RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT TO THE NATION

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. As we celebrate this last New Year of the 20th century, I want to speak to you about the debt we owe to those who make every season a season of peace for America -- the men and women of our Armed Forces.

Almost 1.4 million Americans are serving our country on active duty today. Nearly a quarter million of them are overseas, doing what needs to be done as no one else can, whether that means thwarting Iraq's ambition to threaten its neighbors or the world with weapons of mass destruction; or standing watch in Korea on the last fortified frontier of the Cold War; or safeguarding the peace in Bosnia; or helping our neighbors in Central America or the Caribbean dig out from natural disasters; or simply giving us the confidence that America will be forever strong, safe and secure.

We rely on our Armed Forces because this is still a dangerous world. We're proud of them because they are the best in the world. And we remember today what makes them the best -- not just the quality of our weapons, but the quality of our people in uniform. Their skill, dedication and professionalism are unstinting, unquestioned, and unmatched.

When we give our servicemen and women a mission, there is a principle we must keep in mind. We should never ask them to do what they are not equipped to do, and we should always equip them to do what we ask. The more we ask, the greater our responsibility to give our troops the support and training and equipment they need. As Commander in Chief, I have no higher duty than this -- to give our troops the tools to take on new missions, while maintaining their readiness to defend our country and defeat any adversary; to make sure they can deploy away from home, knowing their families have the quality of life they deserve; and to make certain their service is not only rewarding, but well-rewarded, from recruitment to retirement.

I'm confident our military is ready to fulfill this mission today. Our troops continue to execute complex and dangerous missions far from home with flawless precision, as we've just seen in the Persian Gulf. Our challenge is to retain the ability to do this as we carry out our entire defense strategy.

For this reason, we asked Congress to add $1.1 billion to this year's budget to keep our readiness razor-sharp and to improve recruitment. And Congress did. I've also worked with our military leaders to ensure their highest readiness priorities are reflected in our budget request for the year 2000.

The budget I will submit to Congress for next year will provide an increase of over $12 billion for defense readiness and modernization through a combination of new spending and budgetary savings. This is the start of a six-year effort that will represent the first long-term sustained increase in defense spending in a decade.

We want our Armed Forces to remain ready to deploy rapidly in any crisis, and that is what this effort will assure, by funding joint exercises, flight training, badly needed spare parts, and recruiting for critical positions. We want our forces to remain the best equipped in the world into the next century, and that is what this effort will assure, by paying for the next generation of ships, planes, and weapons systems. It will also enable our military to play its part in meeting emerging threats to our security such as terrorism and proliferation.

It will help us to do right by our troops by upgrading and replacing aging equipment, barracks, and family housing. It will include a military pay raise of 4.4 percent, the largest since 1982; a restructuring of paid reward performance, and the reinstatement of military retirement benefits that were taken away over a decade ago.

We must undertake this effort today so that our nation will remain strong and secure tomorrow. We must do it as well because we have the most sacred obligation to those who accept dangers and hardships on our behalf.

They are our sons and daughters, husbands and wives, friends and neighbors, from cities and towns all over America. We must give them the support they need to keep doing their jobs well and to keep coming home to America, safe and sound.

Thanks for listening, and happy New Year.

FACT SHEET

Strengthening America,s Military

To ensure that America's Armed Forces are fully prepared to meet the challenges of the next century, the President will propose in his next budget a long-term, sustained increase in defense spending. In keeping with his pledge to work with military leaders to address the nation's defense needs, the President has determined that additional resources are necessary to maintain military readiness; procure modern and effective weapons systems; and to provide appropriate pay, benefits and quality of life improvements for our servicemen and women.

The President's defense budget for next year, fiscal year 2000, will provide an additional $12 billion for readiness needs through a combination of new spending and budgetary savings. This is the start of a six year effort to ensure that America's military continues to be fully prepared to protect our national interests as the world's most powerful fighting force.

The President's FY 2000 budget will:

Provide significant increases for military readiness programs. In order to enhance our military readiness -- to guarantee that our military forces can respond fully at any time -- the President's budget will provide additional resources to:

- Strengthen recruitment and retention programs;
- Improve unit & manning levels;
- Increase and enhance training, unit operations and flight hour programs;
- Provide additional spare parts;
- Counter emerging threats such as terrorism and the use of weapons of mass destruction.

Build for the future by funding weapons modernization programs. In order to insure that our armed forces remain the best equipped in the world into the next century, this budget will provide resources to begin paying for the next generation of weapons systems, ships and planes. The FY 2000 defense budget will provide resources to:

- Upgrade and replace aging equipment and weapons with newer, more technologically advanced systems, such as surveillance and tactical aircraft, tactical missile systems, and Humvees and other ground vehicles;
- Integrate cutting edge computer technology into battlefield weapons and communications systems;
- Continue procurement of several ship classes, including DDG-51 Aegis destroyers and LPD-17 Amphibious Transport Dock Ships, and advanced funding for new attack submarines and the next nuclear aircraft carrier;
- Support key aircraft programs, including the F/A-18E/F Super Hornet, F-22 Raptors and Joint Strike Fighter; and
- Develop defense systems against both theater and strategic ballistic missiles.

