Dear Marjorie:

Your caring and thoughtful letter meant so much to me. Our friends continue to be an enormous source of encouragement, support and strength -- we are richly blessed and deeply grateful.

Bill and I realized full well that this journey would take us through valleys and along uncertain paths, as well as over mountaintops. We will continue to press forward with the important goals of his Presidency which will affect people's lives and make lasting differences for our great country.

Thanks for being our friend and for sharing those goals.

With best regards and gratitude, I am

Dear Ms. Clinton:

Enclosed please find a copy of information I recently received from a constituent regarding a wellness apparatus that he has designed and is in the process of promoting. This diagnostic screening apparatus, if properly used and promoted could assist in cutting the high cost of testing procedures made by physicians.

Would you be so kind as to review this information, and make recommendations to your task force.

Dear Mrs. Clinton:

As a psychiatrist and the "primary care" physician for the mentally ill, and a patient advocate, I urge your strong support for coverage of treatment of mental illness (including substance abuse) within the President's health care reform proposal under the same terms and conditions as other non-psychiatric medical illnesses.

Your personal leadership - and the work of other Administration leaders including the tireless efforts of Mrs. Gore - have given psychiatrists, and more importantly patients and their families, hope that the President's health care reform proposal would end the tragic historic inappropriate discrimination against persons with mental illness. Psychiatry has always fought to end the stigma - rooted in fear and ignorance - that adversely affects our patients' lives simply by virtue of their diagnosis. Indeed, recent studies by the NIMH have confirmed the validity of our argument that treatment of mental illness (including substance abuse) has the same scientific validity and proven clinical effectiveness as does treatment of other medical disorders.

The New York Times said you personally doubted that mental illness would be subject to the same medical necessity criteria for coverage of treatment as other medical illnesses and I was deeply concerned. Certainly the cost constraints you face as you consider various options for health care reform are serious and realistic and all patients and physicians should have the same coverage of benefits, subject to the same scope and duration, same protocols, the same reviews, and the same costs controls. I want to urge you in the strongest possible terms to stand firm on behalf of non-discriminatory coverage for the millions of Americans who suffer from mental illness.

We continue to need the President and your help and leadership so patients' psychiatric treatment is covered equitably subject to the same limits and service requirements as any other medical disorder under national health care reform.

Thank you again for your support. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Dear Doctors:

Thank you for your letter discussing the medical malpractice situation and its effect on health care.

The Health Care Task Force is exploring this issue as it takes a new look at our system of providing health care in America. Rest assured that we will take whatever steps are necessary to ensure that families in this country have access to the best quality health care in the world at an affordable price. If malpractice reform is necessary to achieve this goal, we will not hesitate to propose changes in this area.

Thank you for forwarding Mr. Joseph J. McGrory's letter. Mr. McGrory's letter was forwarded to the working groups of the President's Task Force on National Health Care for careful review.

The Task Force has concluded its work. However, the President would be pleased to receive any additional recommendations that Mr. McGrory would like to provide in writing.

Dear Ms. Clinton:

I recently received a letter from one of my constituents, Dr. Marisa Weiss, concerning an upcoming symposium, "Living Beyond Breast Cancer," that will take place in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in November 1993.

Dr. Weiss and I would be honored for you to be the keynote speaker at this year's symposium. No one better exemplifies the national effort to bring attention to women's health care needs than you.

"Living Beyond Breast Cancer," was established to assist women with the complex medical, psychological and social issues which women face after completing primary treatment for breast cancer.

The date of the event can be arranged to accommodate your schedule; they have advised me that either November 6th or November 13th would be good possibilities. Dr. Weiss will provide us with the specifics of the symposium as soon as she hears back from us.

Knowing of your interest in women's health issues, I hope that you will be able to highlight this symposium with your attendance. If you need any extra information, please do not hesitate to let me know. I look forward to hearing from you.

Warm regards,

Marjorie Margolies-Mezvinsky

Caring for Your New Flag

Congratulations — the Annin flag you have purchased is one of the very finest made. Given reasonable care it should provide maximum service and satisfaction. Here are a few simple suggestions to help you enjoy your new flag longer:

1. Only flags made specifically for exterior use should be displayed outdoors.
2. For best results, do not expose your flag to rain, snow or abnormally high winds; these forces of nature can shorten its life considerably. Should the flag become wet, it should be spread out and allowed to dry completely. Do not fold or roll-up a wet or damp flag.
3. To keep its rich colors looking bright, clean your flag regularly, before soiling and discoloration from dirt, smoke, dust and other airborne contaminants "set" in the fabric. Outdoor flags can be hand-washed with warm water and a mild soap, then thoroughly rinsed and spread out to dry. Do not let the flag stand in the wash water or you might experience some color "make-off" onto the white stripes. Professional dry cleaning is recommended for indoor/parade flags. Incidentally, many establishments will clean Old Glory free of charge, especially during the period just prior to Flag Day, June 14.
4. Do not place the flag where the wind will whip it against rough surfaces, tree branches, wires, cables, etc. The smallest tear can soon result in a tattered flag. Keep pole surfaces free of heavy dirt, rust, scale and corrosion that could damage your flag.
5. Inspect your flag regularly for signs of wear. In particular, look for "normal wear" fabric or thread breaks which may occur in the "fly" end. This is the end farthest from the staff. Trimming off and re-hemming torn or frayed ends will help extend the life of your flag.

