Responding to "Hollow Force" Arguments

The attachments are provided as background for your 4:30 session with the media. Tab I is an information brief addressing the broad issue of military readiness and accusations of a return to the "hollow force" of the 1970s. Tab II includes suggested talking points.

Tab I Brief on Military Readiness

Tab II Talking Points

MILITARY READINESS

Background

Increasingly, concerns are being raised in Congress and in the press of an imminent return to a "hollow force," such as we experienced in the 1970s. These concerns emphasize an alleged decline in military readiness--a decline which critics say has been brought on by a number of factors, including reduced defense expenditures, overall defense downsizing, and our forces' increased operational tempo as they respond to a range of crises worldwide. Some say that we have "cut too far" in downsizing the post-Cold War military--that we are unable to contend with the multiplicity of current and potential crises--and this adversely affects military readiness. Others say that "quality of life" issues such as pay, time away from home, base housing, and child care are readiness "issues." And still others argue that unless a particular weapons system is purchased today, it will hurt our military readiness in the future (since the older a weapons system is, the harder it is to keep it operationally ready). These examples illustrate how "readiness" is viewed in dissimilar terms and virtually any discussion of defense policies might fall under someone's readiness umbrella.

Any readiness discussion should be framed by the question, "Ready for what?". Are we prepared today to conduct military operations in Haiti, the Gulf, Korea, Rwanda, Bosnia, etc.? And, will we be prepared tomorrow? In most readiness discussions these boundaries are not set. Framing discussions with the "hollow force" analogy only serves to emotionally elevate the debate, when, in fact, there is no comparison between current and near-term military readiness, and 1970s military readiness.

Readiness Today

During the mid-70s, military members were poorly paid, the services were short on experienced mid-level enlisted leaders, training was inadequate, and equipment was out-dated. This is not the case at present and today's senior military leadership--those who "came of age" during the "hollow force" era--are quick to point out that we are not returning to the 1970s.

Strong arguments can be made that we are more capable and ready to handle current contingencies than we were in 1990 when we had 500,000 more people in uniform. Militarily, we responded to Iraqi movements in a much more rapid and timely fashion than we could have just four years ago. And, for the first time in years we have two aircraft carriers operating in the Korean area of operations. This suggests that the American armed forces are in fact ready and able to respond today to a range of contingencies.

The Bottom-Up Review and our National Security Strategy call for us to be able to fight two nearly simultaneous major regional conflicts (MRC). The emphasis here is on "nearly simultaneous," (i.e., there needs to be at least a month between the initiation of each MRC). When the BUR was approved, the Administration was quite candid in saying that we would not have a genuine "two nearly simultaneous" capability until later in the 1990s, when crucial improvements and force enhancements had been put in place. These include in particular, strategic lift (C-17) and better PGMS--neither of which were on Deputy Secretary Deutch's August "hit list" memo. This "strategy/force mismatch" only exists, though, if the "Persian Gulf MRC" is assumed to be on the scale of the 1991 Gulf War. If the "Persian Gulf MRC" is based on today's much-reduced Iraqi capability, we do have a genuine two MRC, nearly simultaneous capability.

While overall readiness is difficult to measure, senior military leaders label the current state of readiness as satisfactory. Secretary Perry rates it as "high." (A recent CBO report also labels readiness as "high" by historical standards.) The CJCS told Congress that military readiness is "acceptable." And General "Shy" Meyer's Readiness Task Force termed readiness as "adequate," with pockets of unreadiness developing. However, the panel qualified its rating by saying that adequate now would have been unreachable in the mid-70s, due to the level of improvement in personnel and training.

Readiness Tomorrow

The greatest readiness concerns deal with the near-term, (i.e., 2-5 years from now). These concerns largely reflect an environment of reduced fiscal resources coupled with increasing deployment rates and a fear that we are mortgaging our future in order to pay for today. Some examples:

- Current operations tempo is extremely high for our military forces, and some units experience a higher tempo than others (For example, the 10th Infantry Division was in Somalia, now it is in Haiti; the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit returned from a six-month deployment and after two weeks set sail for the coast of Haiti; the average time deployed for Air Force AWACs crews was 167 days last year). This may indirectly impact on future readiness in that the repeated lengthy deployments may drive some individuals away from reenlisting. If large numbers of quality individuals leave, this could have an adverse future impact.

