RE: Proposed Media Schedule

I've spoken to hosts and producers at several African-American radio stations in our target cities who would like to have you as a guest on their programs (most are morning drive-time). The pitch from me has been that you would like to talk with them and their listeners about the President's programs and the impact of his Administration on their community.

Please advise me of your availability for the following LIVE, call-in shows, and I will confirm the arrangements.

✓ Monday, October 31

8:00-9:00 a.m. WCHB-Detroit

Joanne
Host Joanne Watson is also the executive director of the Detroit Urban League. Her program covers community issues, local and national politics, and runs from 6-9 a.m. Monday through Friday. She is especially interested in having you on the day before President Clinton will be in Detroit.

Joanne Watson (313)278-1440

✓ Thursday, November 3

9:00-9:30 a.m. WLIB-New York

Cynthia Smith would like to interview you in the studio if at all possible, on the morning following the 100 Black Women fundraiser.

Cynthia Smith (212)592-0509
3 Park Avenue, 41st Floor (at 34th Street)

Friday or Saturday, November 4 or 5

Time to be confirmed KACE-Los Angeles

Isidra (Eye-ceedra) Person-Lynn is the news director and host of "The People's Connection" which airs on Sunday mornings. I've told her you will be with the President during his visit to L.A, and her preference is to tape the interview in-studio on Saturday a.m.

Isidra Person-Lynn (213)368-9503; (213)385-0101

Date Pending

7:00-7:45 p.m. WUSS-Atlantic City

Larry Hayes, a "long-time fan and friend" of the President's from Arkansas is eager to have you as a guest on his evening call-in program. He requested you for Monday and Ruby has said you have a prior commitment.

The President of the United States
Annual Dinner, National Italian American Foundation
Washington, D.C.
October 29, 1994

Acknowledgements: Sen. Patrick Leahy, Dinner Chair; Former Congressman Frank Guarini, NIAF President; Frank Stella, NIAF Chairman; Art Gajarsa [Guy-arsa], NIAF Vice Chair; Vatican Ambassador Agostino Cacciavillan [Koch--yah--vill-yan]; Boris Biancheri [Bee--yahn--carey], Italian Ambassador to the United States. [Hillary is sorry that she couldn't be here this evening.]

Ambassador Bianchehri, I hope you will send my warmest regards to the Prime Minister. Twice this year, I have had the opportunity to visit Italy and renew the partnership between our countries. I was reminded of how Italy has enriched America -- in art, music, philosophy, and, most important, the strength and wisdom of so many of her sons and daughters.

This morning, Senator Leahy and I returned from the Middle East. I was proud to stand with the brave men and women of our Armed Forces stationed at Tactical Assembly Area Liberty in the desert sands of Kuwait. And I also wish that all Americans could have been with me on the border between Israel and Jordan, when we witnessed a great stride forward towards a more peaceful region and a more peaceful world. With the signing of the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan, another large building block was put in place toward our goal of a comprehensive peace.

Now, the clash of arms will be heard no more between these two countries whose state of war lasted nearly 46 years. It was inspiring to see that these old foes are now truly waging peace. They are working together, so that the waters of the Jordan River will make the desert bloom. And they are clearing gun emplacements for invasions of tourists, not tanks.

I am proud that America could sustain and energize the negotiations that led to the Washington Declaration and the peace treaty between these two nations, and the Declaration of Principles between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization. We can do this because both sides trust us. They know us for who we are -- a nation that draws our strength from our diversity and where everyone has a voice.

From the Middle East to South Africa, from Northern Ireland to the Caribbean, the peoples of the world look to America. They respect the power of our military. They respect the power of our economy. But, most of all, they respect the power of our example.

Sometimes, you have to travel outside America to see ourselves as others see us -- the world's strongest democracy, always reaching and striving and changing. We are at our best when we renew ourselves by welcoming people from all over the world who share a love of liberty and a willingness to work.

America does not define itself by language or lineage. Our values make us Americans, the values of work and family and faith. You know these values because you live them every day. You work hard for a living. You sacrifice for your children. You take care of your parents. You care for your communities, you love your country, and you want everyone to have the same opportunities you have had.

These values have guided the Italian-American journey, and they have guided the American journey. I learned these values growing up in a small town. Many of you learned these values in strong communities, where parents and immigrant grandparents worked together with teachers, priests, and neighbors to set you on the right path in life.

You can see these values in the people you honor tonight. And in the more than 150 men and women of Italian heritage who serve in leading positions in our Administration. In Leon Panetta, I have a chief of staff who not only translated my remarks to the people of Rome, but who can read Machiavelli in the original.

I can't possibly mention everyone, but I want to thank: the chair of the Council of Economic Advisers, Laura D'Andrea Tyson; FBI Director Louis Freeh; Assistant Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Andrew Cuomo; former Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro, a permanent member of the U.N. Commission on Human Rights; the director of our effort to reinvent government, Elaine Ciulla [chew-lah] Kamarck; the First Lady's press secretary, Lisa Caputo; the Vice President's press secretary, Lorraine Voles; White House legislative director Patrick Orlando Griffin; and White House staff secretary John Podesta.

I see my old friend Joe Paolino, Ambassador to Malta, here tonight. And I thank you for letting me recruit Bob Blancato from the staff of the National Italian-American Foundation to run our White House Conference on the Aging.

This is the third year that I have spoken at this dinner. I have been thinking why I keep coming back. For me -- as for you -- this dinner is not only an occasion to celebrate your achievements; it is a time to rededicate ourselves to our hopes for the future. And, most of all, I love to hear your stories.

Now, I know that you have been waiting for the jokes because you are honoring the chief executive officer of McDonald's, and I am one of his most loyal customers. I just want to tell Ed Rensi: Keep up the good work.

What gives me an even bigger thrill than a Big Mac and fries is Ed's story. I love it that America is a place where Ed Rensi [Ren-see] can start out as a grillman and work his way up to running the company. That is why we are an example to the world.

Two weeks ago, I spoke at a dinner honoring Mario Cuomo. When he tells the story of his family and all they have achieved, he is singing a love song to America. And we all can't help but sit up a little straighter, throw our shoulders back, and be proud to be Americans.

We take pride in these stories, not because they are unusual but because they are typical. Not everyone can be a governor or a chief executive officer. But there are millions of Americans who came from all over the world, or who grew up here in poverty, who worked hard, played by the rules, held their families together, and made the most of the opportunities America offers.

We can climb as high as our hard work and our God-given talents can take us. But individuals do best when we have strong families, strong communities, and a strong country behind us. That is how we all can move forward, together.

For all the good fortune our families have enjoyed, we've seen some difficult times in the recent past. For 30 years -- and under both parties -- we've seen the breakdown of family and community, and the growth of crime and violence. For twenty years, too many of our families have been working longer and harder for less. And, for too long, Washington exploded the deficit, while neglecting the investments that help people build their future.

We're trying to put America back on its historic journey of progress. That journey, as you know so well, isn't about government alone. It's about business, labor, government, the schools, the churches, families, communities, and individuals working together, in partnership. That vision of strengthening families and communities -- and giving people the tools to build better lives for themselves -- is at the heart of everything we are doing.

You know the importance of work and family. With the Family and Medical Leave Law, we are helping Americans be good workers and good parents.

You know the importance of education; that is why you provide scholarships for deserving young people [and I understand five of your scholarship winners are here tonight]. And that is why we are revolutionizing student loans, so that 20 million people can better afford to pay for their college educations.

You know the importance of safe and strong communities. That is why our Crime Bill is putting more police on the streets of our communities, setting tougher penalties for violent career criminals, and creating prevention programs to give young people something to say yes to as well as something to say no to.

This is all about partnership, not partisanship. That is why Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Congresswoman Connie Morella, who is here tonight, were leaders in the fight to pass the Crime Bill.

And you know that government should do what our families do: live within our means and provide for the future. That is why -- thanks to Leon Panetta's leadership at the Office of Management and Budget -- we are achieving historic deficit reduction, cutting taxes on small business and 15 million working families, and investing more in education, training, and technology. And we're starting to get results: 4.6 million new jobs, and three years in a row of lower deficits for the first time since President Truman.

But none of this will matter unless every American does what you have worked so hard to do: strengthen our families and our communities, so people can build better lives for themselves.

One person who understood this was one of the founders of the National Italian American Foundation, Monsignor Geno Baroni. Many of you honored him recently by commemorating the 10th anniversary of his untimely death. While I didn't know him personally, many members of our Administration -- including Secretary Donna Shalala, who is here tonight -- knew and loved and learned from him.

Monsignor Baroni devoted his life to bringing people together. Business leaders and working people. Every race and religion. What was important to him was that everyone can live the American dream.

He understood there are some things we must do for ourselves and some things we can only do together. He used to say: "Government can do a lot, but it can't love a child." And: "The family is the building block of the neighborhood, and the neighborhood is the building block of the city."

If we remember his wisdom and continue his work, if we work together to move America forward, America will always be a community of hope for our people and an example for the world.

Address at the National Italian American Foundation
Nineteenth Annual Gala Dinner

DATE: October 29, 1994
LOCATION: Washington Hilton
TIME: 9:20 p.m.
FROM: Alexis Herman
Marilyn DiGiacobbe

I. PURPOSE

To acknowledge and recognize the contributions of the Italian American community to our country.

II. BACKGROUND

The National Italian American Foundation (NIAF) is a non-profit, non-partisan Foundation dedicated to promoting the positive contributions of Italian Americans. NIAF serves as a Washington voice for the Italian American community and an umbrella for the many local, more grassroots, organizations of Americans of Italian heritage.

