THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 14, 1994

Dear General McCaffrey:

Congratulations on your new assignment. I have appreciated your service during my Administration as well as your superb record over the years as one of our nation's finest soldiers. Secretary Perry and I have every confidence in your qualifications for this critical responsibility to direct all military forces in the U.S. Southern Command theater and to ensure the safety of our soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines.

You assume your new command at an important time in our relations with Latin America and the Caribbean. We are engaged in building a hemispheric Community of Democracies based on shared political ideals and freer trade. The consolidation of democratic institutions is a top priority for us. We must also continue to work with our neighbors to fight drug traffickers, whose corruption and violence pose a threat to security in the region. You will be ideally placed to promote these strategic objectives by developing and maintaining good relations with your military counterparts.

Barry, the challenges and the opportunities you face are enormous. Your twenty-nine years of distinguished service as a soldier and a leader demonstrate that you have the right skills for this important position.

Hillary and I wish you and Jill all success. Our thoughts and prayers are with you.

Sincerely,

Invitation to National Security Telecommunications
Advisory Committee Events

Tab I provides an advance copy of an invitation you will soon receive to participate in the 16th meeting of the President's National Security Telecommunications Advisory Committee (NSTAC) on March 1-2. Specifically, you are invited to a reception and dinner at the Willard Hotel on the evening of March 1 and an executive Luncheon and Executive Session in the Indian Treaty Room on March 2.

The President and Vice President have also been invited. A scheduling proposal for the President's participation will be provided under separate cover. I will work with the Vice President's office to coordinate his participation.

As you will remember from last year, this is an extremely influential group of executives who, in the past, have provided a valuable service to the Nation. Their support and contributions will be critical in many of the plans for enhanced telecommunications and information programs. We strongly encourage you to attend.

RECOMMENDATION

That you set aside time on your schedule to attend the reception and dinner at the Willard Inter-Continental Hotel on March 1 and the luncheon and Executive Session at the Indian Treaty Room on March 2. If you agree, I will advise the NSTAC of your plans.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

THROUGH: ROBERT BELL *R6B*FROM: KEITH HAHN UH

SUBJECT: Military Nominations - Vice Admiral Malley, et al

At Tab II the Deputy Secretary of Defense recommends that Vice Admiral Kenneth C. Malley be nominated to retire at the rank of vice admiral. The draft letter to the Senate Armed Services Committee refers to potentially adverse information pertaining to VADM Malley that was the subject of a DoD Inspector General inquiry.

We do not believe that this information should preclude VADM Malley from retiring at the rank of vice admiral. The letter to John Podesta at Tab I provides our reasons for this recommendation.

RECOMMENDATION

STATEMENT OF SECRETARY OF DEFENSE WILLIAM J. PERRY IN CONNECTION WITH THE BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT
SENATE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE
FEBRUARY 15, 1994

Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, it is a pleasure to be here today to discuss the likely impact on America's defense posture of the Balanced Budget Amendment now being considered in Congress.

The Balanced Budget Amendment (BBA) would severely jeopardize America's national security, and that is one of the major reasons for the Administration's opposition to it. The BBA would threaten frequent interruptions to the many long-term processes that are essential to maintaining a prudent defense posture. It takes 16 years of schooling and proper assignments to prepare a battalion commander to lead troops into combat. The average major weapons procurement program requires 8 years of development and testing. Production lines are necessarily set up anticipating stable production rates. Repair parts must be ordered three years ahead of anticipated use, in order to ensure the readiness of U.S. forces.

In sum, it would be extremely costly, and essentially unworkable, to turn on and off defense programs, when the BBA forced deep budget cuts. Defense would end up being the primary bill payer to keep federal budgets balanced, and that would fundamentally undermine the security of our nation.

If the Balanced Budget Amendment were adopted, America's defense posture would be vulnerable to two different problems: the impact on defense to reach a zero deficit and the effect on defense in the annual budget process under a BBA.

