Defense Draft Bill To Pay Certain Expenses
Incurred by Federal Employees

The proposed legislation at Tab II would authorize payment to Federal civilian employees who are forced to move from their private overseas off-base quarters for reasons beyond their control. In cases where leases expire, rents substantially raised or quarters are converted (most often in Germany and Korea), the costs of the move can be burdensome. The associated increase in costs are indicated at the end of Tab II.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20301-1000

Honorable Thomas S. Foley
Speaker of the House
of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Enclosed is a draft of legislation "To amend title 5, United States Code, to pay certain expenses incurred when a Federal employee assigned to a foreign duty station is forced to move from private, off-post quarters."

The proposal is part of the Department of Defense Legislative Program for the 103d Congress. The Office of Management and Budget advises that this proposal is in accord with the ? Administration's program.

Purpose of the Legislation

The purpose of the legislation is to authorize the payment of Government funds for certain expenses incurred when Federal civilian employees are forced to move from their private, off-post quarters for reasons beyond their control. The government would pay for costs incurred to pack, crate, temporarily store, dray, and unpack the Federal civilian employees' household goods and personal effects.

Federal civilian employees serving at foreign duty stations are frequently forced to move from their quarters for reasons beyond their control. Such forced moves are common in many foreign countries but occur most frequently in Korea and to a lesser degree, in Germany.

Historically, each year one-third of the Federal civilian employees assigned to Korea are forced to move from one set of off-post quarters to another because their leases are terminated, their landlords sell or convert their quarters to other uses, or their rents are substantially increased. Although exact figures are not available for Germany, Federal civilian employees assigned there encounter similar problems.

Such forced moves can be traumatic for anyone, but they are particularly burdensome for those assigned outside the United States. A lack of available and affordable housing and the communication difficulties associated with foreign moves, coupled with potentially prohibitive drayage costs, can make the prospect of forced moves unbearable. In the short run, the associated stress and upheaval can adversely affect job performance; in the long run, they can impact on the Government's ability to recruit and to retain quality employees.

Although all the stress and upheaval of such forced moves cannot be eliminated, the proposed legislation can lessen their impact. The authority to relieve Federal civilian employees, forced from their quarters, from the most burdensome costs associated with the move will improve the quality of life for such employees and free them from some of the domestic worries that can negatively impact on job performance. The immediate costs to the Government should be recouped through more efficient workers and a more stable work force.

Cost and Budget Data

If this legislative proposal is enacted, it is estimated that the cost to the Department of Army for five years will be as follows:

	FY 94	FY 95	FY 96	FY 97	FY 98
Army	$450T	$175T	$300T	$250T	$450T
Navy
Marine Corps
Air Force

Please see attachment for the other cost estimates.

Total

(Note T = thousands)

Sincerely,

Enclosure

To amend title 5, United States Code, to pay certain expenses incurred when a Federal employee assigned to a foreign duty station is forced to move from private, off-post quarters.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That—

(a) Chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 5726 the following new section:

"§ 5726a. Moving expenses; household goods and personal effects

Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, and when the head of the agency approves, the agency shall pay from Government funds the expenses to pack, crate, temporarily store, dray, and unpack the household goods and personal effects, not exceeding 18,000 pounds, of an employee assigned to a permanent duty station outside the United States, when the employee is forced to move from private, off-post quarters for reasons beyond the employee's control.

(b) Section 5726(a) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking out "For the purpose of subsection (b) of this section," and inserting in lieu thereof "For the purposes of section 5726a and subsection (b) of this section,"; and

(c) The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 57 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5726 the following:

"§ 5726a. Moving expenses; household goods and personal effects."

DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND

SUBJECT: Flag Officer Nomination

Forwarded for your approval and signature is the nomination of Vice Admiral Jerry L. Unruh, United States Navy, for appointment to the grade of vice admiral on the retired list.

The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) advised that Admiral Unruh did not engage in any personal wrongdoing with respect to the planning for Tailhook, conduct at Tailhook, or investigations following Tailhook. However, he received a memorandum on effective leadership which described the Secretary of the Navy's standards concerning the leadership responsibilities of Flag Officers. By its express terms, it was a nonpunitive administrative action not intended to have any adverse impact upon Admiral Unruh's retirement in the grade of vice admiral. If you approve this nomination, the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) will provide the attached letter (Tab A) to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

This nomination has been staffed by the Secretary of the Navy and was approved by the Secretary of Defense.

OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20301-1000

Honorable Thomas S. Foley
Speaker of the House
of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Enclosed is a draft of legislation "To amend title 5, United States Code, to pay certain expenses incurred when a Federal employee assigned to a foreign duty station is forced to move from private, off-post quarters."

