Dear Mr Lake

In my capacity as Group Managing Director of Jane's Information Group, which publishes Jane's Fighting Ships, Jane's Defence Weekly and other defence and aerospace titles, I would like to tell you about the significant change now occurring at Jane's. While retaining our traditional publications we are introducing electronic information products that are more analytical in nature and we are dramatically improving the manner, frequency and rapidity in which Jane's information is delivered to the consumer.

Products like Jane's Sentinel, Regional Defence Assessments (a series of country studies: North Africa, The Balkans, Central America and the Caribbean, etc), and Jane's Intelligence Review, a bi-weekly review of international security issues, are examples of this new focus. In addition, Jane's is active in the Open Source Community and is exploring new delivery technologies, such as Internet.

As an important consumer of Jane's information I would like to brief you and members of your staff regarding the new focus at Jane's and our views and perspective of the changing role of national security and international defense. My hope is that our new efforts will be supportive and an important information resource for the National Security Council. If we are successful in arranging a meeting, I might suggest that President Clinton may find our presentation of interest – over recent months we have briefed many heads of government, international organisations, military and industrial leaders.

I will be in the United States on the following dates: 4, 11, 12 October or 14, 15 December 1994. If these times don't work for you please suggest some alternatives. I will have Bob Loughman from our Washington office talk with your office in the next two weeks.

Yours sincerely

DRAFT

Good morning/afternoon. I am Rear Admiral Ernest Christensen, the Commander, Fleet Air Caribbean, located at Naval Station Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico. As the senior Department of Defense officer permanently based in the Caribbean, I am here at the direction of the Secretary of the Navy to speak to you on the Department's position regarding H.R. 3531, a bill brought forth to the 103rd Congress, "To authorize and direct the transfer of certain lands on the island of Vieques, Puerto Rico, to the Municipality of Vieques, and for other purposes."

Ladies and gentlemen of the Committee, before I speak of the contents of the bill itself, I think it important for you first to know a little about Vieques. The federally owned portions of Vieques are among the most important training grounds for members of the U.S. Department of Defense on the Atlantic coast. As I am sure you aware, the Navy owns two-thirds of the island at present, roughly 22,000 of the island's 33,000 acres, although this number continues to decrease as excess lands become available for other-than-military uses. It was bought at fair market value in the 1940's for a total of $1.4 million dollars.

Located on the eastern third of the island, the Atlantic Fleet Weapons Training Facility contains the heart and soul of the mission of Naval Station Roosevelt Roads: The training of U.S., NATO, and South American allied forces. This facility is perhaps the best training facility of its kind in the world. It allows the conduct of amphibious landing exercises, special forces parachute drops, close air support, artillery and small arms firings, naval gunfire support, missile shoots, air-to-surface, air-to-air, and surface-to-air ordnance deliveries, naval "war at sea" exercises, and both surface, air, and submarine maneuvering and drills.

The Weapons Training Facility covers not only the eastern third of Vieques, but also approximately 195,000 square miles of open ocean and airspace adjacent to the island for its training exercises. It is used not only by the Navy, but Army, Marine, and Air Force components as well. Also, units from The Netherlands, Canada, Germany, France, Italy, Great Britain, Spain, Argentina, and Brazil used the training and operating areas of Vieques last year.

The most important aspect of the Vieques facility is its ability to provide realistic, integrated training scenarios in a multi-terrain, open-ocean deep water environment, with a fully operational support base, port facility, airfield, and ammunition storage depot just miles away. The Weapons Training Facility was used extensively by our forces during the buildup for Operation Desert Storm prior to troop deployments to the Persian Gulf area. U.S. Marines and Naval Forces practiced amphibious landings and assaults in an environment closely simulating the anticipated combat environment. Since that time, the multi-national exercise "Ocean Venture 93" was conducted on Vieques, involving over 21,000 forces from the United States, Great Britain, and The Netherlands.

The range has recently been used to train U.S. ships now deployed to Bosnian waters and just weeks ago by U.S. Marines, special forces and Navy ships deployed in preparation for Operation Uphold Democracy, our Haitian operation.

