Dear Ms. Williams:

My sense is that President Bill Clinton has much the same commitment to helping people that Lyndon Johnson had. President Clinton is the first Oval Office occupant since Johnson that appreciates government's responsibility to flex its muscles on behalf of the most vulnerable and average Americans. His economic message to Congress resonated with the kinds of domestic programs that succeeded in the 1960's. I'm sending along this book, focused as it is on LBJ's battles for social justice and what life was really like in LBJ's White House, because I hope that President Clinton and you can learn from our achievements and mistakes--and have a good read to boot. Good luck.

Sincerely,

Joseph A. Califano, Jr.