Take care of our military men and women and their families. By improving pay, rewarding performance and increasing retirement benefits, the President's budget provides America's servicemen and women with the quality of life they deserve. These improvements will help recruit talented young men and women, and will provide additional incentive for long-term service. The President's budget will provide additional resources to:

Increase across-the-board pay by 4.4%;

Target additional pay raises to reward performance as well as longevity;

Raise retirement benefits from 40% to 50% of base pay for members retiring after 20 years;

Improve educational programs for military and eligible dependents, including construction and maintenance of schools and support for the President's School Technology Initiative, which aims to provide one computer for every four students and one for every teacher.

PRESIDENT CLINTON AND VICE PRESIDENT GORE UNVEIL HISTORIC LONG-TERM CARE
INITIATIVE TO SUPPORT FAMILY CAREGIVERS AND HELP ADDRESS GROWING LONG-TERM CARE NEEDS
January 4, 1999

Today, President Clinton is unveiling an historic new initiative to support Americans with long-term care needs and the millions of family members who care for them. This four-part, $6.2 billion (over five years) initiative takes important steps to address complex long-term care needs through: (1) an unprecedented $1,000 tax credit that compensates, for formal or informal costs, Americans of all ages with long-term care needs or the family caregivers who support them; (2) a new National Family Caregivers Support Program that provides a range of critical services for caregivers such as respite, home care services, and information and referral; (3) a national campaign to educate Medicare beneficiaries about the programs, limited coverage and how best to evaluate long-term care options; and (4) a proposal to have the Federal government serve as a model employer by offering quality private long-term care insurance to Federal employees at group rates.

The President will be joined by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, Secretary Rubin, Secretary Shalala, and OPM Director LaChance to unveil this initiative at the White House. The Vice President and Mrs. Gore are participating from an adult day care center in California, one of four states with model statewide family caregiving resource programs.

MILLIONS OF AMERICANS HAVE LONG-TERM CARE NEEDS

More and more Americans have a range of long-term care needs. Over five million Americans have significant limitations due to illness or disability and thus require long-term care. Approximately two-thirds are older Americans. Also, millions of adults and a growing number of children have long-term care needs because of health conditions from birth or a chronic illness developed later in life.

The aging of Americans will only increase the need for quality long-term care options. The number of Americans age 65 years or older will double by 2030 (from 34.3 to 69.4 million), so that one in five Americans will be elderly. The number of people 85 years or older, nearly half of whom need assistance with everyday activities, will grow even faster (from 4.0 to 8.4 million).

MULTI-FACETED INITIATIVE TO SUPPORT FAMILY CAREGIVERS AND ADDRESS GROWING LONG TERM CARE NEEDS. The President is unveiling a four-part initiative that is designed to address the broad-based and varied long-term care needs. It will: (1) provide immediate support and assistance for the millions of Americans who care for family members with major long-term care needs; (2) educate the elderly and people with disabilities about long-term care issues and options; and (3) promote new promising strategy directions for long-term care policy for the twenty-first century. The President is also asking the Vice President to host a series of forums around the nation to raise awareness about the need to support family caregivers and address the growing need for long-term care options.

The long-term care proposal being unveiled today by the President and Vice President includes:

Supporting families with long-term care needs through an historic $1,000 tax credit. This initiative, for the first time, acknowledges and supports millions of Americans with long-term care needs or the family members who care for and house their ill or disabled relatives through a $1,000 tax credit. This new tax credit supports the diverse needs of families by compensating a wide range of formal or informal long-term care for people of all ages with three or more limitations in activities of daily living (ADLs) or a comparable cognitive impairment. This proposal, which supports rather than supplants family caregiving, would provide needed financial support to about 2 million Americans, including 1.2 million older Americans, over 500,000 non-elderly adults, and approximately 250,000 children. It costs $5.5 billion over five years and phases out beginning at $110,000 for couples and $75,000 for unmarried taxpayers.

Creating an unprecedented National Family Caregiver Support Program. Recent studies have found that services like respite care can relieve caregiver stress and delay nursing home entry, and that support for families of Alzheimer's disease patients can delay institutionalization for as long as a year. This new nationwide program, strongly advocated by the Vice President, would support families who care for elderly relatives with chronic illnesses or disabilities by enabling states to create &one-stop-shops⁸ that provide: quality respite care and other support services; critical information about community-based long-term services that best meet a families' needs; and counseling and support, such as teaching model approaches for caregivers that are coping with new responsibilities and offering training for complex care needs, such as feeding tubes. This program, which costs $625 million over five years, would assist approximately 250,000 families nationwide.

Launching a national campaign to educate Medicare beneficiaries about the programs, limited coverage of long-term care and how best to evaluate their options. Nearly 60 percent of Medicare beneficiaries are unaware that Medicare does not cover most long-term care, and many do not know what long-term care services would best meet their needs. This $10 million nationwide campaign would provide all 39 million Medicare beneficiaries with critical information about long-term care options including: what long-term care Medicare does and does not cover; how to find out about Medicaid long-term care coverage; what to look for in a quality private long-term care policy; and how to access information about home- and community-based care services that best fit beneficiaries' needs.

Having the Federal government serve as a model employer by offering quality private long-term care insurance to Federal employees. The President will also call on Congress to pass a new proposal that allows OPM to use its market leverage and set a national example by offering non-subsidized, quality private long-term care insurance to all federal employees, retirees, and their families at group rates. This proposal, that costs $15 million over five years, will provide employers a nationwide model for offering quality long-term care insurance. OPM anticipates that approximately 300,000 Federal employees would participate in this program.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

January 4, 1999

PRESS BRIEFING
BY JOE LOCKHART

The Briefing Room

1:35 P.M. EST

MR. LOCKHART: Happy New Year, everyone. Welcome back.