The western third of the island, which is the property under discussion in H.R. 3931, is used for ammunition storage, and is commonly known to us as the Naval Ammunition Storage Depot (NASD). For DOD purposes, this property is actually considered part of Naval Station Roosevelt Roads and is not a separate facility. The Ammunition Storage Depot is an integral component of the training conducted on Vieques, replenishing units and ships with both live and inert ordnance while they conduct refresher or combat training exercises.

Let me cite some figures for you as to attest to the usage of this facility. In Fiscal Year 1993, the NASD moved over 13,716,000 pounds of munitions to 21 squadrons, 3 Carrier Battle Groups, 1 Marine Air Group, 26 surface ships of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet, and 21 miscellaneous units, including special forces such as Navy SEALs and Army Rangers, foreign naval forces through the FMS program, and other groups of this kind.

In Fiscal Year 1994, these numbers were up to 14,379,928 pounds of munitions moved to 15 aircraft squadrons, 2 Carrier Battle Groups, 1 Marine Amphibious Group, 11 surface warships, and 30 miscellaneous groups. These movements saved operational hours and money by negating the need for an ammunition replenishment ship to accompany them to the range.

These munitions are stored in 102 active use magazines within the Depot, surrounded by what is called "Explosive Quantity Safety Areas" (or ESQA areas). Calculated according to Department of Defense regulations, these areas are designed for the safety of all persons surrounding the magazines. Of the properties currently owned by the Navy on the western end of Vieques, nearly all of the non-conservation zone property is covered by these ESQA areas.

DRAFT

Although munitions storage requirements have decreased slightly during the last several years, we are currently anticipating an increase in these requirements as overseas bases are closed and as U.S. Caribbean involvement increases. Considering the eventual closings of the U.S. bases in Panama, this facility would be the closest munitions replenishment facility for Caribbean and South American operations should that contingency ever arise. At present, however, it is emphasized that the munitions in storage are primarily used for the training conducted on the eastern end of the island at the Atlantic Fleet Weapons Training Facility.

Training conducted on or near Vieques in the Atlantic Fleet Weapons Training Facility provided timely, sometimes days prior training to our servicemen and women in order to ensure their full preparedness for the real combat environment. It is one of my primary responsibilities as a senior member of the Defense Department to ensure that our sons and daughters are prepared as best as possible for the worse of possible combat scenarios. The facilities on Vieques Island, both the range facility and ammunition depot, provide me that opportunity in a safe environment, on U.S. soil, all year long.

In addition to the use of Vieques for training, Vieques is home to seven major conservation zones, all located on Navy property on both the eastern and western ends of the island. Three of the largest conservation zones are located on the western third of the island on the NASD. Named "Laguna Kianl, Monte Pirata, and Playa Grande," these three zones comprise nearly 3,700 acres of the 7,405 acres which the Navy owns on that side of the island. These zones are mandated solely by the 1983 Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) which was negotiated between the then Governor of Puerto Rico, The Honorable

DRAFT

Carlos Romero Barcelo, (a member of the Subcommittee) and the Acting Secretary of the Navy, The Honorable James F. Goodrich. According to the terms of this MOU, in regard to environmental matters, the Navy is obligated to maintain these seven conservation zones, in addition to participating in the sea turtle, sea mammal, and brown pelican management programs; preserving historic sites located on its property; and ensuring an active noise abatement program is enforced. A Management Advisory Committee was also established to assist the Navy in managing these resources. Made up of members of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Forest Service, two representatives of the Puerto Rico Department of Natural and Environmental Resources, and a representative of the Navy, this Advisory Committee is empowered to enforce the provisions of the MOU and ensure full compliance with its terms. Thus far, the MOU has been executed to the fullest extent possible by the Navy, and upon our implementation of our 1986 Land Use Management Plan for Navy lands on Vieques, there have been no implementation or compliance issues raised through the Management Advisory Committee nor the Office of the Governor of Puerto Rico.

