President of the United States
The White House

Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

United States citizens' travel to foreign countries and educational exchanges with them are extremely important. Those wishing to participate in those opportunities in any country, including Cuba, should not be limited.

Global peace rests on the foundations of communication and understanding. One excellent way to achieve those goals is through citizens' travel. Democracy flourishes within the free exchange of ideas; enabling citizens to travel freely begins to open those doors.

I appreciate the interest the Administration is taking in its review of these issues. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Furse
Member of Congress
