FAST TRACK CHECKLIST

I. December Political Outreach

Objective of consultations: To determine what is substantively and politically feasible on fast track next session, while also affording the opportunity to maintain or mend political relationships.

A. Congress (Hilley/Brophy)

1. Threshold obligation to follow-through on all commitments
(Podesta/Radd/Forbes)
2. House Democratic fast track supporters
 - whip group (Matsui, Moran, Dooley, etc.)
 - others (all 42 should be met with or called by White House staff)
3. House Democratic potential "gettables" and/or allies
 - List should include: Murtha; Clayton; McKinney; Rangel; K. McCarthy (offered assistance to VP); Roemer
 - Selected members of New Democrats; Blue Dogs; and CBC
4. House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt
5. House Republican Leadership
 - Speaker Gingrich and others
 - Chairman Archer
6. Key Senators
 - Leadership: Lott and Daschle
 - Democrats: Moynihan, Rockefeller, Breaux, Graham
 - Republicans: Roth, Gramm
7. Ways & Means and Finance Committee staffs

B. Business Community

1. EBB meeting with BRT representatives
2. Barshefsky/Radd meeting with BRT, Chamber of Commerce, etc.
3. Washington representatives, lobbyists, etc. (Radd)

C. Labor

1. EBB/Podesta meeting with AFL-CIO
2. Podesta follow-up as warranted

D. Others

1. DLC: Al From; Edie Wilson
2. Outside consultants, political advisors

II. December Decision-making

A. Threshold Decision on Scope of Bill (USTR outline)

1. Re-submission of same bill with minor adjustments

A. Advantages:

1. Best policy; broadest authority for President; most consistent with vision for international economy
2. Bills already through House and Senate Committees
3. Legislative/business coalitions now fully educated; easier to rally supportive constituencies to be more active on known legislation

B. Disadvantages:

1. High-risk strategy--cannot afford to lose this vote
2. Where are additional votes?
 - Start with 42 D's; potentially up to 165 R's--Republican situation worse than appeared
 - Murtha (potential 4 votes?)
 - Any impact from getting beyond filing deadlines?
 - 11 representatives on US-Mexican Border (5 no's)
 - Add-on of African trade initiative impact (CBC)
 - Child labor revisions (Boswell)
 - Florida delegation work
3. Continues to divide Democrats in election year
4. Razor-thin marginal victory will not enhance acceptability of trade policy/future trade agreements

2. WTO sectoral agenda & tariff authority formulations

A. Advantages:

1. Likely to win over significant Democratic support
2. Permits continued USTR negotiations in key sectors
3. Positive storyline: Reflects a national, bipartisan consensus on certain important aspects of trade; new tactic of smaller, more frequent fast track votes; make explicit intention to take up Chile next year (1999)

B. Disadvantages:

1. Serious policy retreat on priority of FTAA just prior to Santiago
2. Difficulty of educating and rallying Republican/business community support for a more restrictive bill
3. Negative storyline: Admits reality of significant political and policy defeat

3. WTO sectoral agenda plus Chile (and other countries--e.g., Australia, NZ)

A. Advantages: Much more consistent with President's vision with clear first step towards FTAA (and other potential FTA's); appears to be reasonable political accommodation with House Democrats

B. Disadvantages: Unclear whether can win more votes than original bill--will 10-15 Democrats shift on this basis?

4. Other factors

- Specification of "Clinton Round"
- Addition of other initiatives to WTO sectoral bill; accurately reflecting President's trade priorities, but giving more heft to more restrictive bill
- Any possible labor/environment language revisions?
- Further increase Congressional participation

B. Consideration of Additional Initiatives (Sperling)

1. Expansion of TAA/worker retraining package--bringing displaced workers into the winners' circle of trade; "American Competitiveness Act"
2. New border initiative or White House Conference --deal directly with NAFTA issues; right thing to do
3. More comprehensive education and retraining proposal
4. Additional food safety protections
5. Wyden concept of increased 401(k) contributions permitted to companies with increased exports

III. Timetable of Key Dates

QUICK REFERENCE AIDS TALKING POINTS

- Discretionary AIDS funding at HHS increased over 60% since 1992
- AIDS research funding at NIH increased by 50% since 1992.
- Specific Federal Funding for State AIDS Drug Assistance Program (ADAP) up nearly 450% since 1996.
- Nearly tripled funding for the Ryan White CARE Act since 1992.
- HIV Prevention funding for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention up 27% since 1992.

TALKING POINTS ON MEDICAID EXPANSION TO PEOPLE WITH HIV

Background

In April, the Vice President directed the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) of HHS to determine the feasibility of establishing a demonstration program to expand Medicaid coverage to people who were HIV -- and do not currently qualify for Medicaid benefits. This was in response to a release by HHS of a standard of care for HIV and AIDS that recommended early treatment. The Vice President asked HHS to report back within 30 days.

