Dear Mr. Bennett:

Thank you for your timely letter expressing support for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

We now are engaged in a thorough review of ACDA's future. The review is concentrating on ways to restructure the agency's work in order to respond to the high priority that I place on arms control and nonproliferation. Meanwhile, ACDA continues to play an important role in our interagency deliberations.

I share your view that this country has benefitted from ACDA's fine work over the years and I admire your efforts to help create the Agency. I can assure you that the points you raise will be given full consideration.

Dear Mr. President:

It has come to my attention that a proposal has been put forth to absorb the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency into the State Department. As the originator of the legislation that created ACDA I want to register my strong disapproval of this proposal.

In 1960, I introduced the first bill to create a National Peace Agency because it seemed clear to me that the President and the Congress needed an independent agency that was solely devoted to providing focused analysis and perspective on arms control, disarmament and peace activities. Existing executive agencies, including the State Department, were simply not able to provide this type of independent and focused analysis because each had to weigh numerous other imperatives in making policy decisions. Senators Hubert Humphrey and Jack Kennedy agreed with this reasoning and introduced identical legislation in the Senate. Eventually President Kennedy signed the law that created ACDA.

The State Department opposed the idea of creating the arms control agency then, as it apparently does now, for reasons that are bureaucratic and which ignore the true security needs of our nation. The reality is that the nation has benefitted from the establishment and fine work of ACDA for many decades. We are more secure as a result. It is my strongly held belief that a vibrant and independent ACDA will prove invaluable as we face the difficult security challenges of the post-Cold War era.

As a veteran of the U.S. Congress for over 40 years, almost all of them spent as a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I watched first hand the rise and ebb of the Cold War tide. That conflict cost our country dearly in national treasure and lives. When one considers this enormous cost it seems clear that our nation can, and should, afford one agency devoted solely to the pursuit of peace.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely,
Charles E. Bennett

DRAFT REPLY

Dear Mr. Bennett:

I admire your efforts to bring about the creation of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and your support for its mission. As you know, I have repeatedly stressed non-proliferation as a key element of our foreign policy agenda. Determining how to use the expertise and resources of ACDA to the greatest advantage is a critical step in our efforts to limit weapons proliferation and successfully negotiate and implement arms control agreements.

A review of ACDA's future role is underway within the Administration. You should know that one of the proposals being considered is to strengthen ACDA. Let me assure you that the views expressed in your letter are being considered in this review process.

Sincerely,

William J. Clinton

Dear Senator Pell:

I am responding on behalf of the Secretary to your letter of April 19 on the future role of ACDA. Let me thank you on his behalf for your thoughts and for sharing your correspondence with President Clinton on this issue.

As you know, the President and Secretary Christopher have repeatedly identified non-proliferation as a key element of the Administration's foreign policy agenda. Determining how to use the expertise and resources of ACDA to the greatest advantage is a critical step in our efforts to limit weapons proliferation and successfully negotiate and implement arms control agreements.

Let me assure you that a proposal to strengthen ACDA is being given serious consideration. Your views and the proposal put forward in the draft bill you have developed will be given every consideration as we work to bring this issue to a decision.

We have reviewed and recommend that you concur with the proposed amendments to the Warrant Officer Management Act. This bill extends authority to the Department of Defense to apply involuntary separation provisions to warrant officers, as is now the case with commissioned officers and enlisted service members, in order to comply with force reduction goals. It also authorizes comparable separation benefits.

The bill does not affect the defense budget significantly. It has been concurred in by all other reviewing agencies.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20301-1600

DRAFT FOR
REVIEW

Honorable Thomas S. Foley
Speaker of the House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Enclosed is a draft of legislation "To amend title 10, United States Code, to authorize the Secretaries of the military departments to discharge involuntarily warrant officers within their departments."

This proposal is part of the Department of Defense Legislative Program for the 103d Congress, and the Office of Management and Budget advises that, from the standpoint of the Administration's program, there is no objection to the presentation of the proposal for the consideration of the Congress.

Purpose of the Legislation

The Department of Defense must significantly reduce its active duty forces by fiscal year 1995. To facilitate force reductions, the Congress, in section 521 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991 (hereinafter the Act), provided the Secretaries of the military departments with the authority, upon approval of the Secretary of Defense, to convene selection boards to consider regular officers on the active duty list for involuntary discharge.