IMPACT ON DEFENSE TO GET TO A ZERO DEFICIT

(Chart 1) To illustrate the impact of getting to a zero deficit, several assumptions have to be made about the final date and provisions of a BBA. Let us assume that the year of BBA implementation is 1999, and make calculations based on current deficit projections in the President's budget. Balancing the budget on a phased basis--20 percent per year from 1995 through 1999--would require a total of $340 billion in spending cuts and/or revenue increases.

Exactly how much the Department of Defense (DoD) would have to contribute to achieving a zero deficit would depend first on how much revenue would be increased. My model considers two possibilities: no increase in revenues, and a 50-50 split between revenue increases and spending cuts. My model also considers two scenarios regarding entitlements: no cuts in entitlements, and cuts to entitlements in proportion to outlays, which means half the spending cuts would come from entitlements.

14 Feb 0900

(Chart 2) If we array these two pair of alternatives, four illustrative impacts result. With the assumptions and alternatives in my model, FY 1995-99 DoD budget cuts could range from $60 billion to $270 billion.

(Chart 3) Achieving these totals would entail substantial reductions to defense people and programs, which would be in addition to the severe cuts already made or planned. We have compiled illustrative cuts to show the severity of the actions that would be required to eliminating the deficit by 1999; these cuts have a range depending on whether defense must be cut $60 billion (the best case) or $270 billion (the worst case--no revenue increases and no entitlement cuts):

Active military personnel. Cut by 60,000 up to 275,000. By 1999 our plans already call for active strength to fall to 1,452,700--more than 700,000 below FY 1987. Levels will fall by 86,000 in FY 1995.

National Guard and Reserve. Cut by 40,000 up to 170,000. This latter worst case cut would dwarf our carefully planned reduction of 119,000 reservists by 1999 (from FY 1994 levels).

DoD civilians. Reduce by 30,000 to 125,000. Our plans already take levels down to 794,000--about 30 percent below FY 1987.

To reach a zero deficit by 1999, infrastructure and weapons systems also would take drastic cuts. For example, under the worst case ($270 billion) DoD might have to:

Bases/Depots. Close 22 additional bases and 9 depots--beyond the many closures already planned.

Aircraft. Terminate the F/A-18E/F aircraft and C-17 transport, and stretch development of the F-22.

Ships. Cancel the next aircraft carrier, third Seawolf submarine, and new attack submarine--which would not only deprive our forces of these valuable systems, but would also devastate our nation's future ability to construct such vessels.

Theater Missile Defense. Cancel most of our TMD efforts, preventing development of much-needed protection for our forces.

Science and Technology. Cut S&T funding drastically, which would undermine the long-term combat superiority of U.S. weapons.

M-1 Tank. Cancel the upgrading of the M-1 tank, which would have the added consequence of threatening our nation's long-term ability to produce such vehicles. (This cancellation would have to be considered even under the best case.)

14 Feb 0900

Other actions. Shift the Army's Comanche helicopter program to technology demonstration only; cancel numerous improvements to communications, electronics, and intelligence systems; and delay or cancel virtually all other modernization programs.

Reductions such as these would fundamentally change the character of America's military posture, make our new strategy unsupportable, call into question our ability to fulfill U.S. commitments to our allies, and undermine America's global leadership. And if $270 billion had to be cut by 1999, the high readiness and quality of America's armed forces could not be ensured.

(Chart 4) This $270 billion worse case is in fact not as bad as things could get. Small changes in the U.S. economy would mean even bigger budget problems. Using the Congressional Budget Office's rule of thumb, a one percent rise per year in interest rates would increase the federal budget deficit $5 billion in the first year and $108 billion over five years. A one percent fall per year in real growth in the economy would increase the deficit $9 billion in the first year and $289 billion over five years. Thus under a BBA, even modest changes in the economy could trigger sweeping cuts to federal programs.

DEFENSE UNDER A BALANCED BUDGET PROCESS

What about the effect on defense of the annual budget process under a Balanced Budget Amendment? A BBA annual budget process could routinely end up removing from our elected political leaders the decision about what level of defense spending is prudent. America's defense preparedness could get determined by economic shifts, cost growth in entitlements, and other non-defense factors. Even if threats to America's global interests were increasing or our forces deteriorating, the BBA could mandate deep defense cuts.

