Mission

The mission of the Action Center is to assist and support the Safe Schools/Healthy Students and School Action Grantees in the development and sustainability of peaceful and healthy communities.

Technical Assistance Model/Service Delivery

The Action Center utilizes a technical assistance model that is consultative, content/evidence-based, culturally competent, and collaborative. The model provides the conceptual and service delivery framework for addressing the needs of the SS/HS and SAG grantees as they implement comprehensive approaches to violence prevention and creating safe schools and communities. The SSHSAC provides technical assistance services guided by practices and policies that represent cultural competence.

The Action Center also serves Unfunded Applicants of the federal Safe Schools/Healthy Students Initiative, local education agencies, communities, and families by providing resources and materials.

Key Features of the Action Center

- Consultant/Brokers: field staff assigned to grantees to provide direct services, facilitate consensus-building and programs/services implementation, and to broker site-specific "expert" assistance.
- Community Liaisons: Action Center Staff who respond to SS/HS and School Action Grantee sites, Unfunded Applicants, and the general public requests for information, resources, materials and referrals/linkages.
- Consortium Members/Experts: a broad-range of nationally- and community-based organizations and professionals that provide site-specific technical assistance. The "expert" TA providers have been identified through our membership in our

About us

Mission

The mission of the Action Center is to assist and support the Safe Schools/Healthy Students and School Action Grantees in the development and sustainability of peaceful and healthy communities.

Technical Assistance Model/Service Delivery

The Action Center utilizes a technical assistance model that is consultative, content/evidence-based, culturally competent, and collaborative. The model provides the conceptual and service delivery framework for addressing the needs of the SS/HS and SAG grantees as they implement comprehensive approaches to violence prevention and creating safe schools and communities.

The Action Center also serves Unfunded Applicants of the federal Safe Schools/Healthy Students Initiative, local education agencies, communities, and families by providing resources and materials.

The Action Center understands that the schools and communities of the SS/HS and the SAG grantees are extremely diverse in terms of age, gender, race/ethnicity, culture, sexual orientation, religious preference, family structure, social economic status (SES), and geography. The Action Center also notes diversity in the community, school, and home cultures, and believes that understanding and respecting these cultures will directly impact the success of the technical assistance being delivered.

The SS/HSAC will ensure that the technical assistance services provided to sites, the methods used to provide this technical assistance, the products developed by the Center for use in the field, and the staff of the SS/HSAC who provide these technical assistance services will represent cultural diversity and cultural competence. The SS/HSAC has developed practices and policies to ensure that all services provided by and through the Center are conducted in a culturally competent fashion.

Ellis County is a Safe Schools/Healthy Students grant site. This project will serve 5,500 students. Of county residents, 11% live in poverty, and the number of economically disadvantaged students in the Hays school district has increased 27% since 1989. There has been an 81% increase in teen pregnancy since 1990 and a 51% increase since 1996 in out-of-home placements of children age 18 and under. Juvenile court filings have increased by 41%, including arrests for battery and for theft. Of the DUI arrests, 29% were minors. The graduation rate in the school district has fallen from 97% in 1997 to 87% in 1998. The dropout rate has increased from 1.5% in the 1994 to 3.3% in 1998.

The primary partners are Hays Unified Schools District #489, High Plains Mental Health, and Ellis County Law Enforcement. Also included are High Plains Mental Health, Ellis County Law Enforcement, Juvenile Justice, the Regional Prevention Center, Fort Hays State University, the Ministerial Alliance, Hays Interagency Community Council, Parents and Children Together, the Docking Institute, and the Ellis County Community Partnership.

Using a Prevention Team, Mental Health Liaison, School Resource Officer, and other community partners, RURAL will implement research-based substance abuse/violence prevention curricula, develop conflict resolution education programs in the schools, and train school staff to maintain and expand these programs. Parents will be involved in an after school program of fun educational activities. There will be continual security assessments and community outreach activities. RURAL will provide after school and early i

Mission

The mission of the Action Center is to assist and support the Safe Schools/Healthy Students and School Action Grantees in the development and sustainability of peaceful and healthy communities.