Section 521 amended chapter 36 of title 10, United States Code, by inserting a new section 638a. The new section authorizes the Secretaries concerned to convene selection boards to consider for involuntary discharge regular officers in a grade below lieutenant colonel or commander who have served at least one year of active duty in the grade currently held, whose names are not on a list of officers recommended for promotion, and who are not eligible to retire and not within two years of becoming so eligible. The section indicates specifically that a discharge under the section shall be considered to be involuntary for any other provision of law. Consequently, officers discharged under section 638a will be eligible for separation pay under section 1174 of title 10 and other readjustment benefits authorized by section 502 of the Act, such as transitional health care.

MAY 6 '93 12:54 FROM OSD-LRS

TO PETERSON

PAGE.004

The Explanatory Statement in the Conference Report that accompanied the Act indicates that the conferees "expect the military services to maintain the same relationship between officer and enlisted strengths existing at the end of fiscal year 1990 in making active duty end strength reductions in the future." H.R. Rep. No. 923, 101st Cong., 2d Sess. 597 (1990). To maintain this relationship and balanced officer end strengths, the Department of Defense believes it is necessary to have statutory authority to include regular warrant officers in any involuntary separations that may be necessary. This proposal would amend the Warrant Officer Management Act, chapter 33A of title 10, by inserting a new section 580a, paralleling those subsections of section 638a which deal with the involuntary separation of regular commissioned officers on the active duty list. While the Department of Defense believes that this force management authority is necessary, the intent is to use voluntary separation authority to the maximum extent possible.

Cost and Budget Data

If enacted, this proposal would not increase the budgetary requirements of the Department of Defense.

Sincerely,

Enclosure

The Honorable Bill Clinton
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

As you are aware, we have worked over many years to secure a nuclear testing moratorium. Last year, the House of Representatives adopted the Kopetski amendment to the Defense Authorization bill, advocating a one-year moratorium on nuclear testing by the United States. Senator Hatfield and Senator Mitchell took that amendment and refined it into the Hatfield amendment to the Energy and Water Appropriations bill, not only imposing a nine-month moratorium, but also placing restrictions on the number of tests and mandating a final conclusion to our testing program.

We appreciate your support during the campaign for ending our testing program and encourage you to move forward as quickly as possible for a test ban as well as working for a strengthened nuclear non-proliferation regime. Even though we reached a compromise on the testing program last year, we are greatly concerned about the effect that resumption of testing by the U.S. would have on our credibility in any international negotiations.

With all due respect, let us outline to you a three-point program for achieving a comprehensive test ban:

First, that you consider convening a session of the Limited Test Ban Treaty Amendment Conference (LTBT) on August 5, 1993, the 30th anniversary of the Treaty, President Kennedy's crowning arms control achievement, to resume work on achieving a multi-lateral comprehensive test ban and that the meeting be in Washington, D.C.

Second, that the U.S. invite the other four declared nuclear powers to begin negotiations with the United States regarding the comprehensive test ban at the earliest possible date.

Third, that the United States and Russia agree to end all testing by March 1995, before the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty extension conference and that the current moratorium will be extended. Further testing will not be for modernization but strictly for practical preparations for a permanent halt to testing.

The Honorable Bill Clinton

Mr. President, we would be pleased to discuss this matter with you or the appropriate Administration officials at your earliest convenience.

MEMORANDUM FOR DIRECTOR DEFENSE POLICY AND ARMS CONTROL,
NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

THRU: ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE (C3I) C. H. H. 27 APR 1993
SUBJECT: Membership Nomination to the President's National Security
Telecommunications Advisory Committee

1. I received an April 15, 1993 letter from Ms. Laramie F. McNamara, Director of Federal Relations, TRW, Inc., nominating Mr. Joseph T. Gorman, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of TRW, to be appointed a member of the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC). This nomination has been evaluated using the same criteria employed for past NSTAC membership determinations (see enclosure 1).

2. From the NSTAC's original inception in 1982, Dr. Ruben Mettler, the Chief Executive Officer of TRW at that time, was a member of the NSTAC until his retirement in 1988. TRW has not been represented on the NSTAC since then. Dr. Mettler's successor was the current nominee, Mr. Gorman, who felt he could not effectively support the NSTAC at that time, with all the additional responsibilities he had just acquired from Dr. Mettler. Reallocations of corporate responsibilities and his leadership in industry/Government activities have recently enhanced Mr. Gorman's opportunities to dedicate TRW's resources to NSTAC activities. As a Fortune 100 company, TRW's resources, including 60,000 employees, cover a significant mix of telecommunications infrastructure provisioning, satellite communications programs, ground based information systems, and production of advanced products supporting telecommunications technology. Mr. Gorman's leadership and TRW's resources would bring back to the NSTAC a deep and broad understanding of the evolving technological and telecommunications policy issues our Nation faces today.

