TEXT:

Todd:

The Industry Consultations meeting is currently on for the 18th. I am out of town that week and very much wish to attend; any chance of changing it?

Thanks,
Janet

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For

Immediate

Release

February 5, 1999

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

Pursuant to section 7 of Public Law 105-174, I am providing this report to inform the Congress of ongoing efforts to achieve sustainable peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH). This is the first semiannual report that evaluates progress in BiH against the ten benchmarks ("aims") outlined in my certification to the Congress of March 3, 1998. NATO adopted these benchmarks on May 28, 1998, as part of its approval of the Stabilization Force (SFOR) military operations plan (OPLAN 10407). The Steering Board of the Peace Implementation Council (PIC) subsequently adopted corresponding benchmarks in its Luxembourg Declaration of June 9, 1998.

NATO, the Office of the High Representative (OHR) and my Administration have coordinated closely in evaluating progress on Dayton implementation based on these benchmarks. There is general agreement that there has been considerable progress in the past year. The basic institutions of the state, both political and economic, have been established. Key laws regarding foreign investment, privatization, and property are now in place. Freedom of movement across the country has substantially improved. Fundamental reform of the media is underway. Elections have demonstrated a continuing trend towards growing pluralism. Nevertheless, there is still much to be done, in particular on interethnic tolerance and reconciliation, the development of effective common institutions with powers clearly delineated from those of the Entities, and an open and pluralistic political life. The growth of organized crime also represents a serious threat.

With specific reference to SFOR, the Secretaries of State and Defense, in meetings in December 1998 with their NATO counterparts, agreed that SFOR continues to play an essential role in the maintenance of peace and stability and the provision of a secure environment in BiH, thus contributing significantly to progress in rebuilding BiH as a single, democratic, and multiethnic state. At the same time, NATO agreed that we do not intend to maintain SFOR's presence at current levels indefinitely, and in fact agreed on initial reductions, which I will describe later in this report. Below is a benchmark-by-benchmark evaluation of the state-of-play in BiH based on analysis of input from multiple sources.

1. Military Stability. Aim: Maintain Dayton cease-fire. Considerable progress has been made toward military stabilization in BiH. Entity Armed Forces (EAFs) are in compliance with Dayton, and there have been no incidents affecting the cease-fire. EAFs remain substantially divided along ethnic lines. Integration of the Federation Army does not reach down to corps-level units and below. However, progress has been made through the Train and Equip Program to integrate the Ministry of Defense and to provide the Federation with a credible deterrent capability. Although it is unlikely to meet its target of full integration by August 1999, the Federation Ministry of Defense has begun staff planning for integration. The Bosnian Serb Army (VRS) continues its relationship with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY) Army. Similarly, the Bosnian Croat element of the Federation Army maintains ties with Croatia. In both cases, however, limited resources impinge on what either Croatia or the FRY can provide financially or materially; the overall trend in support is downward. In some areas, the VRS continues to have certain qualitative and quantitative advantages over the Federation Army, but the Train and Equip Program has helped narrow the gap in some key areas. The arms control regimes established under Articles II (confidence and security-building measures) and IV (arms reduction and limitations) of Annex I-B of the Dayton Peace Accords are functioning. In October 1997, BiH and the other parties were recognized as being in compliance with the limitations on five major types of armaments (battle tanks, armored combat vehicles, artillery, combat aircraft, and attack helicopters) set forth in the Article IV agreement, which were derived from the Annex 1B 5:2:2 ratios for the FRY, Republic of Croatia, and BiH respectively. The parties have since maintained armament levels consistent with the limitations and are expected to do so in the future. A draft mandate for an Article V agreement (regional stability) has been approved; negotiations are due to begin in early 1999. Military stability remains dependent on SFOR as a deterrent force.

2. Public Security and Law Enforcement. Aim: A restructured and democratic police force in both entities. There has been considerable progress to date on police reform due to sustained joint efforts of the International Police Task Force (IPTF), Office of the High Representative (OHR), and SFOR, which have overcome a number of significant political obstacles. So far, approximately 85 percent of the police in the Federation have received IPTF-approved training, as have approximately 35 percent of the police in the Republika Srpska (RS).

All sides continue to lag in the hiring of minority officers and, as the IPTF implements its plans to address this problem, tensions will increase in the short-term. SFOR often must support the IPTF in the face of crime, public disorder, and rogue police. Monoethnic police forces have often failed to facilitate minority returns. In these types of scenarios, SFOR's use of the Multinational Specialized Unit (MSU) has been a force multiplier, requiring fewer, but specially trained troops. At this point, SFOR's essential contribution to maintaining a secure environment, to include backing up IPTF in support of nascent civilian police forces, remains critical to continued progress.

3. Judicial Reform. Aim: An effective judicial reform program. Several key steps forward were taken in 1998, such as the signing of an MOU on Inter-Entity Legal Assistance on May 20, 1998, and establishment of an Inter-Entity Legal Commission on June 4, 1998. The Federation Parliament in July adopted a new criminal code. Nevertheless, the judicial system still requires significant reform. Judges are still influenced by politics, and the system is financially strapped and remains ethnically biased. Execution of judgments, in particular eviction of persons who illegally occupy dwellings, is especially problematic. The progress made in the area of commercial law is encouraging for economic development prospects.

4. Illegal Institutions, Organized Crime, and Corruption. Aim: The dissolution of illegal pre-Dayton institutions. Corruption remains a major challenge to building democratic institutions of government. Structures for independent monitoring of government financial transactions are still not in place. Shadow institutions still need to be eliminated. The burden of creating institutions to combat fraud and organized crime falls mostly to the international community and in particular to the IPTF. SFOR contributes to the secure environment necessary for the success of other international efforts to counter these illegal activities.

5. Media Reform. Aim: Regulated, democratic, and independent media. Approximately 80 percent television coverage has been achieved in BiH through the international community's support for the Open Broadcasting Network (OBN), which is the first (and so far only) neutral source of news in BiH. Several television and radio networks have been restructured and are led by new management boards. Most are in compliance with Dayton except for some regional broadcasts. The Independent Media Commission assumed responsibility for media monitoring from the OSCE on October 31, 1998. Progress has been significant, but BiH still has far to go to approach international standards. SFOR's past actions in this area are a key deterrent against illegal use of media assets to undermine Dayton implementation.

6. Elections and Democratic Governance. Aim: National democratic institutions and practices. With the exception of the election of a nationalist to the RS presidency, the September 1998 national elections continued the long-term trend away from reliance on ethnically based parties.

The two major Serb nationalist parties lost further ground and, once again, will be unable to lead the RS government. Croat and Bosniak nationalist parties retained control, but saw margins eroded significantly. In this regard, SFOR's continued presence will facilitate conduct of the municipal elections scheduled for late 1999 but, as has been the case with every election since Dayton, the trend of increasingly turning over responsibility for elections to the Bosnians themselves will continue.