Q Happy New Year to you, too.

MR. LOCKHART: What's on your minds?

Q Impeachment.

MR. LOCKHART: Oh, what a surprise.

Q We asked you this morning -- is the President going to consider postponing his State of the Union message if, in fact, a trail in the Senate is still under way?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I don't know what decisions the Senate will come to as far as their schedule and their process. But as far as the President goes, he's hard at work on the State of the Union address. I think you'll see -- you've seen today some of the things he'll talk about. You'll see as the weeks go on some of the issues he plans to raise. He plans to give that speech January 19th, and as far as I know, there haven't been any discussions with anyone in the leadership about adjusting the date.

Q He won't find it awkward to be giving a speech up there if, in fact, they're holding a trial of him?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think the President believes, and those who have watched him believe that one of the main reasons that he continues to enjoy support from the American public is he puts their interests first, he puts their business first and that's what he's going to continue doing.

Q Senator Torricelli says it is inappropriate to report on the State of the Union as long as the President is under impeachment. Senator Gramm suggests that he send the message, like so many of the presidents the last -- wouldn't that solve the problem, Joe? I mean, the Republicans might just behave like Democrats.

MR. LOCKHART: I think the State of the Union address is as much for the American public to hear and see and to understand as it is for the members of Congress.

Q Joe, not to hang up on Senator Torricelli, but yesterday, and if I may quote him, Senator Torricelli said, "The President is clearly willing to stipulate to all five volumes, all facts in the referral from the Independent Counsel that relate to these two charges." Is that, indeed, the President's position?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I think that we look forward to a discussion with the Senate on how they plan to move forward. I don't plan to do that here publicly. But there are clearly facts and issues involved in this case that we've disputed before the House. And if appropriate, depending on the format which the Senate takes, we will do again.

Q Joe, the New York Times, Adam Clymer, writes this morning, quote, "Nobody, except perhaps Representative DeLay, appears to believe that the Senate might really vote to convict Mr. Clinton and remove him from office." End of quote. Is this the belief of the White House or is Mr. Clymer being presumptuous?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm going to leave it to the Senators to tell you all and tell their constituents how they view this, without speculating.

Q In other words, you don't agree with Mr. Clymer, do you?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not taking a view on Mr. Clymer's view.

Q Well, he said that, nobody except DeLay -- Joe Lockhart is somebody, isn't he?

MR. LOCKHART: Right.

Q So you disagree with him, don't you, Joe?

MR. LOCKHART: No. I'm telling you that I'm not willing to express a view here -- which there is a difference.

Q If there are continued calls by senators to delay the State of the Union speech, would the President consider it?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not going to answer an "if there are continued calls" question.

Q Joe, you said that there had been no discussions with the leadership in Congress.

MR. LOCKHART: Right.

Q Have there been any discussions internally about the possibility of postponing?

MR. LOCKHART: No serious discussions that I know of. I mean, have we heard some calls? We can all watch television. The United States Senate was on television yesterday and some members expressed their view. All I can say is that the President is working hard on the speech and plans to give it on the 19th.

Q Senator Breaux, when he was just out on the north lawn, will not say that he had personally delivered that message to the President, clearly gave the impression that that message about, perhaps, the need to delay the State of the Union, had been delivered to the President, himself.

MR. LOCKHART: Oh, I'm not disputing that that message hasn't been related -- all you have to do is turn on your television yesterday.

Q I know, but I don't think --

MR. LOCKHART: I don't know of anyone in personal conversations they had with the President have -- none have been reported to me.

Q And should we take what you're saying this morning and this afternoon as a sign that the White House isn't foreclosing the possibility of delaying the State of the Union address?

MR. LOCKHART: You should take it as the President is working hard on the speech and plans to deliver it.

Q Let's also get you on the record about Dick Morris -- we asked you about that this morning. Is the President consulting with Dick Morris on this, or any other subject having to do with the impeachment process?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not aware that the President has had any consultations with Mr. Morris on this or any other subject in recent days. And I mean recent days in the most expansive way I can. (Laughter.)

Q You would be aware, I suppose, after we posed the question this morning.

MR. LOCKHART: Sam, you put that question this morning. I checked and got a lot of blank looks --

Q Including one from the President?

MR. LOCKHART: I did not ask him specifically. But I got a lot of blank looks. And I think the group I asked would be in a position to know.

Q If I just may, Mr. Morris claims in his book that when the President brought him back after the 1994 elections, no one else in the White House knew about it, that he was secreted up there and the Chief of Staff didn't know.

MR. LOCKHART: If Mr. Morris is saying now publicly and on the record that he is in consultation with more than just the Majority Leader, which is what I think the report was, then I'll go ask him. But short of that, the President's got a lot to do and I'm not going to put every question that comes along to him.

Q Wasn't it kind of untimely for the Vice President to announce a couple days ago, or make it official, his candidacy for the year 2000 when you're in the midst of this whole impeachment -- when all forces, it would seem all the friends of the President should be getting together to get this impeachment out of the way before thinking of 2000?

MR. LOCKHART: I think the Vice President has been a very strong partner for the President and a defender for the President through this time. I think if you know how the political process works, though, you'll understand that anyone who is looking at running for President in the year 2000 will use this year to wage support and to raise the necessary money, so I don't think there was anything inappropriate about the timing.

Q Joe, when did the White House work out with the congressional leadership the January 19th date for the State of the Union?