Technical Assistance Model/Service Delivery

The Action Center utilizes a technical assistance model that is consultative, content/evidence-based, culturally competent, and collaborative. The model provides the conceptual and service delivery framework for addressing the needs of the SS/HS and SAG grantees as they implement comprehensive approaches to violence prevention and creating safe schools and communities. The SSHSAC provides technical assistance services guided by practices and policies that represent cultural competence.

The Action Center also serves Unfunded Applicants of the federal Safe Schools/Healthy Students Initiative, local education agencies, communities, and families by providing resources and materials.

Key Features of the Action Center

- Consultant/Brokers: field staff assigned to grantees to provide direct services, facilitate consensus-building and programs/services implementation, and to broker site-specific "expert" assistance.
- Community Liaisons: Action Center Staff who respond to SS/HS and School Action Grantee sites, Unfunded Applicants, and the general public requests for information, resources, materials and referrals/linkages.
- Consortium Members/Experts: a broad-range of nationally- and community-based organizations and professionals that provide site-specific technical assistance. The "expert" TA providers have been identified through our membership in our

The mission of the Action Center is to assist and support the Safe Schools/Healthy Students and School Action Grantees in the development and sustainability of peaceful and healthy communities.

Technical Assistance Model/Service Delivery

The Action Center utilizes a technical assistance model that is consultative, content/evidence-based, culturally competent, and collaborative. The model provides the conceptual and service delivery framework for addressing the needs of the SS/HS and SAG grantees as they implement comprehensive approaches to violence prevention and creating safe schools and communities.

The Action Center also serves Unfunded Applicants of the federal Safe Schools/Healthy Students Initiative, local education agencies, communities, and families by providing resources and materials.

The Action Center understands that the schools and communities of the SS/HS and the SAG grantees are extremely diverse in terms of age, gender, race/ethnicity, culture, sexual orientation, religious preference, family structure, social economic status (SES), and geography. The Action Center also notes diversity in the community, school, and home cultures, and believes that understanding and respecting these cultures will directly impact the success of the technical assistance being delivered.

The SS/HSAC will ensure that the technical assistance services provided to sites, the methods used to provide this technical assistance, the products developed by the Center for use in the field, and the staff of the SS/HSAC who provide these technical assistance services will represent cultural diversity and cultural competence. The SS/HSAC has developed practices and policies to ensure that all services provided by and through the Center are conducted in a culturally competent fashion.

Ellis County is a Safe Schools/Healthy Students grant site. This project will serve 5,500 students. Of county residents, 11% live in poverty, and the number of economically disadvantaged students in the Hays school district has increased 27% since 1989. There has been an 81% increase in teen pregnancy since 1990 and a 51% increase since 1996 in out-of-home placements of children age 18 and under. Juvenile court filings have increased by 41%, including arrests for battery and for theft. Of the DUI arrests, 29% were minors. The graduation rate in the school district has fallen from 97% in 1997 to 87% in 1998. The dropout rate has increased from 1.5% in the 1994 to 3.3% in 1998.

The primary partners are Hays Unified Schools District #489, High Plains Mental Health, and Ellis County Law Enforcement. Also included are High Plains Mental Health, Ellis County Law Enforcement, Juvenile Justice, the Regional Prevention Center, Fort Hays State University, the Ministerial Alliance, Hays Interagency Community Council, Parents and Children Together, the Docking Institute, and the Ellis County Community Partnership.

Using a Prevention Team, Mental Health Liaison, School Resource Officer, and other community partners, RURAL will implement research-based substance abuse/violence prevention curricula, develop conflict resolution education programs in the schools, and train school staff to maintain and expand these programs. Parents will be involved in an after school program of fun educational activities. There will be continual security assessments and community outreach activities. RURAL will provide after school and early i