NIAF was founded 19 years ago with the help of Monsignor Geno Baroni, former Congressmen Peter Rodino and Frank Annunzio along with other members of the Italian American Congressional delegation. The current NIAF Chairman is Frank Stella, the President is former Congressman Frank Guarini, and Arthur Gajarsa is Vice Chair, and immediate past President.

The Foundation has a wide-range of programs that have provided more than $1 million in scholarships and grants for students, legislative internships in the Congress, conferences and seminar programs that reach out to the Italian American community, cultural exchange projects and many other activities which serve to benefit Americans of all ethnic backgrounds.

The NIAF Gala Dinner is one of the largest annual ethnic dinners in the United States. It is attended by 3,000 people from 42 states, and it has become a tradition for the President of the United States to participate. This year's Dinner Chair is Senator Patrick Leahy, and the awardees are:

- o Giorgio Armani, fashion designer
- o Nicolas Cage, actor
- o Anthony Fauci, M.D., Director of the National Institutes of Allergy and Infectious Diseases
- o Grace Mirabella, magazine editor
- o L. Jay Oliva, President, New York University
- o Edward Rensi, President and CEO, McDonald's Corp.

This is the third year you will participate in this dinner. This is a sell out event, the largest dinner the NIAF has ever had.

The dinner is part of a gala weekend which included a full day conference on health care reform, with a focus on the aging population. Administration officials participated. In addition, on Friday we held a reception in the Indian Treaty Room for prominent members of the NIAF. Leon Panetta and Alexis Herman addressed the group. Later that evening, the Italian American Democratic Leadership Council hosted a reception in honor of Italian-American Administration appointees. Leon Panetta and many other Italian-American appointees attended.

The major immigration of Italians to the United States was in the early 1900's. Many have assimilated well into American society and have made many outstanding contributions as evidenced by the honorees at this dinner. Today there are nearly 20 million Americans of Italian heritage working in virtually every field. Italian Americans live in suburbia as well as many of our urban cities in the North East and West Coast, such as California, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Rhode Island.

The President of the United States
Annual Dinner, National Italian American Foundation
Washington, D.C.
October 29, 1994

Acknowledgements [Sen. Patrick Leahy, Dinner Chairman; Former Congressman Frank Guarini, NIAF President; Frank Stella, NIAF Chairman; Art Gajarsa, NIAF Vice Chairman; Vatican Ambassador Agostino Cacciavillan; Boris Biancheri, Italian Ambassador to the United States]

Ambassador Bianchehri, I hope you will send my warmest regards to the Prime Minister. Twice this year, I have had the opportunity to visit Italy and renew the partnership between our countries. I was reminded of how Italy has enriched America -- in art, music, philosophy, and, most important, the strength and wisdom of so many of her sons and daughters.

This morning, Senator Leahy and I returned from another part of the world that is also rich in the history of the human spirit. [Brief report on Mideast trip, to come from NSC]

From the Middle East to South Africa, from Northern Ireland to the Caribbean, the peoples of the world look to America. They respect the power of our military. They respect the power of our economy. But, most of all, they respect the power of our example.

Sometimes, you have to travel outside America to see ourselves as others see us -- the world's strongest democracy, always reaching and striving and changing. We are at our best when we renew ourselves by welcoming people from all over the world who share a love of liberty and a willingness to work hard.

America does not define itself by language or lineage. Our values make us Americans, the values of work and family and faith. You know these values because you live them every day. You work hard for a living. You sacrifice for your children. You take care of your parents. You care for your communities, you love your country, and you want everyone to have the same opportunities you have had.

These values have guided the Italian-American journey, and they have guided the American journey. I learned these values growing up in a small town. Many of you learned these values in strong communities, where parents, teachers, priests, and neighbors worked together to set you on the right path in life.

You can see these values in the people you honor tonight. And in the more than 150 men and women of Italian heritage who serve in leading positions in our Administration. In Leon Panetta, I have a chief of staff who not only translated my remarks to the people of Rome, but who can read Machiavelli in the original.

I can't possibly mention everyone, but I want to thank: the chair of the Council of Economic Advisers, Laura D'Andrea Tyson; the director of the FBI, Louis Freeh; the assistant Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Andrew Cuomo; former Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro, a permanent member of the U.N. Commission on Human Rights; the director of our effort to reinvent government, Elaine Ciulla Kamarck; the First Lady's press secretary, Lisa Caputo; the Vice President's press secretary, Lorraine Voles; the White House Legislative Director, Patrick Orlando Griffin; and the White House staff secretary, John Podesta.

I see my old friend Joe Paolino, Ambassador to Malta, here tonight. And I thank you for letting me recruit Bob Blancato from the staff of the National Italian-American Foundation to run our White House Conference on the Aging.

This is the third year that I have spoken at this dinner. And I have been thinking why I keep coming back. The food is great, and the company is even better. But, most of all, I love to hear your stories.

Now, I know that you have been waiting for the jokes because you are honoring the chief executive officer of McDonald's, and I am one of his most loyal customers. I just want to tell Ed Rensi: Keep up the good work.

What gives me an even bigger thrill than a Big Mac and fries is Ed's story. I love it that America is still a place where Ed Rensi can start out as a grillman and work his way up to running the company. That is why America is an example to the world.

Two weeks ago, I spoke at a dinner honoring Mario Cuomo. When he tells the story of his family and all they have achieved, he is singing a love song to America. And we all can't help but sit up a little straighter, throw our shoulders back, and be proud to be Americans.

We take pride in these stories, not because they are unusual but because they are typical. Not everyone can be a governor or a chief executive officer. But there are millions of Americans who came from all over the world, or who grew up here in poverty, who worked hard, played by the rules, held their families together, and made the most of the opportunities America offers.

We can climb as high as our hard work and our God-given talents can take us. But individuals do best when we have strong families, strong communities, and a strong country behind us. That is how we all can move forward, together.

For all the good fortune our families have enjoyed, we've seen some difficult times lately. For 30 years -- and under both parties -- we've seen the breakdown of family and community, and the growth of crime and violence. For twenty years, too many of our families have been working longer and harder for less. And, for at least 12 years, Washington exploded the deficit, while neglecting the investments that help people build their future.

We've tried to put America back on its historic journey of progress. That journey, as you know so well, isn't about government alone. It's about business, labor, government, the schools, the churches, families, communities, and individuals working together, in partnership. That vision of strengthening families and communities -- and giving people the tools to build better lives for themselves -- is at the heart of everything we are trying to do.

You know the importance of work and family. With the Family and Medical Leave Law, we are helping Americans be good workers and good parents.

You know the importance of education; that is why you provide scholarships for deserving young people. And that is why we have revolutionized student loans to make college affordable for 20 million young people.

You know the importance of safe and strong communities. That is why our Crime Bill puts more police on the streets of our communities, has tougher penalties for violent career criminals, and has prevention programs to give young people a chance to avoid a life of crime.

This is all about partnership, not partisanship. That is why Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and Congresswoman Connie Morella, who is with us tonight, were leaders in the fight to pass the Crime Bill.

And you know that government should do what our families do: live within our means and provide for the future. That is why -- with Leon Panetta's leadership at the Office of Management and Budget -- we achieved historic deficit reduction, cut taxes on small business and 15 million working families, and invested more in education, training, and technology. And we're starting to get results: 4.6 million new jobs, and three years in a row of lower deficits for the first time since President Truman.

But none of this will matter unless every American does what you have worked so hard to do: strengthen our families and our communities, so people can build better lives for themselves.

One person who understood this was a founder of the National Italian American Foundation, Monsignor Geno Baroni. Many of you honored him recently by commemorating the 10th anniversary of his untimely death. While I didn't know him personally, many members of our Administration -- including Secretary Donna Shalala, who is here tonight -- knew and loved and learned from him.

Monsignor Baroni devoted his life to bringing people together. Business leaders and working people. Liberals and conservatives. Every race and religion. What was important to him was that everyone can live the American dream.

He understood there are some things we must do for ourselves and some things we can only do together. He used to say: "Government can do a lot, but it can't love a child." And: "The family is the building block of the neighborhood, and the neighborhood is the building block of the city."

If we remember his wisdom and continue his work, the American Dream will come alive for everyone. And our nation will always be a community of hope for our people and an example for the world.

Dear Ms. Herman:

On behalf of the Executive Leadership Council, I would like to cordially extend an invitation for you to attend ELC's Sixth Annual Recognition Dinner on October 20, 1994. The event venue is the same as last year, the Sheraton Washington Hotel, Washington, D.C.

Thanks to your considerable efforts and the participation of President Clinton, last year's event was one of ELC's proudest moments. We have recently extended another invitation to the President, and schedule permitting, we would hope that he might be available for remarks during dinner.

We are very pleased that Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown has accepted our invitation and will be providing the keynote address. I would be particularly honored if you would join me, Secretary Brown, Rockwell Chairman and CEO Donald Beall, and UNCF CEO William Gray at the ELC President's table.

Attached to this letter is a data sheet that provides additional information regarding the event. If you have any questions regarding this material, please contact me directly.

Best regards,

The Honorable William J. Clinton
President of the United States
The White House

Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear President Clinton:

The Executive Leadership Council would cordially like to invite you to join us at our Sixth Annual Recognition Dinner on Thursday, October 20, 1994. The event will be held at the Sheraton Washington Hotel in Washington, D.C.

We were so pleased last year that despite your obviously busy calendar, you were able to stop by and share a few thoughts with us during the reception. I know that our membership looks forward to strengthening the special relationship between ELC and your Administration by having you consider this activity as an annual event on your calendar.