MR. LOCKHART: Mid-December, I think. There was, I think -- I mean, you can look to when I announced it, because I think it was the day that it actually became official. It's generally the fourth week, but there are some -- in the fourth week of January there are some events surrounding the Pope's visit that the President wanted to attend to.

Q Can I just ask you, why in the world would the President want to go up there and address the Joint Session when Republicans may stage some sort of protest, may walk out, may do any number of things to dramatize the --

MR. LOCKHART: Because the President has important work that he's doing and he looks forward to presenting it to the country.

Q Joe, can I ask you a question about Iraq? The Iraqis continue to violate the southern no-fly zone. There's been apparently no American response or allied response to this in days, but we're told the Iraqis continue to violate it, perhaps on a daily basis. What is the U.S. going to do about this?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not going to get into any of the operational details. I'd refer you to the Pentagon for that. You'll probably get the same answer or non-answer.

Q But they're not briefing today.

MR. LOCKHART: Well, you can ask them and I'm sure they'll be able to help you.

What I will say is the no-fly zones are an important part of our containment policy. They limit his availability to threaten his neighbors and his own people. And to the extent there is any cat-and-mouse games going on, as they have in the past seven or eight years, they generally reflect Saddam Hussein's frustration with his position, his isolation in the region and his inability to get out from under the crippling sanctions that have been leveled against him.

Q Is there any rethinking of the strategy since the last weeks when they took shots at war planes, or are you tightening the zone or are you going to enforce it more thoroughly?

MR. LOCKHART: I think there is no rethinking as far as the need to contain Saddam Hussein. I think that policy has been one that has worked over the last eight years and we will continue.

Q Can I follow up on that? Would the U.S. at this point support a Kurdistan just in the Iraqi part of where the Kurds are now, the northern part of Iraq?

MR. LOCKHART: No.

Q It would not support Kurdistan?

MR. LOCKHART: No.

Q As the Senate grapples internally with how to deal with the impeachment, what kind of trial to have, is there a role for the White House in that? If it's not appropriate to lobby the Senate publicly, what is appropriate for the White House to do?

MR. LOCKHART: I think it's appropriate to say what we have publicly said, that we want a process that meets the simple criteria being fair, bipartisan and expeditious. I think, though, that as the senators all made very clear yesterday, what's most appropriate is for the Senate as a body to work out the procedure they believe they can follow or they should follow, and then I think they will consult on a more formal basis with the White House, with the House managers and others.

Q Does the White House believe that the President is going to go on trial in the Senate a week from today?

MR. LOCKHART: The White House looks forward to seeing what comes out of the Senate putting its business together later this week and we'll see what happens.

Q This seems -- I mean, this --

MR. LOCKHART: We certainly, as the President's legal counsel is preparing for a trial because that's the next step in this process.

Q Are you prepared to go to trial, Joe, or are you going to need some time to prepare a case?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I think depending on how the process is put forward, the White House Counsel is preparing now to move forward as early as next week.

Q And how do you view this process that perhaps a decision might come on Wednesday or Thursday or Friday of the Senate telling the White House, okay, Monday, you start Monday?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, we've known for some time they were coming back this week, and we've been making some preparations in advance of that and I think we'll be ready to go next week.

Q Mr. Ruff will be the lead attorney, or will Mr. Kendall have a role?

MR. LOCKHART: We'll get into that when the process is clear.

Q Would the President be willing to accept a censure resolution that concluded that he made false statements under oath?

MR. LOCKHART: As I've said over and over from here, it's for the Senate and the House if they ever get back into this business of looking at what they want to do as far as censure, and I'm not going to try to negotiate from here.

Q Joe, this morning you spoke of informal discussions going on between the lawyers and folks on the Hill. What do those entail, what don't they entail?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, they're informal and for now, they're private.

Q Joe, Minnesota's new Governor says that Mrs. Ventura should be paid $25,000 a year. And I was wondering, has the President had any such idea about Mrs. Clinton and will he support her for United States Senator from New York in 2000?

MR. LOCKHART: Ask again.

Q The New Governor of Minnesota says that he believes his wife should be paid $25,000 a year, and I wonder if President Clinton believes that Mrs. Clinton should be paid that or more.

MR. LOCKHART: She doesn't live in Minnesota, so she can't -- no, moving on. Susan.

Q Will he support her for U.S. Senate from New York in 2000?

MR. LOCKHART: I don't know anything about that.

Q You don't think he'll support her, Joe?

MR. LOCKHART: I don't know anything about her running.

Q In recent days, the White House has been much less -- he's been noncommittal when the question of delaying the State of the Union Address has been raised. I wonder if there was an actual meeting held or a decision made, or did the President himself weigh-in this morning so that you can be so firm in your answer?

MR. LOCKHART: No. No meeting.

Q You take these decisions without consulting the President?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I take these decisions with consulting -- you're asking if there was a meeting on the subject this morning, there was no one -- but I am, I believe, accurately reflecting the views of the President and his senior advisors.

Q How do you know?

Q Did the President say this morning, this is a bad idea, I don't want to --

MR. LOCKHART: I didn't talk to him about it specifically.

Q Joe, as you know, the Senate is considering a plan that would allow the White House one day to present a defense. Is that an adequate period of time, and is that a fair approach to the White House?

MR. LOCKHART: It's hard for me to answer that question without knowing the full context. I don't think we know the full context, so I'll reserve any comments.

Q What do you say to those critics who accuse the White House --

MR. LOCKHART: I say, stop criticizing us. (Laughter.)