The efforts of the Naval Station Environmental Engineers who manage these areas were recently recognized by the Secretary of the Navy when they received the bi-annual Natural Resources Conservation Special Recognition Award for 1992-93. Additionally, we have recently published a full color brochure entitled, "Welcome to Naval Station Roosevelt Roads, Vieques, Puerto Rico," which highlights our Vieques conservation efforts.

DRAFT

In order to allow everyone the enjoyment of the beauty of our conservation areas on the NASD, we routinely allow free and open access to both local Viequeses and tourists, as well as boater from the main island, to the area called "Green Beach." On the northern road leading from "Green Beach" toward the encampment of the NASD, we also have allotted the Puerto Rican Department of Natural and Environmental Resources $48,000 of Fiscal Year 93 money for the construction of a mangrove viewing boardwalk through the mangrove forests of Laguna Kiani. Made of wood and to be constructed with minimal impact on the mangroves, this boardwalk will allow free access and a self-guided tour through the mangrove forest to the people of Vieques and tourists coming to the island. An extremely successful boardwalk similar to this has already been constructed by the Conservation Trust of Puerto Rico in the northeastern town of Fajardo, even with the small entry fee charged for the tour. Of note is that the materials for this boardwalk, on order for some time now, were delivered last Monday, the 26th of September, so construction should begin very soon. We hope that our boardwalk will likewise be a big ecotourism draw for the island of Vieques.

Lastly with regard to the mangrove forests and our environmental protection program, a booklet entitled, "Vieques Mangrove Forest Manual," written by a Mr. George Proctor, was published in June of this year by the Puerto Rican Department of Natural and Environmental Resources with the study and print funding being provided by the Department of the Navy. Written in both English and Spanish, this booklet is the most comprehensive cataloging of mangrove and plant species on the island of Vieques known to date. The Navy was proud to be able to fund this study and provide such a high quality product to the Natural and Environmental Resources Department of Puerto Rico and the people of Vieques.

The Naval Ammunition Storage Depot is also bustling with activity in the area of economic development for Vieques Island as well. Such projects as a 500 acre cattle farm, an aloe vera farm, a "canapa" (known in U.S. as a "honeyberry") orchard, and an expansion of the Vieques Bee Farm are in the works. All of these projects are strongly supported and encouraged by the Navy, which continues to lease its buffer areas to applicants as these projects arise.

Ladies and gentlemen of the Committee, the Department of the Navy is an active participant in the development of the economy of the Island of Vieques. We are both involved in supporting such projects as I have just mentioned, besides actively pursuing new ventures from outside Vieques and from the States. We respond as soon as a hand is waved in our direction and with terms and conditions most favorable to the developer.

In terms of returning excess lands to the Commonwealth government, we have returned nearly 4,000 acres thus far since our original purchases in the 1940's. And we continue to excess property no longer required for military or safety of personnel purposes. Using a few of the colloquial names for the tracts of land, the "Distino Tract", composing some 311 acres of property, was just a few months ago deeded to the government of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Currently in the mill for excessing also are two tracts on the eastern end of the Island known as "Parcela A and C." Totalling 166 acres, these properties are currently licensed to the Municipality of Vieques by the Navy, but in the excessing process now titled to the General Services Administration. The Mayor of Vieques, with strong support by the Navy, is in the process of finalizing plans to build a world-class sports complex on "Parcel A" beginning this month, with federal funding which were secured through the great efforts of the Puerto Rican Resident Commissioner, Mr. Romero.

DRAFT

"Parcel C", which is adjacent to the Municipal landfill, is also being used by the Municipality. The General Service Administration is working with the Department of Health and Human Services, as well as the National Park Service, since the Mayores of Vieques has expressed an interest in the property for health, conservation, recreation, or residential housing.

The final property currently being expropriated is called the "La Hueca" tract. "La Hueca" is 331 acres of property on the southwestern side of Vieques outside of the NASD fence line. This land lies outside of existing ESQD explosive safety arcs of the NASD and is no longer required in the performance of the NASD's mission.