3. Four of the thirty NSTAC positions authorized by Executive Order 12382 are currently available. We believe Mr. Gorman and the TRW resources he would commit to the NSTAC would help provide valuable insight to the President, and we therefore recommend that Mr. Gorman be appointed to represent TRW as a member of the NSTAC.

4. Please direct any questions or requests for additional information to Captain Harvey J. Gannon, USN, at (703) 692-9274.

Dear General Short:

As you know, TRW's former Chairman, Dr. Ruben Mettler, was a National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC) principal and, as such, TRW is well aware of the excellent framework that the NSTAC provides for joint industry government planning on national security and emergency preparedness telecommunications plans, policies and procedures.

TRW has been involved for several decades in the growth of the nation's telecommunications infrastructure in space, large scale ground-based networks, and advanced communication technology. TRW leadership in space communication is exemplified by such programs as global communication satellites for Intelsat, Tracking and Data Relay Satellites for NASA, Fleet Communication Satellites for the Navy, and most recently communication payloads for the Military Strategic, Tactical, and Relay Satellite (MILSTAR) for defense-wide application. In ground-based systems, TRW has provided communication systems engineering for the Army Worldwide Military Command and Control System and we operate a nationwide packet switching communication network for the delivery of consumer credit reports. In communication technologies we are leaders in microwave integrated circuits, diode lasers, electro-optics, image processing and highly advanced antennas. At TRW, telecommunications technology and expertise are fundamental to most of our advanced systems.

TRW is a Fortune 100 company. In 1992 the company had revenues of $8.3 billion. Our 60,000 employees serve customers in more than 22 countries around the world.

TRW has the global insight, resources and the technical expertise to assure a quality, value-added contribution to the NSTAC mission. Therefore, I recommend that Mr. Joseph T. Gorman, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of TRW, be appointed to the NSTAC. Mr. Gorman is well-known for his leadership in government industry alliances. In addition to other positions, Mr. Gorman is the Chairman of the U.S.-Japan Business Council and the Chairman of the Business Roundtable Task Force on Education. He is known in industry and government circles as not only a leader, but also a team player, and as one who is actively involved in policy issues of importance to our nation. Mr. Gorman will commit TRW's resources, including my time and energy, as a member of the Industry Executive Committee. Enclosed is a copy of Mr. Gorman's biography. Please contact me at (703) 276-5037 if I can be of any future assistance.

LTG Alonzo E. Short, Jr.
Director, Defense Information Systems Agency

Arlington, Virginia 22204-2199

Dear General Short:

I would like to express the continuing interest of Unisys Corporation in membership on the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC). As you know, Fred Jenny, who had served as our representative on the Committee since 1986, passed away recently. I am pleased to nominate Albert F. Zettlemoyer as the Unisys representative on the NSTAC.

Al Zettlemoyer is President of Paramax, a Unisys company, and a Senior Vice President of Unisys Corporation. A recognized leader in the defense industry, Al's extensive experience in business management, program management, systems integration, manufacturing and international operations makes him exceptionally well qualified to represent Unisys on the NSTAC. Prior to joining Unisys in 1986, Al served IBM in various management and executive positions. His biographical data are attached.

Unisys is a leader in providing systems solutions to its customers, including many major telecommunications companies. We have extensive know-how in the full range of technologies that are driving the telecommunications revolution. I believe this corporate expertise is fundamentally relevant to the NSTAC's activities.

I am confident that Unisys continued membership in NSTAC, and Al Zettlemoyer's personal contribution and commitment, will be of significant value to the Committee. Please advise me of the Committee's decision.

Sincerely,

THROUGH: ROBERT BELL RLB

FROM: KEITH HAHN KH

SUBJECT: National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee Membership Applications

At Tabs A and B, LGEN Alonzo Short, from the National Communications System, has forwarded applications for membership on the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC). While both companies meet the criteria for membership (outlined at Tab II), he does not recommend that either of the applications be accepted.

Three membership slots are currently available under the membership limit of thirty established by Executive Order 12382. Under this E.O., members of the committee "shall be appointed by the President" based on the particular knowledge and expertise in the field of telecommunications that their companies represent. We recommend that you keep the last three slots for other potential members that might be needed in the future.

