TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

I am pleased to transmit the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) Annual Report for 1993.

As a national security agency, ACDA works in collaboration with the Department of State and with other agencies of the United States government. This report addresses ACDA's part in national security policy development and implementation.

On July 3, 1993, after a comprehensive review, I decided to strengthen and revitalize ACDA in order for it to play an active role in meeting the arms control and nonproliferation challenges of the post-Cold War era.

This report, although mandated by current law, reflects new priorities for ACDA in pending legislation. This legislation was initially developed under the leadership of the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Claiborne Pell, has received wide bipartisan support in both houses of Congress, and has now been approved by the Senate.

ACDA's revitalization reaffirms and strengthens the agency's key function in developing and implementing arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament policies. A specialized, technically competent, and independent arms control institution remains important to the nation.

ACDA's responsibilities include:

- Providing advice:
 - The ACDA Director acts as principal adviser to the President and the Secretary of State on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament;
 - ACDA provides legal advisers to arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament negotiations.
- Negotiating:
 - leading the U.S. Comprehensive Test Ban negotiating team at the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva;
 - leading the U.S. negotiating team at the 1995 Treaty on the Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons Conference;
 - chairing the Washington backstopping (policy support) group for the Conference on Disarmament;
 - participating in the Safety, Security, and Dismantlement Talks.
- Implementing and verifying:
 - leading the U.S. delegation to the Chemical Weapons Convention Preparatory Commission, and to the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons which will succeed it;
 - leading the U.S. delegations to all meetings and conferences on the Biological Weapons Convention;

- leading the U.S. delegation to the Joint Compliance and Inspection Commission of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty;
- leading the U.S. delegation to the Special Verification Commission of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty;
- leading the U.S. component of the Standing Consultative Commission of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty;
- leading the U.S. delegation to the Bilateral Consultative Commission of the Threshold Nuclear Test Ban Treaty;
- drafting, with interagency coordination, the Annual Report to Congress on Adherence to and Compliance with Arms Control Agreements;
- providing the Principal Deputy Director of the On-Site Inspection Agency;
- participating in the U.S. delegation to the Joint Consultative Group of the Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty;
- participating in the U.S. delegation to the Open Skies Consultative Commission of the Open Skies Treaty.
- Controlling exports:
 - participating in meetings of the Zangger Committee and the Nuclear Suppliers Group on nuclear weapons related exports;
 - participating in meetings of the Australia Group on chemical and biological weapons related exports;

- participating in the meetings of the Missile Technology Control Regime.
- Coordinating and reporting on research on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament.
- Informing and educating the public:
 - leading the Interagency Working Group on Public Diplomacy for Arms Control and Nonproliferation;
 - publishing extensively on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament.

My decision to strengthen and revitalize ACDA, combined with continued Congressional support, will help the U.S. Government move vigorously to eliminate the overarmament of the Cold War, stem the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery, and apply arms control solutions to regional problems.

The Report offers a summary of the broad range of complex issues that ACDA deals with each day; I commend it to your attention.

MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM H. ITOH
EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: SUBMISSION OF THE ACDA ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1993

Attached you will find copies of the 1993 edition of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency's (ACDA) Annual Report, which is due to Congress January 31 of each year, together with a Presidential transmittal letter to the Congress. As required by the ACDA Act, as amended, the Director submits the Report to the President for transmittal to the Congress. I understand from the White House Executive Clerk, whose office has responsibility for actually handling production and insertion of the Presidential letter and transmitting the Report, that ten copies of the Report are required.

The attached Presidential letter and the Report have been cleared in final by the Department of State, the Department of Defense, the Office of Management and Budget and NSC staff (coordinated through the office of Robert Bell, to include the NSC offices of Nick Burns and Dan Poneman).

I also have attached an original memorandum to Mr. Ronald Geisler requesting his office's assistance in handling the Report. ACDA will require copies of the signed Presidential letter returned expeditiously so that we can include it in our final production of the glossy version of 1993 Annual Report. Additionally, we would be grateful if the three (3) extra copies of the Report that are provided to you can be delivered through Mr. Geisler (as he and I discussed) to the White House Press Office and that a press release be prepared announcing the President's transmittal of the 1993 ACDA Annual Report. I would appreciate your forwarding my memorandum to Mr. Geisler.

Your expeditious handling of this request is sincerely appreciated. And, again I would like to thank all of the NSC staff who have been so supportive of our efforts to forward this Report in as timely a manner as possible.

MEMORANDUM FOR RONALD R. GEISLER EXECUTIVE CLERK

SUBJECT: U.S. ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY ANNUAL REPORT

Attached you will find ten (10) copies of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency's (ACDA) Annual Report for 1993. Included with our report is a Presidential letter of transmittal to the Congress as required by our statute. As I understand from our discussion, you will ensure the proper handling of the production of the signed letter which will accompany each copy of the Report to the leadership of the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives.

As we discussed, I would be extremely grateful to receive expeditiously a copy of the signed Presidential letter so that we in ACDA can incorporate it into our final "glossy" version of the 1993 ACDA Annual Report. We will then be able to produce the requisite number of copies of the Report for further distribution to the Congress and to the public.

I would also like to reinforce your suggestion of providing copies of the 1993 ACDA Annual Report to the White House Press Office and that a White House Press Release announcing the President's transmittal of the Report be made available along with copies of the Report. Should the Press Office require any additional information, please notify me at 202-647-8478 or Dr. Paula Scalingi, Acting Director of our Public Information Office, who can be reached at 202-647-8677.