How long will a flag last? There is no exact answer. The U.S. Government generally expects a nylon or cotton bunting flag to last approximately 90 days, based on daily usage from sunrise to sunset — but not during periods of inclement weather. Tests have shown that in some cases a flag flown 24 hours a day will last only one-fourth as long as one flown during daylight hours only.

Regardless of how well it is constructed, a flag is, after all, only a piece of cloth and will sooner or later succumb to the elements. However, it has been well documented that reasonably good care can contribute greatly to longer life.

Note to Large Flag Users (12 x 18 ft. and up)

Larger flags naturally represent a more significant investment and as such, should be given maximum protection. Pay special attention to paragraph #5 and keep your flag in good repair. Consider having two flags and rotating them on a regular basis. Tests have shown that flag fibers actually benefit from periodic "rest". Also, you will not be without a flag while one is being cleaned or repaired.

Part No. 9850007

Churches, Auditoriums

When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, the flag of the United States of America should hold the position of superior prominence, in advance of the audience, and in the position of honor at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the audience. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the clergyman or speaker or the right of the audience.

Caskets

When the flag is used to cover a casket, it should be so placed that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground.

National Anthem

During the rendition of the national anthem when the flag is displayed, all present except those in uniform should stand at attention facing the flag with the right hand over the heart. Men not in uniform should remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Persons in uniform should render the military salute at the first note of the anthem and retain this position until the last note. When the flag is not displayed, those present should face toward the music and act in the same manner they would if the flag were displayed there.

Pledge of Allegiance

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag should be rendered by standing at attention facing the flag with the right hand over the heart. When not in uniform men should remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Persons in uniform should remain silent, face the flag, and render the military salute.

Half-Staff

The flag, when flown at half-staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. On Memorial Day the flag should be displayed at half-staff until noon only, then raised to the top of the staff. By order of the President, the flag shall be flown at half-staff upon the death of principal figures of the United States Government and the Governor of a State, territory or possession, as a mark of respect to their memory. In the event of the death of other officials or foreign dignitaries, the flag is to be displayed at half-staff according to the Presidential instructions or orders, or in accordance with recognized customs or practices not inconsistent with law.

In the event of the death of a present or former official of the government of any State, territory or possession of the United States, the Governor of that State, territory or possession may proclaim that the National flag may be flown at half-staff.

Wearing Apparel, Drapery

The flag should never be used as wearing apparel, bedding, or drapery. It should never be festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds, but always allowed to fall free. Bunting of blue, white, and red, always arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below, should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping the front of a platform, and for decoration in general.

No part of the flag should ever be used as a costume or athletic uniform. However, a flag patch may be affixed to the uniform of military personnel, firemen, policemen, and members of patriotic organizations. The flag represents a living country and is itself considered a living thing. Therefore, the lapel flag pin being a replica, should be worn on the left lapel near the heart.

Advertising

The flag should never be used for advertising purposes in any manner whatsoever. It should not be embroidered on such articles as cushions or handkerchiefs and the like, printed or otherwise impressed on paper napkins or boxes or anything that is designed for temporary use and discard. Advertising signs should not be fastened to a staff or halyard from which the flag is flown.

Disposal

The flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

Flag Holidays

The flag should be displayed on all days, especially . . .

NEW YEAR'S DAY, January 1

INAUGURATION DAY, January 20

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY, February 12

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY, third Monday in February

EASTER SUNDAY, (variable)

MOTHER'S DAY, second Sunday in May

THANKSGIVING DAY, fourth Thursday in November

. . . such other days as may be proclaimed by the President of the United States; the birthdays of States (date of admission); and on State holidays.

The rules and customs presented herein are in accordance with the July 7, 1976 amendment to the Flag Code (Public Law 94-344, 94th Congress, S.J. Res. 49).

Our Flag

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The National Flag represents the living country and is considered to be a living thing emblematic of the respect and pride we have for our nation. Our flag is a precious possession. Display it proudly.

There are certain fundamental rules of Heraldry which, if understood, generally indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. The right arm, which is the sword arm and the point of danger, is the place of honor. Hence, the union of the flag is the place of honor or the honor point.

