention, unpledged 20%. There will be approximately 2% more unpledged delegates at the 1996 convention than in 1992. While the change in the percentage of unpledged delegates is minimal, their influence is not. Their presence could be helpful in mitigating rump candidacies and activities.

10. Presidential Right of Approval: Another proposed change to the 1996 Delegate Selection Rules responds to the need for greater presidential control over the selection of the at-large and party leader and elected official (PLEO) delegates.

Currently presidential candidates (or their representatives) may remove names from the list of bona fide supporters but must leave, at a minimum, three (3) names for every position.

The change under consideration would allow presidential candidates to remove names from the list as long as, at a minimum, one (1) name remains for every delegate or alternate position. This proposal speaks to the reality of the presidential slate: that it must address affirmative action, political necessities, activism, and long term convention and general election needs.

Finally, because the Republican rules differ from the Democrats' both nationally and in their state plans, and because their delegation numbers differ, we are beginning to compile information around their process. Since the Republicans held the White House during the last cycle, their nominating process information was not a priority. (We were rather busy with our own.)

But now it is. Once we have their rules, we will attempt to analyze who might be advantaged by what. This should be a provocative body of information.

On a similar track, the influence, if any, of the calendar on third party candidates should be considered, though the methodology of this is uncertain to us at this time.

We will update and expand upon this process and the additional information as appropriate.

MEMORANDUM FOR HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES THAT PROVIDE FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

FROM:

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

SUBJECT:

Use of the Disparate Impact Standard in Administrative Regulations Under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

This month marks the 30th anniversary of the passage of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. §§2000d to 2000d-6), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, or national origin in programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. The anniversary of this landmark legislation is a fitting time to remind agencies that administrative regulations implementing Title VI apply not only to intentional discrimination but also to policies and practices that have a discriminatory effect. In Guardians Association v. Civil Service Commission, 463 U.S. 582 (1983), the Supreme Court held that while Title VI itself requires proof of discriminatory intent, agencies may validly adopt regulations implementing Title VI that also prohibit discriminatory effects. Nearly all agencies have adopted such regulations. In Alexander v. Choate, 469 U.S. 287 (1985) (construing Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973), a unanimous Supreme Court restated the holding in Guardians that disparate impact violations could be addressed through regulations implementing Title VI.

This Administration will vigorously enforce Title VI. As part of this effort, and to make certain that Title VI is not violated, each of you should ensure that the disparate impact provisions in your regulations are fully utilized so that all persons may enjoy equally the benefits of federally financed programs.

Enforcement of the disparate impact provisions is an essential component of an effective civil rights compliance program. Individuals continue to be denied, on the basis of their race, color, or national origin, the full and equal opportunity to participate in or receive the benefits of programs assisted by Federal funds. Frequently discrimination results from policies and practices that are neutral on their face but have the effect of discriminating. Those policies and practices must be eliminated unless they are shown to be necessary to the program's operation and there is no less discriminatory alternative.

Under Executive Order 12250, the Department of Justice is responsible for ensuring that funding agencies meet their responsibilities under Title VI. This Department is committed to productive and effective enforcement of the civil rights laws by each agency that extends Federal financial assistance. Facially neutral policies and practices that act as arbitrary and unnecessary barriers to equal opportunity must end. This was the goal of Title VI when it became law and it remains one of the highest priorities of this Administration.

DID YOU KNOW...

- 4.1 million new jobs have been created in the American economy in the past 18 months. more than Bush & Clinton
- Low-income workers can now qualify for an additional $100 a month in direct payments through the expanded Earned Income Tax Credit.
- The majority of all presidential appointees to the federal bench have been women and minorities. with the highest percentage being African American
- The Justice Department has prosecuted 34 racial violence cases, charging 59 defendants since the President Clinton took office.
- The Clinton Administration argued in federal court to expand the interpretation of the Voting Rights Act. in the case of Shaw v. Reno
- 100,000 new police officers on the streets, walking the beats as part of the community, thanks to federal assistance from the President's crime bill.
- The Justice Department Civil Rights Division filed a record 140 cases last year to enforce fair housing laws, a 35 percent increase from the number of cases filed in 1992.
- after 6 years of delay The new Family & Medical Leave Act allows workers to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave to care for an infant or a loved one without losing their job.
- The Labor Department collected over $34.5 million in back pay and other financial remedies for discrimination victims, an increase of 12 percent from the year before.
- President Clinton signed a comprehensive child immunization plan, which includes a 96 percent increase in funding, so that every child, regardless of family income, will be immunized against disease.

- * The Environmental Protection Agency identified 20 environmental justice pilot projects to be undertaken across the country to redevelop contaminated sites in low-income communities and turn them into useable space, creating jobs and enhancing community development.
- * The Treasury Department, working with the Justice Department, ordered a Mississippi bank that denied loans because of race to implement a remedial lending plan for minority customers.
- * The Clinton Administration created the Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program, which provides a federal guarantee for private sector bond financing for the repair and construction of facilities at historically black colleges and universities.
- * President Clinton created the Office of Minority Health Research and Alternative Medicine at the National Institutes of Health.

TALKING POINTS ON HEALTH CARE

WE NEED HEALTH CARE REFORM NOW!

We are on the verge of making history with a health care reform bill that guarantees health coverage to every American family, an important step forward for African Americans and all Americans.

Health care reform is a matter of life and death for many African Americans because African Americans die at a higher rate from preventable diseases than other Americans.

African Americans are among those most at risk of going without care and health coverage in today's system. Today, 55 percent of African American households are uninsured or underinsured.

Despite this, some are rejecting the idea of universal coverage and proposing instead that our goals can be met by piecemeal reform. The evidence shows that non-universal reform will not work, and will leave every American at risk.

We want to guarantee private, not government, insurance for every American so that government spending is controlled and the growth of private health insurance premiums is restrained. The two leadership bills meet this goal.

WHY THE PRESIDENT HAS CALLED FOR HEALTH CARE REFORM

Medicare takes care of seniors, and Medicaid takes care of the poorest in our country. The rich can always buy the health care they need. The health care debate boils down to whether or not the majority of hard-working, working class folks -- those who work two and three jobs just to make ends meet, those who go to work every day to feed their children and pay their rent -- whether or not these Americans will have full health care coverage that can never be taken away.

In the past five years, five million more Americans have lost their health insurance, almost all of them working people and their children. We're fighting for health care reform not just for those who don't have health insurance, but for those who do have it and who could lose it because they have to change jobs, because someone in their family gets sick, because they simply have to pay too much for it. They deserve better, and we're fighting to see that they get it.

If you get elected to Congress, you are guaranteed health care; if you are employed by the federal government, you are guaranteed health care; if you are rich you can guarantee your own health care. But if you get up every day and work for a living, your health coverage is always at risk.

This guarantee from risk is why the National Medical Association -- the largest association of black doctors -- supports the President's health care plan. And that's why we need your support for the health care plan too.

WHY UNIVERSAL COVERAGE IS SO IMPORTANT

Without universal coverage, the insurance company practice of excluding coverage for pre-existing medical conditions such as sugar diabetes and high blood pressure can never be completely eliminated. The high frequency of these diseases in the African-American community, combined with higher numbers of uninsured, means that African Americans frequently go without the health care they need.

Under proposals like that offered by Senator Bob Dole, insurance companies can still deny coverage of pre-existing conditions for up to six months, or in some cases up to a full year. If illness strikes a family and their insurance plan denies them coverage, they could lose everything paying medical bills. Or, insurance premiums would be so high that they are unaffordable.

Without universal coverage, the insurance company rather than your doctor is in charge of how and when you may be treated. Remember years ago, when you got sick and your doctor examined you, recommended tests and checked you into the hospital to find out what the problem was? Back then, your doctor was in charge of deciding what was best for you.

Now, the insurance company tells the doctor that it won't pay if you're checked into the hospital for a battery of tests, and your treatment suffers. Reform will put decisions on your health care back where they belong--with you and your doctor.

Earlier this summer, leaders from 14 national African-American organizations directly conveyed their support of universal coverage to Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, and said, "It is indisputable that passage of meaningful health care reform legislation is a matter of life and death for all Americans and this is especially true for African Americans."

AFRICAN AMERICANS MUST HAVE UNIVERSAL HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE

African-American infants are twice as likely as white infants to die before their first birthdays and are 30 to 50 percent more likely to die than white children before reaching age 14.

African-American women account for almost 40 percent of the total number of deaths in the U.S. in child birth or from pregnancy-related conditions.

Breast cancer is the leading killer of African-American women between the ages of 15 and 54, and cervical cancer is the number two killer of African-American women between the ages of 15 and 34.

African-American males are infected with the AIDS virus at a rate three times higher than white Americans.

African-American men are less likely to receive heart bypass surgery than white men, even though heart disease is the number one killer of black men.

August 1994

TALKING POINTS ON ADMINISTRATION ACCOMPLISHMENTS

DO YOU KNOW WHAT PRESIDENT CLINTON HAS ACHIEVED IN JUST 18 MONTHS?

African Americans who supported the President are now reaping the returns on their investment. In just 18 months, he's created 4.1 million new jobs -- more than were created in all four years of the previous administration.

He's expanded the Earned Income Tax Credit to lift working Americans out of poverty and is fighting for health care for all Americans that can never be taken away, even if you lose your job or change jobs.

For 12 years they told us that government is not a solution, but a problem. They said that government can't help the poor, so the poor should just wait for the wealth to "trickle down." They said government can't do anything to take Uzis and AK-47s from teenagers and convicted criminals. And now those same people are saying government has no business in health care reform.

But that's not all. Bill Clinton has been smart and tough on crime. He knows we can't stop the killing in our streets without new, well-trained community policing officers in our neighborhoods. That's why his crime bill will put 100,000 new police on the streets.

And he also knows that the best solution to crime is to prevent it from happening in the first place, by giving our young people something they can say "yes" to. That's why he supports the Ounce of Prevention Fund, which will provide several hundred million dollars over the next three years to state and local governments, educational institutions, community-based organizations, and other public and private entities for youth-oriented recreational and educational programs (Midnight Sports League, after-school programs, etc.) and youth services like mentoring, job placement, substance abuse and treatment.

It's time we send a message that government, working with the people and not against them, can make a difference. That's why Bill Clinton was elected. Government cannot solve all problems, but it can empower people to solve their own.

President Clinton has made a commitment to this empowerment with appointments -- more than any President in American history -- at the very top of his Administration. Five African Americans: Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, Veterans Affairs Secretary Jesse Brown, and Drug Policy Coordinator Lee Brown, now sit in the President's Cabinet. Together, these officials command budgets in excess of $120 billion, supervise close to a half-million federal employees, and make decisions that effect every facet of American life.

These African Americans and many others, working as partners with the Clinton Administration, are making a difference. Now our government is giving people the tools they need to take control of their lives. It is giving people the power to determine their futures and fulfill their dreams.

WHAT'S AT STAKE FOR THE FUTURE

- * Health care coverage that's always there--for all

The Administrative Enforcement of Title VI The Civil Rights Act Of 1964

I. Title VI Coverage:

Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits a recipient of federal funds from discriminating against those intended to benefit from any program or activity that receives federal money, because of race, color or national origin. Every federal agency that releases federal funds should be aware of the following.

