Dear Mrs. Clinton,

We visited Washington,D.C. last October. We had a great time and saw a lot of wonderful sights. Now we are preparing activities for the FUN PAGES of the Boston Globe. Our topic is Washington,D.C. One of the activities we decided to do was an interview with some interesting person. We all voted to do an interview with Chelsea, but when the editor of the paper called the White House they said, "No way!" Our class thinks it's cool that you and the President are trying to give Chelsea a normal life. It can't be easy for her. So we wanted to know if you would answer some questions for us instead. There aren't many of them because we know how busy you are. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Finney:

Enclosed are copies of letters and a list of questions that I sent in December. Marie Franklin, the Children's Editor of the Boston Globe, asked me to send you another set of papers. We would really like to have Mrs. Clinton respond to the questions so that we can use the interview in our edition of the Fun Pages. However, we now have a deadline of May 1st, so we will need the answers back to us soon. Please help us in this endeavor.

Sincerely,

Jean Hadjigeorgiou

Dear Mrs. Clinton:

Last October the 5th graders of our school had the opportunity to visit Washington, D.C. for four days. It was a wonderful learning experience for them and it made our study of American history and government come alive for them.

We now have the honor of preparing several articles and activities about Washington for the Boston Globe. They will run in the Fun Pages of the Sunday edition of the Globe in the spring. I am enclosing a copy of the Fun Pages.

The 5th graders would like to do an interview with you for our Fun Pages. We realize you are very busy, but we can be flexible and work with your schedule. We can do it through the mail or fax the questions to your office. Please let us know if this would be possible. It would be something the children would always remember.

Sincerely,

Jean Hadjigeorgiou