The Secretary of Defense, as Executive Agent of the NSTAC, should relay the decision to the applicants.

RECOMMENDATION

That you forward the letter at Tab I to Secretary Aspin recommending that the applications at Tabs A and B not be approved.

MEMORANDUM FOR DIRECTOR OF EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS, NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: Membership Changes of the President's National Security
Telecommunications Advisory Committee

1. In August, I received a letter from Mr. John Warta, President of Electric Lightwave, Inc. (ELI) expressing his company's interest in becoming a member of the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC). This request for NSTAC membership has been evaluated using the criteria employed for past NSTAC membership determinations (see enclosure 1). ELI is a competitive access provider currently serving Seattle, Washington and Portland, Oregon.
2. Representation by a competitive access provider would bring to NSTAC a part of the telecommunications industry that is not currently represented but growing rapidly. However, based upon our evaluation we do not recommend ELI be added to the membership of the NSTAC. Metropolitan Fiber Systems Communications Company, Inc. (MFSCC), a competitive access provider, has already been recommended for NSTAC membership and would represent this part of the industry.
3. Please direct any questions or requests for additional information to CAPT Dennis I. Parsons, USN at 692-9274.

SUBJECT: National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee
Membership

1. In December 1992, I received a letter from Mr. Theodore R. Wieber, Jr., President of Scientific-Atlanta's Electronic Systems Division expressing his company's interest in becoming a member of the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC). This request for NSTAC membership has been evaluated using the criteria employed for past NSTAC membership determinations (see enclosure 1). Scientific-Atlanta represents the latest state-of-the-art in telecommunication, cable, and satellite products and technology, but would not significantly enhance the NSTAC membership.

2. Three membership slots are currently available under the membership limit of thirty established by Executive Order 12382. We believe that this company would not make a major contribution to the NSTAC. We recommend Scientific-Atlanta not be added to the membership of the NSTAC. If selected, Scientific-Atlanta's proposed new member would be Mr. John Breyer, Corporate Senior Vice President and President, Instrumentation Group.

3. Please direct any questions or requests for additional information to CAPT Harvey J. Gannon, USN, at 692-9274.

Mr. Samuel Berger

Dear Mr. Berger,

I write to request a meeting with you on 27 or 28 May 1993 to discuss how the United States can pursue multilateral negotiations of a comprehensive nuclear test ban effectively, despite the negative effects of resumed testing.

Our organization has been in consultation recently with UN diplomats as well as Foreign Minister Ali Alatas of Indonesia and Prime Minister Simha Rao of India. I feel we would be able to provide you with valuable insight as to the likely reaction from the international community to various proposals for negotiating the CTB, while testing takes its final course.

It was with much relief that I read in the New York Times on 15 May that the Clinton Administration's Nuclear Test Ban Working Group had set aside the idea of allowing nuclear testing to continue beyond 1996 below the level of one kiloton. However, the issue of resumed testing - at what level and frequency, and over what time period - remains a thorny question.

Additionally, I have observed that the issue of negotiating forum has been somewhat eclipsed by the resumption question. The two issues are mutually dependent: if the United States is to resume testing, it must first launch a negotiating process which convinces the international community that it is fully committed to achieving a CTB.

During the past ten days, Parliamentarians for Global Action met with diplomats at the United Nations who were in New York for the Disarmament Commission and the NPT Preparatory Committee meeting. There was a great deal of interest and concern about the negotiating forum and how it relates to resumed testing. In our meeting, I would like to transmit to you some of these concerns, and discuss with you how they can be addressed in a way that maximizes the chances for successfully concluding a multilateral CTB agreement.

The United States must effectively coordinate its resumption of testing with a credible commitment to multilateral negotiation of a CTB, in order to achieve the degree of confidence among the international community required for a CTB to have any impact on non-proliferation. The choice of negotiating forum will determine in large part whether the international community views the United States' commitment to a CTB as credible or not.

Our office will contact you shortly to see if a mutually convenient time can be found for us to meet next week while I am in Washington on 27 and 28 May.

I feel that previous meetings with individuals on your staff enabled us to make notable progress in presenting the evolving testing position of the United States to the international community. Soon, they will be presented with the final decision from Washington and will need to respond appropriately. Parliamentarians for Global Action would like again to assist in making this process as smooth as possible.

Thank you very much for your consideration of this highly urgent and timely issue. I look forward to meeting with you and your staff.

Sincerely,

Olafur Ragnar Grímsson, MP