1. Title VI covers all federal departments, agencies, subentities that distribute federal funds.
2. Title VI regulations may prohibit acts that have the "effect" of discriminating against those protected by the statute. Thus, a federal agency has the obligation to review federal fund recipients that are engaged in acts that unintentionally harm protected classes disproportionately. A fund recipient may be violating Title VI even though the fund recipient does not intend to discriminate. Attorney General Janet Reno recently prepared and circulated to federal agencies a memorandum regarding the proper standard of enforcement of Title VI. See attachment.
3. If a person or entity is a recipient of federal funds, all its activities are covered by the Act, not just the activities directly funded by the federal government.
4. The Department of Justice is responsible for coordinating implementation and enforcement of Title VI by federal agencies.
5. Federal agencies must routinely collect data and information necessary to assure compliance with enforcement of Title VI.

II. Administrative Enforcement:

A. Funding and Policy Decisions:

Federal agencies must look at funding decisions and the substantive work of the agency through a Title VI lens. All agencies must consider the impact of policy decisions, funding decisions and daily work on minorities. Where the policy, decision or work activity would harm minorities disproportionately, the agency must make adjustments to avert that harm.

For example the Administration for Children and Families of the Department of Health and Human Resources must consider the impact on minorities of any requested waiver of the Social Security Act. There must be interaction between the Office for Civil Rights (OCR) and the Administration for Children and Families. The same is true for requests for waivers from Medicaid Act requirements reviewed by the Health Care Financing Administration of HHS. Such waivers allow states to drastically alter their administration of their Medicaid program. Because minorities are disproportionately represented in the Medicaid-eligible population, thought must be given to the effect on access to Medicaid services to minorities.

Coordination between federal agencies may be necessary, in some instances, to properly enforce Title VI. For example, HUD provides mortgage guarantees for hospital construction and modernization but there may not be sufficient coordination of enforcement of Title VI between HHS and HUD to determine the impact on minorities of the proposed construction or modernization project.

- B. All federal agencies should be aware of their obligation to enforce Title VI.

Some key issues have been identified in the federal agency enforcement of Title VI.

Some EPA staff members have stated that EPA was not covered by Title VI regulations, even though the EPA has issued Title VI regulations.

- C. Many agencies must more effectively collect data sufficient to ensure compliance with or enforcement of Title VI.

HHS has been sued for its failure to collect race-based data that would permit meaningful compliance reviews and enforcement activities. One option available to the agency that would provide a simple guide and effective way to collect data was rejected by the agency. A billing form used by health providers for Medicaid, Medicare, and private patients, known as UB-82, could have been updated to include a "race cell." Thus providers would have been required to provide the race of patients. The form would have allowed investigation of the breakdown, by race, of the patients seen by the provider and the treatment received.

Instead, the agency opted to begin a complex data cross-matching process, using files that, until 1982, only collected race data on "black, white, and other" and that required cooperation of the Social Security Administration.

The Federal Highway Administration has failed to require the collection of race-based data on the population to be served by construction.

D. Agencies must conduct regular compliance reviews for federal fund recipients.

Filed complaints under Title VI cannot reduce or eradicate discrimination on their own. To reduce the occurrence of discrimination or more efficiently and effectively alter discrimination conduct, agencies must subject federal fund recipients to regular compliance reviews.

For example, although federal funds are distributed by the Health Care Financing Administration, there has been no process of Title VI compliance reviews of the Medicaid or Medicare programs.

E. Agencies must apply the correct standard of proof under Title VI.

A regional office of HHS's OCR had received an administrative complaint that a proposed rebuilding of a federally funded hospital violated Title VI because it was inaccessible to many of the minorities it was intended to serve. The regional OCR found no violation of Title VI. Instead of examining the impact of the location of the hospital on the Medicaid-eligible minorities the facility intended to serve, the regional OCR examined the impact on all residents of the County. However, a federal district court later granted the complainant's motion for a preliminary injunction to stop the construction of the facility. The court found that plaintiffs were likely to prevail on the merits of their claim based on the statistics showing that Medicaid eligible minorities did not live near the proposed site for the facility.

F. Agencies must know the remedies available for violations of Title VI.

Some agencies are simply unaware or unsure of the remedies available under Title VI. Some agencies have refused to provide a requirement that the challenged practice cease until a determination has been made.

G. Agencies must be required to promulgate regulations to implement Title VI and update guidelines regularly.

Some regulations under Title VI are outdated so that some newer funding programs are not covered by the regulations. Some regulations are too vague to be meaningful. Still others are inconsistent with Title VI case law. For example, HHS does not consider certain Medicare-funded health services as covered by Title VI. This position may not be consistent with Supreme Court precedent on Title VI and must be re-evaluated.

- H. Staff must be trained to do proper Title VI compliance and enforcement work, and adequate staffing and resources must be available.

The Department of Justice should aid in the training of agency staff on the coverage and operation of Title VI and aid in the updating and development of regulations and guidelines.

III. CONCLUSION:

Title VI is one of the most important of the civil rights statutes. However, historically, it has not been sufficiently enforced. Federal agencies must examine processes for making funding decisions, and determining whether violations have occurred, as well as the effectiveness of the enforcement process to determine whether Title VI is part of the daily work of the agencies.

Re: King Bill Ceremony

18 August 1994

Good morning. Thanks for considering our request for a ceremony on the King Holiday and Service Act and in particular our request for a larger ceremony on Monday or Tuesday -- especially given all the time constraints facing you. As you know, the King bill reauthorizes the Martin Luther King Commission and transforms the Holiday into a national day of service (see attached oped). The bill, authored by Representative Lewis and Senator Wofford, passed with overwhelming bipartisan support.

Although we obviously have a self-interest in this event, it affords the President a chance to hit his very best themes. The President is extraordinary when discussing Martin King as we saw in Memphis and he's always on when talking about citizenship being about more than just civil rights but also about responsibilities to serve our communities. In the context of other events, the signing ceremony would also afford a positive opportunity to touch base with national civil rights leaders.

A slightly larger event would be very helpful to Senator Wofford and the President in reaffirming and strengthening their ties across Pennsylvania. During the President's visit to Philadelphia, a number (eight that we've heard from) of leading African-Americans felt slighted by the White House on the tarmac when the President touched down. When our AA gets in, we'll forward a copy of a letter from State Representative David Richardson for your review. If we could bring in 20-30 folks from across the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania it would go a very long way.

Thanks for your consideration of this matter and feel free to call either one of us if we can be of assistance (John 224.0610; Marty 224.4158)

A Day 'On,' Not a Day Off

I remember a night in the mid-1950s when my wife and I drove Martin and Coretta King from Baltimore to Washington after Martin had sharply challenged a national black fraternity for spending more money on its weekend convention than the whole annual budget of the NAACP.

Sitting with my wife in the back seat, Coretta told of her recurring nightmare that at the end of the road in the civil rights struggle, Martin would be killed. He leaned back from the front seat and said she should dream instead of all the things that they could do while he was alive. Then he added, "I didn't ask for this. I was asked and said yes." He hummed a line from a spiritual: "The Lord asked me and my soul said yes."

Now, 25 years after Coretta's nightmare became a reality and 10 years since Martin's birthday became a national holiday, what should we do in remembrance of Martin? How should we say "yes"?

We should certainly celebrate and never forget the victories won in that decade of nonviolent direct action. While Martin was alive, the right to vote was won in one-third of our country and segregation laws were struck down everywhere in the land. But Martin would want us to raise our sights to the work yet to be done. In his sermon the night before he was killed, he said he had been to the mountain and seen the Promised Land but might not reach it himself. He was no longer afraid of any man, or death itself, he said. And he was ready to climb the whole range of mountains still ahead.

When he died, he was just trying to move up the next steep slope—the mountain of poverty in our cities, the mountain of class mixed with race, the mountain faced by a generation of young people denied hope and opportunity.

I know, as Bill Clinton said in Memphis last November, that Martin would have found it a scandal to see yet another generation of young Americans fall into a vicious cycle of poverty, drugs, crime, prison and death. He could hardly have imagined that an estimated 100,000 American children will bring guns to school Tuesday. He would not have accepted the epidemic of crime and senseless youth violence that's spreading across cities, suburbs and rural communities in our country.

BY BARRE MALAMUD

"Nothing would have frustrated Martin more than people supposedly honoring him by sitting at home watching TV or sleeping late."

Given a challenge like that, nothing would have frustrated Martin more than people supposedly honoring him by sitting at home watching TV or sleeping late. The King holiday should be a day "on," not a day off. A day of action, not apathy. A day of responding to community needs, not a day of rest and recreation.

So Congressman John Lewis and I have introduced legislation designed to remember Martin the way he would have liked: a day that reflects his proposition that "everybody can be great because everybody can serve." A day that brings the greatness out in people—especially the young—by bringing them together to make a difference in their communities. Fixing parks, tutoring children, rebuilding schools, feeding the hungry, immunizing children, housing the homeless.

Our legislation is designed to enable the current commission to organize the holiday as a fitting tribute to Dr. King, a day of interracial cooperation and community service. It has the strong support of Coretta Scott King. It will reauthorize and link the King Commission, which she chairs, with the Corporation on National and Community Service, which was chartered by the landmark national service bill we enacted last summer. Working together, they will encourage and support service opportunities across the nation in conjunction with the King holiday.

Tomorrow in Pennsylvania we're putting the idea into practice. My entire staff and I have spread out at a dozen sites across our own state, engaging hundreds of Pennsylvanians in local public service and anti-violence efforts in the spirit of this year's holiday theme: "Stop the Killing. Start the Healing and Building."

A number of us will spend the morning working with the United Way of Allegheny County to repair and clean up the Boys and Girls Club of Western Pennsylvania in Wilkensburg. Throughout Philadelphia, we're providing support staff to community police substations. In Harrisburg, we're joining Pennsylvania Service Corps members in repairing and painting apartments for mentally challenged older citizens. In other towns, we'll be marching against violence, serving Meals on Wheels, helping rebuild parks, volunteering in day care centers and tutoring troubled teens.

Community service, in all its forms, is one common sense response to the problem of youth violence. As William Raspberry wrote here last week, we may never be able to change some of the most cold-blooded and violent teenagers. But we have to demand more from our young people instead of expecting less. And most young people want to be asked to give something back to their families and communities, instead of only taking from them.

Rigorous, demanding service can give young people a different kind of "gang." One that does some good, not only for the community but for them. Because it can instill the kind of discipline, work skills, personal responsibility and respect for law that are essential to their becoming productive citizens.

We can put more cops on the street. And we will. We can crack down on career criminals. And we should. We can provide more opportunities for young people to get the education and training they need to be productive, law-abiding citizens. We must. But at some point, we all know there's a limit to what government alone can do to respond. Changing a culture of violence and permissiveness will take all of us, as citizens and parents. And that's what this day ought to be about.

Words—Martin's words—will always be part of what we celebrate. Next to Lincoln's, his are probably the most moving words in American history. But let us remember and honor Martin most of all by his deeds—and by our own.