Q -- who accuse the White House of trotting out new initiatives, budget initiatives in advance of the formal release of the budget February 1st -- the Pentagon budget, today's event, the homeless event in Baltimore -- simply to try to change the subject from impeachment?

MR. LOCKHART: I'd say that they give us even more credit than some of the people who sort of blindly make these comments. I think all you have to do, Wolf, is go back to the stories you did this time last year and the year before, and you will find that we've traditionally used this time to try to generate public support for some of the ideas that the President will have in his State of the Union and the budget.

I don't think that we could have been smart enough to, last December, a year ago December, have worked out a strategy to help deal with the Monica Lewinsky issue.

Q Joe, the trial creates some novel concerns for the President, it seems, in terms of how he does business. In any other trial in America, if a defendant came into contact with a juror, there would be a mistrial immediately. Is it fair and appropriate for the President to do business with senators, to be in the company of senators over this period of time?

MR. LOCKHART: Sure. I think that this isn't like any other process, as we have found out in less than ways that we think have been fair to us, and I think the public has come to expect the President to continue doing his job. He'll continue to do that. And part of doing his job is working with members of the House and the Senate.

Q Do you know of any senator who has committed to vote against conviction, Joe? Has any, to your knowledge --

Q Yes, Schumer.

Q No, I think Schumer said that there's a possibility he's --

MR. LOCKHART: You know, I don't know. I know that there were several senators who said yesterday on television that they weren't aware of any. There may have been people back --

Q But you don't know of any senator who's committed in advance? And if he did, he should recuse himself, shouldn't he -- or her?

MR. LOCKHART: Lucky, I didn't fall for that one. (Laughter.) I don't know.

Q Joe, how would you describe the White House lobbying effort on this with the Senate, as compared to what happened with the House, which was described as very low key. Is it even more so this time?

MR. LOCKHART: Yes. I think the Senate has made it quite clear that they believe that they should spend time as a group putting together this process and we will continue to respect that. We look forward to the coming days, to getting a better understanding of how they plan to move forward. And then we look forward to whatever process it is they develop presenting the President's defense.

Q Does that mean there is no lobbying effort or are people talking to individual senators?

MR. LOCKHART: If there is an effort, I'm not aware of it.

Q Joe, is the White House going to put forward tomorrow, or this week, a plan to help the U.S. steel industry in relation to the imports?

MR. LOCKHART: There is a report that's due by statute tomorrow and as I understand it, we will meet the deadline for that report. But we'll talk about that tomorrow.

Q Joe, how does the White House feel about the introduction of the Euro. (Laughter.)

Q The international Euro.

MR. LOCKHART: We congratulate Europe on the successful efforts in developing the European Monetary Union, particularly we commend Europe on the steps they took to get to this point, as far as reducing budgetary deficits, structural budget deficits and lowering inflation. We believe that European integration and a strong, stable, united Europe is in America's best interest. We further believe that a strong growing economic Europe, one that's highlighted by open markets and strong growth is good for the American economy.

Q What about the threat -- some argue that this represents a threat to the U.S. economy to have a strong European currency, that that would represent a threat to the dollar.

MR. LOCKHART: Let me go right to the source and the answer. As Secretary Rubin said this morning, "That is not where our focus needs to be. Our focus needs to be on keeping our house in order. If our house is in order, then we'll be in fine shape. I'm not worried about that." And if Secretary Rubin is not worried about it, I am not worried about it.

Q Does tomorrow's crime event have a budgetary impact?

MR. LOCKHART: If it does, it's not a big ticket, as far as I know. I'll have to check.

Q It's not a big State of the Union preview?

MR. LOCKHART: Not necessarily. I think the President will have a significant anti-crime agenda in a portion of the State of the Union.

Q Which he will preview tomorrow?

MR. LOCKHART: He'll preview one part of it tomorrow.

Q Why is King Hussein coming tomorrow?

MR. LOCKHART: He is in the country for personal reasons and is stopping by for a chance to chat with the President before returning home.

Q On what subject?

MR. LOCKHART: The Middle East peace process.

Q Joe, did you mean to suggest this morning that you would dis-invite any reporter who asked about this report of an illegitimate child?

MR. LOCKHART: No. I suggested for those of you who come with no independent reporting to repeat the gossip from tabloid, supermarket tabloids are wasting their time by coming to talk to me.

Q Well, Joe, isn't it legitimate to ask about reports such as that?

MR. LOCKHART: Not like that. As all of you know, those reports have been around for years and it's just a waste of your time to waste my time here with it.

Q But this is a new report. Does the White House have any comment on the report, Joe?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not getting into it.

Q Has the President made any changes in his team handling the impeachment matter, or is he considering making any changes?

MR. LOCKHART: Not that I'm aware of.

Q Well, why not? They were tasked not to get him impeached --

MR. LOCKHART: Because they've done such good job. (Laughter.)

Q -- and he was impeached. And there's some -- about that.

MR. LOCKHART: Hey, I'm on the team, I can say it. No, he hasn't.

Q Joe, do you have any comments on the bin Laden story in Afghanistan? He tells something else to -- magazine and Time Magazine all said -- his calling card, kill Americans anywhere in the world. When are you going to bring him to justice?

MR. LOCKHART: As you know, he's under indictment here and we are actively involved in fighting his network, and we do hope to bring him to justice. While it may have some academic interest to see him one day take credit for and deny it the next day, we have no doubt that he is responsible for this and he will be brought to justice.

