First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton

Hillary Rodham Clinton is a lifetime advocate for children and families. While First Lady of Arkansas, she founded Arkansas Advocates for Children and Families, chaired the Arkansas Education Standards Committee, and introduced the Home Instruction Program for Preschool Youth (HIPPY) program, a pioneering program to train parents to work with their children in preschool preparedness and literacy.

Since becoming First Lady, she has assumed major policy responsibilities, heading the President's Task Force on National Health Care Reform. In her recent trip to southeast Asia, she displayed her knowledge and commitment to women and children, and continues to speak out on these issues.

Mrs. Clinton has spoken often about the need "to find the right balance in our lives." For her, the elements of that balance are family, work and public service.

FRAC is proud that the First Lady is the Keynote speaker at its Anniversary Dinner, and welcomes the addition of her voice to those working to fight hunger, and support children and families across the United States.

She has continued to work on education, and children's issues and has been a strong spokesperson for healthcare reform.