One Hundred Third Congress of the United States of America

AT THE SECOND SESSION

Begun and held at the City of Washington on Tuesday, the twenty-fifth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four

An Act

To authorize appropriations for the Martin Luther King, Jr. Federal Holiday Commission, to extend such Commission, and to support the planning and performance of national service opportunities in conjunction with the Federal legal holiday honoring the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "King Holiday and Service Act of 1994".

SEC. 2. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. FEDERAL HOLIDAY COMMISSION.

The Act entitled "An Act to establish a commission to assist in the first observance of the Federal legal holiday honoring Martin Luther King, Jr.", approved August 27, 1984 (36 U.S.C. 169j and following) is amended—

(1) in section 3(1) by inserting "(including service opportunities)" after "activities";

(2) in section 4(a) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (5), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (6) and inserting "; and", and by adding at the end the following:

"(7) the Chief Executive Officer of the Corporation for National and Community Service, appointed under section 193 of the National and Community Service Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12851c).";

(3) in section 6—

(A) in subsection (a) by striking "maximum rate of pay payable for grade GS-18 of the General Schedule under section 5332" and inserting "rate of pay for level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315";

(B) in subsection (b)(1) by adding the following at the end: "A person who has been detailed under the preceding sentence for as many as 365 days (continuously or intermittently) may not subsequently be detailed to the Commission."; and

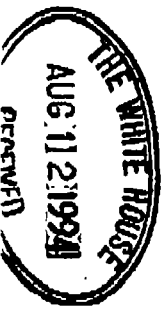

(C) all Federal employees on loan to the King Commission on the day of enactment of this Act may remain detailed to the Martin Luther King Holiday Commission for not more than 365 days;

(4) by amending section 7 to read as follows:

"SEC. 7. There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act—

"(1) $300,000 for fiscal year 1995;

"(2) $350,000 for fiscal year 1996;

H. R. 1933—2

- "(3) $400,000 for fiscal year 1997;
- "(4) $450,000 for fiscal year 1998; and
- "(5) $500,000 for fiscal year 1999.";
- (5) by amending section 8 to read as follows:

"SEC. 8. COMMISSION REPORT.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than April 20 of each year, the Commission shall submit a report to the President and the Congress concerning its activities under this Act or under the National and Community Service Act of 1990.

"(b) ANALYSIS REQUIRED.—The Commission shall include in its annual report—

"(1) a detailed description of all activities undertaken by the Commission;

"(2) an analysis of the spending practices of the Commission indicating how much of the funds of the Commission are dedicated to salaries, travel expenses, and other overhead costs and how much are dedicated to the stated goals of the Commission; and

"(3) a detailed description of any grants made by the Corporation for National and Community Service with the consultation of the Commission.";

(6) in section 9 by striking "April 20, 1994" and inserting "September 30, 1999";

(7) by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 10. None of the funds appropriated or donated to the Commission may be used for the purpose of purchasing first class air travel or first class hotel accommodations."; and

(8) by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 11. ACCOUNTING PROCEDURES.

"The Commission shall follow a comprehensive basis of accounting, as defined by the Comptroller General in B-255473. The Commission shall establish an accounting system for review by the Comptroller General under section 3512 of title 31, United States Code. The Comptroller General is authorized to review and audit the Commission, its programs, activities, operations, and financial transactions. The Comptroller General, and his agents, shall have access to all records, files, documents, and papers of the Commission, as necessary, to accomplish such audits."

SEC. 3. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., SERVICE DAY.

(a) ADDITIONAL CORPORATION ACTIVITY TO SUPPORT NATIONAL SERVICE.—Section 198 of the National and Community Service Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12653) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(s) MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., SERVICE DAY.—

"(1) ASSISTANCE.—The Corporation may make grants to eligible entities described in paragraph (2) to pay for the Federal share of the cost of planning and carrying out service opportunities in conjunction with the Federal legal holiday honoring the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr. Such service opportunities shall consist of activities reflecting the life and teachings of Martin Luther King, Jr., such as cooperation and understanding among racial and ethnic groups, nonviolent conflict resolution, equal economic and educational opportunities, and social justice.

"(2) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—Any entity otherwise eligible for assistance under the national services laws shall be eligible to receive a grant under this subsection.

"(3) CONSULTATION.—In making grants under this subsection, the Corporation shall consult with the Martin Luther King, Jr. Federal Holiday Commission established under section 2 of Public Law 98-399 (36 U.S.C. 169j-1).

"(4) FEDERAL SHARE.—Grants provided under this subsection to an eligible entity to support the planning and carrying out of a service opportunity in conjunction with the Federal legal holiday honoring the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr., together with all other Federal funds used to plan or carry out the service opportunity, may not exceed 30 percent of the cost of planning and carrying out the service opportunity.

"(5) CALCULATION OF ENTITY CONTRIBUTIONS.—In determining the non-Federal share of the costs of planning and carrying out a service opportunity supported by a grant under this subsection, the Corporation shall consider in-kind contributions (including facilities, equipment, and services) made to plan or carry out the service opportunity."

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) REFERENCE TO REPEALED SECTION.—Section 101(a)(3) of the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993 (Public Law 103-82; 107 Stat. 788) is amended by striking "through 136" and inserting "through 135".

MEETING WITH CEO'S WHO SUPPORT UNIVERSAL COVERAGE AND RESPONSIBILITY

DATE: August 22, 1994
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 10:45 a.m.
FROM: Alexis Herman
Caren Wilcox

I. PURPOSE

To meet with and encourage these CEO's in their efforts to achieve serious health care reform. To urge them to deliver their message strongly on these topics to the Hill and to continue their hard work to get that message out in Washington and the country. To hear some of their concerns regarding the current situation as they see it.

II. BACKGROUND

This meeting continues the effort to bring visibility to the companies which provide health care to employees currently, and which publicly support comprehensive health care reform including universal coverage and employer responsibility.

The CEOs and other business leaders represent companies which have all signed the Ad Hoc Business Group letter supporting universal coverage and employer responsibility.

The group reflects the diversity of companies which actively support these two concepts. Two of these executives are experts in health insurance. Mr. Schramm, is the past President of HIAA, and David Hurd, is a past Chair and current board member of HIAA. In addition, Ms. Lusk has been an active member of the Jackson Hole Group. Mr. Perella heads a large manufacturer.

Their issues should be wide ranging and, of course, may include insurance reform. In a past press conference, Mr. Schramm indicated that many innovative insurers were excited about the prospects of reform and wanted no part of the HIAA negative efforts. Ms. Lusk is interested in the effort to standardize data collection, and quality and cost measurement in the health care system. Mr. Perella has the normal concerns of a manufacturer, with cost shifting, and taxes which burden those currently paying health insurance.

This meeting will encourage them to be as active as possible for passage of a bill this year. They will emphasize in a press availability, following your meeting, their view that the country needs comprehensive health care reform including universal coverage and employer responsibility.

CEO's attending include:

Mr. David Hurd
Chairman and CEO
The Principal Financial Group
Des Moines, Iowa

14,275 employees

The Principal Financial Group is a diversified financial service company offering a full range of insurance and financial products and services for businesses, groups and individuals. Some of the services they offer include: pension plans, IRAs, disability income protection plans and residential mortgages. They serve over 8.4 million customers nationwide (individuals and their dependents.)

Mr. Hurd has been with The Principal Financial Group since 1954, when he began as a trainee in the group department. He became vice president in 1985 and executive vice president in 1987. In 1989 he became chairman and CEO. He is a graduate of Michigan State University and served in the U. S. Army Corp of Engineers. He is currently a member of the Board and past chair of HIAA.

Mr. Hurd came to lunch with you in June.

Ms. Alice Lusk
Corporate Vice President and Group Executive
EDS
Plano, Texas

70,000 employees in the U. S. and 30 countries

EDS is a worldwide provider of information technology, including consulting; systems development, integration and maintenance; and process management, headquartered just outside Dallas, Texas. Their revenues exceeded $8 billion in 1992, and they service federal, state and local governments; health care; insurance; communications; manufacturing; transportation; financial services; energy and retail services. EDS is the largest provider of information technology and management services to the health care markets including Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans. In total, EDS serves customers representing 30% of the insured population of the United States. Their parent company is General Motors Corporation.

Ms. Lusk directs all sales, marketing and business operations for EDS' health care and insurance divisions, which provide technology products and services to property, casualty, life and health insurers and managed-care organizations. Ms. Lusk is an officer of the Jackson Hole Group, which pioneered the concept of managed competition. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and received her M.B.A. from the University of Georgia.

Ms. Lusk attended the September 23 launch of your health care plan, and has continued to speak about the need for comprehensive reform.

Mr. James Perrella
Chairman, President and CEO
Ingersoll-Rand Company
Woodcliff Lakes, New Jersey

31,117 employees

Ingersoll-Rand manufactures a broad line of machinery and equipment for the automotive, construction, energy and general industries. Some of their products include: air compressors, pumps, gas compressors, turbo machinery, production equipment and process machinery and systems. It has sales of over $4.0 billion and is ranked 126th in sales in the latest Fortune 500 listing of the largest industrial corporations. They have plants in 24 states including New Jersey, Colorado, Kansas, Connecticut, Nebraska, Virginia, as well as Pennsylvania, Tennessee and North Carolina.

Mr. Perrella joined Ingersoll-Rand in 1962 and has held positions in manufacturing, sales and finance. He became a vice president of the corporation in 1977 and was elected executive vice president in 1982. In 1993 he became Chairman, President and CEO. He is a graduate of Purdue University and a member of the Dean's Advisory Council of Purdue's Krannert School of Management. He is also a member of the Board of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Carl Schramm
Executive Vice President
Fortis, Inc.
New York, New York

Fortis, Inc. is a diversified insurance and financial services company with $110 billion in world wide assets. Fortis is the 10th largest diversified company in the world, as ranked by Fortune in the 1994 Global Service 500. Mr. Schramm oversees the firm's health insurance and managed care operations, which generated $1.3 billion in revenues in 1993.

Mr. Schramm was formerly the President and CEO of the Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA) from 1987 to 1992. He holds a Ph.D. in Economics for the University of Wisconsin and a J.D. from Georgetown and is an expert in health policy and management. He founded the Johns Hopkins Center for Hospital Finance and Management in 1980. Prior to leaving HIAA he lead the commercial insurance industry toward support of major reform in the small group and individual markets area.

Jim Moody, PhD
Vice President
Chambers Associates, Inc.
Visiting Professor, Medical College of Wisconsin

Former Representative Moody (D.WI) served in Congress from 1982 until 1992, and was a member of the Subcommittee on Health and Human Resources Committee on Ways and Means, the Public Works Committee and Interior and Insular Affairs.

Currently he chairs the Ad Hoc Lobbying Group pulling together companies which support the concepts of universal coverage and employer responsibility. He also teaches health policy in Wisconsin.

Moody has wide ranging interests in overseas development, and has been with the World Bank, AID, the Peace Corps and CARE. He was member of your economic transition group, chaired by Letitia Chambers, in whose company he now serves as Vice President.