7. Economic Development. Aim: Free-market reforms. While the process of economic recovery and transformation will take many years, some essential groundwork has been laid. Privatization legislation and enterprise laws have been passed, and banking legislation has been partially passed. Fiscal revenues from taxes and customs have increased significantly. Nevertheless, the fiscal and revenue system is in its infancy. Implementation of privatization legislation is slow and the banking sector is under-funded, but there are signs of development in GDP. There has been a marked increase in freedom of movement, further enhanced by the uniform license plate law. SFOR's continued contribution to a secure environment and facilitating freedom of movement is vital as economic reforms begin to take hold.

8. Displaced Person and Refugee (DPRE) Returns. Aim: A functioning phased and orderly minority return process. While there have been some significant breakthroughs on DPRE returns to minority areas, such as Jajce, Stolac,

Kotor

Varos, Prijedor, Mostar, and Travnik, the overall numbers have been low.

In

some areas where minority DPRES have returned, interethnic tensions rose quickly. Some nationalist political parties continue to obstruct the return of minority DPRES to the areas they control. Poor living conditions in some areas present little incentive for DPRES to return. The Entities are using DPRES to resettle regions (opstinas) that are of strategic interest to each ethnic faction. SFOR's contribution to a secure environment remains vital to OHR efforts to facilitate minority returns.

9. Brcko. Aim: A multiethnic administration, DPRES returns, and secure environment. Freedom of movement in Brcko has improved dramatically. Citizens of BiH are increasingly confident in using their right to travel freely throughout the municipality and the region. Police and judicial elements have been installed, but the goal of multiethnicity in these elements still has not been realized. About 1,000 Federation families have returned to the parts of Brcko on the RS side of the Inter-Entity Boundary Line, but few Serb displaced persons have left Brcko to return to their pre-war homes. SFOR support will be a critical deterrent to the outbreak of violence during the period surrounding the Arbitrator's decision on Brcko's status anticipated for early in 1999.

10. Persons Indicted for War Crimes (PIFWCs). Aim: Cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) leading to the transfer of PIFWCs to The Hague for trial. Thanks to action by the Congress, the Secretary of State now has the ability to offer rewards of up to $5 million for information leading to the arrest or conviction of PIFWCs. Of the 81 people indicted publicly by the Tribunal, only 29 -- 36 percent -- are still at large. The two highest-profile indictees, Karadzic and Mladic, are among them. Bosniaks are cooperating with the ICTY, but the failure of the RS to support the ICTY is a major obstacle to progress. Bosnian Croats have cooperated with respect to the surrender of all but two public indictees, but have not cooperated fully with respect to the Tribunal's orders that they turn over documents needed for the fair trial of a number of indictees. SFOR continues to provide crucial support in the apprehension of PIFWCs and for ICTY exhumations.

In my report to the Congress dated July 28, 1998, I emphasized the important role that realistic target dates, combined with concerted use of incentives, leverage, and pressure on all parties, should play in maintaining the sense of urgency necessary to move steadily toward an enduring peace.

The December 1998 Peace Implementation Council Declaration and its annex (attached) offer target dates for accomplishment of specific tasks by authorities in BiH. The PIC decisions formed the background against which NATO Defense Ministers reviewed the future of SFOR in their December 17 meeting. Failure by Bosnian authorities to act within the prescribed timeframes would be the point of departure for more forceful action by the OHR and other elements of the international community. Priorities for 1999 will include: accelerating the transition to a sustainable market economy; increasing the momentum on the return of refugees and displaced persons, particularly to minority areas; providing a secure environment through the rule of law, including significant progress on judicial reform and further establishment of multiethnic police; developing and reinforcing the central institutions, including adoption of a permanent election law, and the development of greater confidence and cooperation among the Entity defense establishments with the goal of their eventual unification; and pressing ahead with media reform and education issues.

In accordance with the NATO Defense Ministers' guidance in June 1998, NATO is conducting a series of comprehensive reviews at no more than 6-month intervals. The first of these reviews was completed on November 16, 1998, and recently endorsed by the North Atlantic Council (NAC) Foreign and Defense Ministers. In reviewing the size and shape of SFOR against the benchmarks described above, the United States and its Allies concluded that at present, there be no changes in SFOR's mission. NATO recommended, however, that steps begin immediately to streamline SFOR. The NAC Foreign and Defense Ministers endorsed this recommendation on December 8, 1998, and December 17, 1998, respectively. The Defense Ministers also endorsed a report from the NATO Military Authorities (NMAs) authorizing further adjustments in SFOR force levels -- in response to the evolving security situation and support requirements -- to be completed by the end of March 1999. While the specifics of these adjustments are still being worked, they could amount to reductions of as much as 10 percent from the 6,900 U.S. troops currently in SFOR. The 6,900 troop level already represents a 20 percent reduction from the 8,500 U.S. troops deployed in June 1998 and is 66 percent less than peak U.S. deployment of 20,000 troops in 1996.

The NATO Defense Ministers on December 17, 1998, further instructed NMAs to examine options for possible longer-term and more substantial adjustments to the future size and structure of SFOR. Their report is due in early 1999 and will give the United States and its Allies the necessary information on which to base decisions on SFOR's future. We will address this issue in the NAC again at that time. Decisions on future reductions will be taken in the light of progress on implementation of the Peace Agreement. Any and all reductions of U.S. forces in the short or long term will be made in accordance with my Administration's policy that such reductions will not jeopardize the safety of U.S. armed forces serving in BiH.

My Administration values the Congress!, substantial support for Dayton implementation. I look forward to continuing to work with the Congress in pursuit of U.S. foreign policy goals in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON

PRESIDENT CLINTON:
CREATING OPPORTUNITY BY SUPPORTING MICROENTERPRISE
February 5, 1999

Today, President Clinton Will Unveil the Administration!,s Domestic and International Microenterprise Agenda for FY2000 and Will Honor Recipients of the 1998 Presidential Awards for Excellence in Microenterprise Development. Long a passionate interest of both President Clinton and the First Lady, microenterprise has proven a powerful tool for empowering people left out of the economic mainstream, providing them the skills and credit they need to improve their own lives. President Clinton!,s FY2000 budget includes a 159-percent increase in support for domestic microenterprise programs, with a significant strengthening of the Administration!,s commitment for training and technical assistance -- an essential component on fully delivering the microenterprise promise. President Clinton!,s budget also continues to ensure that America provides global leadership on microenterprise through the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID).

What Is Microenterprise? Microenterprise development programs provide access to capital, other financial services, and training to those traditionally bypassed by the mainstream financial sector, such as the poor, women, minorities, and those in areas of economic downturn. With these resources, these people can start and/or build businesses, creating jobs and opportunity.