This year's dinner promises to be our largest ever, as we expect the number of CEO's and senior business executives who attended last year to be exceeded. Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown has graciously accepted our invitation to provide the keynote address, and will be joining me, Rockwell Chairman and CEO Don Beall, and UNCF CEO Bill Gray at the event.

Our honorees this year include:

- Harvey Russell, the first vice president of a FORTUNE 500 firm (Pepsi Cola), who will receive our Heritage Award
- A. Barry Rand, the Executive Vice President, Xerox Corporation, who will receive our Achievement Award
- Pepsico, Inc., represented by its Chairman and CEO Wayne Calloway, who will receive our Corporate Award.

I believe that ELC continues to represent a unique link between corporate America and the African American community. In this regard, the Recognition Dinner provides an outstanding forum to highlight issues of major import to the American people.

Again, if your schedule permits, we would be honored if you would like to spend a few moments at the dinner to discuss subjects of particular interest to our community.

If appropriate, I would be pleased to work on this matter with Alexis Herman and her staff as we did last year.

Sincerely,

OFFICE OF PUBLIC LIAISON

MEMORANDUM FOR ALEXIS HERMAN

From: Caren Wilcox

Subject: Options for Business Outreach for Health Care Reform

Date: October 18, 1994

BACKGROUND

You have requested a suggested process for business outreach for health care over the next several months. In light of the fact that the Business Roundtable is meeting on December 6 we should be clear on our activities before then. (See their letter attached.)

As we knew in the campaign and over this past year, many businesses have been in this battle for reform for many years. Mobilizing them to support reform, and getting their buy-in to the process is the challenge.

Businesses, both formerly supportive and opposed, would like to be consulted before a package is fully developed. As with most other issues involving public policy and the private sector, they want to feel that they have had real input to policy development, before being presented with hard drafts of legislation which cannot be changed significantly. Sophisticated business players in this legislative game realize that they will not have all their ideas accepted in the drafting game, but they expect a certain number of them to be acknowledged, massaged and developed.

There is certainly an opportunity for more of a buy-in from certain companies and perhaps a few trade associations, if we take into account this desire for participation and consultation.

Generally the business community, whether friendly or hostile, appears to be expecting a fairly major initiative from the White House on health care in the coming year. Several have called for advice, or to seek input into what is being done here.

CURRENT POSITIONING OF PAST ALLIES

We have spoken to several organizations and individuals about this interim period and next year.

Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform - This group has remained relatively intact, and is hoping for continued effort to gain health care coverage for small businesses. They are seeking opportunities to help us on other issues, such as urging members to go to the White House Conference on Small Business in their states etc. We must remember that the staffing for this group comes from the drug stores, and that they were very interested in our proposals on this subject.

National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform - This group, most commonly identified with Dr. Henry Simmons, contains many of our most hard core manufacturing supporters. They have opinions of what they believe went wrong in the process, learned a few lessons themselves, and have received a grant to conduct grassroots meetings across the country with business people to describe the need for universal coverage. Their focus is cost containment and universal coverage.

Atkins Group - This group is in the process of determining whether it should continue as a coalition. They are planning a retreat in January to discuss strategy for next year. Their issues are multi-state operations problems and ERISA pre-emption. IBM which is a member of this group, is worried about its reputation with the administration, and how much damage they sustained in the end of the battle.

Various Companies - Several companies, such as American Airlines are very anxious to continue the battle for universal coverage. Others such as TRW want some dialogue, having opted out of an effective process during the debate. Some large companies are clearly warning of their need to drop coverage or are fearful that others, including competitors will do so, placing them at a competitive disadvantage.

PAST ADVERSARIES

Business Roundtable - The attached letter signed by Bob Winters of Prudential is indicative of where some of the insurers and some of the large businesses remain - hostile and fearful. However, in the opinion of some representing BRT companies, there is room for movement among the more progressive companies.

Prudential's representative in Washington, actually suggested a meeting to discuss the future, but I did not express strong interest in that. I understand that Mr. Winters may not continue as chair of the BRT Health, Welfare and Retirement Income Task Force, and may not continue as CEO of Prudential, given their problems.

We have been urged to hold a meeting with some companies from the BRT, so that the December meeting cannot take place with the statement being made that the White House did not meet and seek opinions.

ERIC AND APPWP - The Erisa Industry Committee and the Association of Private Pension and Welfare Plans each had problems with the Clinton bill, but were initially supportive of concepts. Their current status is unclear, but will be explored.

ECFC - This group was opposed to the Clinton plan due to its taxation of cafeteria plans, and was fearful of other aspects of the organizational part of the bill. It is primarily made up of benefits managers of large manufacturers, with a few other companies such as Pepsico which clearly lead the way toward opposition.

They have called, and asked what we would think of a meeting of various business groups to determine what they can live with in the future. I indicated that they should not look to us for permission to meet, but had a long hard talk with them regarding financing solutions, because that is the nub of business problems of insuring the uninsured now.

U.S. Chamber/NFIB - These two groups are so closely allied with the Republican Party, that they will probably follow whatever path the Republicans choose to pursue.

National Association of Manufacturers - They have expressed an interest in incremental reform including something for children, insurance portability, "a start toward universal coverage" and scaled back insurance reform.

However, their track record with the administration is such that we need to remain cautious about their continuous use of many of our legislative initiatives to develop new membership based on critiques followed by promises to members to "save them from the Clinton administration."

We understand that a few manufacturers did resign from NAM during the health care debate, and I have been forthright with other manufacturers about their being the losers to the retailers, insurers and some of their other suppliers of services, instead of more effectively influencing the debate in their favor.

Specialized Trade Associations - Dependent on the financing formulas, and any adverse impact on certain industries of any reform package, we may be able to attract quite a number of these associations to a modified package.

HIAA - The Principal Financial Group and two or three other companies in HIAA realize how counter productive their efforts were. It may be possible to have a dialogue with some of them.

National Restaurant and Retailers - There are members in these organizations with whom there could be dialogue, but the associations themselves should not be expected to support much.

OPTIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS FOR IMMEDIATE OUTREACH

The structure for the outreach would include continuing business constituency political outreach from OPL and, cooperatively with appropriate business liaisons in various departments. OPL would facilitate meetings and policy exploration discussions with outside groups in coordination with individuals from the NEC and DPC.

There are options as to the level and timing of outreach to the business community, and the identity of those included in the outreach. Possibilities include:

1. Convene a meeting of Washington representatives from previous hardcore supportive companies. Ask their advice, what they are hearing from staff on the Hill and from other businesses. What kind of a new package would they like to see?
2. Meet with helpful contract lobbyists on the past bill. Ask their advice, what they are hearing from clients, Hill and colleagues. What kind of a package do they think is realistic?
3. Ask a few CEOs who were most visibly and continuously supportive of the administration to meet with senior White House staff, and possibly the First Lady, after temperature taking meetings with their Washington Representatives. Individuals such as Bob Crandall, Hank Barnette, David Hoag, Chuck Corry, Chuck Johnson, and Bob Eaton, and Paul Allaire come to mind.
4. Meet with leaders of the Small Business Coalition for Health Care Reform to determine their aspirations for a new effort.
5. Meet with National Leadership Coalition for Health Care Reform and discuss what they are hearing in the field at their meetings and what they would like to see in a package.
6. Consider a meeting with the so-called Atkins Group, a key swing group in the business community, with very influential members in the BRT. What elements of reform would they like to see in a package? A number of their CEOs should be consulted after we determine where this group is going.
7. Following these meetings with many BRT companies, identify next tier of BRT companies for meetings.
8. Consider small meetings with some friendly companies in unfriendly associations or industries.

9. Evaluate, dependent on package being developed, whether meetings can be held with pharmaceutical companies, some large insurers etc.

10. Continue private dialogue with ECFC to determine the results of their consultations, with other associations.

I believe the immediate next steps should include a meeting to review these options, timing, calendar and structure for coordination.

This meeting has been arranged for Friday, October 21 at 5 p.m. in your office, following Mr. Panetta's meeting, and attendees at this time include: Robert Rubin, Carol Rasco, Erskine Bowles, Marilyn Yager, Sylvia Matthews and myself.

TO: Members of the Business Roundtable Health,
Welfare and Retirement Income Task Force

RE: Strategy

As the 103rd Congress winds down, we can claim a victory of sorts. We weren't hit with the kind of bureaucratic restructuring of health care most of us oppose. Of course, we also didn't achieve the kind of health care reform most of us support.

The BRT is still committed to responsible health care reform -- reform that provides access to high quality, affordable health care to all Americans. The administration's proposal went far beyond that, however. To the extent that the Roundtable contributed to the defeat of the administration's proposal -- and it is easy to overstate how much impact we had -- there were two reasons. First, we had prepared ourselves. The task force, and particularly our staffs, put in a lot of time and effort. We thought through the alternatives and conditioned the Policy Committee. Second, when the time came we acted decisively. I do not believe the second would have been possible without the first.

Now is the time to start preparing for the future which lies beyond the failure of this Congress to enact health care legislation. This future has two important dimensions: federal and state.

At the state level, we face a lot of activity. One influence will be the California ballot initiative for a single payer plan. If that passes, or even fails narrowly, it will energize the forces supporting a Canadian-style plan. Current indications are that we will come out better than that, but the election is still five weeks away.

Historically, the BRT has had difficulty marshalling efforts at the state level, with some notable exceptions. We need to consider how much effort we should put into state initiatives ourselves, versus looking to the staff-based organizations like the Chamber and NAM.