Q Who is supporting him or his empire --

MR. LOCKHART: I think he has some support around the world, and it's something that we have worked hard to try to convince those around the world that terrorists like he should not be supported under any circumstances.

Q The President plans to go ahead with the State of the Union Address on schedule, he continues to do events like today's long-term health care event. In what ways is his day-to-day work life impacted by the pending impeachment trial?

MR. LOCKHART: I think he deals on a day-to-day basis with the business at hand here in Washington, and this is clearly on everyone's plate. So I think in the briefings and his meetings with staff it's a subject that comes up, but it certainly doesn't dominate the President's work day. He's got a lot of other things -- from the State of the Union to the budget to his stewardship of foreign policy -- that consume a lot of his time, and that will remain the case.

Q But would you say he has one meeting on this a day, or two? Clearly, he spends some portion of his day --

MR. LOCKHART: He's spends some time and is briefed on a regular basis of what's going on here. But it's hard to quantify into one meeting or two meetings. He gets a general update, I guess, on an almost daily basis. I'm sure a day goes by goes by that we don't.

Q Politically, though, it would be good for the Democrats to see a full-scale trial go on in the Senate. Politically. In the narrow political context.

MR. LOCKHART: Are these same people saying that as the "some critics"? I don't understand those politics. (Laughter.)

Q You obviously don't want a full-scale trial.

MR. LOCKHART: We want something that's fair, bipartisan and expeditious.

Q -- and expeditious.

MR. LOCKHART: And next time I'm asked, Sam will answer for me. He's got it down.

Q In my sleep.

Q Does the process affect in any way the pace of the agenda as it's put forward to Congress? In other words, is there an assumption here that no serious business can be done before the --

MR. LOCKHART: No, I don't think so. I think, at least -- I can only speak about what's happened until now -- we've gone ahead irregardless of what the Senate's other business might be, as far as putting forward the President's agenda, and we think that's the best way to do business and -- did I use "irregardless" wrong?

Q Yes.

MR. LOCKHART: I'm sorry.

Q Just say "regardless."

MR. LOCKHART: Regardless. Regardless. I meant "irrespective." Is that right?

Q Yes.

MR. LOCKHART: Okay, good. Thanks. Anyway.

Q Joe, does the White House have any comment on these American citizens arrested in Israel? This alleged cult?

MR. LOCKHART: No.

Q During the past week, President Clinton and President Jiang Zemin of People's Republic of China exchanged greetings regarding the 20th anniversary of establishing the diplomatic relations. And also during the past week, China sentenced more dissidents to jail. Do you think the latest developments of the human rights violations will affect U.S.-China relations?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, we continue to protest in strong terms our opposition to some of the steps as far as the arrest, detention and then sentencing of several Chinese citizens. And we will continue to do so. We also have an important strategic relationship with China that we will continue to pursue.

Q Does the President agree with the conclusions in the report from Representative Cox's investigation of the transfer, or mis-transfer, of technology to China?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think we expect to receive that report today, so I don't think the President has had a chance to review it. I will say, from what we've read about it and the briefings we've gotten, that we believe we have strong export controls but we do look forward to reading the report and looking at the recommendations to see if there are ways to strengthen our export controls.

I think if you look at particularly some of the technology transfers that they have raised publicly, we believe that on the issue of authorized technology transfers, we do have strong export controls. On the issue of unauthorized technology transfers, I think there is litigation now underway, and the Department of Justice is looking into that. And those who are found guilty, if there has been any violations of the law, will be prosecuted.

Q Joe, what can you tell the American people about the security of the National Labs?

MR. LOCKHART: We can tell the American people that we've taken serious steps over the last 15 or 20 years, which is, I think, the scope of what Representative Cox looked at, to strengthen export controls, to make sure that we balance the nation's ability to be competitive with our ability to keep technology -- military technology --

Q I'm sorry, maybe my question was imprecise. I wasn't talking about the exporting of technology. I was talking about the theft of bomb secrets from the National Labs. What can you tell the American people about the security of the National Labs?

MR. LOCKHART: I think I can tell you that, without getting into too much detail because some of this report the Congress is not able to talk about and I'm not able to talk about, is that steps have been taken to address problems of some years ago, and that the American people should understand that their government is taking the appropriate steps to safeguard -- whether it be secrets or technology -- and will continue to do so.

Q Do you think it's still appropriate, or is it time to rethink, the notion that the Commerce Department should be the lead agency in providing these licenses, as opposed to the Pentagon or the State Department?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think that, again, that was an idea that came from both the Reagan and Bush administrations, that we proceeded on, but under the recent Defense Authorization Act, that was -- an element of that that, by statute, switched the authorization origination back to the State Department. And we expect that to take place probably by this week.

MR. LEAVY: Actually, it's supposed to go into effect in March, but we sent a report up to the Hill --

MR. LOCKHART: Okay -- sent a report up this week as the statute requires, and it will go into effect by March.

Q Joe, is the administration committed to releasing that report in some form or another after it's been vetted for national security --

MR. LOCKHART: Which report?

Q The report of Cox.

MR. LOCKHART: I would have to check on that.

Q You're not willing to commit to releasing it in some form?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not willing to commit to releasing a congressional report, absolutely not.

Q But wait --

MR. LOCKHART: I think there will probably be a declassification process on that, and then I'm sure we will talk with Congressman Cox and Congressman Dicks. But I'm not going to commit from here whether that's going to be released -- it's their report.

