Dear Ms. Williams:

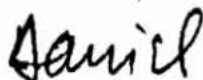

I have read that Mrs. Clinton is coming to New York on Thursday, April 13th to be honored at the Outstanding Mother Luncheon. I know there is no busier woman on the face of the planet, but all of us here at "Late Show" were hoping that maybe, on the heels of her successful trip to South Asia and Africa, this might be the time to revisit an appearance with us. As I'm sure you're aware, our offices have been talking about this a long, long time.

This would be a very gentle, easy-going interview. David Letterman is a huge fan of Mrs. Clinton's. And, as you may already know, it isn't even really an "interview." Both parties know in advance the direction of the interview-- and also know the questions and responses. (If it would help I can fax you the segment notes prepared for Vice President Gore and Former President Carter).

I'd normally take this up with Lisa Caputo-- but I understand she is travelling with the First Lady until Wednesday. With the First Lady's scheduling being what it is, I thought it best to address this as soon as possible.

Thank you in advance for any and all consideration.

All the Best,

Daniel Kellison