Members of the Committee, the land being discussed in H.R. 3831 is not wasteland. It is valuable property for all of the reasons just sighted. But foremost, it is part of an integral training program for the men and women of the United States Armed Services. It is for this reason that the Department of the Navy is opposed to H.R. 3831.

ACTION

FROM: WILLIAM C. DANVERS

SUBJECT: Letters to Sen. Simon and Sen. Pell on arms control consultations.

Sen. Simon has a hold on Ted McNamara's nomination to become an Assistant Secretary of State. The conditions for lifting the hold are two: 1) McNamara agree to a hearing tomorrow before Simon and the SFRC and 2) the NSC send Simon a letter agreeing that the Administration will consult better on arms control issues.

Simon is upset over the consultative process on arms control issues because he felt the committee was not properly notified last November of our ABM review (the Russians and the HASC and SASC found out first), and he felt the committee was not properly briefed on the NPR last week.

On the first issue-- the ABM notifications-- it was not our fault that the Russians were informed before SFRC. The decision on the ABM review was made over Thanksgiving weekend, and State was not able to get through to the SFRC in time, despite their efforts to do so, before the Russians were made aware of our decision. (Bob Bell had gotten through with his calls to SASC members the day before, but State insisted on making the SFRC calls.) On NPR review, DoD briefed its committees but did not put SFRC and HFAC on their schedule, although HFAC is holding a hearing on Oct. 5 on the NPR with a DoD witness, which we brokered for them.

The point is, Simon and his staff are being a bit picky about consultations and want us to know that they can make our lives difficult if we do not keep in touch with them.

While the NSC did nothing wrong, it would still be useful to contact Simon and Pell to let them know that we hear them and will work to do better in the future. Pell's staffer wanted a letter. We recommended that Sandy call him first, but after repeated attempts, he was not able to get through.

Letters to Sen. Pell and Sen. Simon from you are attached (Tab I and II). We felt it useful to have such a letter on hand in case Sandy is not able to get through to Sen. Simon, or, in case Sen. Simon requests that he receive a letter despite the call.

A separate letter has been prepared for Sen. Pell because he is chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Concurrence by:  Bob Bell

Dear Senator Simon:

I am writing regarding the concerns that you have expressed about the adequacy of consultations on arms control-related issues with the Foreign Relations Committee. You raised this matter during the Committee's deliberation on the nomination on Thomas "Ted" McNamara to be Assistant Secretary of State for Political Military Affairs.

I want to assure you that we are committed to establishing a regular dialogue with the Committee on these issues. We will make every effort to consult or brief the Committee in a timely manner on the full range of issues within its jurisdiction.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITH
COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, U.S. ATLANTIC COMMAND

DATE: October 6, 1994

LOCATION: Norfolk, VA

TIME: 10:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

I. PURPOSE

To meet with the Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Atlantic Command to discuss operations in Haiti. To visit with servicemembers involved in these operations and their families.

II. BACKGROUND

Your visit to Norfolk to meet with the U.S. commanders responsible for operations in Haiti will highlight U.S. successes to date in the peaceful introduction of forces, the return of order to the main population centers and the establishment of a logistical support structure for our troops and for relief efforts for the people of Haiti.

III. PARTICIPANTS

William Perry, Secretary of Defense

Anthony Lake, Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs

Admiral William Owens, Vice Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff

Admiral Paul D. Miller, Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Atlantic Command

Margaret Sullivan, Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense

Keith Hahn, Director for Defense Policy, National Security Council

IV. PRESS PLAN

Pool spray before the brief. Open press for the visit to the USS Eisenhower and planeside.

V. SEQUENCE

Upon arrival at Naval Air Facility Norfolk, you will travel by motorcade to the Joint Operations Center to be briefed for approximately one-half hour on operations in Haiti by Admiral Miller and to hold a 20 minute video teleconference with U.S. commanders in Haiti, Lieutenant General Hugh Shelton and Major General David Meade. Proposed talking points for these discussions are provided at Tab A. You should also note that Admiral Miller will retire on November 1, 1994 and commend him for 30 years of outstanding service to this Nation. Admiral Miller will be relieved by Lieutenant General John Sheehan, U.S. Marine Corps.