The fact that these consequences could be avoided with 3/5 approval of each house of Congress is no safeguard. Preservation of an adequate defense posture would become dependent on exceptional political efforts. The BBA process would be heavily skewed in favor of cutting defense to compensate for whatever was escalating elsewhere in the budget. Even when a 3/5 majority minus one in both houses believed that BBA cuts were unjustified, the minority view would prevail. Not exactly ideal for the world's most powerful democracy and best hope for future peace and stability.

Budgeting under BBA would inject great uncertainty and chaos into defense planning, which needs to have stability and a long-term perspective. Many years of research and development are needed to ensure that our forces are never outgunned or outmaneuvered. Production lines should not be stopped and started, in order to offset a downturn in revenues or surge in entitlements. And we definitely cannot recruit and retain top-notch military and civilian professionals, if they are vulnerable to summary dismissal.

DoD is distinct among executive departments in that we have and must have detailed five-year plans. We cannot start and stop programs. Our military and civilian professionals require extensive training and experience.

Defense also is distinct in being uniquely vulnerable under a BBA. We account for about half of all discretionary spending. And that is critical because the BBA has no implementation details. Unless the BBA becomes a vehicle by which revenues are increased or entitlements cut, DoD will have to pay for half of every dollar of deficit reduction.

CLOSING

The Balanced Budget Amendment is not the way to instill fiscal discipline in the federal government. And it certainly is no way to ensure America's strong political, economic, and military leadership in the world.

DoD budget authority, in real terms, has been in decline since FY 1985, and that will continue--as we reshape our defense posture for the post-Cold War world. We are reducing our forces and budgets substantially, but prudently. A Balanced Budget Amendment would cut defense spending to whatever level its arbitrary formula dictated, and thereby displace the carefully considered judgments of Members of Congress, Presidents, and civilian and military leaders as to what spending is necessary and wise. I do not believe such an approach to questions of national security would serve America well.

FEB 4 '94 15:47 FROM OSD-LRS

TO FORSGREN

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Subcommittee

I am very pleased to appear before you today to discuss H.R. 3273, the Military Reserve Retirement Fairness Act. H.R. 3273 would amend title 10, United States Code, to revise the requirements for eligibility under chapter 67 of that title for receipt of retired pay for nonregular service in the Armed Forces. The bill would change the service requirements for eligibility for retired pay for nonregular service by eliminating the current requirement that the last eight years of qualifying service for retirement must be service in a Reserve component. With this revision, the law would no longer ensure that individuals qualifying for Reserve retirement had completed substantial amounts of Reserve service and had made a significant contribution to the Reserves.

A review of the legislative history and subsequent interpretations of section 1331(a) of title 10, United States Code makes clear that the current statutory requirement that the last eight years of qualifying service be in a Reserve component was intended to provide an incentive to members of the Reserve components to perform continuous Reserve service. This provision is essential in order to avoid the possibility that personnel separated from Regular service who are lacking one or two years necessary to qualify for retirement based on their active service not be permitted to avail themselves of Reserve retirement benefits merely by serving in the Reserves for a short period following separation from Regular service.

H.R. 3273 would apply only to members who complete 20 years of service after the date of its enactment. Temporary authority, codified as section 1331a of title 10 and effective through Fiscal Year 1999, authorizes qualification for nonregular retirement at age 60 for certain members of the Selected Reserve after 15 (vice 20) years of qualifying service. This temporary authority has caused some to question if the eight year requirement should be modified. The Department has considered this possibility and concluded that a change to the long-standing, eight-year requirement is not essential to manage the drawdown. We believe that the rationale for the eight year requirement remains sound and that the very substantial program of voluntary and involuntary separation benefits, temporary early retirement authority, and transition benefits and assistance which have been put in place provide substantial fairness to those members leaving active service during this period.
