Representing the literary, theatrical and musical works of L. Ron Hubbard

MAY 20 1994

May 11, 1994

Mr. Alexis Harman
Assistant to the President
Director of Public Liaison
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC

Dear Mr. Harman,

"A culture is only as great as its dreams, and its dreams are dreamed by artists." These words, by internationally renowned author and humanitarian, L. Ron Hubbard, ring as true for our civilization today as they have at any time in history. And for a society and culture undergoing a period of such turbulence and change, there is no better time than now to encourage and nurture new artistic talent as the promise of the future.

Many educational systems across the United States have seen their most cherished programs for the arts -- writing, illustration and painting, acting, music, etc. -- curtailed or disrupted by economic necessity and the press of related events.

A program does exist, however, which rewards new and aspiring writers and illustrators on merit alone, and has launched scores of professional careers. That program -- which we continue to administer as Mr. Hubbard's literary agency -- comprises the Writers of The Future and Illustrators of The Future Contests, Writing and Illustrating Workshops and initial publication for the Contest winners in an original paperback which features their newly-discovered talent -- "L. Ron Hubbard Presents Writers of The Future," Volume 10 of which releases May 27 at a gala event in Hollywood.

L. Ron Hubbard's Writers of The Future Contest -- now celebrating a decade of helping new writers -- is described in depth in the accompanying 10th Anniversary brochure. This program is today the single, most effective and successful vehicle for finding new creators of speculative fiction and helping them to accomplish their dreams.

After reviewing the enclosed brochure, we think you will agree that engaging in such a program will do no less than enhance the morale and creativity of any beginning writer, no matter the age, thus assisting him to fully realize his creative abilities.

We know you will find the story of the Writers of The Future program informative, stimulating and meaningful, and we earnestly invite your further inquiries and comments.

Sincerely yours,