Moody has arranged three press conferences, a supportive letter, and numerous lobbyists' meetings to help pass comprehensive health care reform.

DROP-BY MEETING WITH THE CATHOLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

DATE: Monday, August 15, 1994
TIME: 11:45 am
LOCATION: Roosevelt Room
FROM: Alexis Herman
Marilyn Yager

I. PURPOSE

To thank the Catholic Health Association (CHA) for their tremendous support on behalf of comprehensive health care reform, and to provide an opportunity for CHA to restate their opposition to abortion.

II. BACKGROUND

The Catholic Health Association (CHA) ranks near the top as one of our most vocal, dedicated, and consistent supporters on health care reform. CHA represents more than 1200 Catholic sponsored hospitals and health facilities, and they are the nation's largest group of not-for-profit healthcare facilities under a single sponsorship.

CHA was one of the very first national voices to build a serious grassroots network on behalf of universal coverage when they officially called for universal coverage in a redesigned healthcare system in 1986. By 1992 they had developed their own proposal for "Systemic Healthcare Reform" which we reviewed carefully and found much to adopt for the Health Security Act. In every sense of the word, CHA has been a very real partner in our effort to seek universal coverage.

However, their continued vocal support has been at some expense within the larger Catholic community, where the Catholic Conference and pro-life representatives have argued that CHA should withhold support until the abortion issue is resolved to their satisfaction. One cardinal and several bishops have called CHA to voice concern about CHA's active support of our health care efforts.

This was especially evident during the Health Security Express routes when pro-life groups targeted the Catholic hospitals who were offering food and event locations to the buses. Although they would not wish to discuss this publicly, several of their hospitals received death threats for sponsoring Health Security Express events.

CHA remains firm in their support of universal coverage/shared responsibility, but they very much need to be able to reassure their membership (as well as the Catholic Conference) that their continued support of the Administration's efforts on universal coverage insures that they continue to have an opportunity to voice their views on other issues of importance, i.e., abortion.

We have invited the CHA leadership to thank them for their continued support. They, in turn, will respond that their support is unwavering. They will, of course, briefly restate their opposition to abortion. Beyond acknowledging their comments and our respect and understanding for how deeply they feel about the issue, I would not recommend that we seek to explain our position on abortion, nor do they wish us to do so. It is sufficient that they be able to say they voiced their views and their comments were graciously heard.

VII. ATTACHMENTS

- o List of CHA Attendees
- o CHA August 5th 'Dear Colleague' to their membership.

TALKING POINTS

- o Thank them for their tremendous support of comprehensive health care reform, especially in the face of criticism about whether Catholic hospitals should be playing such an active role.
- o Indicate that when we prevail in passing universal coverage, no small amount of credit will go to the CHA who remained deeply rooted in their values. It is very likely that their very credible voice in arguing that health care is a basic human right and that universal coverage is a moral imperative and a practical necessity carried more weight with members of Congress than all the TV ads rolled together.
- o Thank CHA for commissioning the recent "Vicious Cycle" study (and charts) that demonstrated the pitfalls of incremental reform versus comprehensive reform.
- o Reassure CHA of your commitment to push the Congress to stay in session this month until each body completes action.
- o When they comment on their opposition to abortion, you might want to respond that we know how deeply they feel about the issue of abortion and we fully expect them to continue to make their views heard. This is an issue that is going to have to be resolved in Congress. However, since we know how strongly they feel about our fundamental disagreement on this issue, we are especially appreciative of their commitment to health care reform and universal coverage.

August 5, 1994

Dear Colleague:

For the first time in our nation's history four congressional committees have reported comprehensive health care reform bills. These bills are now the Mitchell (Senate) and Gephardt (House) leadership reform proposals. In the next two to three weeks there will be floor votes on each. If adopted, their differences will be reconciled in a subsequent House/Senate conference committee. If either bill is defeated, meaningful health care reform is dead for the foreseeable future. This is an historic moment.

It is also a challenging moment because the reform debate is in a fully political context wherein "compromise" is a powerful driving force. Because politics is the art of the possible, the debate is fluid, the stakes high.

In this environment the Catholic Health Association of the United States (CHA) is urging Congress to keep the legislative process moving toward guaranteed universal coverage that excludes abortion by passing the Mitchell and Gephardt bills. To achieve our goals, I am asking each of you to join this critical effort which remains deeply rooted in our values.

We believe that health care is a basic human right, and that universal coverage is a moral imperative and a practical necessity. There is no moral justification for a system in which some people have ready access to health services through insurance coverage while nearly 40 million confront limited or no access because they lack coverage.

Pragmatically, health care reform without universal coverage will not work. Partial reform will increase costs for insured middle income families while leaving millions of people uninsured. This, in turn, will encourage health plans to compete not on the basis of efficiency and quality, but by avoiding uninsured and high risk populations.

Federally mandated abortion insurance coverage is morally wrong. The federal government must not force employers and individuals to purchase a benefit that a substantial portion of the population finds ethically unacceptable. Nor should the government force taxpayers to finance abortion coverage through individual and small business subsidies. Politically, including abortion in the benefit package will be fatal to health care reform.

Catholic healthcare facilities are on record in support of a reformed health care system focused on the needs of individuals, families, and communities. This person-centered vision for health care reform is the moral compass that guides our policy positions and grassroots advocacy efforts. At the core of every CHA policy decision, every membership action request, and every judgment rendered in the legislative debate are the basic values that animate our vision and unwavering support for universal coverage that excludes abortion.

CHA, along with many other supporters of universal coverage, has serious concerns about certain provisions in both the Gephardt and Mitchell bills. Neither measures up perfectly to our advocacy positions. Not the least among our concerns are the absence of meaningful delivery reform, the uncertain status of the federal tax exemption, and the unacceptably large Medicare and Medicaid cuts. We must all work to improve the Gephardt and Mitchell bills and make the payment cuts much less severe. But, remember: the growing national debt is compelling Congress to find a way to cut Medicare, whether health care reform happens or not. All reform proposals - Democratic and Republican alike - include major Medicare reductions. The question is not whether Medicare cuts will occur; the question is whether they will occur in the context of comprehensive reform and universal coverage. This observation does not obviate our determination to make sure the cuts are as small as possible.

In this regard, CHA will make every effort to amend the leadership bills during floor consideration or change them in the House-Senate conference committee. Attached is the first of CHA's ACTION ALERTS from the Washington office with regard to our grassroots advocacy message on the Mitchell bill.

In conclusion, I want to emphasize that it is imperative that the legislative process continue. The only politically viable proposals that strive for universal coverage are the Mitchell and Gephardt bills. To oppose them would be to abandon the quest for universal coverage and to kill meaningful health care reform. CHA will not be party to that course of action. To do so would make the perfect the enemy of the good.

Sincerely,

John E. Curley, Jr.

leadership of the Catholic Health Association (six to seven people).

PURPOSE: To thank the Catholic Health Association for their tremendous support on behalf of universal coverage, and to allow them to restate their health reform views.

BACKGROUND: Very few would argue that the Catholic Health Association (CHA) ranks near the top as one of our most vocal, dedicated, and consistent supporters on health care reform. However, the continued vocal support has been at some expense within the larger Catholic community, where the Catholic Conference and pro-life representatives have argued that CHA should back off until the abortion issue is resolved to their satisfaction. This was especially evident during the Health Security Express when pro-life groups targeted the Catholic Hospitals that offered food and event locations to the buses.

Despite these attacks CHA has held firm in their support of universal coverage, but they very much need to be able to reassure their membership that their continued support of the Administration's efforts on universal coverage insures that they continue to have an opportunity to voice their views on other issues, i.e., abortion.

MEETING WITH THE CATHOLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

DATE: Monday, August 15, 1994
TIME: 11:20 am (President drop-by at 11:45 am)
LOCATION: Roosevelt Room
FROM: Alexis Herman
Marilyn Yager

I. PURPOSE

To thank the Catholic Health Association for their tremendous support on behalf of comprehensive health care reform, and to allow them to restate their health reform views.

II. BACKGROUND

The Catholic Health Association (CHA) ranks near the top as one of our most vocal, dedicated, and consistent supporters on health care reform. CHA represents more than 1200 Catholic sponsored hospitals and health facilities, and they are the nation's largest group of not-for-profit healthcare facilities under a single sponsorship.

CHA was one of the very first national voices to build a serious grassroots network on behalf of universal coverage when they officially called for universal coverage in a redesigned healthcare system in 1986. By 1992 they had developed their own proposal for "Systemic Healthcare Reform" which we reviewed carefully and found much to adopt for the Health Security Act. In every sense of the word, CHA has been a very real partner in our effort to seek universal coverage.

However, their continued vocal support has been at some expense within the larger Catholic community, where the Catholic Conference and pro-life representatives have argued that CHA should withhold support until the abortion issue is resolved to their satisfaction. One cardinal and several bishops have called CHA to voice concern about CHA's active support of our health care efforts.

This was especially evident during the Health Security Express routes when pro-life groups targeted the Catholic hospitals who were offering food and event locations to the buses. Although they would not wish to discuss this publicly, several of their hospitals received death threats for sponsoring Health Security Express events.

CHA remains firm in their support of universal coverage/shared responsibility, but they very much need to be able to reassure their membership (as well as the Catholic Conference) that their continued support of the Administration's efforts on universal coverage insures that they continue to have an opportunity to voice their views on other issues of importance, i.e., abortion.

We have invited the CHA leadership to thank them for their continued support. They, in turn, will respond that their support is unwavering. They will, of course, briefly restate their opposition to abortion. Beyond acknowledging their comments and our respect and understanding for how deeply they feel about the issue, I would not recommend that we seek to explain our position on abortion, nor do they wish us to do so. It is sufficient that they be able to say they voiced their views and their comments were graciously heard.

- o CHA President Jack Curley will respond, as will several CHA board members.
- o The President will drop-by and make brief comments.

VI. TALKING POINTS

Attached.

VII. ATTACHMENTS

- o List of CHA Attendees
- o CHA August 5th 'Dear Colleague' to their membership.

TALKING POINTS

- o Thank them for their tremendous support of comprehensive health care reform.
- o Comment on the important role CHA has played from the very beginning:
 - Through the development of their own health reform proposal several years ago, which served as a guide from which we adopted many provisions.
 - Some of the very first health care events which you and the President visited were Catholic hospitals.
 - CHA has probably played the most important role in recent weeks in explaining to the public the problem with incremental reform through their "Vicious Cycle" study and charts.
 - CHA members have represented some of the most credible voices to the general public as well as members of Congress on the importance of the President's principles, and they are viewed as credible for several key reasons: they are often the largest employers in their communities; their reputation for leadership in the delivery of quality health care; and their view that healthcare is a service, not a mere commodity to be exchanged for profit.
- o You might want to indicate that we know it probably has not been easy to maintain their strong commitment to universal coverage.
- o When they comment on their opposition to abortion, you might want to respond that we know how deeply they feel about the issue of abortion and we fully expect them to continue to make their views heard. This is an issue that is going to have to be resolved in Congress. However, since we know how strongly they feel about our fundamental disagreement on this issue, we are especially appreciative of their commitment to health care reform and universal coverage.