Recognized for the past twenty-five years as a powerful tool for development in poorer countries, microenterprise has been increasingly successful in providing opportunities in the United States. In this country, a microenterprise is generally defined as a business with five or fewer employees -- at least one of whom is the owner -- and that has a demand for small amounts of credit (less than $25,000).

A 159-Percent Increase in Overall Budget To Support Microenterprise At Home.

President Clinton's domestic microenterprise agenda recognizes that in the new economy, simply providing credit to microentrepreneurs is often not enough. Microentrepreneurs often need training and mentoring to help them succeed, and microenterprise organizations need technical assistance to build their capacity and enhance their effectiveness. This year, the Administration seeks to dramatically increase its support for these critical services, nearly tripling funding for training and technical assistance. This year's budget also focuses on leveraging new resources through Individual Development Accounts, and on making microenterprise and other resources more widely available through the Small Business Administration's (SBA) One-Stop Capital Shops. Specifically, the President's plan includes:

$15 Million To Support The Program for Investments in Microentrepreneurs (PRIME) Act. The bipartisan PRIME Act -- introduced by Senators Kennedy and

Domenici and Representatives Rush, Leach and LaFalce -- authorizes the Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFI) Fund to establish a microenterprise technical assistance and capacity building program to award grants on a competitive basis to microenterprise development organizations and programs that focus on low-income entrepreneurs. PRIME will also sponsor research on the most innovative and successful ways of encouraging new businesses and enabling them to succeed. PRIME, like all other CDFI programs, will leverage non-federal funding with federal dollars by requiring that all assistance be matched. The PRIME Act authorizes an appropriation level of $105 million over four years, starting with $15 million in FY2000. The President's

FY2000 budget includes $15 million for PRIME within CDFI, which the President proposes to expand from $95 million in FY99 to $125 million in FY2000.

Double Support For Technical Assistance in SBA Microloan Program. Key to the success of the SBA Microloan Program has been its capacity to link loans to entrepreneurs with the provision of training and technical assistance. The Administration's FY 2000 budget seeks to double funds devoted to training and technical assistance from $16 million in FY99 to $32 million in FY2000.

Double Support for SBA Lending To Leverage Over $75 Million In New Micro-Loans. The SBA Microloan program makes loans to microfinance development organizations, which in turn re-lend the funds to small businesses. Over the last seven years, well over 100 organizations have participated in the program, making over $78 million in loans to more than 7,800 microentrepreneurs. The average loan to a business is roughly $10,000, and the SBA has not incurred a single loss in that time period. The President's FY2000 budget doubles support for the SBA Microloan Program, from $3 million in FY99 to $6 million in FY2000 -- which should help leverage over $75 million in new loans.

Double Funding for Individual Development Accounts (IDAs). Since 1992, President Clinton has supported the creation of Individual Development Accounts (IDAs) to empower lower-income individuals to start a new business, invest in a first home, or save for post-secondary education. Low-income families will receive matching contributions of between $1 and $8 for each dollar they save in an IDA. Last year, President Clinton signed legislation authorizing IDAs. The President's FY2000 budget doubles support for IDAs, increasing the IDA budget from $10 million in FY99 to $20 million in FY2000.

Triple Funding for SBA's One-Stop Capital Shop Initiative. One-Stop Capital Shops offer financial and training/mentoring services and products -- microenterprise development, personal finance, even credit repair -- in Empowerment Zones to communities and individuals often passed-over by economic booms. SBA is committed to providing a microloan presence in every One-Stop Capital Shop, and will provide office space at each Shop for microloan intermediaries. The President's FY2000 budget proposes to triple funding for the One-Stop Capital Shop Initiative, from $3.1 million in FY99 to $10 million in FY2000.

PRESIDENT CLINTON'S FY2000 BUDGET:
A 159-PERCENT INCREASE IN MICROENTERPRISE

	FY1999	FY2000	Percent Increase
PRIME Act	--	$15 million	n.a.
SBA Training and Technical Assistance	$16 million	$32 million	100%
SBA Lending	$3 million	$6 million	100%
Individual Development Accounts	$10 million	$20 million	100%
SBA One-Stop Capital Shop	$3.1 million	$10 million	223%
TOTAL	$32.1 million	$83 million	159%

Focus on Countries in Crisis and Extending Microenterprise's International Reach. Internationally, microenterprise has proven to be a compelling component of effective development strategies, contributing substantially to a rise in the standard of living for millions of families and providing a solid base for robust small business sectors. Early in his Administration, the President launched the USAID Microenterprise Initiative; today USAID is the world's leading donor in microenterprise development (averaging $135 million per year over the past three years). This year, the Administration will continue to provide global leadership through USAID, focusing especially on the unique challenges presented by the global economic crisis and the ravages of Hurricane Mitch, and on exploring new ways of leveraging support from multi-lateral institutions for microenterprise.

Increased Funding for Countries in Crisis. In response to the financial and natural crises that have afflicted so many this year, USAID and the Administration have proposed several programs to assist microenterprise intermediaries in rebuilding and expanding capacity, and in providing additional liquidity to programs in need. These include:

An additional $7 million in USAID's FY2000 budget for microenterprise to speed economic recovery for countries hit hard by the global financial crisis;

The First Lady, during her visit to Central America in November, announced a $17 million Microenterprise Recovery Fund for those Central American countries most affected by Hurricane Mitch. The Fund will include $5 million from USAID (which has already been approved), and $12 million from the Inter-American Development Bank Multilateral Investment Fund;

A further and substantial commitment of funds and technical assistance for microenterprise support will be a part of a supplemental package of relief for Hurricane Mitch. The Administration is currently working with a bipartisan group of Congressional leaders on the final details of that plan.

Leveraging International Resources. The Administration has played a lead role in the formation of the Consultative Group to Assist the Poorest (CGAP), which -- under World Bank auspices -- coordinates bi-lateral and multi-lateral donors who now collectively provide more than $500 million in support for microenterprise worldwide. This year, we will work with the World Bank and other Multilateral Development Banks (MDBs) to increase the portion of their lending dedicated to building microenterprise retail and wholesale intermediaries worldwide and, where possible, to channel those resources directly to those intermediaries.

Developing Conducive Regulatory Environments. Access to credit for microentrepreneurs in developing countries is quite often limited by banking and other regulations that were not designed to accommodate the unique needs of microenterprise lending institutions. To address this constraint, the Treasury Department and USAID will work with the IMF, MDBs and microfinance institutions to provide technical and other assistance to central banks and other regulators in less-developed nations to develop legislative and regulatory frameworks that support the unique needs of microenterprise.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

PRESS BRIEFING BY JOE LOCKHART

The Briefing Room

1:20 P.M. EST

MR. LOCKHART: Let me do a couple of big personnel items, of huge importance to people here at the White House. Two announcements. First, the President has appointed Mary Beth Cahill as Assistant to the President and Director of the Office of Public Liaison. Many of you know Mary Beth through her work at Emily's List and some Democratic campaigns, and her work in the Federal Office for the State of Massachusetts, which is where I met her. She will be a huge asset to our outreach efforts here and we're very much looking forward to her starting.