The proposal is part of the Department of Defense Legislative Program for the 103d Congress. The Office of Management and Budget advises that this proposal is in accord with the Administration's program.

Purpose of the Legislation

The purpose of the legislation is to authorize the payment of Government funds for certain expenses incurred when Federal civilian employees are forced to move from their private, off-post quarters for reasons beyond their control. The government would pay for costs incurred to pack, crate, temporarily store, dray, and unpack the Federal civilian employees' household goods and personal effects.

Federal civilian employees serving at foreign duty stations are frequently forced to move from their quarters for reasons beyond their control. Such forced moves are common in many foreign countries but occur most frequently in Korea and to a lesser degree, in Germany.

Historically, each year one-third of the Federal civilian employees assigned to Korea are forced to move from one set of off-post quarters to another because their leases are terminated, their landlords sell or convert their quarters to other uses, or their rents are substantially increased. Although exact figures are not available for Germany, Federal civilian employees assigned there encounter similar problems.

Such forced moves can be traumatic for anyone, but they are particularly burdensome for those assigned outside the United States. A lack of available and affordable housing and the communication difficulties associated with foreign moves, coupled with potentially prohibitive drayage costs, can make the prospect of forced moves unbearable. In the short run, the associated stress and upheaval can adversely affect job performance; in the long run, they can impact on the Government's ability to recruit and to retain quality employees.

Although all the stress and upheaval of such forced moves cannot be eliminated, the proposed legislation can lessen their impact. The authority to relieve Federal civilian employees, forced from their quarters, from the most burdensome costs associated with the move will improve the quality of life for such employees and free them from some of the domestic worries that can negatively impact on job performance. The immediate costs to the Government should be recouped through more efficient workers and a more stable work force.

Cost and Budget Data

If this legislative proposal is enacted, it is estimated that the cost to the Department of Army for five years will be as follows:

	FY 94	FY 95	FY 96	FY 97	FY 98
Army	$450T	$175T	$300T	$250T	$450T
Navy
Marine Corps
Air Force
Total

Please see attachment for the other cost estimates.

(Note T = thousands)

Sincerely,

Enclosure

To amend title 5, United States Code, to pay certain expenses incurred when a Federal employee assigned to a foreign duty station is forced to move from private, off-post quarters.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That—

(a) Chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 5726 the following new section:

"§ 5726a. Moving expenses; household goods and personal effects

Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, and when the head of the agency approves, the agency shall pay from Government funds the expenses to pack, crate, temporarily store, dray, and unpack the household goods and personal effects, not exceeding 18,000 pounds, of an employee assigned to a permanent duty station outside the United States, when the employee is forced to move from private, off-post quarters for reasons beyond the employee's control.

(b) Section 5726(a) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking out "For the purpose of subsection (b) of this section," and inserting in lieu thereof "For the purposes of section 5726a and subsection (b) of this section,"; and

(c) The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 57 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5726 the following:

"§ 5726a. Moving expenses; household goods and personal effects."

SUBJECT: Recoupment of Scholarships and Bonuses

The President annotated the article at Tab II with a question to you asking "Is this necessary?" The article describes two cases last year involving military personnel who were discharged for disclosing that they were homosexuals and who were subsequently notified that they must reimburse the Government for bonuses or scholarships they received from the military. The memo to the President at Tab I advises him that DoD is preparing a memorandum that will bring DoD policy on recoupment issues in harmony with the Administration's new policy on homosexuals in the military and that they expect to have this memorandum completed by the end of the week. In the meantime, DoD will not initiate any new recoupment actions concerning gays.

SUBJECT: Recoupment of Scholarships and Bonuses

You asked me whether it is necessary to seek the recoupment of scholarships and bonuses awarded to military personnel who subsequently were released from the armed forces for being homosexuals. In the wake of the publicity raised by the cases described in the Washington Post article, the Department of Defense is preparing a memorandum that will bring DoD policy on recoupment issues in harmony with the Administration's new policy regarding homosexuals in the military. DoD expects to have this review completed within a week. In the meantime, they will not open any new recoupment cases.

Discharged and Dunned

Despite Relaxed Rules, Military Pursues Ousted Gays to Recoup Payments

By John Lancaster
Washington Post Staff Writer

Several years ago, congressional critics and gay activists jumped on the Pentagon for trying to recoup scholarships and bonuses from men and women kicked out of the military services because they were homosexuals. Although the Pentagon has since relaxed its rules against homosexuality, two recent cases suggest its collection program remains intact.

One of them involves Eric Fenner, now 23, who received a $4,500 bonus from the Navy following his graduation from nuclear power plant training in 1992. Fenner subsequently disclosed his sexual status, and received an honorable discharge last year. Now the Navy wants him to pay back a portion of the bonus on grounds he did not complete his six-year enlistment.