At the federal level, special interests will receive a lot of blame for the gridlock, with the Clintons leading the charge. I believe that the reality is somewhat different. My version is that the mood of the country turned against big government solutions and the politicians in Congress sensed it. I have enclosed two items supporting that version: a Wall Street Journal column and notes from a recent talk by CNN political analyst Bill Schneider.

Now is the time for us to start preparing for next year's battle in Congress. We have about four months before things heat up again, and we should use that time well. In 1994 we fought a defensive campaign against the administration's proposal. We need to consider whether 1995 calls for offense, for working with some kind of coalition to develop a position we can support.

We face important decisions at both the federal and state levels. I have asked the staff to develop the information we need to make these decisions. However, until we know the outcome in California and the makeup of the House and Senate, we are not in a position to make definitive decisions. Thus, I am cancelling the November 2 Task Force meeting, and have asked the staff committee to schedule a meeting soon after the elections. In the meantime, I would be interested in any thoughts you may have on how we should move forward.

Our next BRT Task Force meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, December

Proposed press release by POTUS regarding Minority Business Executive Order

Background: The President signed the attached executive order on September 16, 1994 but has not yet spoken publicly about the Order. A press release has not been issued on this Order because we had hoped to use a MED Week ceremony last week to announce the order, but this scheduling request was denied. It is important that we release this announcement as soon as possible.

The Order promotes the strong enforcement of existing laws designed to ensure participation of minority businesses in federal procurement. Minority contractors and minority members of Congress appreciate the President's commitment to minority business development and participation in federal procurement and will appreciate learning about the executive order.

Proposed Press Release is Attached.

DRAFT PRESS RELEASE

PRESIDENT NAMES OFFICIALS TO ENFORCE EXECUTIVE ORDER

I am proud to announce today that I have signed an Executive Order to help ensure that the federal government, in using its considerable purchasing power, is fully enforcing the letter and spirit of all existing laws that are designed to promote the participation of small minority businesses in federal procurement.

Executive Order 12928, signed on September 16 of this year, renews the federal government's commitment to helping small, minority-owned businesses compete on an equal basis in the American economy. All federal departments and agencies are currently required by law to establish participation goals of not less than 5 percent, and in some cases a greater percentage, for procurement with small, disadvantaged businesses, Historically Black Colleges and other minority institutions. The Order directs all federal departments and agencies to aggressively strive to meet these legally required goals and to aggressively enforce the obligations of prime contractors to maximize the awards of subcontracts to small, disadvantaged business. And, the Order directs all agency and department heads to move immediately to comply with existing laws that are designed to ensure that at each agency in the federal government there is a strong Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization that is empowered to fulfill its mission.

Today I am naming three people in my Administration who will be charged with ensuring full compliance with the Executive Order. Those persons are: (1) Steve Kelman, Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy; (2) Robert Neal, Deputy Administrator of the Small Business Administration for Government Contracts and Minority Enterprise Development; and (3) Michael Rogers, Director of the Minority Business Development Agency at the Department of Commerce. I am confident that this team will be effective in promoting the goals of the Executive Order.

Title 3—

The President

Executive Order 12928 of September 16, 1994

Promoting Procurement With Small Businesses Owned and Controlled by Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Individuals, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and Minority Institutions

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, in order to enforce rigorously the letter and spirit of public laws that promote increased participation in Federal procurement by Small Businesses Owned and Controlled by Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Individuals (SDBs) as described in section 8 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637), Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) as described in 34 C.F.R. 608.2, and Minority Institutions (MIs) as referred to in sections 1046(3) and 316(b)(1) of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended (20 U.S.C. 1135d-5(3) and 1059c(b)(1), respectively), it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Policy Statement. It is the policy of the United States Government that all department and agency heads and all Federal employees involved in the procurement of any and all goods and services shall assist SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs, as applicable, to develop viable, self-sustaining businesses capable of competing on an equal basis in the mainstream of the American economy. To that end, all Federal personnel shall commit to the letter and spirit of all laws promoting the participation of SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs in Federal procurement. The laws promote:

(a) the award of contracts to SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs through the Small Business Administration Section 8(a) Program, the Department of Defense Small and Disadvantaged Business Program, other agency programs, and through other specific statutory authority or appropriate means;

(b) the establishment of particular goals for SDBs, HBCUs, or MIs on an agency-by-agency basis and the requirement that prime contractors and other recipients of Federal funds attain similar goals in their procurement; and

(c) the establishment of other mechanisms that ensure that SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs have a fair opportunity to participate in Federal procurement.

Sec. 2. Attainment of Goals. All departments and agencies are required by law to establish participation goals of not less than 5 percent (15 U.S.C. 644(g)) or a greater percentage where otherwise required by law, as further provided in the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Letter No. 91-1 of March 11, 1991. Although the Federal Government has made substantial strides toward meeting established SDB, HBCU, and MI participation goals, certain departments and agencies have from time to time failed to aggressively pursue such goals. Department and agency heads are henceforth directed to execute, implement, and otherwise aggressively strive to fulfill the statutorily-mandated procurement participation goals. In addition, all departments and agencies are encouraged to set reasonable participation goals that exceed statutory requirements, to the extent permitted by law.

Sec. 3. Subcontracting Plans. The Small Business Act, (15 U.S.C. 637(d)) and other related laws require certain prime contractors to maximize the use of SDBs in subcontracting plans and strive to achieve stated goals through prime contractors' subcontracting practices. Department and agency heads are directed to aggressively enforce these prime contractors' obligations to maximize awards of subcontracts to eligible SDBs.

Sec. 4. Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization ("OSDBU").

(a) Section 15(k) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 644(k)) establishes in each Federal department and agency an OSDBU and requires that the Director of the OSDBU "be responsible only to, and report directly to, the head of such agency or to the deputy of such head" (15 U.S.C. 644(k)(3)). To the extent not prohibited by law, each department and agency shall ensure that the aforementioned direct reporting requirements are henceforth vigorously enforced.

(b) Because of the importance of the OSDBU function, each department and agency shall also, to the extent not prohibited by law, comply with the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Letter No. 79-1 of March 7, 1979, which provides implementation guidance on section 15k and the organizational placement and functions of the OSDBU.

Sec. 5. Anti-fraud Enforcement. All department and agency heads shall ensure that in enforcing the laws and requirements mentioned in this order, Federal benefits or contracts intended for SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs are not awarded to entities that are not legitimate SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs. Department and agency anti-fraud enforcement, however, shall not diminish agency vigor in achieving the aforementioned participation goals, which exist to promote the development of legitimate SDBs, HBCUs, and MIs. Nothing herein is intended to change self-certification requirements.

Sec. 6. Periodic Reports to the President. The Administrator of the Small Business Administration and the Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy shall report to the President periodically on the progress of all departments and agencies in complying with the laws and requirements mentioned in this order.

Sec. 7. Independent Agencies. Independent agencies are requested to comply with the provisions of this order.

Sec. 8. This order shall be effective immediately.

MEMORANDUM TO CAROL RASCO, BOB RUBIN, AND ALEXIS HERMAN

FROM: MARILYN YAGER

cc: Chris Jennings, Jennifer Klein

DISCUSSION OUTLINE FOR INTERIM OUTREACH ON HEALTH

I. CLOSEOUT ACTIVITIES FROM LAST CONGRESS

- A. Thank you letter from the President to supportive groups and individuals (OPL).
- B. Health Care additions to White House Holiday Card List (OPL).
- C. Thank you Reception with the President and First Lady.

A reception has been scheduled for November 10 at 4:00pm in the State Dining Room. OPL health staff will submit a list to the Social Secretary's office by October 28 for invitations.

II. 104TH CONGRESS PLANNING

- A. OPL health care staff liaisons are informally calling contacts on health care to learn what they are hearing from both their membership and around town.
- B. Tentative consultative list has been compiled (attached). This list of 22 meetings includes 'must see' health care supporters, as well as key players in the health care debate. The breakdown for Carol and Bob is seven meetings and six meetings respectively. The rest are to be handled by the OPL health staff lead.
- C. Schedule consultative meetings (tentative schedule attached).

1. We suggest beginning these meetings late next week and spreading them over five weeks (A potential schedule has been attached).

2. Either Chris Jennings or Jennifer Klein will staff the consultative meetings from a policy perspective and, where they deem it appropriate, they will include other policy staff.

3. We have tried to schedule key allies earlier in the process than others. Although some meetings will need to be individual group meetings, where possible meetings will comprise several like-minded associations.

D. Consultative Meetings Agenda

1. To listen to their thoughts and recommendations prior to the beginning of Administration policy and strategy development.
2. More specifically to learn what forms of incremental reform they would support, and what incremental provisions would they oppose.
3. Since most of these groups are allies it would probably be helpful if the meetings were begun by outlining the new health care structure at the White House, and touching briefly on the other key Presidential initiatives for the next Congress, i.e., welfare reform, deficit reduction, etc.

E. Followup to Consultative Meetings

1. OPL health staff will draft summary of recommendations made at each meeting to circulate among appropriate staff.
2. OPL health staff will send thank you letters (depending on who led the meeting) to each group, thanking them for their input.
3. OPL health staff will also follow-up with phone call to each group indicating how helpful the meeting was for the White House team.

F. Requests for meetings with Bob or Carol from groups not listed on the attached 'schedule.' We suggest forwarding these to OPL Health staff for quick recommendations: to either immediately schedule with Bob or Carol, or schedule with Chris, Jennifer, Gene, or Bill, or hold for later scheduling, or refer to OPL staff to handle, or finally regret.

CONSULTATIVE MEETINGS

Summary of Suggested Leads - For the 22 meetings outlined below the breakdown of meetings for Bob and Carol over the next five weeks is: Bob - 7 mtgs; Carol - 7 mtgs.