August 5, 1994

Dear Colleague:

For the first time in our nation's history four congressional committees have reported comprehensive health care reform bills. These bills are now the Mitchell (Senate) and Gephardt (House) leadership reform proposals. In the next two to three weeks there will be floor votes on each. If adopted, their differences will be reconciled in a subsequent House/Senate conference committee. If either bill is defeated, meaningful health care reform is dead for the foreseeable future. This is an historic moment.

It is also a challenging moment because the reform debate is in a fully political context wherein "compromise" is a powerful driving force. Because politics is the art of the possible, the debate is fluid, the stakes high.

In this environment the Catholic Health Association of the United States (CHA) is urging Congress to keep the legislative process moving toward guaranteed universal coverage that excludes abortion by passing the Mitchell and Gephardt bills. To achieve our goals, I am asking each of you to join this critical effort which remains deeply rooted in our values.

We believe that health care is a basic human right, and that universal coverage is a moral imperative and a practical necessity. There is no moral justification for a system in which some people have ready access to health services through insurance coverage while nearly 40 million confront limited or no access because they lack coverage.

Pragmatically, health care reform without universal coverage will not work. Partial reform will increase costs for insured middle income families while leaving millions of people uninsured. This, in turn, will encourage health plans to compete not on the basis of efficiency and quality, but by avoiding uninsured and high risk populations.

Federally mandated abortion insurance coverage is morally wrong. The federal government must not force employers and individuals to purchase a benefit that a substantial portion of the population finds ethically unacceptable. Nor should the government force taxpayers to finance abortion coverage through individual and small business subsidies. Politically, including abortion in the benefit package will be fatal to health care reform.

Catholic healthcare facilities are on record in support of a reformed health care system focused on the needs of individuals, families, and communities. This person-centered vision for health care reform is the moral compass that guides our policy positions and grassroots advocacy efforts. At the core of every CHA policy decision, every membership action request, and every judgment rendered in the legislative debate are the basic values that animate our vision and unwavering support for universal coverage that excludes abortion.

CHA, along with many other supporters of universal coverage, has serious concerns about certain provisions in both the Gephardt and Mitchell bills. Neither measures up perfectly to our advocacy positions. Not the least among our concerns are the absence of meaningful delivery reform, the uncertain status of the federal tax exemption, and the unacceptably large Medicare and Medicaid cuts. We must all work to improve the Gephardt and Mitchell bills and make the payment cuts much less severe. But, remember: the growing national debt is compelling Congress to find a way to cut Medicare, whether health care reform happens or not. All reform proposals - Democratic and Republican alike - include major Medicare reductions. The question is not whether Medicare cuts will occur; the question is whether they will occur in the context of comprehensive reform and universal coverage. This observation does not obviate our determination to make sure the cuts are as small as possible.

In this regard, CHA will make every effort to amend the leadership bills during floor consideration or change them in the House-Senate conference committee. Attached is the first of CHA's ACTION ALERTS from the Washington office with regard to our grassroots advocacy message on the Mitchell bill.

In conclusion, I want to emphasize that it is imperative that the legislative process continue. The only politically viable proposals that strive for universal coverage are the Mitchell and Gephardt bills. To oppose them would be to abandon the quest for universal coverage and to kill meaningful health care reform. CHA will not be party to that course of action. To do so would make the perfect the enemy of the good.

Sincerely,

JOHN E. CURLEY, JR.

RELIGIOUS BREAKFAST MEETING

DATE: August 9, 1994
TIME: 8:30 am
LOCATION: Old Family Dining Room
FROM: Alexis Herman
Linda Lader
Flo McAfee

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the place of religion in the public arena and tolerance and civility in a pluralistic society with religious and academic leaders; and to continue the ongoing conversations with religious leaders.

II. BACKGROUND

This marks the third small religious breakfast since the initial one last August. All the participants are very eager about attending the breakfast discussion with many interrupting their vacations to be here. There will be microphones in the room to record the breakfast for in-house use only.

Only three invited guests are unable to attending including E.K. Bailey, pastor of Concord Baptist Church in Dallas; Tony Evans; and Dr. Lloyd Ogilvie who is leading a conference on a boat enroute to Alaska.

After the breakfast, there will be an opportunity for members of the staff to meet and have a discussion with the participants. The meeting will be in the Roosevelt Room from 10:00 am to 11:00 am.

The eleven participants include:

The Most Reverend Edmund L. Browning---Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church. The Episcopal Church has been extremely supportive of the Administration's initiatives, particularly health care reform. Bishop Browning has offered to call the Episcopal members of the Senate regarding health care including Senators Danforth and Chafee.

Dr. Stephen Carter---He has written three books including Affirmative Action Baby and Culture of Disbelief. He is a Yale Law School professor, Episcopalian; moderate.

Dr. Os Guinness---Executive Director, Trinity Forum; author of The American Hour, which he gave you last December, and No God But God. At the Christian Booksellers' Convention in June, and elsewhere, he has publicly defended you as being sincere in your faith.

Dr. James Davison Hunter---Author of Culture Wars and Before the Shooting Begins. Professor of sociology and religious studies at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

Peggy Jones---Former pastor at Macedonia Assembly of God, St. Paul, Minnesota; CEO of a consulting firm; author of a recent book on developing multi-ethnic congregations; friend of Hazel O'Leary. Ms. Jones is flying from Switzerland where she is attending a convention on multi-culturalism.

Diane Knippers---President, Institute on Religion and Democracy, a conservative think tank based in Washington, D.C.

Max Lucado---Pastor, Oak Hills Church of Christ, San Antonio, TX; author of The Applause of Heaven and God Came Near; suggested by Rex Home.

Gordon MacDonald---Pastor, Grace Chapel, Lexington, Massachusetts; former president of InterVarsity; best selling author (Ordering Your Private World and other books); on the Board of Directors of World Vision, Christianity Today, and Gordon College.

Dr. Martin Marty---University of Chicago Divinity School; leading expert on American religious history; endowed chair at the University of Chicago; senior editor of Christian Century, Lutheran; moderate to liberal views and considered to be "fair-minded."

Dr. Michael Novak---Winner of the 1994 Templeton Prize; a Catholic conservative; and American Enterprise Institute George F. Jewett Scholar; author of The Catholic Ethic and the Spirit of the Capitalism, The Spirit of Democratic Capitalism, Belief and Unbelief; syndicated columnist.

Dr. Luis Palau---Evangelist; often called the "Latin American Billy Graham." He has been involved in ministry to Tonya Harding and Bob Packwood. He has a moving story about his son, Andrew, leaving and returning to work with him; lives in Portland, Oregon.

RE: Sikh Religious Community

The Sikh Religious Community originally invited Alexis to speak at their reception on Saturday, August 13 in the evening. Because Alexis could not accept due to a conflict, she wanted me to explore other avenues, i.e., a briefing at the WH.

Dr. Singh indicated that the group (100+ people) would be available on Friday, August 12, 1994, at 9:30 a.m. to be briefed. In addition to having Alexis, they would also like to have speakers that can talk about human rights especially in context with South Asia, restrictions on religious symbols in the US Army and health care.

Also in attendance at the briefing will be The Supreme Spiritual Leader of the Sikh Community who is travelling from India on this occasion.

I am turning this over to you because of the religious aspects and because Alexis wants to do this. She would also like to let POTUS know whatever we set up as he is interested in the Sikhs.

For your information, Dr. Singh will be faxing to me the list of names, DOBs, SSs, daytime and evening phone numbers and any fax numbers, if available. As soon as I get this, I'll send it on to you.

re: VFW Convention
date: September 16, 1993

As a follow up to our discussion, I wanted to give you a note to use in your discussions with Leon.

- ☐ Unlike the other veterans organizations, this group was supportive during the campaign. They are the only organization to operate a PAC and the PAC withheld an endorsement for Bush. VFW executives rode the bus with the President. They continue to be supportive.
- ☐ We just last week regretted their request for the President's attendance at their convention in Las Vegas on August 22.
- ☐ They now want Christopher or Perry because unlike the other organizations they have a keen interest in foreign policy matters and have an apparatus to support it.

Time is of the essence. Help!

TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH CBC MEMBERS

- o In talking with John Lewis yesterday, he thought it might be helpful if I met with you to review where we are.
- o I need your vote. This bill is important for me, to our party and more importantly, for our country and our communities.
- o I want to keep the prevention dollars in this bill. I want to win this vote with Democrats. You know Republicans are making this a litmus test.
- o I know that many of you are morally opposed to the death penalty. I understand the dilemma you're in. I want you to know that a number of African-American religious leaders yesterday acknowledged the moral dilemma but said on balance they support passage of the bill. Their support helps all of us in what we're trying to do.
- o I'm sensitive to the concerns expressed by Bobby Scott that the Justice Department has authorized the prosecution of a number of death penalty cases involving African Americans. The Attorney General is initiating an internal review into this matter.
- o You can make the difference. We can win.

TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH CBC MEMBERS

I need your vote. This bill is important for me, to our party and more importantly, it is important for the country and each of your communities.

As you know, a number of African-American religious leaders and leading African-American Mayors [MAYORS] have expressed support for the bill's prompt passage.

Over the past several months, my staff and I have had an ongoing dialogue regarding this bill with the leading African-American religious leaders throughout the country. Ministers like Bishop Lewis Ford (Church of God in Christ), Bishop William Graves (Christian Methodist Episcopal Church), Bishop H.H. Brookins (AME Church), Reverend Doctor T. J. Jemison of the National Baptist Convention and Dr. Charles Adams of the Progressive National Baptist Convention all ~~are~~ supportive of the bill. As you know these gentlemen represent 8 major denominations and millions of African-American Christians.

moral grounds

Despite some concerns, their support is illustrated by the public statement made by these and the 48 other African-American religious leaders in support of the bill underscores its importance and its legitimacy.

They are supporting the bill because they see the value of the total bill and specifically the significant focus on prevention of crime. They have told us that finally we are doing something about many of the roots causes of crime.

Don't want to resolve issue - ~~waiting~~ ^{Thurs} _{ali}

I know that many of you remained concerned that the Racial Justice Act was not included in the conference report. I too am concerned about the potential of racial discrimination in death penalty cases. The Attorney General also is concerned and we are willing to take a hard look at alternative ways to address it.

I want to work with you. We have many of the same concerns. Yet we cannot proceed until we get beyond this vote on the rule. I need you to be with me.

MEMORANDUM FOR ALEXIS HERMAN

FROM: SUZANNA VALDEZ

DATE: AUGUST 8, 1994

SUBJECT: SUMMIT OF THE AMERICAS MEETING

The meeting tomorrow at 10:30am in room 476 is with the following:

Lt. Governor Buddy MacKay
Summit Co-Chairs:
Joaquin Avino
Marilyn Holifield
David Lawrence
Jorge Perez
Summit Staff:
Luis Lauredo
Susan Vodicka

There will be White House and State Department staff as well (see attached.)

The agenda of the meeting is to discuss the latest Summit schedule and Summit themes that the Florida Host Committee would like to present to us.