The other case involves Michelle Keenan, 28, who won an Army ROTC scholarship to Vanderbilt University at the age of 18. Keenan said it was only later, during law school, that she realized she is gay, at which point she promptly disclosed her status to her Army command. Discharged honorably last March, Keenan currently is fighting the Army's efforts to collect $24,000 the service says she owes for violating the terms of her scholarship.

"The military can't have it both ways," said Michelle Benecke, an attorney with Servicemembers Legal Defense Network, which represents gay service men and women. "Based on their merit, the military lauded them, accepted them, gave them bonuses or scholarships, then for reasons totally unrelated [to their performance], kicked them out. If the military wants to shoot themselves in the foot with this shortsighted policy, that's their problem."

Pentagon officials declined yesterday to comment on the specifics of individual cases, citing privacy considerations. They said, however, that as a general rule, servicemembers accept certain conditions along with their scholarships and bonuses, one of which is that they will be liable for reimbursing the funds if they fail to complete their service obligations.

"This is true not just of homosexuals, but any other reason," said Lt. Col. Doug Hart, a Pentagon spokesman. "If they've got bad grades and can't make it, they may or may not have to pay back the scholarship money depending on the circumstances." For all the controversy it has caused, the Pentagon's reimbursement policy has a practical side. Defense officials do not want to invest thousands of dollars in a college education for a future officer only to see him or her discharged for homosexuality shortly after graduation.

They suggest, moreover, that under the Pentagon's old policy, which explicitly banned homosexuals from service, many gay service personnel who accepted scholarships or bonuses did so under false pretenses. The new policy, which took effect last month, allows gay men and lesbians to serve so long as they do not reveal their sexual status or engage in homosexual conduct.

But gay rights activists say many young people are still confused about their sexuality when they sign up for military duty. They see the reimbursement policy as a cruel Catch-22 that penalizes gay men and women for the very quality the military teaches them to revere—honesty.

Hart, the Pentagon spokesman, said each case is "looked at on an individual basis" and that "if this revelation comes after they were already in service, then it's very possible they wouldn't have to pay it back."

The issue first erupted in public in the late 1980s, when the Department of Defense sought reimbursement of scholarships from three gay ROTC students. After protests in Congress on college campuses, then-Defense Secretary Richard B. Cheney privately ordered his military service chiefs to back off, according to the book "Conduct Unbecoming" by the late Randy

Both Fenner and Keenan said in interviews that they did not mislead recruiters about their sexuality. Fenner, a Navy officer, said he "just kind of avoided" the issue as a teenager listed in the Navy in part to "buy ed some time to think." Early last year, Fenner notified his commanders at a submarine base in Groton Ct. that he was gay, he said, and received an honorable discharge. Fenner, now a shipping clerk at a corporate office in Rockville, received a collection notice for $2,046, the prorated portion of his enlistment bonus, according to documents provided.

Keenan acknowledged that the page ROTC contract she signed as a 17-year-old contained a statement "in print" asserting that she was not a homosexual. But she said she was acting in faith because at the time "I didn't know I was a homosexual."

Keenan, who by that time was commissioned as a second lieutenant, said she notified her command of her sexual orientation within a month of acknowledging it to herself. But the Army has continued to press her to pay back a portion of the scholarship, a debt that has grown with interest to $24,000, she said.

Sgt. 1st Class Dawn Kilpatrick, a Pentagon spokeswoman, said: "It's not a homosexual issue, it's a contract issue. An individual voluntarily takes the contract, they're required to pay the government for its

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY
WASHINGTON

Honorable Ronald V. Dellums
Chairman
Committee on Armed Services
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This responds to your request for the views of the Department of Defense on H.R. 3921, 103d Congress, a bill "To authorize and request the President to issue a posthumous commission appointing Johnson Chestnut Whittaker a second lieutenant in the Army." The Department of the Army has been assigned the responsibility for commenting on the bill.

The bill would urge the President to appoint Mr. Whittaker posthumously as a commissioned officer in the Regular Army as recompense for his unjust separation from the Corps of Cadets of the United States Military Academy and from the Army. The Department of the Army supports the bill, but offers the following comment.

An appointment as an officer in the Regular Army requires Senate confirmation. If the word "regular" is stricken from the bill, the President could then issue Mr. Whittaker a posthumous commission under existing authority without the need for separate confirmation by the Senate.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this bill.

Sincerely,

Togo D. West, Jr.

103D CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. R. 3921

10 circumstances suggesting racial prejudice, of Johnson

1 Chestnut Whittaker from the Corps of Cadets of the Unit-
2 ed States Military Academy and from the United States
3 Army.