SCHEDULE PROPOSAL

10/13/94

 ACCEPT REJECT PENDING

TO: Billy Webster
Deputy Assistant to the President and Director of Scheduling and Advance

FROM: Alexis Herman
Assistant to the President for Public Liaison

REQUEST: For the President to make a phone call during the Centennial Celebration Gala of the National Medical Association, a taped television tribute.

PURPOSE: To briefly pay tribute to the National Medical Association in recognition of its contributions to the medical profession for the past 100 years and to honor African American physicians.

BACKGROUND: The National Medical Association's (NMA) Gala Celebration is to recognize their approaching centennial to take place next year. The Gala is a taped all-start tribute which will be aired in February on Fox TV.

The Gala is being directed and produced by Debbie Allen, and hosted by Phylicia Rashaad and "Roc" Dutton. We will be arranging a taped tribute from the President later this month to be inserted in the Gala program when it airs in February.

However, on Saturday night National Theatre will be packed with 1500 African American entertainers and physicians. For that reason we wish to have the President place a brief phone call during the Gala program, to briefly speak to the audience, apologize for not being able to join, and to briefly pay tribute to African American physicians.

NMA is the oldest African American professional association, having been founded in 1895, and with a current membership of 20,000 physicians. NMA has been a dedicated and active supporter of our health care reform efforts, and has been a strong supporter on other Presidential initiatives, i.e., crime, Haiti, and the economic plan.

As leaders in their community, these African American physicians are playing active roles on behalf of Democratic candidates in many key communities for the duration of October. This phone call should be viewed as one more activity to reassure our base.

PREVIOUS PARTICIPATION: None

DATE/TIME: Saturday, October 15, Sometime between 5:00 pm and 8:00 pm.

DURATION: 5 minutes

LOCATION: Phone call can be placed from wherever the President is.

OUTLINE OF EVENTS: To be worked out.

RE: National Medical Assn. Gala Problem

PROBLEM: National Medical Assn. is having their big GALA this Saturday night (5pm - 8pm), the program will be taped by Debbie Allen for a TV show that is to be shown in February for Black Awareness Month.

1). Taping: All four principles are out of town on Saturday, therefore we do not have anyone for the taping. Only the President returns on Saturday night, and he does not return until 1am. I have explained this to Rosemary Davis and offered to arrange a taping with the President at another time, and I have placed a phone call to Debbie Allen to offer the same thing. They have not responded.

2.GALA: I have also offered to try to arrange to have the President place a phone call during the Gala, so that he could briefly talk to the audience live. I don't personally know whether we could arrange this, but felt it would be worth a try if they want us to try. They are thinking about it.

3). GALA RECEPTION: They want White House presence at the reception which is following the GALA -- 8pm to 11pm at the JW Marriott. I would recommend you and Leon attend briefly if possible -- what do you think?

Alexis
I think Debbie
Allen may call you,

RE Debi Allen Issue

Danny didn't know anything about this. Marilyn Yager remembers speaking to Rosemary Davis 5 mons ago and telling her it was too early but that "we" would do everything we could.

I then told Marilyn that Debi Allen was in DC w/her film crew and production is ready for Saturday at 7 pm to tape POTUS and 9 others being honored that evening as well as other notables.

MY said that she never told her yes and that this problem always happens w/NMA (Nat'l Medical Assoc). MY is going to track it back to see what happened.

FEVER: A CELEBRITY TRIBUTE TO THE NMA

YOU ARE INVITED,

On October 15, 1994 at the National Theater in Washington D.C., to Fever, a gala celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the National Medical Association, the prestigious caucus of African American Doctors, hosted by Phylicia Rashad and Charles "Roc" Dutton. This star-studded tribute will pay homage to the accomplishments of the many unsung heroes in the medical field in an entertaining yet dignified way. In the spotlight will be greats from the past like Charles R. Drew who developed the blood plasma theory and the blood bank that saved countless thousands of lives during and after World War 2, and present honorees, like the U.S. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders, and Dr. Allen Counter, Neurologist, Director of the Harvard Foundation, Professor, scholar and researcher at Harvard Medical School and the Nobel Institute in Sweden. The real Indiana Jones, a member of the explorers club, Dr. Counter who discovered the descendents of 17th and 18th century slaves in the Rain Forests of the Suriname, and found the eskimo sons of Admiral Perry and Matthew Henson, the co-discoverers of the North Pole, united them with their American family and petitioned the American government to bury Henson in Arlington Cemetery, next to Admiral Perry.

Using documentary profiles on each of the nine honorees, entertaining film packages to glimpse the changing American scene through the years and highly stylized song and dance production numbers, Fever is sure to become a much anticipated annual television event.

Produced and Directed by Debbie Allen, Written by Buz Kohan and Ha. Karter, Choreographed by Hinton Battle, Musical Direction by Harold Wheeler, Fever will star, Bill Cosby, James Ingram, Jasmine Guy, The Boys Choir of Harlem, Lynn Whitfield, Samuel L. Jackson, LL Cool J, Nell Carter, The Sounds of Blackness, and other stars celebrities and entertainers soon to be announced.

FEVER Celebrity Tribute to the NMA
9/29/94

The importance of the event will be underscored by the fact that the President of The United States Bill Clinton will be in attendance and will also participate in the evening's festivities.

Executive Producers, Phyllis Roberson and Joel Cohen will deliver a 93 minute, 2 hour special, to be aired in February during Black History month.

We look forward to your participation.

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITHU.S. BUSINESSPEOPLE ON HAITI

DATE: Thursday, October 13, 1994

LOCATION: Indian Treaty Room

TIME: 3:45 - 5:00 p.m.

FROM: TARA SONENSHINE

I. PURPOSE

This meeting is intended to give representatives of U.S. companies a briefing on Haiti and to lay out for them the various dimensions of our policy -- both from the political and economic standpoint as well as on issues related to international development. It is further intended to provide a forum within which Aristide's economic representatives can provide their own insights on the future of Haiti.

II. BACKGROUND

Prior to the 1991 coup in Haiti, American companies did business in Haiti along with other international businesses. Over the past three years, the political situation in the country, which led to the imposition of severe international sanctions, led many, if not all, companies to curtail their activities in Haiti. With the introduction of U.S. forces and international forces, and the impending return of President Aristide, conditions are being created wherein democracy can be restored and the Haitian people can rebuild their society. It is the hope of the international community that a more secure environment will encourage the return of investment and opportunity in Haiti. It is thus important that U.S. businesspeople have a sense of what the situation is today in Haiti and what the long-term prospects may be.

III. PARTICIPANTS

Alexis Herman
Samuel Berger
Brian Atwood, Administrator, AID
Ruth Harkin, President, OFIC
TED, Department of Commerce

Leslie Voltaire, Chief of Cabinet for President Aristide and Member of the Economic Team

Leslie Delatour, Former Minister of Finance of Haiti and Member of the Economic Team

David Raltwood
Representatives of U.S. companies (list to be provided)

IV. PRESS PLAN

Official Photographer only. Remarks are off-the-record.

V. SEQUENCE

Alexis Herman makes welcoming remarks and introduces Sandy Berger. indication for Haiti

Sandy Berger provides the group with a brief overview of the political situation in Haiti as well as his own personal observations. (Talking Points are attached at Tab A.). (10 minutes)

Sandy Berger takes a few questions and introduces Brian Atwood before leaving.

Brian Atwood gives a general AID picture with emphasis on the climate for international assistance and development. (A copy of his remarks is attached at Tab B.) (5 minutes)

Ruth Harkin says a few words about OPIC. (3-5 minutes)

Commerce provides a brief summary of their activities. (3-5 minutes) David

Brian Atwood introduces Leslie Delatour and Leslie Voltaire.

Delatour and Voltaire give an overview of Aristide's economic plan.

Questions and Answers begin.

HAITI TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH U.S. BUSINESSPEOPLE

- Welcome to today's meeting, on the eve of the full restoration of democracy to Haiti as signified by return of President Aristide.
- Presence of multinational force aimed at guaranteeing essential civic order, creating condition for restoration of democracy and economic reconstruction through aid and investment.
- Anticipate hand-off to UN Mission in few months. Bulk of U.S. forces will leave but UNMIH will have significant U.S. component. UNMIH until new President inaugurated.
- Great progress already made in stabilizing Haiti, ending abuses, restoring constitutional government and beginning infrastructure rebuilding. Americans more than welcome to Haitian people.
- Haitian people clearly looking to future in line with President Aristide's emphasis on reconciliation.
- As President Aristide's economic advisers here today can describe, the Haitian government has formulated sensible economic plans.
- And as our own officials will describe, we and the international community are poised to support the Haitians as they launch their country's economic rebirth.
- As immediate step, all U.S. and international sanctions will end the day after President Aristide's return. UNSC Resolution 944 authorizes this termination of sanctions. Executive Order being readied for President's signature.
- International economic assistance -- humanitarian, balance of payments, developmental, from us, other donors and international financial institutions -- will be provided to the Haitian government directly and through non-governmental and private voluntary organizations. We appreciate those groups' past role, look forward to good cooperation in this exciting future.
- Aid is critical for Haiti. But aid alone cannot bring Haiti the economic dignity and eventual growth its people deserve. For that, private investment is essential.