Following the briefing, you will travel by motorcade to the USS Eisenhower to meet for approximately 45 minutes with the men and women who just returned last Saturday from operations in Haiti, and who are now preparing to deploy for six months to the Adriatic Sea and the Indian Ocean. You will then return by motorcade to the Naval Air Facility where you will meet with servicemembers and their families for approximately 15 minutes before departing.

Tab B Proposed Remarks

Talking Points

- I want to congratulate you on the tremendous job our forces are doing in Haiti. Please pass on to your officers and men and women how proud I am of the work they are doing.
- How is operation progressing? What are the current risks to U.S. military forces?
- How is the morale of the troops? Do they understand what we are trying to accomplish? Are the rules of engagement clear enough for the individual soldier and marine?
- What are the living conditions (housing, food, mail and phones) for our troops?
- What is your assessment of the FAhD at this point? Can we continue to work with them as Cedras steps down and Aristide returns to power?
- What is your assessment of the FRAPH at this point? Do they represent a threat to U.S. forces or to civil order?
- What do you think will happen on October 15th. Will Cedras step down peacefully? Will he leave the country?
- How is the CARICOM battalion being employed? How effective is it? How are the IPM monitors being employed and how effective are they?
- Support of the Haitian people is good now, but what can we do to build solid troop-to-citizen relations?

Dear Mr. President:

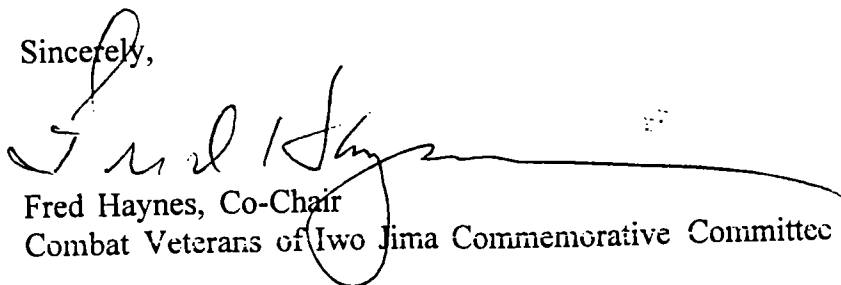

The 50th Anniversary of the Battle of Iwo Jima will be commemorated 17-19 February, 1995 by a major reunion of combat veterans of that campaign in Washington. We would be delighted to have your presence at any of the activities, but would particularly appreciate your being present at the commemoration on Sunday, February 19 at the Iwo Jima Memorial near Arlington Cemetery. The ceremony is scheduled to begin at 11:00 a.m. and will feature the Marine Corps Band and a ceremonial unit, as well as a wreath-laying detail composed of Medal of Honor recipients from the Iwo Jima campaign.

It is a bit difficult at the moment to tell how many veterans and their families will participate, but we are currently estimating more than two thousand.

We will be pleased to coordinate with your staff in ensuring that the activities of the reunion can accommodate your schedule.

Warmest wishes for success in dealing with the difficult issues the Nation faces in the days ahead.

SUBJECT:

Letter from 32 Representatives Regarding ABM/TMD
Demarcation

Representative Livingston and 31 other Representatives have written the President regarding the negotiation in the Standing Consultative Commission (SCC) to clearly demarcate strategic (ABM) from theater (TMD) ballistic missile defense systems. Specifically, they are concerned that our ABM/TMD demarcation initiative will foreclose options to test and deploy theater defenses against shorter range missiles, both now and in the future. They also urged an agreement with the Russians at the Summit to "replace the legacy of assured vulnerability to missile attack with a future of assured defense."