Under current regulations, Medicaid coverage is not available to many individuals with HIV until they progress to AIDS; the new treatments offer the promise of forestalling the progression to AIDS, creating a "catch 22" whereby individuals can't get the drugs that would keep them from progressing to AIDS until they get AIDS.

Talking Points

- The Clinton Administration remains strongly committed to insuring that people living with HIV and AIDS have access to the medical treatments they need.
- The experts at HCFA are finding it difficult to make this expansion cost neutral, which is the test that we must meet to change benefits without Congressional action
- The Administration is still in active dialogue with community members, Congress, and public policy experts to refine the financial analysis -- we have not shut the door on making this work
- The analysis turned out to be far more complicated than many believed it to be, so it is taking much more time than we thought it would. However, the Administration is still actively working on a solution to this problem.

Administration has a strong track record of addressing the needs of people living with HIV and AIDS

- the President recently signed a fiscal year 1998 appropriation bill that provides $286 million for the State AIDS Drug Assistance Program, a 71% increase from fiscal year 1997.

- the President worked vigorously to save the Medicaid program, which is the largest single payor for AIDS services and treatment in the country -- in 1997, federal Medicaid expenditures for people living with HIV/AIDS totaled $1.8 billion, including nearly $500 million for AIDS drugs.

- the President has long been committed to health care for all Americans, and is pleased with the incremental progress that has been made on a bipartisan basis in recent years. Insurance reform and increased access to health insurance for children are important first steps. But the ultimate goal of high quality health insurance for all Americans remains.

Subject: TALKING POINTS and Q&A FOR PRESIDENT'S ADVISORY COUNCIL MEETING

TALKING POINTS ON REPORT FROM
PRESIDENT'S ADVISORY COUNCIL ON HIV/AIDS

The Clinton Administration continues its aggressive campaign against the AIDS epidemic

- Obtained substantial increases in AIDS funding (discretionary programs at HHS up 60% since start of term)
- Established the HIV Vaccine Initiative, with goal of finding vaccine against HIV within 10 years
- Supported reauthorization and funding of Ryan White CARE Act - funding nearly tripled since start of Administration
- Supported research that resulted in the new treatments that are saving so many lives - funding for AIDS research at NIH increased 50% since start of Administration
- Increased specific Federal funding for the State AIDS Drug Assistance Program nearly 450% since 1996
- Created and Supported the Office of National AIDS Policy
- Protected Medicaid, which serves 50% of people with AIDS and 90% of children with AIDS

Role of the President's Advisory Council is to provide advice from the community

- We understand frustration of Council members - this is a terrible epidemic that gives rise to strong emotions
- If some members choose to resign, we respect but regret their decision - however, it would be our hope that they will stay at the table and work with the President to continue to make a difference
- President and the Secretary will continue to work with the Council to review their reports and to respond quickly and decisively

The appropriateness of needle exchange programs should be determined by public health experts and scientists, not politicians

- Administration worked aggressively to preserve the Secretary's authority to make determination on removing Congressionally imposed restriction on allowing local communities to decide on the use of federal funding for needle exchange programs
- Authority should remain with the Secretary because she is the chief public health officer of this country and with community public health experts -- this is an issue for public health experts to resolve
- Congress agreed, sustaining the Secretary's authority
- Secretary is evaluating available scientific reviews of needle exchange programs to determine appropriate course of action

Q & A
Meeting of and Report from the
President's Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS
December, 1997

The PACHA accuses the Administration of having stalled on the AIDS crisis. Is this true?

No. President Clinton and his Administration remain fully engaged in the effort to end this epidemic. We have supported substantial increases in AIDS funding for care, prevention, and research, even at a time when overall discretionary funding has been tight.

Our accomplishments are remarkable. Investments in AIDS research have resulted in powerful new treatments that have helped reduce the numbers of AIDS deaths for the first time since the start of the epidemic. The Ryan White program, now funded at over a billion dollars, has allowed for a broad array of primary care and supportive services that is unparalleled. We have established a major initiative to find a vaccine against HIV within ten years.

The PACHA is expressing understandable frustration with a devastating epidemic. Presidential advisory councils are not intended to serve as "rubber stamps;" on the contrary, they are intended to provide independent, objective advice to the Administration. No doubt they are using this public document as a means to continue their advocacy with this Administration.

What do you say to the PACHA members who are threatening to resign if the Administration does not approve needle exchange programs?

We certainly understand the frustration of some of members of the President's Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS (PACHA). While their participation in the PACHA process is the most effective way for them to work with the Administration, they certainly have the right to choose to remove themselves. Unfortunately, that means that they will not have a voice at the table.