- The Administration is committed to encouraging companies that had prior investments in Haiti to return, and to sparking new U.S. investment in a wide range of sectors.
- We have several incentives already:
 - Haiti is a Caribbean Basin Initiative and GSP beneficiary, allowing duty-free exports to the U.S. of non-apparel goods.
 - We will submit the Interim Trade Program to Congress next year, providing Haiti the benefit of NAFTA tariff treatment for textile and apparel exports.
 - We anticipate Senate ratification of the Bilateral Investment Treaty, negotiated in 1983, soon after President Aristide's return.
 - Ruth Harkin can describe the sizable OPIC financing and political risk insurance that will be available in the coming years for private investments in Haiti.
- We -- my American and Haitian colleagues here today -- want to urge you to join in the multinational effort to revive Haiti's economy and better the lot of its people while reintegrating Haiti into the world economy.
- We look forward to hearing your views, concerns and ideas as we structure our efforts to assist you to play your role in that effort.

DRAFT

DRAFT FOR WHITE HOUSE MEETING WITH PRIVATE BUSINESS--10/13

President Aristide's return Saturday to his homeland will trigger a $550 million, internationally funded recovery and reconstruction program for Haiti. Its aim--in President Aristide's own words--is to "transform the nature of the Haitian state." The United States will be a leader in this effort, but the majority of funds--some $350 million--will come from others in an unprecedented display of cooperation in the support of democracy.

Months of hard work and analysis by USAID have gone into developing this plan in close cooperation with the Government of Haiti and the international community, particularly the World Bank. The planning for this effort has been intensive.

For the past three years, under the most difficult circumstances, the United States has worked through non-government organizations such as Care, CRS (Catholic Relief Services) and ADRA (Adventist Development and Relief Agency) to feed some three quarters of a million Haitians every day; we have worked with the PanAmerican Health Organization to make health care available to two million; and with the Pan American Development Foundation to provide jobs to 15,000 Haitians. Those programs now will expand to feed 1.3 million, give jobs to 50,000 and seek to overcome the dire health conditions in Haiti.

New economic recovery programs will begin to go into effect Saturday with needs of $290 million identified and the U.S. providing nearly $90. These funds will reestablish Haiti's small farmers and revitalize environmental protection; rebuild roads, ports and sewers; rehabilitate electrical generating capacity; and reopen schools for Haiti's children.

Programs in democratic governance planned with President Aristide's government will seek to transform the role of the state in Haiti. The U.S. and the international community will roughly divide the $85 million needed to conduct fair and free local and parliamentary elections this winter and presidential elections next year; create a civilian police force and an independent judicial system under a renewed ministry of justice; reform and reduce the Haitian military; provide technical assistance and training to Haiti's national government; and assist in the decentralization of authority and the reinvigoration of local government and non-government organizations of Haitian citizens.

This assistance presents to Haiti perhaps the best chance in its history to achieve a functioning democracy, social and legal justice for all elements of society, and economic viability.

And that economic viability cannot be achieved without a vibrant, free and open market economy in Haiti. My discussions with the Government of Haiti's representatives here today--Leslie Voltaire and Leslie Delatour--leave me with full confidence that those conditions will be achieved. The GOH has assured the international community, including the United States and the World Bank, that it intends to put in place "a sound macroeconomic policy eschewing foreign exchange controls, price controls and other policy-induced distortions".

The task ahead for Haiti is enormous, but almost every piece of the plan should be a long term inducement to business in Haiti. I would cite the elimination of corruption, an independent judiciary and genuine rule of law, reduction of the role of the central government in business activities, the end of monopoly enterprises, and improvements in schools and health. The list goes on.

Missions from the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank will soon be in Haiti to advise on restructuring such vital areas as finance, taxation, customs and tariffs.

The plans developed with the Government of Haiti show a determination on the part of the international community to give Haitians the opportunity to build a democracy and a chance at a decent life.

The U.S. Government is committed to that effort. But we in government know full well that Haiti must have strong private sector involvement in order to succeed.

(Treasury has not yet said anything public about the arrears clearance and wants to hold specifics until the full $82 is in hand. Treasury is saying that given the results of the Oct. 7 support group meeting, arrears clearance may occur in less than the 30 days earlier expected. At this stage, the US has pledged $24.9 to clearance and $78 million total is pledged.)

You are confirmed to speak with the following newsfolks tomorrow:

1) James Thomas at WEDR, Miami, is expecting your call at 9:05 a.m. He will interview you for approximately 30 minutes, to be followed by call-in questions from his listeners. He feels his audience is interested in what the Administration is doing for the African-American community of Miami and Florida. Their concern, according to James, is that the Administration is more interested in international issues (Cuba, Haiti, Summit of the Americas) than issues affecting the live of ordinary people. You probably addressed this issue somewhat when you were in Miami last week.

During the interview, you may also want to talk about the excellent dialogue you had with Miami business and community leaders when you were there on the 16th (at the request of the President).

See attached list of Florida accomplishments and "Did you know?" I will meet you at your office at 8:50 a.m. to place the call.

James Thomas: (305) 625-6974 CALL THIS NUMBER

2) I asked Jackie Trescott if she wanted you to "wear your foreign policy hat or your domestic economic progress hat," when you meet for lunch at Noon tomorrow. She said she'd like for you bring your "Mobile, Alabama hat," and that you would know what that means. (Please let me know if you don't and I'll keep digging.)

Ruby can reach Jackie at 334-7544 to confirm the location.

ECONOMIC PROGRESS

FLORIDA IS GAINING 143,000 MORE JOBS PER YEAR UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON THAN DURING THE PREVIOUS 4 YEARS. Florida is gaining an average of 211,453 jobs per year under President Clinton, more than three times the average annual growth of 68,775 during the previous four years.

FLORIDA'S UNEMPLOYMENT RATE HAS DROPPED FROM 7.6% TO 6.7% UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON. And help wanted ads, a leading indicator of employment demand, have increased by 16% in the South Atlantic Region since President Clinton took office.

ANNUAL PERSONAL INCOME GROWTH IS ALMOST TWO-AND-A-HALF TIMES HIGHER UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON THAN DURING THE PREVIOUS 4 YEARS.

BUSINESS FAILURES HAVE DROPPED BY 21% UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON AFTER AVERAGE INCREASES OF 28% OVER THE PREVIOUS 4 YEARS.

RETAIL SALES GROWTH IN FLORIDA IS 26 TIMES HIGHER UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON THAN DURING THE PREVIOUS 4 YEARS. HOME SALES are up by 22% since President Clinton took office.

INVESTING IN OUR PEOPLE

10 TIMES MORE FLORIDA FAMILIES RECEIVE A TAX CUT THAN A TAX INCREASE. As a result of the expanded Earned Income Tax Credit, 895,441 working Florida families will receive a tax cut. That compares to an increase in income tax rates for only the 87,826 wealthiest taxpayers.

THE PRESIDENT CUT TAXES ON 71,456 SMALL BUSINESSES IN FLORIDA by expanding the annual expensing allowance from $10,000 to $17,500.

THE NEW FAMILY AND MEDICAL LEAVE ACT protects the jobs of more than 2 million workers in Florida, allowing them to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave for the birth of a child or to care for a sick family member.

THE PRESIDENT'S STUDENT LOAN REFORMS ARE MAKING IT EASIER FOR 502,100 FLORIDA STUDENTS & FORMER STUDENTS to go to college or repay loans.

THE PRESIDENT INCREASED HEADSTART FUNDING for Florida to $119 million for FY94, a $51 million rise over FY92, allowing thousands more Florida children to go school ready to learn.

KEEPING OUR STREETS SAFE

THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT'S CRIME BILL, FLORIDA SHOULD RECEIVE $410 MILLION OVER THE NEXT 6 YEARS TO PUT UP TO 4,600 NEW COPS ON THE STREET. FLORIDA HAS ALREADY RECEIVED OVER $20 MILLION IN CRIME BILL MONEY TO HIRE NEARLY 250 NEW OFFICERS -- including 56 new cops for Broward County and 40 for Dade County. The Crime Bill also provides Florida up to $304 million for PRISON GRANTS, including military-style boot camps; and nearly $200 million for PREVENTION PROGRAMS and VICTIM SERVICES, including after-school programs for "at risk" kids.

Making A Difference for America

"I still believe government has a role to play in the future of this country, in the future of our families and our hopes and our dreams, not as a savior yet not on the sidelines, but as a partner in progress."

Alexis Herman will be flying to Miami commercially on Saturday morning. She will need to be manifested in all POTUS motorcades except to and from the airport (have yet to determine where or how she will meet us).

She will also need a hotel room on Saturday night (I have left a message for Mort regarding this) and will return to DC commercially on Sunday.

Thought ya'all should know.

BASE VOTERS LEADERSHIP MEETING

OEOP, Indian Treaty Room

Friday, October 21, 1994

9:30 p.m. - 10:30 p.m.

EVENT

- * You will be addressing a broad cross-section of key labor, civil rights, advocacy and religious leaders who will be pivotal in mobilizing and influencing base voters in support of Democratic candidates for the 1994 elections. Questions and answers to follow.

LOGISTICS

- * You will be greeted by DNC Chairman David Wilhelm and Reverend Jesse L. Jackson. Chairman David Wilhelm will introduce you for remarks.

YOUR ROLE AND CONTRIBUTION

- * Special thanks to Reverend Jesse Jackson and Chairman David Wilhelm for their past and present commitment and support for Administration and their role in energizing and mobilizing a critical electorate -- base voters.
- * Special thanks to the attendees for their work in registering new voters throughout the summer and fall and their commitment to get out the vote on November 8th. We should stress the significance of their role in maximizing base voter turnout that will be a determining factor in close races nationwide. You should emphasize what's at stake:
 - This is a critical juncture. The Democratic majority control of the U.S. Senate is facing its most serious threat in 50 years.
 - Our closest allies from Senators Ted Kennedy, Harris Wofford, and Chuck Robb to Governor Mario Cuomo and House Speaker Tom Foley are in the tightest race of their career. These friends have arduously fought historical legislative battles against such foes as Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, Strom Thurmond, Jesse Helms, and Orrin Hatch, who all voted against the 1990 Civil Rights Act and the Motor Voter Bill, and impeded programs to end apartheid in South Africa along with scores of other Administration initiatives. Furthermore, Jesse Helms opposed the 1964 Civil Rights Act as the "Most Dangerous Legislation Ever".
 - Rep. Alan Wheat in Missouri and King County Public Supervisor Ron Sims in Washington State are running historical races for U.S. Senate. High democratic turnout could bring two talented African American male Senators to the U.S. Congress.