- Similarly, the current tempo of operations has a tremendous effect on equipment. Not only does it increase the maintenance requirements (and use moneys needed for other areas), but it also shortens equipment lifespan, thus necessitating replacements at an earlier date than initially programmed. This too impacts on the military's ability to respond to future contingencies.
- Major equipment and weapons purchases have been delayed in order to spend current and near-term funds on more immediate concerns. We are, in effect, using tomorrow's dollars to pay for today's needs.
- During the fourth quarter of FY-94, major training activities were curtailed due to a lack of funds. Money that was initially allocated for training was shifted to pay for real world contingencies. While Congress has been quite good about passing supplementals to pay for these contingencies, there is commonly a delay and these supplementals do not normally cover all the expenses, so the service must make up the difference. Perhaps more importantly, however, when training is canceled or postponed, these valuable opportunities are lost--and lost forever.

Within the Defense Department, various initiatives are underway to address both present and current readiness concerns. This brief has attempted to place issues of military readiness in the proper framework--do our armed forces have the capability to respond to and favorably influence today's crises? And, will our military have the same capability tomorrow? The answer to the former question is unquestionably "yes," while the latter question is really the more troublesome.

READINESS Talking Points

- The President has no higher priority with regard to our defense posture today than maintaining high levels of military readiness.
- As Secretary Perry and General Shali have recently reiterated, our readiness today is first rate. We do not have a "hollow force." This was vividly underscored by the Armed Forces' recent performance in deploying so quickly and with such decisive force to Haiti and the Persian Gulf. This positive assessment was also validated in recent months by General Meyer's independent, outside panel on readiness.
- We are concerned, of course, by the fiscal pressures we face as we try to maintain readiness, provide quality of life improvements, sustain the Bottom-Up Review force levels, and carry out necessary modernization. Deputy Secretary Deutch recently estimated that we need approximately $40 billion in additional funds over the next 5 years to accomplish all four tasks adequately.
- In coming weeks we will be making decisions on the FY96 defense budget. As we make those tough calls, we will be guided by the President's pledge in this year's State of the Union speech that defense spending must not and will not be cut in the future.

SUBJECT:

Meeting with General Estes

You are scheduled to meet tomorrow at 11:00 a.m. with Lieutenant General Howell M. Estes, III, who will succeed Lieutenant General Sheehan on Monday as J-3 (Director of Operations) on the Joint Staff. This is strictly a courtesy call. General Estes' staff has emphasized that he has not been brought up to speed yet on the operational deployments and issues he will be overseeing.

A biography is attached at Tab A. He is an Air Force Academy graduate (Class of 1965); so right away you know he is first-rate! A combat pilot in Vietnam and Desert Storm, he has flown aircraft ranging from the F-4 Phantom to the F-117 Stealth fighter. You might ask him about the level of air assets he thinks we will need in the Gulf region to enforce the no-fly zones and a new "no reinforcement" zone. General Estes is coming from the very important post of Commander, 7th Air Force (Pacific Air Forces). You might discuss the level of air assets and aircraft reinforcements he believes is necessary to handle a Korean contingency. In addition, you might ask him how prepared he believes the Air Force is today to "swing" airpower from a Persian Gulf contingency to a Korean conflict if we ever had to execute the "two-MRC, nearly simultaneously" strategy.

You might ask him about the level of air assets he thinks we will need in the Gulf region to enforce the no-fly zones and a new "no reinforcement" zone. General Estes is coming from the very important post of Commander, 7th Air Force (Pacific Air Forces). You might discuss the level of air assets and aircraft reinforcements he believes is necessary to handle a Korean contingency. In addition, you might ask him how prepared he believes the Air Force is today to "swing" airpower from a Persian Gulf contingency to a Korean conflict if we ever had to execute the "two-MRC, nearly simultaneously" strategy.

MEMORANDUM FOR SAMUEL BERGER

FROM: ROBERT BELL RGB
SUBJECT: Meeting with General Estes

You are scheduled to meet tomorrow at 11:00 a.m. with Lieutenant General Howell M. Estes, III, who will succeed Lieutenant General Sheehan on Monday as J-3 (Director of Operations) on the Joint Staff. This is strictly a courtesy call. General Estes' staff has emphasized that he has not been brought up to speed yet on the operational deployments and issues he will be overseeing.