Q Are you putting out a bio on her?

MR. LOCKHART: Yes, we'll do a statement following this. She replaces Minyon Moore, who the President has appointed -- who was recently appointed as the Assistant to the President and Director of Political Affairs. Minyon, you know was previously the Deputy Director of Political Affairs -- before -- she ran Public Liaison -- she was the Deputy in Political Affairs, and before that, was at the DNC.

The second announcement is the President has named Ben Johnson as Assistant to the President and Director of the White House Office on the President's Initiative for One America. This is a new office the President has created following up on the work of the Initiative on Race.

Many of you know Ben from his current position as the Deputy Assistant to the President and Deputy Director of the Office of Public Liaison. He's been in that office since 1993. Before joining the administration, Ben served in a number of positions in the government of the District of Columbia, including Administrator of Housing and Environmental Administration and Administrator of Business Regulation. And he also served in the Carter White House as Director of Consumer Programs.

Q When is the President going to Amman.

MR. LOCKHART: I don't have any scheduling announcements.

Q Can you tell us about the situation in Jordan?

MR. LOCKHART: I can't give you any update. I'd suggest you talk to the spokespeople for the government there.

Q Do you know if the President has been in touch with Queen Noor or anyone else in the Royal Family?

MR. LOCKHART: I don't think the President has. My understanding is I believe the First Lady talked to the Queen yesterday before she left.

Q Well, if there is a state funeral in Jordan, will the President go?

MR. LOCKHART: Sam, I'm sure you can understand why I wouldn't answer a hypothetical question like that.

Q Joe, do the President's lawyers think that there is anything in the three depositions that is helpful to the President's case?

MR. LOCKHART: Yes, I think the response I've heard more than anything is that it's consistent with the depositions, grand jury testimony, FBI interviews, the hundreds of those that we've seen before. As far as I can tell it provides no evidence that there was any perjury or any obstruction of justice. And that's what it is we're talking about here.

Q Is there any exculpatory information?

MR. LOCKHART: Oh, sure. I think there is exculpatory information. I think Ms. Lewinsky testifies -- I don't have the quotes because I haven't read it all myself -- on the issue of talking about filing a false affidavit and the issues that go to obstruction and her testimony, as I understand it, is consistent with her previous testimony.

Q Well, when the House prosecutors make their case tomorrow and play snippets of the videotaped testimony will the White House lawyers respond in kind with their own snippets?

MR. LOCKHART: Snippets is becoming a term of art. I expect that they will use the video depositions in some form to make their case. Now, it's a product of this system that they'll have no idea what the House managers are playing. So, in a sense of rebuttal, it can't be because they don't know what they're rebutting. We had a party-line vote on that yesterday to depart from normal civil procedure in this case, but this isn't normal civil procedure. But I expect that they'll make their case and will use some of the videotape testimony that's available to them.

Q But they have the transcript, they have the videotape. Can't they just imagine what the House managers are going to use? They'll use the stuff that's the most damaging to the President.

MR. LOCKHART: Wolf, I've spent a lot of time this year with our lawyers, and I think if you've ever spent time with lawyers, they don't like working based on their imagination. That's for this room. I like it, but they don't.

Q Joe, Senator Lott indicated that there would be probably be some give-and-take at the end of the process, if the White House felt that they needed to come back that they would try to work something out. Have you received any further word on whether or not the White House will get a chance at rebuttal?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I haven't.

Q Could you tell us what is the White House reaction to Senator Mikulski's statement, "I've heard their stories through depositions, affidavits and summary of testimony, but I didn't have a chance to personally hear other witnesses. I believe that calls us, now that we get ready to vote, to honor the precedent of public hearings for cross-examination of witnesses to resolve discrepancies in testimony."

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not familiar with her statement.

Q Do you disagree with it, Joe?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not familiar with it.

Q The President, in his address at the National Prayer Breakfast, he mentioned India by name, to pray for a number of countries. Any reason why India was one of the countries that he --

MR. LOCKHART: I suggest that India is often in his thoughts.

Q Did he not also mention Pakistan --

MR. LOCKHART: He mentioned several countries.

Q -- two weeks this permanent office on race is going to open up here at the White House. Is this a response to many critics who have said that the race initiative lost its luster at the very beginning, and that's why the President wants to have this office, or is it a response to the recommendations from this Race Advisory Board?

MR. LOCKHART: Oh, it's most definitely the latter.

It's a response to -- the Race Advisory Board made some recommendations late last year; the President and his staff have taken a long, hard look at the best way to build on the Advisory Board and the initiative to date and made the decision that, particularly with the talents of someone like Ben Johnson here at the White House, the best way to move forward was to develop this new office so that this kind of work can continue both for the next two years and for years beyond.

Q Do you see a lot of meetings and presidential town hall meetings now, since they were kind of put to the wayside last year?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think Ben is going to take the opportunity to figure out how he's going to set up the office and to move forward. I think he'll be involved both with issues of trying to continue to raise dialogue and also, in working throughout the White House and throughout the government, on how we can continue to keep a high priority on the issues the President laid out in the initiative.

Q What has the President done today? He hasn't been around the Oval Office at all.

MR. LOCKHART: The President had the morning off. I'm not sure -- doing what? He had the morning off. I don't ask him what he does with his mornings off. He should be over here soon, and he's got a full afternoon, then a full evening tonight in Atlanta.

Q Joe, it looks like the findings of fact resolution is dead. Is the White House still open to supporting a censure resolution after the trial is completed?

MR. LOCKHART: I think -- I don't know if "supporting" is the right word. I think the point we've made is the finding of fact we believe was unconstitutional. We thought a censure after the impeachment trial was done was more appropriate. Again, as I've said many times, it will be up to the Senate to decide how they want to move forward.

Q Well, maybe now -- there are a lot of people thinking he gets off completely free in the sense if he's acquitted and there is no censure.

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think then those people should work in a bipartisan way, if they feel it's appropriate to work on a censure.

Q -- say he's not going to -- when his term expires at the U.N. as the chief weapons inspector that he doesn't want to continue.

MR. LOCKHART: I think that clearly is his decision to make. And we respect the personal decision he's made. I reiterate that we believe -- the President believes -- that he's done an outstanding job over the last years heading UNSCOM and doing the important work of monitoring and finding the weapons of mass destruction and those efforts in Iraq. And, again, it's a personal decision for him to make, but he leaves with an outstanding record of achievement.