- In the House, Democrats could lose between 25-35 seats. Such a loss would give an aggressive Republican Caucus "governing control" for the first time in 50 years. They could then effectively turn back the clock to the Reagan era and wipe out many of the legislative gains of the Clinton Administration and the current Democratic Congress. Their new "Contract on America" is just another strike against middle class Americans and a direct attack on the elderly.
- You should briefly talk about the Radical Right and their organized threat to our communities. They are running for political offices at all levels of leadership and sponsoring ballot initiatives that would chip away at the equal rights of different minority groups.
 - The Radical Right will stop at nothing to get where they want to go. They try to take ownership of religion by calling themselves the Christian Coalition and using religion as a coverup of their ultra right agenda. At a time when America is craving values, we cannot allow them to define family, religion, and unity.
 - They have strategically targeted states with contested races in 1994 and those that will be competitive in the 1996 presidential election. Additionally, they are using discriminatory ballot initiatives to build their national grassroots organization from the precinct level up.
 - Their efforts attack your child's school, censor books and newspapers in your library, and threaten your clinics.
 - Let me stress how dangerous these groups can be. They are using the gay and lesbian community as a vehicle to implement their much broader political agenda. We cannot allow institutionalized or legalized discrimination. We cannot allow them to use morality or religion as a weapon. We must fight for principles that we cherish.
- Lastly, you should again stress the importance of base voter turnout and where it will be the deciding factor. Their contribution is needed to conduct a very targeted GOTV strategy to reach our base voters. Races are notably tight in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Virginia, Florida, Tennessee, California, and Michigan, just to name a few. (Full list of key base voter areas attached) Their efforts now will set the tone and direction of key legislation as well as the 1996 Presidential election.
- Questions and answers (TBD)

THE NIGHTMARE SCENARIO: GOP'S LEADERSHIP IF THEY WIN MAJORITY OF THE U.S. CONGRESS

If the Republicans win a majority in Congress, the following would take leadership roles:

*House Speaker Newt Gingrich
Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole
Armed Services Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond
Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee Chairman Al D'Amato
Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms
Judiciary Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch
House Majority Leader Dick Armey
House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich*

U.S. SENATE

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole

- Held Up Bill to Provide Funds to Historically Black Colleges and Universities for Pork-Barrel Politics. Dole delayed consideration of legislation authorizing funds to restore historic buildings at history black college campuses so that he could add $3.6 million for a Kansas college with less than four percent black enrollment. Dole's amendment broadened eligible schools from the intended historically black colleges and universities to other schools (in states without historically black schools) that have "demonstrated extraordinary regional leadership in providing for the education of African American students". (Washington Post, 7/6/94; Washington Times, 8/12/94)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990 -- Which Fell By One Vote. Dole voted to uphold President Bush's veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Act. The veto override fell one vote short of the necessary 67 votes, and thus the legislation died -- the first major civil rights bill to be defeated in the last quarter century. It would have reversed or modified six Supreme Court decisions that narrowed the reach and remedies of job discrimination law and would have authorized monetary damages under title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote #304, 10/24/90)
- Killed 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act by Locking Official Copy in a Safe. Then Senate Majority Leader Dole prevented consideration of the conference report on the 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act by removing the official copy of the bill from the Senate chamber and locking it in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's safe. Under the rules, the Senate can not consider a bill that is not physically present. Although Dole had voted for the bill earlier and broken a Jesse Helms filibuster against it, he preferred to avoid a confrontation with President Reagan after Reagan had put forward a more moderate executive order on sanctions. (1985 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, pp 183-90)

- Voted against Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and by mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, Senate Vote 118, 5/11/93)
- Dole Claimed Haiti Not Worth American Life. After Congress approved a nonbinding resolution stating that the President should seek Congressional approval before invading Haiti, Dole said that Haiti is not "worth a single American life." (The Boston Globe, August 4, 1994)

Armed Services Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond

- Vowed to Repeal Voting Rights Act. In the wake of a Republican Majority in the Senate, Thurmond declare his opposition to the Voting Rights Act of 1965. "Senator Thurmond said that he opposed the Voting Rights Act, which now gives the Federal Government power to oversee the election process in parts of 35 states, where racial discrimination is suspected. He said the law should be repealed entirely or made to apply equally in all states - a provision that could lead to an enormous increase in the Federal bureaucracy." (The New York Times, November 18, 1980) NAACP Chairman Benjamin Hooks subsequently attacked Thurmond's suggestion (New York Times, 11/23/80)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990 -- Which Fell By One Vote. Thurmond voted to uphold President Bush's veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote #304, 10/24/90)
- Voted in 1985 to Label Mandela's ANC "Terrorists", Impose Sanctions on ANC. Thurmond voted for an amendment to the 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act, which would declare the African National Congress a terrorist group and impose sanctions on the ANC (travel restrictions on ANC members in the U.S. and prohibit ANC fundraising in the U.S.) until the ANC renounced violence and broke ties with the South African Communist party. (1985 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote 147, 7/11/85)
- Haiti Not Worth American Intervention. "Sen. Strom Thurmond said problems in Haiti pose no strategic necessity, national emergency, or military or economic threat to the United States or the world.
'I fear that American men and women will be killed and maimed for some foreign policy goals which are still undefined,' said Mr. Thurmond, South Carolina Republican and member of the Armed Services Committee." (The Washington Times, September 14, 1994)
- Voted against Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, Senate Vote 118, 5/11/93)

Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee Chairman Al D'Amato

- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990 -- Which Fell By One Vote. D'Amato voted to uphold President Bush's veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote #304, 10/24/90)
- Voted against Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers' licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, Senate Vote #118, 5/11/93)

Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms

- Opposed 1964 Civil Rights Act as "Most Dangerous Legislation Ever". As a radio and television commentator at WRAL-TV, Helms attacked integration and civil rights measures in the 1960's. He called the 1964 Civil Rights Act "the single most dangerous piece of legislation ever introduced in the Congress." (L.A. Times Magazine, 10/28/90)
- Filibustered Against Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday with WML Accusations. In late 1983, Helms turned around a faltering re-election campaign when he filibustered a bill to make Dr. King's birthday a national holiday. During the debate, he made several charges against Dr. King. Helms worked to release transcripts of FBI wiretaps which he claimed would prove his contention that Dr. King was a supporter of "action-oriented Marxism". Helms also opposed federal funding for the Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday Commission. (Raleigh News and Observer, 9/10/89)
- Helms called Haiti "Miserable Piece of Geography..." After voting for Senate resolution to support U.S. troops in Haiti, Helms explained: "For my part, I thank the Lord that as of this moment, no American has lost his life in the strange drama unfolding in the miserable piece of geography known as Haiti." (States News Service, September 21, 1994)
- Killed National African American Museum. Saying it would cost too much and that other groups would also demand a museum, Senator Jesse Helms (R-NC) killed bipartisan legislation which would have authorized the Smithsonian Institution to create a museum on the National Mall dedicated to the history, art and culture of African Americans. Among Helms' questions: "How will the Smithsonian deal with requests by other groups -- e.g. the Nation of Islam, or other 'black separatist groups' that might want to use the museum space?" (Washington Post, 9/29/94; 10/8/94)
- Fought to Protect "Stars and Bars" Flag for United Daughters of Confederacy. Helms fought with Senator Carol Mosely-Braun (D-IL) in his bid to renew the patent for the Confederate flag insignia of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. After he lost the legislative battle, Helms sang "Dixie" during an elevator ride with Senator Mosely-Braun. He later said he was only kidding. (Washington Post, 10/8/94)

- Helms has Attacked African-American Leaders Through the Years. In his 1990 Senate re-election campaign against Harvey Gantt, Helms aired a commercial showing a white hand crumpling a rejection letter from a potential employer, with a voiceover that said, "You needed that job and you were the best qualified. But they had to give it to a minority because of a quota law". Helms attacked then U.N. Ambassador and former Atlanta mayor Andrew Young in the 1970's, at one time saying: "Andy Young sent me a get-well card. He said some of his friends in Africa wanted to have me for dinner." Helms cast the sole vote against confirmation of President Bush's HHS Secretary Louis Sullivan -- saying he was dissatisfied with Sullivan's positions on abortion and AIDS. (Raleigh News and Observer, 9/10/89; St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 11/9/90)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990 -- Which Fell By One Vote. Helms voted to uphold President Bush's veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote #304, 10/24/90)
- Voted against Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, Senate Vote 118, 5/11/93)

Judiciary Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch

- Called Affirmative Action "Betrayal of Civil Rights Movement" & "Direct Attack on Middle America". At the 1980 Republican National Convention, Hatch said affirmative action programs for women and minorities should be opposed as "a betrayal of the civil rights movement" and "a direct attack upon Middle America." Later that year, Hatch was denounced by NAACP chairman Benjamin Hooks as an opponent of affirmative action. (Associated Press, 5/8/80; New York Times, 11/23/80)
- Offered Constitutional Amendment that would bar race-conscious remedies for discrimination. Vernon Jordan, president of the National Urban League, criticizing a constitutional amendment offered by Sen. Orrin Hatch that would bar race-conscious remedies for discrimination, said there is "an everburgeoning mood for selfishness that ultimately seeks the destruction of this nation's concern for the disadvantaged." (Washington Post, 11/17/81)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990 -- Which Fell By One Vote. Hatch voted to uphold President Bush's veto of the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote #304, 10/24/90)