The National Emblem is a symbol of our great country, our heritage and our place in the world. We owe reverence and respect to our flag.

It represents the highest ideals of individual liberty, justice and equal opportunity for all.

General Display

It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaves in the open. However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed twenty-four hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.

The flag should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

The flag should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement, except when an all-weather flag is displayed.

The flag should be displayed daily, on or near the main administration building of every public institution . . . in or near every polling place on election days . . . during school days in or near every schoolhouse.

No other flag or pennant should be placed above or, if on the same level, to the right of the flag of the United States of America, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea . . . for personnel of the Navy . . . when the church pennant may be flown above the flag.

No person shall display the flag of the United Nations or any other national or international flag equal, above, or in a position of superior prominence or honor to, or in place of, the flag of the United States at any place within the United States or any Territory or possession thereof: Provided, that nothing in this section shall make unlawful the continuance of the practice heretofore followed of displaying the flag of the United Nations in a position of superior prominence or honor, with that of the flag of the United States at the headquarters of the United Nations.

The flag of the United States of America, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

The flag of the United States of America should be at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of States or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

When flags of States, cities, or localities, or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the flag of the United States should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant may be placed above the flag of the United States or to the United States flag's right.

When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

When the flag of the United States is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of a building, the 'union' of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half-staff. When the flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out, union first, from the building.

When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left. When displayed in a window, the flag should be displayed in the same way, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street.

When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the North in an East and West street or to the East in a North and South street.

The flag should never be displayed with the union down, except as a signal of dire distress in instances of extreme danger to life or property.

The flag should never touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, the floor, water or merchandise.

The flag should never be fastened, displayed, used, or stored in such a manner as to permit it to be easily torn, soiled, or damaged in any way.

The flag should never be used as a covering for a ceiling. The flag should never have placed upon it, nor on any part of it, nor attached to it any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture, or drawing of any nature.

The flag should never be used as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying, or delivering anything.

Parades, Ceremonies

The flag, when carried in a procession or with another flag or flags, should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, or, if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

The flag should not be displayed on a float in a parade except from a staff (or as against a wall or in a window).

The flag should form a distinctive feature of the ceremony of unveiling a statue or monument. But it should never be used as the covering for the statue or monument.

That no disrespect should be shown to the flag of the United States of America, the flag should not be dipped to any person or thing. Regimental colors, State flags, and organization or institutional flags are to be dipped as a mark of honor.

The flag should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in review, all persons present except those in uniform should face the flag and stand at attention with the right hand over the heart. Those present in uniform should render the military salute. When not in uniform, men should remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Aliens should stand at attention. The salute to the flag in a moving column should be rendered at the moment the flag passes.

To fold the flag ceremoniously, first fold it lengthwise, bringing the striped half up over the blue field. Then repeat, with the blue field on the outside. Beginning at the lower right, make a series of triangular folds until the flag resembles a cocked hat with only the blue field visible.

Vehicles

The flag should not be draped over the hood, top, sides, or back of a vehicle or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motorcar, the staff shall be fixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the right fender.

Corridors, Lobbies

When the flag is suspended across a corridor or lobby in a building with only one main entrance, it should be suspended vertically with the union of the flag to the observer's left upon entering. If the building has more than one main entrance, the flag should be suspended vertically near the center of the corridor or lobby with the union to the North when entrances are to the East or West — or to the East when entrances are to the North and South. If there are entrances in more than two directions, the union should be to the East.

Dear Representative Margolies-Mezvinsky:

Thank you for sending me the information you received from you constituent, Robert De Maria, regarding a diagnostic screening apparatus that he is promoting. As you may know, the Health Care Task Force and the health care reform working groups terminated at the end of May. However, I will share the information you have provided with the President's health care advisors in the Office of Domestic Policy for their careful review.

Again, thank you for contacting me.

Sincerely,

Hillary Rodham Clinton

Dear Mrs. Clinton:

I am writing to request that you meet with an important group of physicians from my district who are associated with the Federation Allied Jewish Appeal (FAJA) on April 13, 1994. These physicians are traveling to Washington, D.C., to learn more about health care reform efforts and your appearance would be greatly appreciated. I have enclosed a copy of their invitation to you for your review.

You have previously spoken with Dr. Katz, the organizer of the Mission to Washington, regarding the overuse and abuse of "high ticket" technology. Dr. Katz is bringing approximately 150 physicians to Washington to discuss health care reform issues, and he would like to introduce you to more of southeastern Pennsylvania's world-class physicians.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter. I hope you will be able to schedule this appointment. I look forward to your response.

Warm regards,

Marjorie Margolies-Mezvinsky