You should know that Ricki has asked Rita and I to develop an event schedule for Cabinet members participating in the Summit. We expect that these events will absorb other officials travelling with the delegations, as well as financial supporters of the summit.

I. PURPOSE

To seek business community support for future fast track negotiating authority.

II. BACKGROUND

As you know, the Administration's ability to enter into trade agreements, including a free trade agreement with Chile, is largely dependent upon the existence of fast track negotiating authority. However, our proposal to extend fast track negotiating authority as part of the Uruguay Round implementing legislation has engendered considerable controversy. Fast Track authority is essential for any future trade negotiations. Without this authority, your agenda on trade—one of the strengths of your Presidency--would be severely compromised.

In a Senate Finance Committee Mark-up on August 2, Senator Moynihan announced that his Committee would not include the Administration's fast track proposal in the Senate bill. Our strategy therefore turns to the House, where negotiations are at an impasse.

Fast track is controversial for several reasons. First, many in Congress have traditionally granted fast track only reluctantly because they feel that it encroaches on Congressional authority. Moreover, our current request for fast track authority will be attached to legislation already on the fast track--thereby considerably reducing Congressional debate over trade objectives. However, the primary cause of the current controversy is the environment and labor issue.

The Administration and some Congressional Democrats have sought to link trade with environmental and labor standards. Indeed, our original proposal for fast track authority included a modest labor/environmental link. While Republicans and the business community normally would support new negotiating authority, they vigorously oppose linkage to the environment and labor, and therefore oppose our original proposal.

We have tried to be responsive to Republican and business community concerns. The Administration and Congressional Democrats--including Gephardt--are willing to support a clean fast track bill which will drop explicit language linking trade with environmental and labor standards.

In addition to agreeing to a clean fast track bill, we also are willing to: grant further procedural safeguards to ensure Congressional oversight of future negotiations; commit not to change domestic labor and environmental laws through fast track; and, compromise on the duration of negotiating authority from 7 to 4 1/2 years. Notwithstanding these concessions, Republicans (Archer, with Gingrich's support) and the business community insist on express language would preclude any linkage of trade to environmental or labor standards. Inclusion of either of these clauses would also be a political renunciation of the NAFTA side agreements--something we and Congressional Democrats can not accept.

The Republicans and the business community have been working hand-in-glove to fight the labor/environmental linkage. This meeting provides you the opportunity to split the business community and the Republicans--thereby changing the political dynamic and breaking the impasse. These business leaders represent a cross section of the business community; all have been engaged in the Uruguay Round legislative process. Your message should be:

- My administration has made great progress--at significant political risk--to expand trade (NAFTA, China, Export Controls, APEC, GATT, etc.);
- Our ability--working with you--to expand trade opportunities for U.S. businesses will be severely constrained without fast track authority;
- If we don't get fast track this year, we'll seek it for next year. Yet next year the bill will be loaded up with many provisions you oppose;
- We have a reasonable proposal for fast track and are willing to be flexible on labor and the environment;
- We are committed to formally consulting with you to create consensus on the future of U.S. trade policy, and particularly on the appropriate approach to labor and the environment;
- We've worked with you--now we need you to work with us.
- We need you to contact key Members on the Hill and let them know you support our proposal for fast track authority. Time is of the essence.

The only other serious issue in the debate is the impact of the World Trade Organization on U.S. sovereignty. This issue pits Pat Buchanan, Ralph Nader and textile magnate Roger Milliken on one side versus the Administration, the Consumers Union, the Heritage Foundation, the ABA, Jack Kemp, and Judge Bork on the other. While groups of state officials, led by the State AGs, had expressed concern about the impact of the WTO on state sovereignty, we have reached agreement with them on changes in the implementing legislation which satisfy their concerns--and they have said so. The National Governors Association, the State AGs, and the state Tax Commissioners have each expressed satisfaction on the issue of sovereignty. The business community has not expressed concern about sovereignty. Overall, we have been fairly successful in dampening concerns about sovereignty (although there is some rumbling among conservative Senate Republicans); however, delay would give opponents the opportunity to organize around the sovereignty issue.

Attached are talking points on the importance of fast track for the United States and for the business community.

III. STATUS OF LEGISLATION

As you recall, under the fast track mechanism, the Administration informally submits a draft bill which goes through a "non-markup" by the relevant committees prior to the formal submission of the implementing legislation. Once the administration formally submits the bill, there is an up-or-down vote on the floors without amendment.

Both of the principal committees of jurisdiction (Ways & Means and Finance) have finished consideration of the trade portions of the legislation. As you know, under PAYGO rules, we must find offsets for approximately $12 billion in revenue losses from reduced tariffs. The Administration opposes a budget waiver and seeks bipartisan support to pay for the legislation.

The Senate Finance Committee, on an 11-9 vote, recently approved our $12 billion funding package. On that vote, three Republicans voted with the majority. However, most agricultural state Senators opposed the package. Ways and Means will consider the financing proposal today or tomorrow. Secretary Bentsen and Leon Panetta are working hard to develop a funding package with bipartisan support.

If we are successful in resolving funding in the House and Fast Track in both Committees, Ways and Means and Finance could finish their informal conference by late this week or early next week. Under this scenario, we could formally introduce the legislation just prior to August recess (August 18 or 19) and seek a vote quickly after the Congress returns in September. Rep. Archer told Ambassador Kantor last week that the Republicans would cooperate in getting a vote soon after Congress returns in September--but that depends on our reaching an agreement in conference now.

- o You, the Vice President and Mickey Kantor enter the the Roosevelt Room and greet participants.
- o You take a seat at the table.
- o You are introduced by the Vice President.
- o You make brief remarks.
- o You depart.

NOTE: After you depart, the V.P. will chair the meeting.

TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH CEOS ON FAST TRACK

- I'm glad we could meet on such short notice. I wanted to talk face-to-face about something that is important to me -- and which should be import to you: getting fast-track authority on the Uruguay Round bill.
- We've done a lot on trade to clear away barriers to your firms' exports (e.g., NAFTA, the Uruguay Round, APEC, the Japan Framework, export control reform, the Hemispheric Summit, and the China MFN determination).
- When we came into office, NAFTA didn't have a chance in the Congress, but we took a politically difficult stand and got it through.
- We know how important Latin America and Asia are to your companies. We've engaged the countries of APEC and throughout the Western Hemisphere in a process of expanding trade. Our ability to negotiate trade agreements is key to these countries, especially in Latin America.
- Let me make clear, however: Our ability to follow up these initiatives will be severely constrained without fast-track authority.
- We expect three-quarters of all growth in trade to come from developing countries, especially in Latin America and Asia. These are the same countries where there remain high tariffs and other trade barriers.
- We can't allow our differences over fast track to deal us totally out of the game. If we're not out there taking full advantage of these export opportunities, other countries will be and it will be the U.S. business community that will lose out.
- But there's another part of this equation that is equally important. If we don't get fast-track this year, we'll have to seek it next year or the year after on a free-standing bill, which will attract many provisions you oppose.
- The 1988 Trade Act was such a bill. It took four years to pass.
- If we manage to get a bill, it is likely to be burdened with a number of provisions that the business community would not like, including "blue" and "green" Section 301s -- provisions which would require trade sanctions based on labor and environmental concerns.
- Now, I know you have had concerns about the Administration's initial fast-track proposal -- particularly the provisions on labor and the environment. Let me make three points: First, we're willing to be reasonable in our approach. Second, we've already shown a great deal of flexibility. Third, you're not going to get a better fast track next year.

- We want a "clean" fast-track authority -- one which strikes a neutral stance between those who would require us to link trade and labor and the environment and those who would prohibit such linkage.
- We're willing to go with a proposal that does not include labor and the environment among the fast-track negotiating objectives.
- We're willing to commit not to use the fast-track mechanism to change U.S. labor or environmental laws.
- We're willing to give the full House and Senate an expanded role in the fast-track process.
- Most importantly, we recognize that any future trade agreement will need the support of the business community and a bipartisan coalition in Congress.
- I know that some in the business community believe that their interests on labor and the environment have not been taken sufficiently into account. We are committed to consulting closely with you in advance of any specific negotiation. I have asked my team to work out a process through which we can work with you to develop a consensus on how to proceed on labor and the environment.
- My entire Administration has worked closely with you for the past year-and-a-half. Mickey took the lead in bringing the seven year Uruguay Round to conclusion and, together with Lloyd, worked hard to get NAFTA through. Ron Brown has been out there advocating on behalf of your companies. Bill Perry and Warren Christopher have made it possible to liberalize export controls on billions of dollars of high-tech products.
- We've been there when you needed our support on things you cared about. Now, we need your support. If we can't work together on this one, we'll have to take a serious look at how we cooperate as we look ahead.
- We're at a critical time in the process right now. We need you to contact key members on the Hill and make it clear that you want a "clean" fast track on this bill.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
ON FAST TRACK AUTHORITY

Q: What exactly do you intend to do on labor and the environment? Are there any conditions under which you would seek trade sanctions to enforce labor and environmental standards?

A: Let me make two points at the outset: We seek fast-track authority to expand trade, and we know that we need bipartisan support to pass any trade agreement.

We seek a "clean" fast-track authority that takes a neutral position between those in Congress who would force us to link trade and labor and environment and those who would prohibit such linkage.

We recognize that there is not now a consensus on how to approach labor and the environment and, therefore, we are committed to consulting fully with the business community and the Republicans before we enter into any negotiations.

No one believes that other countries must be exactly like us on labor and the environment. No one wants to use labor and the environment as a hidden form of protectionism. Still, we don't think it would be appropriate to tie our hands completely.

In our discussions thus far, we have been quite flexible. We are willing to go with a proposal that does not list labor and the environment among fast-track negotiating objectives; we are willing to commit not to use the fast-track mechanism to change U.S. labor or environmental laws; we are willing to give the full House and Senate an expanded role in the fast-track process; and we're willing to shorten the duration of our fast-track request.

Q: There's been a lot of loose rhetoric by Administration officials regarding labor and the environment. Now you're asking us to trust you. Why should we?

A: I think our record speaks for itself. This Administration's commitment to trade is unassailable.

We pushed NAFTA through Congress at a high political cost. We completed the Uruguay Round and started the Japan Framework negotiations. We've engaged APEC and the Western Hemispheric countries in a dialogue on trade. We've reformed the export control system. We've been sensitive to the economics of our relationship with China.

At every step, we've understood the needs of the business community. That will remain the case with fast track.

Washington, D.C. 20004

Dear Dr. Simmons:

Thank you for your letter of August 2, 1994 requesting a meeting between the President and Chief Executive Officers from your organization.

We are pleased to indicate that the President would like to meet with the senior operating executives representing companies in your coalition at 11:45 a.m. on Tuesday, August 9 at the White House. As with most meetings of senior executives with the President, the meeting itself would be off the record, but members of the White House press corps normally wish to speak with CEOs following such a meeting.

While we in the Office of Public Liaison are grateful for the fact that your organization has been supportive of the President's principles of universal coverage and employer responsibility, we are not, and cannot be involved in any other aspect of your activities that day.