For your information, I am providing you with the requisite passage from the ACDA Act, as amended, that references our Annual Report requirement.

"Sec. 50. The Director shall submit to the President for transmittal to the Congress, not later than January 31 of each year, a report concerning activities of the Agency. Such report shall include a complete and analytical statement of arms control and disarmament goals, negotiations, and activities and an appraisal of the status and prospects of arms control measures in effect."

Your assistance in processing the Presidential letter of transmittal to the Congress as well as your assistance in ensuring that the White House Press Office has copies available for the press is sincerely appreciated. Should you have questions on the Report itself, please do not hesitate to contact Bob Sherman at 202-647-4622 (FAX 647-2094).

Dear Mr. President:

I am pleased to submit for your transmittal to the Congress, as required by the Arms Control and Disarmament Act (22 U.S.C. 2590), the 1993 Annual Report of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

I am pleased to transmit the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) Annual Report for 1993.

ACDA is one among several national security agencies. Its work is done in collaboration with the Department of State and with other agencies of the United States government, to bring maximum resources to bear on problems of arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament. American national security is a large and complex picture; this report deals with ACDA's part of the picture.

On July 3, 1993, after a comprehensive interagency review, I decided to strengthen and revitalize ACDA to reflect post Cold War priorities in arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament.

This report is organized to reflect ACDA's ongoing revitalization to meet the increasingly complex arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament challenges of the 1990s. The report reflects the new priorities in pending ACDA revitalization legislation which was initially developed under the leadership of the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Claiborne Pell, has received wide bipartisan support in both houses of Congress, and has now been approved by the Senate.

This revitalization reaffirms and strengthens ACDA's key function in developing and implementing arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament policy. A specialized, technically competent, and independent arms control institution remains important to the nation.

ACDA's specific responsibilities include the following:

- Providing advice:
 - The ACDA Director acts as principal adviser to the President and the Secretary of State on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament;
 - ACDA provides legal advisers to arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament negotiations.
- Negotiating:
 - leading the U.S. Comprehensive Test Ban negotiating team at the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva;
 - leading the U.S. negotiating team at the 1995 Treaty on the Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons Conference;
 - chairing the Washington backstopping (policy support) for the Conference on Disarmament;
 - participating in the Safety, Security, and Dismantlement Talks.
- Implementing and verifying:
 - leading the U.S. delegation to the Chemical Weapons Convention Preparatory Commission, and to the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons which will succeed it;
 - leading the U.S. delegations to all meetings and conferences on the Biological Weapons Convention;
 - leading the U.S. delegation to the Joint Compliance and Inspection Commission of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty;

- leading the U.S. delegation to the Special Verification Commission of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty;
 - leading the U.S. Component of the Standing Consultative Commission of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty;
 - leading the U.S. delegation to the Bilateral Consultative Commission of the Threshold Nuclear Test Ban Treaty;
 - drafting, with interagency coordination, the President's Annual Report to Congress on Adherence to and Compliance with Arms Control Agreements;
 - providing the Principal Deputy Director of the On-Site Inspection Agency;
 - participating in the U.S. delegation to the Joint Consultative Group on the Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty;
 - participating in the Open Skies Consultative Commission.
- Controlling exports:
 - participating in meetings of the Zangger Committee and the Nuclear Suppliers Group on nuclear weapons related exports;
 - participating in meetings of the Australia Group on chemical and biological weapons related exports;
 - participating in the meetings of the Missile Technology Control Regime.
 - Coordinating and reporting on research on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament.
 - Informing and educating the public:
 - leading the Interagency Working Group on Public Diplomacy for Arms Control and Nonproliferation;
 - publishing extensively on arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament.

My decision to strengthen and revitalize ACDA, combined with continued Congressional support, will help the U.S. Government move vigorously to eliminate the overarmament of the Cold War, stem the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery, and apply arms control solutions to regional problems.

The Report is a concise summary of the wide-ranging and complex issues that ACDA deals with each day; I commend it to your attention.

Honorable Ronald V. Dellums
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services

Washington, D. C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This responds to your request for the views of the Department of Defense on H. R. 1055, 103d Congress, a bill "To direct the Secretary of Defense to issue a commendation to each individual exposed to mustard agents during World War II, and for other purposes."

H. R. 1055 would require the Secretary of Defense to issue a commendation to individuals exposed to mustard agents during World War II, and to notify these individuals of their exposure, the possible health effects of the exposure, and the options available to them for medical treatment for health effects resulting from the exposure. Further, the Secretary of Defense shall make available to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs any information regarding the exposure including the names of the individuals.

We fully support H. R. 1055 as written. However we do caution that given the many years that have passed since some of these activities were carried out, and the format and dispersion of the records, it may not be possible for us to fully identify and notify all participants. In spite of the above obstacles, the Department of Defense is committed to ^{IMPLEMENTING} supporting the ~~the bill's provisions~~ individuals who participated in chemical and biological warfare research programs. We continue to pursue the review of records and are determined to make as complete and thorough a review as possible and share our findings with VA. We appreciate the opportunity to review and comment on this important legislation.

Sincerely,

TO: MCALEER, R

SUBJECT: White House Veterans

Jody Greenstone called and referenced a conversation Phil Lader said he had with you this morning, the upshot of which (according to Jody) was that Phil and you agreed that I (and not WH Personnel) should survey all EOP employees to ascertain the number of individuals with current or past military service. That sounds garbled, since I would need to phone everyone in EOP. Can you clarify for me how you and Phil want me to proceed? Thanks.