- Voted in 1985 to Label Mandela's ANC "Terrorists", Impose Sanctions on ANC. Hatch voted for an amendment to the 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act, which would declare the African National Congress a terrorist group and impose sanctions on the ANC (travel restrictions on ANC members in the U.S. and prohibit ANC fundraising in the U.S.) until the ANC renounced violence and broke ties with the South African Communist party. (1985 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote 147, 7/11/85)
- Hatch Says Haiti Has No Vital Interest. "The simple fact is we do not have a vital national security interest at stake in Haiti." (The San Francisco Examiner, September 16, 1994)
- Opposed Increase in Minimum Wage. Hatch led the fight against increasing the minimum wage, saying, "There are better ways of attacking the problems of the poor... Youth unemployment and black unemployment will drastically rise. It's amazing to me that some black leaders want an increase in the minimum wage." (The New York Times, September 23, 1988)
- Asked Attorney General Dick Thornburgh to Investigate Randall Robinson of TransAfrica group. Hatch wrote a letter to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh asking the Justice Department to investigate Randall Robinson and his group TransAfrica, writing, "I would like to request that you personally look into this matter,... Mr. Robinson is actively working against the foreign policy interest of the United States, and I believe this is a matter that deserves the attention of the Department of Justice." Hatch was criticized by Robinson and the Congressional Black Caucus. After it was disclosed that the firm Black, Manafort had originally produced the letter, Hatch formally distanced himself from it, saying, "I called the attorney general and asked him to ignore the letter. It was overzealousness on the part of my office." (The Associated Press, October 6, 1989)
- Voted Against Martin Luther King Holiday. Hatch voted against passage of a bill declaring the third Monday in January a legal public holiday honoring Martin Luther King, Jr. (1983 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, Senate Vote 293, October 19, 1983)
- Voted Against Motor-Voter Bill. Announced his position against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, Senate Vote 118, 5/11/93)

U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

House Speaker Newt Gingrich

- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990. Gingrich voted against the 1990 Civil Rights Act. It would have reversed or modified six Supreme Court decisions that narrowed the reach and remedies of job discrimination law and would have authorized monetary damages under title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, House Vote #473, 10/17/90)
- Gingrich Opposed to Haiti Intervention Because Haitians Do Not Speak English. "What this is drifting to... is requiring U.S. military police to attempt to police 7 million Third World people who don't speak English, who don't understand democracy and are fairly willing to beat each other to death with clubs and sticks." (The Phoenix Gazette October 3, 1994)
- Voted Against 1993 Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 154, 5/5/93)
- Voted Against Statehood for the District of Columbia. Voted against passage of a bill to admit the District of Columbia into the union as the State of New Columbia. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 595, 11/21/93)

Majority Leader Dick Armey

- Leader in Effort to Throw Out Texas' Minority Districts -- To Help Get GOP Majority. Armey and two other Texas Republicans lead a fundraising effort for a lawsuit against Texas' 1990 congressional redistricting map, claiming that Texas' districts are unconstitutional because they're based on racial and ethnic makeup. The suit seeks to have the lines redrawn. Opponents of the suit -- including the NAACP, the League of United Latin American Citizens and the Rev. Jesse Jackson -- say it threatens gains made under the federal Voting Rights Act. They say it would dilute minority voting strength. A fundraising letter signed by Armey and two other Republican congressman mentioned Republican benefits of the suit: "The likely result of winning this lawsuit is better representation of the people of Texas, a gain of at least six more Republicans in (the) U.S. Congress from Texas, and by definition, six less Democrats... [if redistricting suits succeed in other states as well] the chain reaction could realistically lead to a Republican majority in the U.S. House for the first time in 35 years." (Houston Post, 5/31/94)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990. Armey voted against the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, House Vote #478, 10/17/90)

- Voted Against 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act. Armey voted against the 1985 Anti-Apartheid Act conference report. The bill would have imposed sanctions against the government of South Africa until it eliminated laws enforcing "apartheid", official racial segregation. (1985 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, House Vote #262, 8/1/85)
- Called Agriculture Secretary Espy "Tip of the Sleazeberg". When U.S. Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy announced his resignation, Armey (the chairman of the House Republican Conference) issued a press release calling Espy "just the tip of the sleazeberg." (Memphis Commercial Appeal, 10/4/94)
- Voted Against 1993 Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 154, 5/5/93)
- Voted Against Statehood for the District of Columbia. Voted against passage of a bill to admit the District of Columbia into the union as the State of New Columbia. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 595, 11/21/93)

House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich

- Authored GOP budgets to Gut Critical Programs. Kasich authored the Republican substitute budget proposals in 1993 and 1994 -- both of which would cut programs like WIC, Head Start, Medicare payments to the elderly, nutrition programs, Community Development Block Grants and would have eliminated expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit. It would also cut student aid by eliminating programs such as College Work-Study, Perkins Loans, and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants. (DSG Special Report, 3/17/93)
- Voted Against Civil Rights Act of 1990. Kasich voted against the 1990 Civil Rights Act. (1990 Congressional Quarterly Almanac, House Vote #478, 10/17/90)
- Voted Against 1993 Motor-Voter Bill. Voted against the National Motor-Voter Registration Act, which would require states to allow citizens to register to vote while renewing drivers licenses, at agencies providing public assistance, and through the mail. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 154, 5/5/93)
- Voted Against Statehood for the District of Columbia. Voted against passage of a bill to admit the District of Columbia into the union as the State of New Columbia. (1993 Congressional Quarterly, House Vote 595, 11/21/93)

HARVEY CLARENCE RUSSELL

Harvey Russell was prepared for challenges when he broke a corporate barrier more than 30 years ago by becoming the first African-American Vice President of a major corporation and the first corporate Vice President 3 years later. But he did not expect that he and his corporate employer, PepsiCo, would be the target of a Ku Klux Klan hate campaign. Neither he nor PepsiCo wavered and both prospered. His bravery has paved the way for thousands of younger African-Americans in corporate life. His achievements make it easy for us to stand tall.

ADDISON BARRY RAND

A. Barry Rand is a Xerox success story. Joining Xerox as a trainee after college in 1968, Rand has risen steadily through the sales and marketing ranks to become Xerox Corporate Vice President, President of Xerox's United States Marketing Group, responsible for 35,000 employees and $6 billion in revenues, and, since 1992, Xerox's Executive Vice President and a member of its elite Corporate Office. A charismatic leader, he is widely credited with the success of Xerox's employee training "Leadership Through Quality" program, which gave Xerox the competitive edge over Japanese competitors. We honor Rand's achievement and the personal qualities that have brought him to his corporate leadership position today.

PEPSICO, INC.

One of the largest and most successful consumer products companies in the world, PepsiCo early recognized that its growth would be tied to diversity in its work force. PepsiCo has a half-century record in hiring African-Americans and other people of color, and the distinction of naming the first African-American Vice President and Corporate Officer 30 years ago. Under the leadership of Board Chair and Chief Executive Officer Wayne Callaway, one of the world's most admired corporate executives, PepsiCo has probably the largest roster of senior level African-American executives and owners of major franchises. The diverse consumer market has responded with enthusiasm, making PepsiCo the "Choice of the New Generation."

The Executive Leadership Council provides African-American executives a network and leadership forum to enhance their achievement of excellence in business, economic and public policy for the African-American community, their corporations and the community at large.

Dear Ms. Herman:

It is my pleasure as the President of the Executive Leadership Council to invite you and a colleague to be guests of the Council at its Sixth Annual Recognition Dinner. The gala black-tie affair will take place at the Sheraton Washington Hotel, 2660 Woodley Road, NW, beginning at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 20, 1994. The Council will honor Harvey C. Russell, a retired Vice President of PepsiCo and the first African-American Vice President of a major corporation, with its Heritage Award; A. Barry Rand, Senior Vice President and Member of the Corporate Office, Xerox, with the Achievement Award; and PepsiCo Inc. with the Corporate Award.

7-8 p
guest

Because you are an official with a long-standing interest in progressive government policy, I take this opportunity to acquaint you with the Council and its activities. Founded in 1986, the Executive Leadership Council is a unique, national membership organization of African-American corporate executive men and women. The Council's mission is to provide members with a network and leadership forum to enhance their effectiveness and achievement of excellence in business, economic and public policies for the African American community, their corporations and the community at large.

Council members comprise a team of executives with a vast amount of knowledge and experience. They represent leading U.S. corporations from virtually every industrial segment and are in positions where they can offer thoughtful initiatives and sound recommendations to business and public policy decision makers.

Through its Executive Leadership Foundation, the Council seeks to "make a difference" for African Americans by encouraging and utilizing their business skills and abilities. The Foundation's major program initiatives are in enhanced education, mentorships, internships and leadership training.

I hope you will be able to save the date for the Council Recognition Dinner so that I may personally introduce you to the Council. We will be pleased to provide you with two (2) complimentary, non-transferable tickets; your tickets may be picked up at the door. In order that we can provide you preferential seating, we request that you notify us of your attendance no later than the close of business, October 13, 1994. It would be my honor to be your host for what will surely be a memorable evening.

Sincerely,

Earl S. Washington