Dear Representative Livingston:

Thank you for your letter of September 19 regarding theater missile defenses (TMDs). I appreciate your interest in the Administration's efforts to clarify the distinction in the ABM Treaty between TMDs and strategic ballistic missile defense systems while preserving the viability and integrity of the ABM Treaty.

During last month's Summit, President Yeltsin and I agreed that both the United States and Russia have an interest in developing and fielding effective theater missile defense systems and that we would work together in this crucial area on a cooperative basis. In this regard, we also took note of the recent progress made on the issue of ABM/TMD demarcation and multilateralization of the ABM Treaty and instructed our respective delegations to complete agreement on remaining issues in the shortest possible time. That said, I want to assure you that we are not going to rush this process or enter into any agreement that does not meet our national security requirements for highly effective TMDs.

I look forward to working closely with you as we pursue the TMD programs required to carry out our national security strategy.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Bob Livingston

Dear Mr. President:

As you know, many Members of Congress strongly oppose any effort to expand the scope of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty by introducing new constraints on the ability of the United States to provide effective theater defenses against missile attacks on our forces overseas and on our allies. Your Administration repeatedly has identified missile attacks as a serious and growing threat due to the accelerating proliferation of shorter-range ballistic missiles. For example, in May 1994 an interagency report on "Nonproliferation and Counterproliferation Activities" placed wide-area/regional defenses -- particularly those with boost-phase intercept capability -- among the highest priority shortfalls in U.S. operational capabilities.

We are concerned that, despite this assessment -- with which we entirely agree -- your Administration is seeking additional limitations that would essentially foreclose options to test and deploy theater defenses against shorter-range missiles, both now and in the future. According to some reports, your summit meeting with Russian President Boris Yeltsin on September 27 may be the occasion for completing the negotiations or even signing an amendment to the ABM Treaty along these lines.

We respectfully suggest that the agenda for such a meeting should instead be to build upon President Yeltsin's stated desire to collaborate in removing obstacles to the deployment of effective missile defenses. For example, in early 1992, Mr. Yeltsin announced that "We're prepared to design jointly, produce jointly and use jointly a global security system to replace the SDI system." This statement offers the prospect of moving swiftly beyond the ABM Treaty toward effective missile countermeasures, rather than increasing the already considerable impediments to realizing our defensive capabilities.

It is hard to imagine a more tangible -- or valuable -- demonstration that U.S.-Russian relations have genuinely emerged from the strictures of the Cold War than an agreement between you and President Yeltsin to replace the legacy of assured vulnerability to missile attack with a future of assured defense. We urge you to use the upcoming summit to create new latitude to develop and field effective theater and global anti-missile systems and to reject any initiative that would further impinge upon the early acquisition of such systems.

Dear Bill:

Thank you for your letter regarding the Comprehensive Test Ban (CTB) negotiations. I appreciate knowing I have your support on this very important undertaking and want you to know that my Administration is committed to completing a CTB Treaty at the earliest possible time.

In the eight months since the opening of formal CTB negotiations in the Geneva Conference on Disarmament (CD) in January, we have made important progress. During the third round of talks which concluded on September 7, CD member states developed for the first time a comprehensive draft treaty text. At our urging, the CD also agreed on a schedule for intersessional talks to continue work on the draft treaty text between now and the end of the year. When the 1995 CD session opens next January, I expect the pace of the negotiations to accelerate as we try to record as much progress as possible in removing brackets from the draft text prior to the convening of the NPT Extension Conference in April.

I look forward to continuing to work closely with you, Bill, on this issue.

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing to express my support for early and successful completion of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT) now being negotiated in Geneva.

As you know, I have strongly supported your decision to implement a U.S. moratorium on nuclear testing. Now that the Cold War is over, preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons must be a top foreign policy priority of the United States. An effective and verifiable CTBT, followed by a strengthened NPT, offers the best hope for instituting a viable international non-proliferation regime.

Your leadership has been essential to moving the negotiations within sight of agreement. I urge you to continue to give these negotiations high priority until they reach a successful conclusion.

Sincerely,

Bill Bradley