As you know we will require the name, title, company, date of birth and social security number of each proposed attendee on Monday. We would expect attendees to arrive at the West Wing Lobby between 11:15 and 11:30 a.m.

I look forward to working with you on this meeting.

Sincerely yours,

MEETING WITH CEO'S WHO SUPPORT UNIVERSAL COVERAGE AND RESPONSIBILITY

DATE: August 9, 1994
LOCATION: Cabinet Room
TIME: 11:45 a.m.
FROM: Alexis Herman
Caren Wilcox

I. PURPOSE

To meet with and encourage these CEO's in their efforts to achieve serious health care reform. To urge them to deliver their message strongly on these topics to the Hill. Most of them have been involved in health care reform as members of the National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform, for several years. This group supports universal coverage, employer responsibility and cost containment.

II. BACKGROUND

All, but one of these CEOs (Mr. Ronald,) is active in The National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform, which prides itself as one of the earliest groups to advocate on a bi-partisan basis for health care reform. It has as Honorary Co-Chairs, Former Presidents Carter and Ford, and active Co-Chairs former Congressman Paul Rogers and former Governor Ray. Their President is Henry Simmons, M.D.

They have endorsed universal coverage, employer responsibility and cost containment, but have preferred not to endorse your bill or principles in the interest of bi-partisanship. For that reason some companies became more active in other coalitions as the debate has heated up.

We understand that recently they became more energized to speak out more forcefully on employer responsibility and cost containment. They have sought the signatures of both former Presidents on an op-ed, but so far President Ford has not agreed with Governor Ray that he should sign it.

These CEOs will be meeting with their members of Congress and will be doing media, editorial boards and other activities at the request of the Coalition.

These CEOs are concerned about the Mitchell bill, because they view it as continuing part of the cost shift and some are worried about the tax on premiums. They strongly support the employer mandate in it, and some will urge that it be strengthened. They favor the Gephardt bill much more. They like the mandate in Gephardt. Some are concerned about multi-state issues, and a few are concerned about the Medicare Part C issue as it may relate to future cost shifting.

Three of the business leaders with whom you met last week are leaders in this group, Hank Barnette, Bethlehem Steel, James Wood, A & P, and Chuck Johnson, Pioneer Hi-Bred.

They will emphasize in a press availability, following your meeting, their view that they need universal coverage and employer responsibility to be competitive nationally and internationally. They will indicate they favor the Gephardt bill more than the Mitchell bill, while recognizing that the Mitchell bill will have to go forward to achieve final passage.

CEO's attending include:

Mr. J. Wayne Bevis
Vice Chairman, CEO
Pella Corporation
Pella, IA

4000 employees

Pella is the world's second largest manufacturer of wood windows, doors, sunrooms and skylights. Its products are sold primarily by independent distributors in the United States, Canada and Japan. The company is privately owned, but has a very old profit sharing plan for employees. It is proud that in its 69 year history, the company has never had a layoff of full-time employees.

Mr. Bevis has been in the business since 1973 in operational roles. He became President and CEO in 1980. He is a director of the National Association of Manufacturers, and a member of the board of visitors of the University of Iowa.

Mr. Craig Cole
President
Brown & Cole
Bellingham, WA

600 employees

Brown & Cole is a supermarket chain with 11 stores in eastern and central Washington and the Portland area of Oregon. It is Washington's oldest retail grocery firm, and is privately held by Mr. Cole's family.

Mr. Cole is President and CEO of the supermarket chain. He is on the Public Affairs Committee of the Food Marketing Institute, and is a leader in his industry. An active Democrat, he has written articles on health care reform and business. He was a supporter of Northwest Business Leaders for Clinton/Gore.

Mr. Jack Futterman
Chairman and CEO
Pathmark Stores, Inc.
Woodbridge, NJ

28,000 employees

Pathmark is the 10th largest supermarket chain in sales volume in the U.S. with stores in the New York, New Jersey, and the Philadelphia, PA region. They have a long standing commitment to inner cities, going into neighborhoods from which other chains have fled. Pathmark workers are represented by the United Food and Commercial Workers International Union.

Mr. Futterman is a registered pharmacist who joined Pathmark Division in 1973 as a Vice President of General Merchandising. Prior to that he was President of Whelan Drug Stores. He is a graduate of the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy and a graduate of the Harvard Business School Advanced Management Program.

You did an event with Pathmark in New York City. In conjunction with his appropriate union, he has sent a letter to all 28,000 employees urging them to get active in health care reform.

Mr. John Gray
CEO
New Dimension Metals,
Dayton, OH

100 employees

New Dimension Metals is a new company using a new concept in the steel industry. It operates a reconstituted mill close to its customers in a non-traditional steel area of the country. Its main customers are parts manufacturers that serve the automotive, electrical and appliance industries. It is a part of Gray America Corporation, a holding company.

Mr. Gray is President, CEO and owner of New Dimension Metals and of Gray America Corporation, the holding company, as well as owner of three other small companies. He is also Vice President of Ward Steel Service Company. He is a lifelong resident of Dayton, and is a graduate of Ohio State University School of Business. He is a member of the Kettering Medical Center Foundation Board of Trustees.

Mr. David Hoag
CEO
The LTV Corporation
Cleveland, OH

18,500 employees

LTV Corporation is the nation's third largest steelmaker, and has an energy subsidiary, Continental Emsco, a leading manufacturer of oilfield equipment. Their sales exceed $4 billion.

Mr. Hoag joined LTV in 1983 as executive vice president, and became CEO of a subsidiary in 1985 during the merger of LTV and Republic Steel. He became CEO of LTV in June 1991, and is credited with leading its successful reorganization to completion in June 1993. He is a graduate of Allegheny College and is very involved in Cleveland civic activities. He currently chairs the American Iron and Steel Institute in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Pete Manos
President
Giant Food
Landover, MD

Giant Food Inc. operates 158 stores in Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. It has sales of over $3.5 billion today. It was founded in 1936 by two Washington citizens, who wished to substitute high volume for high markups. It has lead the way in consumer education as well.

Mr. Manos has been with Giant since 1960 when he began in the accounting department. He learned the business by moving through the grocery purchasing area, and became President in 1992. He is a graduate of Benjamin Franklin University and is a certified public accountant.

Mr. Mark Ronald
CEO
GEC-Marconi Electronic Systems Corporation
Wayne, NJ

GEC-Marconi Systems designs, develops and produces advanced electronics. Their products include: Joint Tactical Information Distribution Systems for the U.S. armed forces, the U.K. and France; the Multifunction Information Distribution System for NATO; the Doppler navigation system; landing systems for the U.S. Air Force Military Microwave Landing System Avionics; data management systems for the space shuttle; and other computer programs.

Mr. Ronald joined Marconi-GEC as CEO in June 1993. Prior to that he was President and COO at AEL Industries in Lansdale, PA. He has spent his professional life in the defense electronics field. He is a graduate of Bucknell University and Polytechnic Institute of New York.

Mr. Ronald has been active in the DLC. He has spoken out as a part of the Ad Hoc Lobbying Group at a press conference on the Hill, and has called us with feedback from lobbying calls on the Hill.

While strongly supportive of the principles of universal coverage and employer responsibility, Mr. Ronald is not a member of the Leadership Coalition.

Henry E. Simmons, M.D.
President
National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform
Washington, D.C.

The National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform was founded to work for cost containment and quality medical coverage by several companies and unions in the late 1980's. It is a bi-partisan organization, which has tried to remain so, even though only some of its Republican leadership such as former Governor Ray, have remained active. They advocate universal coverage, employer responsibility and cost containment.

Dr. Simmons was a Deputy Assistant Secretary for Health during the Nixon administration, and has served as a consultant and officer of various organizations including as National Practice Director of Health and Medical Consulting for Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. He has B.S. and M.D. degrees from the University of Pittsburgh and a M.P.H. from Harvard.

Three returning leading CEOs from this group:

Mr. Curtis "Hank" Barnette
Chairman and CEO
Bethlehem Steel Corporation
Bethlehem, PA 18016-7699

24,900 employees

Bethlehem produces and markets steel and steel products, as well as selling coal, repairing ships and offshore drill rigs and manufacturing forgings and castings. Their sales are over $4 billion.

Mr. Barnette has been a leader in health care reform, was an original supporter of your plan, and he continues to lead large businesses toward reform. He has been a supporter of many of your other initiatives including the economic plan and NAFTA.

Hank Barnette was elected Chairman and CEO of Bethlehem Steel in 1992, having been Senior Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary. He has been with Bethlehem since 1967. He is involved with the Business Roundtable and the International and American Iron and Steel Institutes.

Mr. Barnette has been doing editorial board visits including the Baltimore Sun since seeing you.

Mr. James Wood
CEO
The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company
Montvale, NJ

92,000 employees

A&P operates four types of retail food outlets and has a bakery operation and coffee roasting plants. Annual revenues exceed $11 billion.

Mr. Wood became Chairman and CEO of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Inc. in 1980, after having been active in Grand Union. He is part of the group of super market leaders who are particularly supportive of universal coverage and employer responsibility for competitive reasons. Mr. Wood has received several awards for retailing.

Mr. Wood is a native of Britain, but has lived in and been active in the business community of the United States for many years.

Mr. Wood's visit with you was communicated to all 92,000 of his employees.

Mr. Chuck Johnson
Executive Vice President
Pioneer Hi-Bred International
Des Moines, IA

2800 employees

Pioneer Hi-Bred's business is the broad application of the science of genetics; and they were founded in 1926 to apply new genetic techniques to hybridize corn. The company develops, produces and markets hybrids of corn, sorghum, and sunflowers and varieties of soybean, alfalfa, wheat, canola and vegetables. Their locations are almost evenly divided between rural and urban locations. They are a large exporter. They have sales of over $1.3 billion.

Talking points to be prepared by the Health Care Delivery Room

Business' Stake in Health Reform

By CURTIS H. BARNETTE

Let me state this very clearly — American businesses strongly support efforts to achieve comprehensive national health-care reform. This support includes big businesses, such as Bethlehem Steel and other major corporations, and it includes thousands of small businesses all across the country.

We at Bethlehem have been actively supporting comprehensive health-care reform both as an individual company and as a member of the National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform. Our support for national health care that guarantees coverage for all Americans and contains costs began during the Bush administration and continues strongly today.

The National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform is a diverse group of about 100 organizations, including many other major Maryland employers such as General Motors, Westinghouse, Giant Foods and A&P. Its members also include the United Steelworkers of America, other labor unions, consumer organizations and health-care provider groups.

A great many small businesses are also supporting national health-care reform. More than 340,000 small businesses, with more than 3 million employees, are members of the Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform.

Why are these businesses and other organizations supporting health-care reform?

First, reforming our health-care system and managing its costs are critical issues for American industry and the nation. Most large businesses and many small businesses already provide health coverage for their employees, and health-care costs are rising faster than other sectors of the economy; they are projected to exceed $1 trillion in 1994 and $1.68 trillion by the year 2000.

