MEMORANDUM

02/10/95

TO: JOHN EMERSON
FR: JULIA MOFFETT

I know we will have a chance to touch base on how you have decided to move forward in the compilation of the list, but I wanted to get you a few of my observations as you proceed in figuring it out!

*If you are using the list you gave me a copy of, there are obviously quite a few people who have come into the Administration. We should be careful to note the roles they filled before taking these jobs, and make sure we are offering substitutes where we feel it is important.

*Michael Bailin is no longer President of Public/Private Ventures. I believe the new head is equally as impressive, and will get you his information if interested.

give *I am not sure why we had James Fallows on our original list. Not only is it interesting because he is a journalist, but, more specifically, he just wrote a long post-mortem on our health care plan for the Atlantic Monthly. I should probably check with Mark, et al... to see if this might ruffle a few feathers???

*Bob Greenstein is no longer the director of the CBO-we need to check protocol.

*Remember that Alan Patricof is the chair of the WH Conference on Small Business, in addition to his company in New York.. He is a fabulous participant, we just need to reflect his new, additional duties.

I suggest

the breakout *I think the "real people" like Kathleen Piper need a little vetting(more to make sure they have something to contribute than to check their politics). I think we could get away with adding people, or substituting to make sure people are as illustrative of why we need the MCBOR, etc...and from good states.....

do it. *While still a good idea, we should check Ron Pollock based on health care role.

Ann S. *I noticed one omission on this list of someone who attended last year and has been to the White House subsequently--Emily Woods, a friend of mine and President of J.Crew. (Also married to Sean Woods, producer).

ditto Also, Andrew Shapiro, young Yale law student and author of "We're Number One" is not on this list? I do, however, have better recommendations for the youth representative(s) based on people's activity level since two years ago.

→ LTB group that *Last year, we had both Helen Mills (Mary Ann?) and Arnie Hiatt representing both their own companies as well as the group, Businesses for Social Responsibility. In addition, we may want to include the group's new director, Bob Dunn, former Vice President of Levi Strauss and now heading BSR.