Q Some say the articles of impeachment themselves are the ultimate censure. Does the White House view them that way?

MR. LOCKHART: No. I think if we took that view, we would be going down a constitutional road that I don't think we should go down, which is that somehow this constitutional tool gets used as a political tool. I think impeachment should be seen for what impeachment is, which is an attempt to remove the President for grave offenses to the state.

Q Do you regard the articles, though -- for instance, you had Senator Leahy this morning who said that many Democrats as well as Republicans view the articles themselves as the ultimate form of censure --

MR. LOCKHART: I wouldn't say that is a thought or a view that is without any merit or foundation. I'm just -- I'm trying to express a view here, and I'm sure there are many people who do take that view.

Q But impeachment is a political process.

Q -- the articles themselves as an illegitimate effort as a political vendetta, or as a genuine effort to get at the truth about what happened?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think our feelings about how the House ran the process are quite well-known, that it was a partisan effort rather than an bipartisan attempt to get at the truth.

Q Your own attorneys argued that one of the considerations ought to be a political consideration of the country.

MR. LOCKHART: There certainly is a political dimension to the impeachment process, and the framers stated as such. But I don't think they saw this process as a way -- to be used as a political weapon.

Q Joe, has the trial reached a stage yet where you can pronounce whether you think it's been fair?

MR. LOCKHART: I think we should all wait until the process is over.

Q Joe, I've seen numerous reports of your very well-crafted promise that in the event of the President's acquittal there will be at the White House a "gloat-free zone." But what if the conventional wisdom is wrong again and the President is convicted? Will you have a "mope-free zone" and go on your way rejoicing?

Q They'll have no zone. (Laughter.)

Q No zone in the ozone.

MR. LOCKHART: Lester, the sole comfort of your prediction coming true is me not having to stand here and face this every day. (Laughter.)

Q Was the White House surprised by the fact that 25 Republicans joined all 45 Democrats in not wanting live witnesses?

MR. LOCKHART: Not really. I think that we made the point -- I think many Senate Democrats made the point repeatedly that there was nothing new to be gathered, that the facts were known. There were -- Ms. Lewinsky had testified 20-some odd times; Mr. Jordan, Mr. Blumenthal, more or less, had testified repeatedly. So once the senators had a chance to view the tapes, review the transcripts, it is not that surprising that they'd reach that conclusion.

Q What about the other, though, where Democrats broke with your position?

MR. LOCKHART: They took a different view. We've been down this road where we've seen how these videotapes have been used. We've been subject to information being used and taken out of context to make an argument that isn't supported by the facts. So it was our view that it wasn't necessary to bring these videotapes to the floor. But, clearly, there were a vast majority of Republicans, but a good number of Democrats, who took a different view and thought it would be useful.

Q Well, would you say that the two votes yesterday show that the Senate is back on the bipartisan path?

MR. LOCKHART: I think they certainly -- yesterday was a day where bipartisan spirit abounded, as opposed to the week before.

Q So you're not willing to say that the process has been --

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not willing to have my words be twisted around. Yesterday -- if you want an interim report, certainly this process in the Senate has moved forward in a way, in a manner much more fair than what we saw in the House. But I'm trying to not do a running commentary.

Q Do you see an end to it on Friday? Do you think there will be an end a week from today? I mean, you've always voiced skepticism as something --

MR. LOCKHART: I think, given yesterday's votes and given Senator Lott's statements yesterday, it's much more certain that we'll see an end to this next week than before yesterday.

Q Joe, the Serbs seem to be blocking several members of the KLA from leaving for France. Are tomorrow's talks in doubt because of this? Has it been resolved?

MR. LOCKHART: As to the moment I came out here, it had not been resolved. But we believe that it's important that all parties participate in the talks. We expect all parties to be there tomorrow. We've made that point directly to the parties through Ambassador Hill.

Q Does the President have high hopes for the talks?

MR. LOCKHART: Well, I think the President believes that it's in the manifest interest of both parties to reach a political settlement. And because it is so much in their interest, he believes that if they sit down and talk in good faith they can reach an agreement.

Q Despite his personal phone calls to the Prime Minister of India and Pakistan, Mr. Talbott came back empty-handed. The State Department told me that the progress has been made. Now, what kind of progress and also, India and Pakistan have said that unless U.S. lifts sanctions against India and Pakistan they will not sign --

MR. LOCKHART: Well, as you know, Deputy Secretary Talbott held a series of these talks -- this was the 8th round of nonproliferation talks with first the Indian government and the Pakistani government. He met with both leaders. While there were no breakthroughs in the meeting, Deputy Secretary Talbott believes -- or is satisfied with the outcome and found them to be the most productive talks to date.

So it's important that we continue these. I believe that there will be another round of these talks in the near future. And he was quite pleased with the progress.

Q Is there an estimated time that the President will meet with the Presidents of Peru and Ecuador -- I know the time -- I mean, how long will it last and will we get a read out?

MR. LOCKHART: Okay. We will do a written readout afterwards -- about 20 minutes.

Q Joe, in this morning's Washington Times there is a contention, and I quote, "Joe Lockhart is almost as slick as Mike McCurry." And my question is, would you confirm or deny and are you angry or delighted?

MR. LOCKHART: Who is Mike McCurry? (Laughter.) Despite that somewhat pejorative -- a word I've learned since I've started doing these briefings -- definition, anytime I'm mentioned in the same breath as Mike McCurry it pleases me.

Q Ooooh.

MR. LOCKHART: You watching, Mike? We got a CSPAN viewer again. (Laughter.)

Week ahead.

Q Hey Joe, I've got one follow-up to Jim's line of questioning. If the Senate does not convict the President does the President or the White House view that as a repudiation of the articles of impeachment?

MR. LOCKHART: I think it's a statement by the Senate that the House managers did not present evidence or did not present a case, if that were to happen, to warrant conviction and removal.

Q Joe, a question on an appointment, has the President appointed Thomas Erickson CFTC Commissioner?

MR. LOCKHART: I don't know. I'll have to check on that. Who is in charge of CFTC appointments?

Q Barry.

MR. LOCKHART: Sounds like Barry.

Q Can I ask you one more thing?

MR. LOCKHART: Sure.

Q Apparently some senators have asked the Independent Counsel to investigate whether the White House has fully complied with requests for any tapes of phone calls of conversations made by the President. Can you tell us whether there is or ever has been a system to tape the President's phone calls or conversations?

MR. LOCKHART: I'm not aware of any system to tape. I'm not aware of any tapes. I'm not aware of any subpoena requests.

Q Would you be aware, normally?

MR. LOCKHART: I asked. (Laughter.) I was given a little advance warning on this one.