Q Joe, I'm not here to defend the Star tabloid, but it seems to me they broke the story of Gennifer Flowers and the Dick Morris sex scandal. Now, when both of those stories broke, defenders of the President said, oh, it's just the Star, it's just a tabloid, we're not going to dignify that with a response. And that was sort of the way to discredit the story.

It seems to me that both those stories turned out to be true -- the Dick Morris story certainly turned out to be true; the Gennifer Flowers story, at least a portion of it, the President has admitted that he had at least one sexual liaison with Gennifer Flowers. And my question is, how can you use that same defense to just dismiss out of hand the story? I'm not asking whether the story is true, but wouldn't it be more instructive to just deny or acknowledge the facts that are in question here, rather than try to smear that tabloid?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not trying to smear, I'm just telling you that unless you have some independent reporting that you want to bring to this room and ask me about, I'm just not going to comment.

Q The picture on the Internet he looks exactly like the President.

MR. LOCKHART: That's good. And I'm an alien space baby, Lester. (Laughter.) And we're probably related -- so, next.

Q Do we have some of your DNA?

MR. LOCKHART: Sam, that's personal and we'll talk afterwards. (Laughter.)

Okay, I think we're done here, guys. Is there anyone from a wire service here? Thank you.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

January 4, 1999

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT ON LONG-TERM HEALTH CARE INITIATIVE

Grand Foyer

11:36 A.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you, Patricia, for your fine statement and for the power of your example. And we appreciate you and your husband being here today and the work that you're doing.

We thank Congressman Hoyer for bringing his constituent here today. And we welcome Senator Reid, Senator Breaux, Senator Specter, Senator Dodd, Senator Wyden, Congressman Brown, Cardin, Moran, and Cummings. And I'd also like to say, Senator Mikulski has a special interest in this issue and wanted to be here today, but could not.

You know, this new year gives us all a sense of making a fresh start, a sense of being able to think anew. It should also give us a sense of rededication. I'm delighted to see here, along with the members of our administration -- Secretary Rubin, Secretary Shalala, and Janice LaChance -- so many advocates not only for seniors, but for the disabled.

We need to be looking ahead at the issue that Patricia Darlak described so clearly and powerfully, to the challenges that the new century will present us, because there will be many, many, many more stories like hers. That is the fundamental reality. Already there are millions of people out there helping to care for an aged or disabled loved one, but there will be many more like her in the 21st century.

Now, that is, for those of us who are part of the baby boom generation, what we would call a high-class problem because we will be "them" -- "they" -- we will be "they." Is that the right -- but the baby boom is about to become a senior boom, and like the baby boom, the senior boom will change the face of America. During the next 30 years, 76 million baby boomers will join the ranks of the retired. The number of elderly Americans will double by 2030; by the middle of the next century, the average American will live to an age of 82 -- that's six years longer than the average life expectancy today.

Now, as I said, those of us who hope to be in that group consider that a high-class problem. We also are very encouraged that people are living stronger, healthier lives. We are encouraged that disabled Americans have more options to live fully and healthily for a longer period of time. We are encouraged that all these folks are proving that retirement can be a beginning as well as an end. We see all kinds of people learning new ideas, taking up new work, doing new community services; traveling and going places they never would have imagined before.

But we know that with aging, inevitably, come the infirmities of age. Nearly half the people over 85 -- one of the fastest-growing segments of our population -- need help with everyday, basic tasks -- eating, dressing, going to a doctor. We cannot expect that every older American will be able to fend for himself or herself. And the real question is what are our obligations to help every American get the care that is appropriate for each individual case?

Millions require the care that can only be provided in a nursing home. But millions more choose to remain at home with family and friends. Indeed, the elderly are remaining at home in record numbers. The same is true of people with disabilities. Today millions and millions of households are caring for elderly relatives, or even for neighbors. They represent the best of America, fulfilling a family obligation, often unspoken but deeply resonant in the American character.

Providing long-term care at home is more and more a common choice, but, as you have just heard, it is rarely an easy one. Since this kind of care is almost never covered by private insurance or Medicare, out-of-pocket expenses can be staggering. So, too, are the professional costs. Caregivers who hold jobs outside the home -- that is, the vast majority -- may have to take unpaid leave or work fewer hours to fulfill their responsibilities. In countless ways, caregiving is vital, meaningful work. But as you have heard, it can also be very stressful.

The First Lady has mentioned some of the things we have worked to do to ease the burden of families -- improving nursing homes, strengthening Medicare, making Medicaid more flexible. But more will be asked of us in the 21st century, and more must be done.

Today, we announce a critical new initiative to give care to the caregivers; to help Americans provide long-term care for aging, ailing and disabled loved ones. The size of the senior boom demands it, the needs of our disabled population require it; the length of our lives makes it more important than ever -- and so does the sacrifice of American families who put the well-being of their relatives above their own.

This is a complicated challenge that requires a range of responses. Therefore, to improve long-term care in America and to give it a priority and support these families, we propose to do four things:

First, to provide a long-term care tax credit -- $1,000 for people with long-term care needs or for the families that shelter them. It is far better to devote this money to help keep the elderly and the disabled at home than to spend the same amount to pay for them to live away from home. And if it makes it possible for more people to stay home it may well be cheaper, too. Our parents worked and saved and sacrificed for us in our youth; adult children are now working, saving and sacrificing for their parents in old age. It is the cycle of life and one we should recognize and reward.