This Administration is very concerned about the continued spread of this epidemic, and is seriously reviewing the impact of needle exchange programs on curtailing HIV transmission among injection drug abusers. We worked diligently with the Congress to maintain the authority of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to remove the current restriction on the use of federal funds by local communities that choose to implement needle exchange programs. We did this because we believe that this is an issue best left to the public health experts and not to the politicians.

Is the President going to allow funding for needle exchange programs?

The decision to lift the Congressionally imposed restriction on the use of federal funds for needle exchange programs has been vested by Congress with the Secretary of Health and Human Services. She has not yet made that determination because she is studying the benefit of those programs in reducing HIV transmission and their impact on the use of illegal drugs. This is not the simple and obvious decision as has been characterized by AIDS activists. On the contrary, this nation has an epidemic of illegal drug use and we do not want to support something to address AIDS that will undermine our efforts on the drug epidemic. The President will continue to support the Secretary's process, and respects her ability to make a decision on needle exchange that is grounded in science and public health.

The PACHA is debating HIV names reporting? What is that and what is the Administration's position?

Many AIDS advocates, epidemiologists, and government officials now believe that our efforts to fight the AIDS epidemic would be improved with better information on the incidence of HIV infection. We currently rely primarily on the numbers of AIDS diagnoses or deaths as a measure of where this epidemic is currently and where it seems to be moving. However, because more and more people are living longer and longer with HIV and not progressing to AIDS, this data is increasingly out of pace with the front edge of the epidemic. This reduces our ability to initiate the kind of proactive prevention efforts necessary to stem the tide of new infections.

However, we are also very mindful of the very real concerns around confidentiality. The fear of disclosure of a positive HIV test result may inhibit many from getting tested, which is the first step in accessing medical care and avoiding further transmission. The Administration will continue to work with government and community experts to determine the best way to balance the need for more timely information on new infections with the imperative to promote HIV testing and access to care for those infected.

- * Potential vote in 1998
 - GOP 165 (pushing the edge)
 - Dem 42
207 Need 11
- * What happened
 - Business community
 - never had the detail of information available in a timely fashion that it did over Nafta
 - was only late if ever a priority
 - never really engaged most heads of wash offices
 - primarily a second team effort
 - did not press the GOP to go forward early to respond to organized labor
 - White House
 - hung out generally until late in process
 - months if not years late in engaging the labor campaign
 - internal disputes allowed to operate too late into process
 - perception was that president hungout as compared to NAFTA including reports from his calls and meetings
 - late introduction of bill
 - failure to keep Nafta promises

- House
 - Republicans
 - held business community out to late
 - then forgot they had done it
 - appeared to be concerned about content, and while that didn't seem to make sense because they were always in position to kill any bill that was sent up...were concerned if it got out ahead of them they might not be able to kill it
 - misjudged ability to move their own caucus members...of groups of GOP opposed (70-75)
 - 20% pro labor
 - 50% protectionist
 - 30% not let Clinton win at any price
 - Democrats
 - bad relationship between WH and House Dems
 - triangulation theory from 1996 election
 - perception that President really didn't care about them during 1996 congressional elections...fundraising notwithstanding
 - cost free opportunity to tell president what they thought of him
 - had already towed the mark on basis of "trust me"
 - mfn, budget act, welfare reform
 - need of more liberal members to find a cause around which they could coalesce
- Organized labor
 - started very early...shortly after nafta took effect
 - was able to engage most of its unions
 - was important to the old line
 - did not cost the newer unions anything to aid effort
 - haven't really pushed for much else this Congress
- New Democrats theme may be running out of steam
- Gore/Gephardt overhang
- * Looking ahead WH
 - If there are other fights with Republicans before fast track...forget it
 - Don't let the issue disappear
 - another day without fast track
 - target group (36) members (probably a little large)

- Need to give members that were committed against some handle to say proposal has changed
 - GOP won't give on labor/environment
 - On important issues Congress wants to vote
 - vote repeatedly
 - Separate votes on each negotiation before it starts
 - Filing deadline play - late April action
 - Look retail at assembly several small blocks
 - Murtha (to put in play Sisisky, Kanjorski, McHale)
 - Rangel
 - Africa bill in cleaned up form to put in play a few Black Caucus members (McKinney)
 - Potential to pick up a few Blue Dog/New Democrat Coalition (Roemer potential lead, although he may be the hardest/Kind/LaFalce, McIntyre, McCarthy, Turner)
 - one or two financial services people (Lowey, Ackerman)
 - Work with GOP on issues un-related to Fasttrack that might help them to draw in some of those in "no victory for Clinton/Other group"
- * Looking ahead Business Community
- targeted retail lobbying/Dem and GOP
 - tell the local story of trade in detail
 - Nancy Johnson
 - media cover