Q Before you took the job?

MR. LOCKHART: No, there are a couple questions I forgot to ask.

Q For precision's sake, you said you asked and now you say you're not aware. Were you told, no, there is no such system?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I'm sorry, I asked if there was a request for such recordings. It's my understanding that there is no such system. I have asked in the past. I didn't ask today on that one, but I have been asked that question before.

Q Joe, can you tell us, on a new race office, the Advisory Board had recommended there be a permanent commission to deal with racial issues. Why did the White House decide the office route instead of --

MR. LOCKHART: I think what the Advisory Board suggested -- it's my understanding -- is an outside council. And I think the President's view from the beginning -- because there were also some calls and an internal debate at the beginning whether the President's Advisory Board would be an outside council that reported back or something that was more closely connected to the White House. And the President's view from the beginning is that this is an issue that's important to him and he wants the White House and he wants to be personally involved. So he thought it was a better route to take to keep it within the White House.

And I think also we are able to take advantage of the unique talents of Ben Johnson because he is here at the White House, and that was also important in making this decision.

Q Does it have anything to do with the fact that the Advisory Board was considered unwieldy or the public nature of the Advisory Board was considered unwieldy?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I think quite to the contrary, the Advisory Board -- the President had a choice when he set up the Advisory Board which was to either go without an outside body that made independent recommendations, or appoint an Advisory Board that he would personally work with. He made the decision to try to keep it here, to work more closely with them. And that decision is perpetuated, I think, in the decision to set up this office.

Q Joe, you may have commented on this --

MR. LOCKHART: The week ahead seems months away.
(Laughter.)

Q We have been energized now. We're going to go three or four more rounds.

Q Joe, I'm not sure if you talked on this before, but do you have a position on whether or not the final deliberations should be open or closed?

MR. LOCKHART: I think that that's really for the Senate to make a decision on. I'm not sure that we have a view, one way or the other.

Q You don't think it would benefit Americans to see that? I mean, you know, you often comment on how aspects of the trial might benefit the country. Do you think it would benefit people to see the --

MR. LOCKHART: It depends on what they say. It depends on what they say. If they say nice things, open it up. If they say mean things we want to -- no, it's for the Senate to decide. We're just not going to get into that one.

Q Let me clarify one thing, if I may, on the taping system. Your statement refers to not only something that would be run by the White House itself, but also anything that might be run by WHCA, that might be run by anyone --

MR. LOCKHART: As far as I know. We certainly have the ability to tape some phone calls. We do this when we do a phone interview where we provide you with a transcript. But there's no other system that I'm aware of.

Q But don't you routinely, when the President speaks with a foreign leader, like Yeltsin, tape that conversation?

MR. LOCKHART: No, we do not.

Q Even on the secure lines and all that?

MR. LOCKHART: We do not.

Q That a no?

MR. LOCKHART: That's a no. Even though I'm nodding, it's a no.

Q Joe, you may have already answered this, but I wonder --

MR. LOCKHART: I hope I did. (Laughter.)

Q -- have you commented on Senator Robert Byrd's statement on CNN?

MR. LOCKHART: Yes, I did. Sam asked me about that and I gave a great answer.

Q Going back to India and Pakistan, is the President ready to lift sanctions against India and Pakistan? And, also, are they going to be lifted case-by-case or both together?

MR. LOCKHART: No.

Week ahead. (Laughter.)

Q Case-by-case or both together?

MR. LOCKHART: No, I answered the question, which by nature it answered the second one. No, it didn't, but I'm going to get away with this. (Laughter.)

Q No, you're not going to get away with it -- that's the point. Give him an answer. Give us an answer.

MR. LOCKHART: No, and ask P.J. later. (Laughter.)

Saturday, February 6th and Sunday, February --

Q As slick as Mike. (Laughter.)

MR. LOCKHART: Now I'm giving Mike a bad name. Saturday, February 6th and Sunday, February 7th, the President has no public schedule. Monday, February 8th --

Q He has the radio address.

MR. LOCKHART: Yes, which he is recording.

Q Has it already been recorded?

MR. LOCKHART: No. I think just before he goes to Atlanta.

Q On?

MR. LOCKHART: I would -- law enforcement.

Q Will the President be at the White House over the weekend?

MR. LOCKHART: Yes. No, he'll be here unless his schedule changes.

Q You don't expect him to go out traveling around anywhere, do you -- Saturday or Sunday?

MR. LOCKHART: It says right here he has no public schedule. On Monday morning the President will host a crime event in Presidential Hall. Later that afternoon he will host the Little League World Champion Baseball Team from Tom's River, New Jersey, in the East Room.

Tuesday, the President will depart from Washington to go to Wintergreen to address the annual House Democratic Caucus Issues Conference, expected to return here around 3:00 p.m. That is closed coverage, but do they come out at the end and say something or the whole thing is closed? It's closed coverage. We'll take a pool down.

Wednesday, the President will go to the University of Maryland to launch the AmeriCorps Call To Service Campaign. The event will be around 2:00 p.m., expected back to the White House about 3:30 p.m.

Thursday, the President will hold a brief meeting and lunch with German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder. That is the only public event for Thursday. Friday and Saturday we have nothing on his schedule. Sunday, no public schedule in the morning; the President and the First Lady will depart for Mexico late in the afternoon, around 4:00 p.m.

Thank you very much.

Q Well, are there plans yet on how the President will address the nation after the Senate votes?

MR. LOCKHART: None that I'm aware of.

The following is a HEX DUMP:

Congressional

Budget. We continued our climate-related outreach on the Hill this week, with bi-partisan, Senate-wide and House-wide staff level briefings on our climate change budget items. We are then planning more targeted briefings on different pieces of our package with key Members and their staff. Representative Matsui (D-CA) is interested in reintroducing our revised climate change tax package. We are working with his office to collect original cosponsors and Treasury is working with them to get the bill drafted.

Credit for Early Action. Senators Chafee, Lieberman and Mack are planning to re-introduce their credit for early action legislation soon. Their staffs have been meeting with constituencies and talking with other possible co-sponsors. Today, the L.A. Times criticized environmental groups for attacking the Chafee/Mack/Lieberman credit bill, arguing that climate change should be "depoliticized." (The editorial closed by saying that "All Americans will lose if the United States fails to emulate its competitors, from Britain to Japan, who are using tax dollars to encourage spending on energy-efficient technology.")

Other. Senators Hagel, Byrd, Craig and Murkowski are reportedly planning to introduce a bill to increase funding for scientific research on climate change, invest in long-term research and remove tax and regulatory barriers to voluntary early action. Although details are unclear, this appears to be an effort by strong Kyoto opponents to offer a positive agenda on climate change.