This targeted tax cut of $1,000, paid for in our balanced budget, would meet the individual needs of individual families, supplementing the care they already provide, empowering them to decide what to do and how to do it best. It would help to offset the direct cost of long-term care, like home health visits and adult day care; as well as the indirect costs, like unpaid leave some caregivers must take. The care they provide is invaluable, but we can show that it is valued by our society.

Second, we should create a family caregiver support program, a new national network to support people caring for older Americans. In decades past, families could do little for ailing relatives but give them shelter and love. But today, because of advances in science, caregivers tend to everything, from dialysis to depression, preparing intravenous meals and insulin injections. This initiative enables states to create one-stop shops, places caregivers can access the resources of the community, find technical guidance, obtain respite and adult day care services. This is especially important for those families who are thousands of miles away from their loved ones, but who still want to help. These families want to provide the best possible care. We want to do everything in our power to help them.

Third, we must educate Medicare beneficiaries about long-term care options. Medicare does not cover most kinds of long-term care, so it is important that beneficiaries understand their alternatives.

This initiative helps to answer essential questions efficiently: What are my choices? What should I look for in private long-term care insurance policies? By launching a national education campaign we can help to ensure people get the answers they need when they need them, and the quality care they deserve.

Fourth, I am proposing that the federal government, as the nation's largest employer, use its market leverage to set an example, offering private long-term care insurance to federal employees. By promoting high-quality, affordable care, we can encourage more people and more companies to invest in long-term care coverage. We can help more employees in every part of our economy to prepare for the future.

There's no single solution to the challenges of caregiving. But together, these initiatives represent a powerful first step to force the kind of changes we need in our society. To fulfill our fundamental obligations to older Americans and people with disabilities, we must act together -- members of both parties, both branches of government -- putting progress above partisanship. I believe there is an enormous amount of interest in, and support for, this initiative in the Congress, and I thank the members who have come here today.

I hope that the Congress will do many things on this front in the coming session. I hope these initiatives will pass; Senator Breaux will soon give us a Medicare Reform Commission report. I hope we will save Medicare for the 21st century. I hope we will use the surplus to save Social Security for the 21st century. All of these things will help to strengthen America as we go forward.

The senior boom is one of the central challenges of the coming century. I can tell you that as, literally, the oldest of the baby boomers -- those of us born right after World War II -- one of the central worries of my generation is that, as we age, we will impose unsustainable burdens on our children and undermine their ability to raise our grandchildren. We must use this time now to do everything in our power, not only to lift the quality of life and the security of the aged and disabled today, and the baby boom aged and disabled, but to make sure that we do not impose that intolerable burden on our children.

I have asked the Vice President, who will speak with us, along with Mrs. Gore, in just a moment, to conduct a series of forums around the country on this initiative, to solicit other ideas and reach out to people and to build grass-roots support. We want to hear from the people of the country about how we can help to meet the long-term care needs of their loved ones.

Again, let me thank all the people in the administration who worked on this, the members of Congress who are here, the members of the aging and disability community who are here. And I thank you, Patricia Darlak, for your moving statement. Hillary and I have had our own experiences with long-term care of our parents -- in my case, our grandparents. We have seen the Vice President and Mrs. Gore deal with the same challenge. So this is a personal thing that I think we feel very deeply.

I'd like to say a special word of appreciation to the Vice President, because he's had such an interest in our family caregiving program. He is now going to speak to us from California. He's coming up on the satellite, along with Mrs. Gore, and he's got some folks with him who know quite a bit about this.

Good morning, Mr. Vice President. The floor is yours.
Good morning, Tipper.

* * * * *

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you very much. I want to thank the Vice President and Tipper, and also all the folks that are out there with them in California, for the example they are sending and the initiatives that are being made in California. I know the Vice President is about to go to the new Governor's inauguration out there. You ought to take the opportunity to put in a plug for what we're doing there. I'm sure you will. (Laughter.)

Ladies and gentlemen, let me say, again, how grateful I am for all the people who have worked on this proposal, for the advocates for the elderly and the disabled who are here, for the very large representation from Congress. And thank you, again, for the passion and the commitment that you manifested in your statement and for having the courage to come here and tell us about your situation. I hope it will help to change the future of America.

God bless you and happy New Year. Thank you.
(Applause.)

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

January 2, 1999

STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

President Clinton and President Jiang Zemin exchanged letters on the 20th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

Attached is President Clinton's letter to President Jiang.

January 1, 1999

Dear Mr. President:

As we mark the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China, we can take pride in the fruitful efforts you and I -- and our predecessors -- have made to deepen and strengthen U.S.-China relations. The expansion of cooperation between our two nations has increased mutual understanding and established the basis for stronger future relations.

I am personally committed to building a constructive strategic partnership with China that will benefit our two peoples and promote a stable and prosperous Asia-Pacific region. Our exchange of visits in 1997 and 1998 furthered our ability to work together to meet global and regional challenges critical to both our countries.

Today, as we celebrate our achievements over the past twenty years, we should reflect on ways to strengthen our ties for future generations. We must work together to meet the common challenges of the 21st century while frankly addressing differences. In this way, we will be able to build the kind of partnership that will serve the interests and hopes of the American and Chinese peoples.

On the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of our relationship, I am pleased to convey the warmest wishes of the American people to the people of China, our congratulations on the achievements of the Chinese people over the past two decades, and our sincere commitment to increasingly cooperative and mutually beneficial relations in the decades to come.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

His Excellency Jiang Zemin
President of the People's Republic of China
Beijing