Second, no area of public policy will affect our nation's economic future more than our policy on health care. Our system is the most expensive in the world, and without change it will cripple the ability of American businesses to compete in the global economy.

We at Bethlehem believe that national health-care reform must effectively address the following key issues:

□ There should be universal coverage for all Americans, with a shared responsibility between employers and employees.

□ Budgets should be established at the federal level to curb health-care cost increases and bring them

Our health-care system is the most expensive in the world. Without change it will cripple the ability of American businesses to compete in the global economy.

in line with the nation's overall inflation rate.

□ Rate controls, such as those in Maryland, should be established so that all payers — public and private — pay the same amount for the same health-care service.

□ The special needs of non-working Americans, including early retirees, should be addressed.

□ Cost-shifting must be eliminated. Private employers are now paying a significant portion of the health-care costs of people on government-aid programs or those who have no health insurance.

For Bethlehem and other domestic steel companies, health-care reform is of special importance. Our steel industry today is the low-cost, high-quality producer of steel products for the U.S. market. This has happened through capital spending and significant restructuring. The steel industry today has approximately 175,000 employees, down about 45 percent from 1980. Private companies, not foreign governments, pay the expenses of this restructuring, including pension and health-care costs for deserving retirees and their dependents.

Among our major foreign steel competitors, the United States has the highest per-capita health-care costs, and these costs place American steel companies, and other domestic companies as well, at a competitive disadvantage. In the United States, this cost is borne principally by the larger employers. In Canada, Europe and Japan, the cost of health care is spread more equitably among all employers and the public.

Runaway health costs threaten the continued viability of employer-provided health-care programs. Since the end of 1980, the American steel industry has made significant progress in improving its competitive position. Productivity has doubled and quality has improved to world-class levels. Employment costs have been carefully controlled so that our wage costs, exclusive of health insurance, have increased only 38 percent since 1980. In stark contrast, steel companies have experienced a 285 percent rise in health-care benefits.

For health-care cost containment to work, it is essential to achieve comprehensive reform that provides for universal coverage and contains costs across the whole health-care system. Halfway measures are not sufficient to deal with the genuine crisis in our health-care system. As a nation, we need effective health-care reform, and we need it now.

Curtis H. Barnette is chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

RELIGIOUS BREAKFAST MEETING

DATE: August 9, 1994
TIME: 8:30 am
LOCATION: Old Family Dining Room
FROM: Alexis Herman
Linda Lader
Flo McAfee

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the place of religion in the public arena and tolerance and civility in a pluralistic society with religious and academic leaders; and to continue the ongoing conversations with religious leaders.

II. BACKGROUND

This marks the third small religious breakfast since the initial one last August. All the participants are very eager about attending the breakfast discussion with many interrupting their vacations to be here. There will be microphones in the room to record the breakfast for in-house use only.

Only three invited guests are unable to attending including E.K. Bailey, pastor of Concord Baptist Church in Dallas; Tony Evans; and Dr. Lloyd Ogilvie who is leading a conference on a boat enroute to Alaska.

After the breakfast, there will be an opportunity for members of the staff to meet and have a discussion with the participants. The meeting will be in the Roosevelt Room from 10:00 am to 11:00 am.

The eleven participants include:

The Most Reverend Edmund L. Browning---Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church. The Episcopal Church has been extremely supportive of the Administration's initiatives, particularly health care reform. Bishop Browning has offered to call the Episcopal members of the Senate regarding health care including Senators Danforth and Chafee.

Dr. Stephen Carter---He has written three books including Affirmative Action Baby and Culture of Disbelief. He is a Yale Law School professor; Episcopalian; moderate.

Dr. Os Guinness---Executive Director, Trinity Forum; author of The American Hour, which he gave you last December, and No God But God. At the Christian Booksellers' Convention in June, and elsewhere, he has publicly defended you as being sincere in your faith.

Dr. James Davison Hunter---Author of Culture Wars and Before the Shooting Begins. Professor of sociology and religious studies at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

Peggy Jones--Former pastor at Macedonia Assembly of God, St. Paul, Minnesota; CEO of a consulting firm; author of a recent book on developing multi-ethnic congregations; friend of Hazel O'Leary. Ms. Jones is flying from Switzerland where she is attending a convention on multi-culturalism.

Diane Knippers---President, Institute on Religion and Democracy, a conservative think tank based in Washington, D.C.

Max Lucado---Pastor, Oak Hills Church of Christ, San Antonio, TX; author of The Applause of Heaven and God Came Near; suggested by Rex Horne.

Gordon MacDonald---Pastor, Grace Chapel, Lexington, Massachusetts; former president of InterVarsity; best selling author (Ordering Your Private World and other books); on the Board of Directors of World Vision, Christianity Today, and Gordon College.

Dr. Martin Marty---University of Chicago Divinity School; leading expert on American religious history; endowed chair at the University of Chicago; senior editor of Christian Century, Lutheran; moderate to liberal views and considered to be "fair-minded."

Dr. Michael Novak---Winner of the 1994 Templeton Prize; a Catholic conservative; and American Enterprise Institute George F. Jewett Scholar; author of The Catholic Ethic and the Spirit of the Capitalism, The Spirit of Democratic Capitalism, Belief and Unbelief; syndicated columnist.

Dr. Luis Palau---Evangelist; often called the "Latin American Billy Graham." He has been involved in ministry to Tonya Harding and Bob Packwood. He has a moving story about his son, Andrew, leaving and returning to work with him; lives in Portland, Oregon.

POINTS TO BE MADE FOR MEETING WITH ARMENIAN-AMERICAN COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP

- I know what an important dream an independent and free Armenia has been to all Armenian-Americans, and I share your deep concern about meeting the humanitarian needs of the population there.
- I recently authorized the release of 100,000 tons of wheat valued at $26 million from our strategic wheat reserve for Armenia. We have drawn on the strategic wheat reserve only twice -- in 1984 and 1991 for Africa.
- I'm sure Tony has already mentioned that we will provide about $175 million total in humanitarian and technical aid this year. We haven't completed the planning for next year, but I can assure you that Armenia will remain a high priority in our assistance program.
- On Nagorno-Karabakh, we are doing our best to help find a solution to the conflict, and I was heartened to hear that Armenia, Azerbaijan and the Nagorno-Karabakh Armenians formalized the cease-fire recently.
- We've assembled an excellent negotiating team that is working hard to hammer out a compromise text with the Russians.
- I have personally urged President Yeltsin to cooperate with the CSCE Minsk Group to finally move toward a peaceful solution to this tragic war, and I will continue to raise this with him. Secretary Christopher has also spoken to Foreign Minister Kozyrev several times to urge the Russians to cooperate on this important issue.
- We have designed a comprehensive incentive package to reinforce and support the peace process once it begins, and I think that your community can also do a lot to help us create and maintain a stable peace for all Armenians in the Caucasus.

(If asked about why the Administration has not recognized the 1915 genocide of Armenians in Turkey)

- It is important that such events not be forgotten, so that they may never be repeated. The senseless deaths of so many innocent people was a horrible tragedy, and we continue to mourn for those lost lives.
- I believe that this tragedy should not hinder the growth and progress of the new independent Armenian state. Our focus should be on the future growth and prosperity of that country. That is why we are working hard to resolve conflicts and disagreements between the Armenians and their neighbors.

- I hope you will work with us to find ways to build this new future for Armenia. I believe that together we can help this dream of a prosperous, independent and free Armenia become a reality.

(If asked about getting a more visible negotiator)

- Our negotiator, Mr. Joseph Presel, heads the Office of the Coordinator for Regional Affairs for the NIS.
- Mr. Presel is a distinguished career diplomat with extensive experience in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, and he has served in the U.S. missions to the United Nations and CSCE -- the key multilateral organizations now engaged in conflict resolution in the NIS.
- Mr. Presel and his experienced negotiating team are in constant contact with the CSCE Minsk Group and its leadership, the parties to the conflict, the Russians and our allies.

(If asked about why the U.S. will not recognize the independence of Nagorno-Karabakh)

- The final status of Nagorno-Karabakh is up to the conflicting parties to decide. Any solution must be consistent with CSCE principles to which both Azerbaijan and Armenia have subscribed, including the principle that state borders cannot be changed without the mutual consent of the states involved.

(If asked about problems with transporting wheat and fuel through Georgia)

- At the present time we are not experiencing any major problems with shipping aid through Georgia. We've provided $1.5 million and several technical specialists to ensure the safe and timely passage of the aid through Georgia to Armenia.
- This past week, for example, we transported 3000 metric tons of seed wheat through Georgia to Yerevan with no significant problems. Additionally, a USDA shipment of over 20,000 metric tons of wheat grain is presently off-loading in a Georgian port without difficulty.

(If asked about help for restarting the Medsamor Nuclear Power Plant)

- I understand the extreme hardship Armenians are enduring, especially during the winter.
- However, restarting Medsamor would be a very dangerous way to resolve the problem.
- We and other members of the G-7 are concerned over the plant's construction, lack of trained personnel and its location in an active seismic zone.
- We should work together to find alternate ways to meet Armenia's needs.

- The U.S. has already devoted over $26 million to a variety of bilateral projects for the long-term improvement of Armenia's energy sector. These include industrial energy conservation programs, weatherization of buildings, and power sector modernization and privatization.
- We have also urged Turkey to consider reopening its borders with Armenia and will continue to encourage Turkish cooperation.

(If asked about the Administration's Policy against the Freedom Support Act's Restrictions (Section 907) on Aid to Azerbaijan)

- There are several reasons for wanting at the very least some modification of the current legislation restricting government-to-government assistance to Azerbaijan.
- First, Section 970 limits our flexibility in the Nagorno-Karabakh negotiations to offer incentives to all sides to implement confidence-building measures and to accept a comprehensive peace plan. Aid is one of the few tools we have at our disposal to use with the Azerbaijanis.
- Second, Section 907 has forced the cancellation of a variety of programs that would have helped promote democracy in Azerbaijan -- something which is arguably in Armenia's best interest.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Joan Baggett, Tara Burns
FR: Richard Sullivan, Fran Wakem
RE: Armenian Meeting at the White House
DT: August 4, 1994

On Monday, August 8, at 3:30 p.m., there is a meeting at the White House with the President and Tony Lake to meet with leaders of Armenian organizations across the country. A BLP member, Set Momjian, would like to listen in on the meeting.

Marilyn Dejacobi is the person in political affairs who is organizing the event. We have contacted her and have been told that the meeting is for 15-17 people who represent major organizations in the Armenian community. She does not feel that it is appropriate for Set to be included.

In the past year, Set in-kind 15,000 for Clinton's Christmas gifts (which was a book of six of the President's speeches that he gave out to heads of state etc.). Set is currently in the process of creating a gift for the President to give out again in December which will cost him personally another 15,000. Set is also working on other projects for the White House and everything that he does is done with approval of the President's personal office through Betty Currie and Nancy Heinrich. Set has a West Wing pass.

According to Set, there will be a few people in the meeting who are not leaders in the Armenian community but are simply people who in the past, raised money on the West Coast for Clinton-Gore. Terry McAuliffe feels that if this is the case, Set should be included.

Please advise.