Representative Karen McCarthy (D-MO) is interested in establishing an informal, bipartisan climate change caucus. The caucus would be focused on educating Members and providing a network of Members to support climate change budget initiatives.

Outreach

As part of the larger budget rollout, White House staff announced the FY2000 budget for climate change programs Monday. Sally Katzen, George Frampton, Elgie Holstein and other Administration staff provided stakeholders with budget details. Environmental and advocacy groups responded favorably to the new $200M Clean Air Partnership Fund, increases for renewable energy and energy efficiency R&D.

During the past several weeks, we have held a series of meetings with outside groups to get input on credit for early action. There is considerable enthusiasm and increasing engagement from constituencies on the technical issues that will need to be addressed as part of any legislation. Next week, I will meet with CEOs from the Business Roundtable to discuss their views on this issue.

[[The Department of Energy is hosting a conference for industrial enterprises next week in Washington, DC. This is the largest gathering of industrial entities who are interested in and participating in the US Government's voluntary efficiency and emissions reductions programs.

Initial scoping meeting (21 January) with the waste to energy industries (firing with waste as well as landfill gas and the League of Cities). They are eager to work with the Administration on climate change and explore how "waste to energy" can play a role in reducing methane emissions and improving efficiency. Their first step is to sponsor a report quantifying the industries' potential CO2 benefits from better waste management. This group has made great strides over the past five years to improve its emissions of air pollutants and could be a major factor in reducing greenhouse gases.]]

Communications

The release of the FY 2000 climate change budget package -- accompanied by written materials prepared by the WHCCTF -- resulted in significant and mostly positive press coverage. Non-governmental organizations and industry groups were also largely supportive.

The Wall Street Journal ran a story that highlighted the overall increase and new initiatives, and walked through the tax incentives. AP and Reuters filed extensive stories that included several quotes from the Vice President. The AP story was picked up by the Los Angeles Times and the Baltimore Sun. CNN aired the announcement along with a graphic throughout one day and it received a brief mention on NPR. In addition, the announcement appeared in news roundups in papers around the country, including the San Francisco Examiner and the Seattle Times and garnered some international coverage, with AFP and the Evening Standard running pieces.

- There were two negative editorials that ran on the climate budget request this week. The Boston Herald editorialized on Sunday that climate change "may be a fairly-tale threat" and "Congress should disregard any request for money that isn't devoted to basic research," and the Detroit News opined on Monday that "Congress should not allow the Clinton administration to waste taxpayer dollars on what may yet turn out to be a phantom threat."
- In contrast, the non-governmental and industry groups were largely supportive. The Environmental Defense Fund, the Wilderness Society, Alliance to Save Energy, American Wind Energy Association, and even the Global Climate Coalition put out releases supporting the climate budget request.
- In the Sunday New York Times, there was a front page (above the fold) story on the new environmental budget initiatives, entitled "Clinton Backs Environmental Power-Sharing." The piece focused on the Better America Bonds and the Clean Air Partnership Fund as presenting new ways to empower local communities to take action on environmental issues, including climate change.

BP. John Browne's announcement last week that British Petroleum will extend their pledge to reduce greenhouse gases to Amoco and that they plan to market low-sulfur fuel to the most polluted cities, was covered by the Washington Post, Detroit News, USA Today and AP. The stories focused more on the fuel news than on the climate portions of Browne's announcement.

Diplomatic

The Vice President discussed climate change during his meeting last week with British Deputy Prime Minister John Prescott. Prescott made clear that the European Union will continue to insist on quantitative caps on emissions trading. In addition, Undersecretary of State Frank Loy discussed climate change with counterparts in England and Germany last week.

We are working with Secretary Richardson to develop a strategic plan for his work on this issue. He is very enthusiastic and plans to raise this climate change in a series of meetings with other Energy Ministers and leaders in the months ahead.

Science

Last week, the American Geophysical Union (AGU) concluded that there is "a compelling basis for legitimate public concern" about human-induced climate change. The announcement was covered in the New York Times, Denver Post, Christian Science Monitor and Detroit News. Also last week, Reuters and AFP filed stories on the melting of the Antarctic ice cap. The stories quoted New Zealander Peter Barrett saying: "It will be too late to do anything about it when we know for sure. We might be at that point now."

Thursday's "Diane Rehm Show" on NPR was devoted to scientific research on climate change. All the scientists that participated in the show voiced the view that human activity is causing global climate change and that the issue is how fast and how much the climate is changing.

Also on Thursday, AP filed a story on a forthcoming report for the National Academy of Sciences that explores limitations in current climate observation systems. According to the story, the study concludes that "deficiencies in the accuracy, quality and continuity of [climate] records ... place serious limitations on the confidence that can be placed in the research results." The study is due out until next month, and may go through another review. While the NAS is making the case for more funding for climate observation systems, these comments will likely be used to challenge the scientific bases for action on climate change.

THE ECONOMY UNDER PRESIDENT CLINTON:

The Longest Peacetime Expansion in History -- Nearly 18 Million New Jobs,
Lowest Peacetime Unemployment in 41 Years, and Real Wages Rising
February 5, 1999

The American Economy Created A Quarter of A Million Jobs Last Month Alone,
Unemployment Remained At Its Lowest Peacetime Level in 41 Years, and Wages
Continued to Rise At More than Twice the Rate of Inflation -- We Now Have the Longest Peacetime Expansion in American History. In 1992, the American economy

was barely creating jobs, wages were stagnant, and the unemployment rate was

7.5 percent. Six years ago, President Clinton put in place a bold new three-part economic strategy of cutting the deficit to help reduce interest ra tes and spur business investment; investing in education, health care,

science

and technology so that America was prepared to meet the challenges of the 21st century; and opening markets abroad so that American workers would have a fair chance to compete and win across the globe.

245,000 New Jobs In January Alone -- 17.8 Million New Jobs Under President

Clinton. Last month alone, 245,000 more jobs were added to the American economy. Since President Clinton took office, the economy has added 17.8 million new jobs -- that's 1.8 million more new jobs in six years than were created during the entire eight years of the Reagan Administration (17.8 million under Clinton vs. 16.0 million under Reagan).

Unemployment At 4.3 Percent in January -- A 41-Year Peacetime Low. In 1992, the unemployment rate was 7.5 percent. In January, the unemployment rate was 4.3 percent -- its lowest level in 29 years and its lowest peacetime level in 41 years. The unemployment rate has been below 5% for 19 months in a row.

Highest Share of New Jobs in Private Sector in 50 Years. Since President Clinton and Vice President Gore took office, the private sector of the economy has added 16.5 million new jobs -- with 2.3 million jobs added in the past year. Under President Clinton and Vice President Gore, 93 percent of the 17.8 million new jobs have been in the private sector -- that's the highest percentage in 50 years.