A biography is attached at Tab A. He is an Air Force Academy graduate (Class of 1965); so right away you know he is first-rate! A combat pilot in Vietnam and Desert Storm, he has flown aircraft ranging from the F-4 Phantom to the F-117 Stealth fighter. You might ask him about the level of air assets he thinks we will need in the Gulf region to enforce the no-fly zones and a new "no reinforcement" zone. General Estes is coming from the very important post of Commander, 7th Air Force (Pacific Air Forces). Mr. MARKEY (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment in the nature of a substitute be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY].

The amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4522, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT AMENDMENTS ACT OF 1994

Mr. SHARP. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the Senate bill (S. 2466) to amend the Energy Policy and Conservation Act to manage the Strategic Petroleum Reserve more effectively, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I shall not object, I take this reservation for the purpose of asking the gentleman from Indiana, [Mr. SHARP] to explain the bill, and I yield to the gentleman for that purpose.

Mr. SHARP. Mr. Speaker, this is a simple extension of the existing authority with respect to the U.S. Government's ability to use the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to protect our economy in the time of an emergency crisis, and also to participate in the International Energy Agency. All parties, political and otherwise, fully agree that we should get this done, and the news today about Iraq makes it all the more imperative that we not let this authority lapse at this time.

So we make no changes in the existing law, even though we worked and hoped to make the changes. This gives an 18-month extension of the current authority.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I support this bill, which reauthorizes certain programs under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. These programs provide the authorization to operate, maintain and drawdown the strategic petroleum reserve and for the U.S. to participate in the international energy agreement.

These programs expired on September 30th of this year. Significantly, if the strategic petroleum reserve authorization is not renewed, the President will lack the authority to draw down the strategic petroleum reserve in the event of an energy emergency. It would be irresponsible for us to adjourn without reauthorizing this program.

Thus, Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this bill and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Indiana, who is now retiring from Congress, has worked very hard in this particular field to fill the petroleum reserve and many other things concerning energy over the last number of years. We have had an opportunity to work close together on a lot of energy issues, and I think we have a lot of bills out that will do a lot of good for the country.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 2466

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Energy Policy and Conservation Act Amendments Act of 1994".

TITLE I—ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Energy Policy and Conservation Act Amendments of 1994".

SEC. 102. TITLE I AMENDMENTS.

Part D of title I of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act is amended in section 181 (42 U.S.C. 6251), by striking "September 30, 1994" each time it appears and inserting "June 30, 1996".

SEC. 103. TITLE D AMENDMENTS.

Part D of title II of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act is amended in section (42 U.S.C. 6285), by striking "September 30, 1994" each time it appears and inserting "June 30, 1996".

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ILLINOIS LAND CONSERVATION ACT OF 1994

Mr. DE LA GARZA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Committee on Energy and Commerce be discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4948) to establish the Midewin National Tallgrass Prairie in the State of Illinois, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 4948

As enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND DEFINITIONS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Illinois Land Conservation Act of 1994".

Mr. MARKEY (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment in the nature of a substitute be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY].

The amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4522, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT AMENDMENTS ACT OF 1994

Mr. SHARP. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the Senate bill (S. 2466) to amend the Energy Policy and Conservation Act to manage the Strategic Petroleum Reserve more effectively, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I shall not object, I take this reservation for the purpose of asking the gentleman from Indiana, [Mr. SHARP] to explain the bill, and I yield to the gentleman for that purpose.

Mr. SHARP. Mr. Speaker, this is a simple extension of the existing authority with respect to the U.S. Government's ability to use the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to protect our economy in the time of an emergency crisis, and also to participate in the International Energy Agency. All parties, political and otherwise, fully agree that we should get this done, and the news today about Iraq makes it all the more imperative that we not let this authority lapse at this time.

So we make no changes in the existing law, even though we worked and hoped to make the changes. This gives an 18-month extension of the current authority.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I support this bill, which reauthorizes certain programs under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. These programs provide the authorization to operate, maintain and drawdown the strategic petroleum reserve and for the U.S. to participate in the international energy agreement.

These programs expired on September 30th of this year. Significantly, if the strategic petroleum reserve authorization is not renewed, the President will lack the authority to draw down the strategic petroleum reserve in the event of an energy emergency. It would be irresponsible for us to adjourn without reauthorizing this program.

Thus, Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this bill and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Indiana, who is now retiring from Congress, has worked very hard in this particular field to fill the petroleum reserve and many other things concerning energy over the last number of years. We have had an opportunity to work close together on a lot of energy issues, and I think we have a lot of bills out that will do a lot of good for the country.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 2466

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Energy Policy and Conservation Act Amendments Act of 1994".

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