Employment Is At An All-Time High. 133.4 million Americans worked in December -- that's 64.5 percent of the working-age population, the highest percentage of people working ever.

Fastest Real Wage Growth in More Than Two Decades. Last month, average hourly earnings increased 0.5 percent. Over the past year, average hourly earnings have risen 4.0 percent -- that's more than twice the rate of inflation. After adjusting for inflation, wages have increased at about a 2.5 percent pace in the past 12 months -- that's the fastest real wage growth in more than two decades.

Construction Jobs Are Coming Back. Under President Clinton and Vice President Gore, construction and manufacturing jobs are coming back: after losing 662,000 jobs in construction during the previous four years, more than 1.6 million new construction jobs have been added since January 1993 -- that's a faster annual rate than any other Administration since Harry S. Truman was President.

Manufacturing Jobs Are Up Under President Clinton, But Are Being Hurt by the Financial Crisis in Asia. After losing 2.1 million manufacturing jobs between 1981 and 1992, the economy has created 446,000 new manufacturing jobs since January 1993. In the auto industry, after losing 46,000 jobs in the auto industry during the Bush Administration, we have 154,000 new auto jobs during the Clinton-Gore Administration. And for the first time since the 1970s, America has led the world in auto production for four years in a row.

Record-Low Unemployment for African Americans and Hispanics. Under President Clinton and Vice President Gore, the African-American unemployment rate has fallen from 14.1 percent in January 1993 to 7.8 percent in January 1999 -- its lowest level on record (data first collected in 1972). And the Hispanic unemployment rate has dropped from 11.3 percent in January 1993 to 6.6 percent in January 1999 -- its lowest level ever recorded (data first collected in 1973).

Inflation -- Lowest Since 1950s. Last week, the GDP numbers were released. In 1998, the GDP price index rose 1.0 percent at an annual rate -- its lowest level since the 1950s.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release
1999

February 5,

PRESIDENT CLINTON NAMES BETSY LEVITT COHN, CYNTHIA FRIEDMAN, ALICE
KANDELL, HILARY ROSEN AND HOWARD A. TULLMAN AS MEMBERS OF THE PRESIDENT,S COMMITTEE ON THE ARTS AND THE HUMANITIES

The President today announced his intent to appoint Betsy Levitt Cohn, Cynthia Friedman, Alice Kandell, Hilary Rosen and Howard A. Tullman as Members of the President,s Committee on the Arts and the Humanities.

Ms. Betsy Levitt Cohn, of New York City, New York, is a retired executive from the advertising and entertainment fields. Originally employed in 1959 as a secretary at Kenyon & Eckhardt Advertising, she rose into the management ranks, first as Head of Casting and then as Director of Public Relations. In 1975, Ms. Cohn joined Paramount Pictures as Director of Marketing (Non-Theatrical), then became a Consultant for Showtime from 1977 through 1982, and was Director of Pay TV MGM/UA from 1982 until her retirement in 1986. In the non-profit sector, Ms. Cohn has served in a number of leadership roles, including the Volunteer Council of the New York Philharmonic, where she oversaw the Philharmonic in Central Park program, and she serves on the Board of Directors of New Dramatists, the Lincoln Center Theater Patron Committee and Co-Chaired the Lincoln Center Jazz Benefit. She received her B.S. from Syracuse University.

Ms. Cynthia Friedman, of Chevy Chase, Maryland, is co-owner and member of the Board of Directors of the Union Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh. Previously, she was Vice President of Emglo Products in Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Ms. Friedman has also served as National Chair of the Women,s Leadership Forum of the Democratic National Committee and on the Boards of Directors of the Southern Alleghenies Museum of Art in Pennsylvania and the Johnstown Symphony Orchestra. Both organizations provide a high quality of cultural outreach into smaller communities in Western Pennsylvania. She also provided the leadership to raise the necessary funds and spearhead the restoration of Johnstown,s historic railway station. Ms. Friedman also serves on the Board of Directors of Ballet Florida and the Collectors Committee of the National Gallery of Art. She received a B.S. in Psychology, with a Minor in Fine Arts from the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Alice Kandell, of New York City, New York, is a child psychologist formerly affiliated with Mt. Sinai Hospital. Additionally, Dr. Kandell is an author and professional photographer, having published books on subjects ranging from Mountaintop Kingdom: Sikkim to children,s books such as Max the Music Maker and Ben,s ABC Day. Dr. Kandell is also Vice President of the Board of the International League for Human Rights and President of the International Vocal Arts Institute, whose faculty is affiliated with the Metropolitan Opera. She also performs in non-singing roles with the Metropolitan Opera in New York. Dr. Kandell was a participant in President Clinton,s November 1997 retreat at Amelia Island, discussing children in the arts and is a member of the President,s Circle of the National Academy of Sciences. She received her Doctorate in Child Psychology from Harvard University.

Ms. Hilary B. Rosen, of Chevy Chase, Maryland, is President and Chief Executive Officer of the Recording Industry Association of America, a trade association with more than 350 member companies responsible for creating, manufacturing, or distributing 90 percent of all legitimate sound recordings sold in the U.S. She is also a founder and board member of Rock the Vote, an organization encouraging young people to become more involved in the political process. Ms. Rosen serves on many non-profit boards including LifeBeat, The Human Rights Campaign Foundation, the National Music Council, the National Advisory Council for Artists for a Hate Free America, Y.E.S. to Jobs and the National Cancer Foundation. Previously in her career, she was a Vice-President for the lobbying firm of Liz Robbins Associates, and worked for former Governor Brendan Byrne (D-NJ) and on the transition teams of Senators Bill Bradley (D-NJ) and Feinstein (D-CA). Ms. Rosen studied international business at George Washington University.

Mr. Howard A. Tullman, of Chicago, Illinois, is the Chairman and CEO, and one of the founders of JAMTV Corporation, which operates music mega-sites on the Internet. Previously, Mr. Tullman was President and CEO of Imagination Pilots, Inc., a multimedia software developer specializing in CD-ROM games, including Blown Away, Eraser, Panic in the Park, Where,s Waldo?, At the World Wide Games, and SNAP,s Math Parade. Earlier, he founded a number of companies involved in providing computerized services and databases to businesses, educational institutions and consumers. Mr. Tullman also teaches an MBA class called "Start-Ups: Start to Finish" and lectures regularly on venturing and entrepreneurship at the J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Management at Northwestern University. He is also an active art collector, lender and donor to museums, including the Smart Museum of Art of the University of Chicago, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Chicago Children,s Museum and the Milwaukee Art Museum. Mr. Tullman received his B.A. from Northwestern University and his J.D. from the same institution,s School of Law.

The President,s Committee on the Arts and the Humanities was established in order to advise the President, the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities concerning ways to promote private sector support for the arts and the humanities, especially at the state and local level.
